It is evident, too, that many of our subscribers misunderstand the basis for the establishment of free calling privileges between exchanges. Simple distance or proximity considerations, though important, are insufficient. Such things as communities of interest and current calling habits are much more substantial foundations. We continually study these patterns in an effort to provide customers with the service that they want at a rate that they are prepared to pay. When the results of these studies indicate the desirability of enlargement of the free calling area, we normally canvass affected subscribers to determine actual requirements. If the majority of our customers indicate that they want the additional facility, and this at a probably increased monthly rate, we introduce it. It should, however be stressed that a minority will not be satisfied at the polling, for a majority no matter how vociferous the smaller group might be, this is regarded as our responsibility to all of our subscribers.

I very much appreciate the opportunity to attempt to clarify these areas of misunderstanding.

Liberals' Uneasiness Really No Mystery

The Windsor Star

Members of the federal Liberal Party are becoming increasingly nervous. This affects Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, his Cabinet colleagues and private members of Parliament. There is no mystery as to the causes of the uneasiness.

The "new look" Conservative Party under its new leader, Hon. Robert L. Stanfield, is becoming more impressive. The "old look" Liberal Party under Mr. Pearson is becoming less impressive.

The problems facing the Liberal Government, such as disunity, deficits, inflation, housing, etc., appear more than the Government can cope with, or at least do so effectively.

The uncertainty concerning future leadership of the party is creating unrest. The Liberal members want to know if or when Mr. Pearson is to retire; when a new leader is to be selected and who he will be.

The situation in the Cabinet is not just that it is often baffled by the problems before it or that some want to retire from public life. Several others have ambitions to gain the party leadership.

They are eyeing one another warily lest one get a head start in the leadership campaign. This is embarrassing to the entire Cabinet and especially to Mr. Pearson as Prime Minister.

Mr. Pearson is trying to get out but would be loath to quit at a time when he would leave a political mess to his successor — as in Canadian disunity for example.

The Prime Minister himself is getting a bit testy. He doesn't want potential successors to undercut his position while he still is trying to run a government. (He probably has his own ideas as to whom he would prefer as a successor.)

He cancelled the proposed trip of four leadership aspirants to a rally in Edmonton, as he had done a while back in a similar rally in Quebec. And he is right.

As long as Mr. Pearson is leader the people expect him to lead. As long as the present Government is in office the public expects it to govern and this expectation by the public is fully justified.

This is no time for Cabinet ministers to be running off in all directions in pursuit of the "holy grail" of leadership. They will widen the Government's and their own positions, if they don't stay on the job and do it. Otherwise they will be making the predicament of the Liberal Party worse, not better.

City Council at a special meeting voted unanimously to accept the offer of the Women's Christian Association and take over and operate the Belleville General Hospital. Offer of the WCA to the city was made last September when it was decided by the Association that the operation of the hospital would be in the best interests of the citizens. According to the offer made to the city, it was suggested by the WCA that the Board of Governors should be made up of representative citizens and to include amongst others, two representatives from each of the following bodies: city council, county council, medical profession and Women's Christian Association or persons appointed by them.

Building Permits Must Be Obtained: "It is a confused seems to exist in the minds of local residents over the matter of building permits which was issued by this office" stated city building inspector Charles Mott this morning. "Under the amendment to the building by-law which was passed by the council earlier this year permits for inside or outside work, alterations or construction of local nature must be secured for any job that will require an outlay or expense of $25 or over. The cost of these permits is on a graduated scale."

Ross Bunnett was also presented with a gold medal for making the highest score in competition with boys not attending school.

Nurse Cites Enrolment Problems As Staff Shortages Continue

Brockville Recorder and Times

Regional nursing schools, now, shorter courses, financial aid and increased pay have not achieved the increased student enrolment that Health Minister Dymond had hoped for in the province's nursing schools this year. And the schools must take some of the blame for this lack of results at a time when the nursing shortage is growing increasingly serious. There are over 200 vacancies in the nursing schools in Ontario this year.

A letter to a Toronto newspaper is a case to at least part of the problem. Referring to all the vacancies in nursing schools this year, an aspiring student writes:

"This didn't happen because girls weren't interested in entering this wonderful profession. I am 18, have a grade 12 diploma of the four year arts and science course and am now working in a hospital kitchen. Why?

"When I started high school I was told by the guidance teacher and the principal that I could enter nursing with grade 12 of the four-year course. When I graduated I couldn't get in to a school in Ontario. I went back to school to get my grade 13 diploma of the five-year course. I couldn't pass math and was told by the Ontario College of Nursing they could not accept me without it, even if I got the rest of my subjects. I quit.

"I decided to do the next best thing and took a course as a Registered Nursing Assistant. Then in late August the requirements for entry were changed. They decided to accept four-year students. To be on the safe side, I phoned the Scarboro Regional School to confirm this. I was told yes, providing I had 65 percent. Since I had it, I decided to drop out of the nursing assistant's course and enrol in a nursing school. I was told my application could not be accepted because I didn't have 75 percent. They've really given me a lot of encouragement, haven't they?

"Sure, other schools will accept me next year, but they wonder why there is a shortage of students. It's because you get a real runaround. I realize one must have brains to be a nurse, but the desire makes the difference between someone who just gets the job done and one who does it with her whole heart. We need a good look at who is getting the schools of nursing and just how hard they are trying to get students."

We would presume that this girl's experience is not an isolated case. Certainly the situation in Nursing has caused the government and the profession to take a hard look at what was happening and this has resulted in many changes in the entrance requirements to schools of nursing in this province.

The minimum requirement for admission to a school of nursing under the new regulations is a secondary school graduation diploma issued upon the successful completion of grade 12 or any branch of the four-year program. Grade 13 matriculation arts and science, including chemistry and one of physics or biology, are required as options. Or a student may be admitted on a standing equivalent to the above. Also considered as qualified students are:

Those who held the secondary school graduation diploma for grade 12 of the general course, with four options or any branch of the five-year program standing in grade 13 biology may be substituted for the physics part of the above options. And up to the 30th day of September, 1967 the mathematics standing (grade 10) shall not be required.

For the older student, new requirements have also been instituted. After December 31, 1975 any applicant 25 years or older who has completed a four-year course in secondary school, will qualify for admission to a nursing school.

These new regulations are now in effect but if Dr. Dymond is sufficiently concerned about the lack of enrolment in the schools of nursing across the province he may find, as the Scarboro girl did, that very few schools are heeding the new regulations.

Ontario Tourism Boosted

Brockville Recorder and Times

Ontario holds a unique position in the world of tourism, Ontario's minister of tourism, James Auld, told an audience in Toronto recently. This province has three visitors for every resident and this ratio, three to one, is the highest of any tourist jurisdiction in the world.

Last year we had nearly 25 million tourists from outside the province. Ninety percent of them were from the United States and they spent $440 millions. Two thirds of all foreign visitors in Canada, enter through Ontario ports.

But as valuable as this foreign tourist business is to the province, it is only a portion of the total tourist spending in the province. Tourist spending totalled $1.6 billions last year. Ian other words our own people spend a tremendous amount of money travelling around our own province.

Power Corporation Management Team One of Canada's Youngest

MONTREAL (CP)—Ten young Power Corp. executives meet at 9 a.m. each weekday in their conference room on top of Montreal's Place Ville Marie to trade ideas about the $178,-000,000 holdings they manage.

From these meetings of what is believed to be the youngest management team at any major Canadian corporation has come the impetus for some of Canada's recent pioneering business projects.

Formed in 1925 to capitalize on the newly-developing electric power struggles, the company has been expanding rapidly in step with the times, especially in modern management techniques. Its holdings stretch across Canada, into Australia and into the United States.

The 10-man group, with an average age of 36, is headed by President Bill Turner, 30. Each of the executives reports on his own responsibilities, and discussion could centre on anything from estimated earnings on a $46,000,000 investment in Consolidated Paper Corp., to new breeding methods in a 19,000 acre sheep-ranch in Australia.

Long-range policy decisions are made by Peter N. Thomson, 42, chairman and chief executive officer, and by a board of directors made of several of Canada's leading financial figures.

Mr. Thomson and the board could discuss decisions over new acquisitions and mergers, developments in a subsidiary's plan to build a complete city for 50,000 residents, or new technology effecting a proposed launching of Canada's, first communications satellite at an estimated cost of $75,000,000. Power Corp. is primarily a holding company, with investments divided among 30 corporations.

The largest investments are centered in Bathurst Paper Ltd. of Bathurst, N.B., Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. of Montreal, and Northern and Central Gas Co. Ltd. of Toronto, which together account for about $85,000,000 or half of Power Corp.'s total portfolio.

Maurice Strong, former Power Corp. president who was brought into the organization by Mr. Thomson five years ago, and who last year took over Canada's external aid department, defined the type of situations Power Corp. is looking for —long-term equity investments in a relatively few companies which can become international leaders in their fields and which are related to Canadian experience. Examples are pulp and paper, transportation, natural gas and oil and communications.

Rather than try to influence day-to-day management, he said Power Corp. would encourage modern techniques and develop or support self-contained management in each company. Suggestions and decisions are made in consultation with each of the companies' boards of directors. Mr. Turner, who took over as president about 18 months ago, is an industrial engineer and Harvard Business School graduate. He co-ordinates the work of his team and reports to Mr. Thomson and the directors.

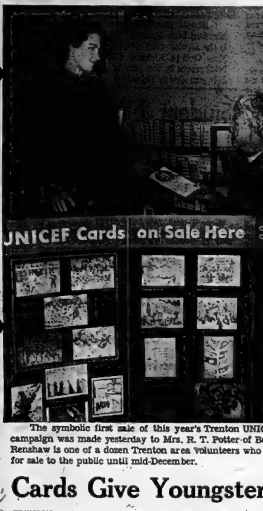
One of his associates says "his two greatest talents are an ability to develop his own ideas and to channel other people's ideas into effective action."

He has two vice-presidents, Trey Hampson and Paul Paine.

Mr. Hampson, 37, former research chief of a large Canadian investment firm, joined Power Corp. after serving on the Porter royal commission on banking. He specializes in the portfolios of two subsidiaries, Capital Management Corp. and Laurentide Financial Corp., with total investments of more than $130,000,000.

Mr. Paine, 31, a former Vancouver lawyer, is chairman of Laurentide Financial Corp.

Power Corp.'s major transaction came in 1962-63 when B.C. Electric and several private Quebec power companies were nationalized, and when Canadian Oil Companies Ltd. was taken over by an American corporation. Together they left about $60,000,000 in new funds to invest.



In April, 1963, Power Corp. helped create Chemcell (1963) Ltd. In May the company purchased a massive block of Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. Other investments included Shawinigan Industries Ltd. and International Utilities Ltd. In 1966 it invested $46,800,000 in Consolidated Paper Corp., and the following year became more involved in Laurentide Financial Corp.

In October, 1967, the company increased its holdings in Canadian Interurban Properties Ltd. to over 57 per cent of the common stock, and in CKLW-TV, agreed to create Northern and Central Natural Gas.

Canadian Interurban Properties is working through a subsidiary to develop Kanata, an Ottawa suburb for 30,000 residents that is scheduled for completion in 10 years at an estimated cost of $175,000,000. Company executives add, however, that such projections are difficult to estimate accurately. Sections of the community are already completed, including schools, a shopping centre and a golf course.

Another subsidiary, North American Recreation Industries Ltd., owns several ski areas in Western Canada, a travel agency and a chain of movie theatres, and is helping develop a resort on Grand Bahama Island in the Caribbean.

A third, Quebec Telesystems, owns radio stations and a television station in Sherbrooke, Que., and is directly involved in a proposed project to launch CANSAT, a communications satellite to transmit broadcasts across Canada, and to develop National Television (NTV), a national network of French and English color television.

Cards Give Youngsters Boost

TRENTON — What more practical way to make a charitable donation than by buying something everyone needs at this time of year — Christmas cards?

The annual UNICEF Christmas card campaign is underway in Trenton, with the internationally - flavored designs being offered from now until mid-December.

Mrs. R. T. Potter travelled from Belleville yesterday to launch this year's Trenton 1967-selling drive with a symbolic first purchase from Mrs. B. B. Renshaw, a local campaign volunteer.

A dozen Trenton and area women are volunteering in this year's sales drive, all proceeds of which help further the work of the United National International Children's Emergency Fund.

This year's card selections, as usual, include a colorful variety of international designs, from parts of the world in which UNICEF funds aid the underprivileged.

UNICEF cards may be purchased from now until Dec. 15 from: Mrs. Fred Hollman, Batawa; Mrs. Ian Banyard, Middleton Park; Mrs. E. T. Stewart, Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club; R. J. Bird, Belleville; Mrs. E. D. Magnus, Trenton; and at a special sales desk in Trenton's branch of the Royal Bank.

Nominations Next Week

Nomination meetings will be the order of the day in Quinte district municipalities next week as aspirants for municipal offices indicate their intentions for another term.

In Belleville nominations will be held Wednesday evening, Nov. 22 with the meeting at city hall to get underway at 7.30.

Nominations will be held for the offices of mayor, city council, public and separate school boards and for public utilities commissioner.

But Thursday night, Nov. 23 is the popular night for nominations. The town of Trenton, Ameliasburgh and Tyendinaga townships will hold nomination meetings on that date.

Friday evening Nov. 24, Frankford in Thurlow township will hold their nomination with the meeting again to get underway at 7.00 p.m.

Sidney township council is elected for a two year term and with this year being an "off" year there will be no nomination or election.

E. Arnold Orr Will Run for Council Seat

Mr. E. Arnold Orr, former superintendent of secondary schools for the Bay of Quinte High School district will be an aldermanic candidate in the December 4 Belleville municipal election.

Mr. Orr retired from the superintendent's position last July and feels now that he has some time to serve in the municipal field.

"I never considered municipal office while I was working," he said. "When doing a job I feel I should devote my full time to it."

A native of Belleville, Mr. Orr has spent his entire life in the field of education.

After teaching high school in Western Ontario, he served as principal of Sault Ste. Marie Collegiate before returning to Belleville. He was principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School for 10 years prior to his appointment as secondary schools inspector.

economic environment governments need to prepare budgets more frequently than once each year.

Mr. Sharp also said he had pointed out in the meeting that, to a large extent, federal government spending depends on activities of the provincial governments. A large proportion of federal expenditure was geared to federal-provincial projects.

But, he said, Ottawa must continue to be dominant in the collection of corporation taxes, and it cannot give away any more of its revenues from personal income taxes if it is going to have power to manage the over-all economy.

Another conference will also be called later this year or early next year to discuss the Carter royal commission report on taxation. This might delay implementation of whatever reforms the government settles on.

Mr. Sharp said the discussion of medical care insurance was not concluded Thursday. But he and provincial spokesmen in the crowded corridor outside the conference room indicated the mood is for delay.

Mr. Sharp said: "I know of no intention on the part of the federal government to change its legislation, but when the provinces make representations we have got to give them careful consideration."

Father: "Do we have to be absolutely quiet every time she's asleep?"

Even babies who are extra sensitive to noise, as some are, will learn to tolerate and sleep through normal household noises in a few weeks.

Culture of Bulbs Explained At Horticultural Meeting

Speakers for the November meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society were Leroy Johnson of Belleville Landscaping and Earl Yates.

Mr. Johnson spoke on the forcing of bulbs for indoor winter blooming. He recommended the use of top sized bulbs, planted closely together. Good soil is not as important as good drainage because the bulbs have their own food supply. Heavy clay soil should not be used unless well mixed with equal portions of sand and peat moss. Clay soil holds excess moisture and promotes bulb rotting.

After planting, bulbs should be watered and stored at a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees for two months. An unheated garage or trench 12 to 18 inches deep is satisfactory. Bulbs should be placed in a dark room at 60 degrees for one week to stimulate top growth, then put in a sunny window and watered frequently until they begin to bloom.

Bulbs recommended for forcing are: tulips, Darwin, Bartigon, William Pitt, William Copeland, Mendel, Triumph; daffodils, King Alfred, Rembrandt, Golden Harvest; Paperwhite, Kings of the Blues, Queen of the Blues, Pink Pearl, Bismarck, Flanecence Peach, Jan Bos, Crocus, Snowdrops, scillas and jonquils also force well.

Mr. Yates, past president of the Camera Club, showed slides of the Martinsville, Quebec, Ontario and the eastern seaboard of the United States, highlighted with a picture of Expo.

Door prize winners were Mrs. Lawrence Foster, Mrs. Douglas Scott, Mrs. William Yates, Mrs. Ray McCoy, Mrs. E. Penny and Mrs. R. Watson.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The regular meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday afternoon with president, Mrs. D. G. Livingston in charge of the business section of the meeting. Correspondence included letters from the Carousel committee, Mr. and Mrs. W. Adams, also from the rector of the parish. This letter outlined the needs of the Printmak's World Relief Appeal and, following its reading, the Guild decided to forward a cheque in this worthy fund. A number of letters were read from shut-in members of the Church.

Minutes were read from the recent meeting of the Vestry Council and future plans for the parish were outlined in these. The Occasional Entrance on Everett Street will be completed at an early date and the Parish Memorial Book will be dedicated. "Concord 67" was an outstanding success, both financially and socially, with members from all organizations and individual members working together in happy harmony.

The Guild's effort, the organization and planning of the home-baking, candy and delicatessen tables was above expectations and the results were tendered to all who had worked to make it so successful.

A bale of good used clothing will be sent to Lansdowne House at Lansdowne Bay. Christmas gifts will be taken to shut-in members during the holiday season and Mrs. T. Schofield will purchase and wrap these.

At the December meeting members will bring donations of groceries and little luxuries to be included in the hampers for needy families. The meeting will be a potluck luncheon and special music will include the clergy, the Church staff and the husbands of the members.

As special speaker for the afternoon, Captain R. L. Bell-Wright, rector, outlined the program of the Anglican Church Women, pointing out the draw-backs of the present set-up of women's groups and the advantages of the new idea. At present a small percentage of the Church's women are engaged in parish activities and it is hoped that under the new system more may be encouraged to join together for a wider outreach of God's work.

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Fred Lazier and Mrs. F. A. Beeby.

CHRIST CHURCH CONTACT CLUB

Plans for a Christmas party were discussed at the meeting of Christ Church Contact Club Nov. 13.

Canon D. B. Wright spoke on the Anglican Church Women and Lilian Middleton was appointed to the board of the Anglican Church Women.

St. Margaret's Yule Tea Is Well Attended

By A. HENDERSON

On each guest table with its dainty lace-edged cloth, little Centennial flags flattered from miniature white standards embedded in holly sprays and evergreen moss presenting a delightful vista to the thronging guests who attended the Christmas tea and bazaar yesterday afternoon at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill. As the eye travelled around the hive of activity, the long tea table was spotted at one side with its white and red simplicity, centred by a simulated white Christmas tree bedecked with red and green metallic orbs and encircled about its base with red poinsettias. Silver services, tall red candles in silver holders, and dainty holly-covered serviettes completed the setting.

At the far end of the auditorium a stately Christmas tree stood sentinel over the fishpool, the irresistible lure of the little tots.

Welcoming the guests were: Mrs. W. A. Bowerman, Mrs. R. Babcock-Mrs. Ina Smith presided as treasurer for the afternoon, while Mrs. Hapgood during the afternoon were, women from the various city churches: Mrs. H. Eder; Mrs. A. Carr-Brainf; Mrs. S. W. Campbell; and Mrs. S. Gentle. Those who replenished the tables and served the fancy sandwiches and tiny cakes were: Mrs. J. Bennett; Mrs. W. Gorham; Mrs. Lillian Saunders; Mrs. A. Pierson; Mrs. W. Roberts; Mrs. Robert Bailey; Mrs. D. Horne, Mrs. J. Ecker; Mrs. R. Hayes, and Miss J. Redner.

In the alcove were two enticing booths, one of candies, centred by a marshmallow tree covered with tiny green and pink mallows surrounded with cups of fudge, divinity, maple creams, all in charge of Mrs. William Messer. Directly across was the booth of homemaking replete with chocolate, loaf and layer cakes; buns; cookies, lemon and pumpkin pies, date and nut breads, and cookies of many types. Theas were in charge of Mrs. J. Ritchie; Mrs. Gordon Bell and Mrs. G. Brown.

Along the south wall of the tea room were the various drawing card booths: that of the novelties and toys. Those were in charge of Mrs. Hilda Field, Mrs. J. Findley, and Mrs. Thomas Colgrer. Miss A. Docter had oversight of the fish pond as game warden.

The spring and fancy work was a delight to the eager shoppers. One could purchase lovely lace-edged pillow slips or daintily embroidered table cloths, tea cloths ,and many other Christmas items. The convenors of sales were: Mrs. Sarah Dobson and Mrs. C. Parris.

Mrs. Rose Bellwood was in charge of the nursery.

The delicatessen was replete with sausage rolls, pickles, jams, jellies, aquashes, and a few potted plants. Mrs. Thomas Colgrer, Mrs. A. Miles and Mrs. David Brown, were the convenors of these, while Mrs. E. Jones had charge of the church plates, Christmas cards and aprons.

The tea and bazaar was officially opened by Rev. J. A. Dunlop.

Ann Landers

Story of Unnecessary Operation Has Flaws

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A dear friend of mine had a horrible experience recently and I would like your opinion on what should be done about it. Emily (not her real name) noticed a lump in her breast. She went to a physician and was told to check into the hospital for surgery that evening. The operation was performed within 48 hours of the time she had seen the physician.

When Emily awoke from the anesthetic she learned that her breast had been removed. She was into a deep depression (which I understand is not unusual) but she began to cheer up on the fourth day. On the fifth day, however, it leaked out that the biopsy report in the breast which had been removed was negative. This made the poor woman so furious that she just about tore the hospital apart.

ANN LANDERS

What can be done to prevent such catastrophies in the future? Don't suggest that Emily sue the doctor. Everyone knows the medical profession is a sightly built little group, and it's ridiculous to try to fight them. I'd like your views. — CALIFORNIA YELL FOR HELP.

DEAR CALIFORNIA: Like most second-hand reports your story contains some serious flaws.

No reputable physician removes a breast unless he first does a biopsy on the lump and finds a malignancy. This procedure is standard and virtually eliminates the possibility of removing a healthy breast.

Furthermore, all hospitals approved by the American Hospital Association now have tissue committees which examine a portion of all the organs which have been removed. Yours ago a surgeon couldn't remove just about anything and not have to answer to anyone. Today, he would not be allowed to operate if he had a record for taking out organs which showed no sign of disease.

So, don't believe everything you hear, Dearie.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I couldn't resist writing to express my sympathy for the woman who signed herself "Married To A Nut." She asked you to arrange passage for him to the moon because he couldn't get along with a single person here on earth.

There is at least one more like him. My husband. He also has some pet theories about life and people and will happily deliver a 40-minute speech on any topic, with or without encouragement. My husband is certain that nobody in this world succeeds unless he is crooked, dishonest, immoral or related. This goes for the top people in politics, business, religion, education and the arts.

I have a suggestion for "Married To A Nut." Let's you and I get together and introduce our husbands. Maybe they can find happiness together knocking everybody on earth. Then we wives can take the first rocket to the moon and look for some nice little outer-space men who are sensible and well-balanced. Please print my name and address. — ALSO MARRIED TO A NUT.

DEAR ALSO: Here's your letter but I wouldn't think of printing your name and address. You'd be besieged with letters from wives who would want to join you!

Successful Living

The Art of Learning to Be A Good Parent Is Worth All the Effort It Takes

Dear Doris: How does one learn to be a parent? By sitting at the feet of one more experienced than you. That is why I go for parent-teacher groups in a big way. I was too timid to take part in discussion when I joined, ten years ago.

But I listened. And I found it much more convincing when a parent commented on spilt milking like allowances than what I had read in articles.

Now I am a ten-year expert. As president of a local association may I call all parents who are concerned about the future generation to:

1. Come if you are a learner; you may learn something from us.

2. Come if you are an old hand; we may learn something from you.

3. Let's get together and make a better world through better children — with God's help. — Mrs. T.H.

Dear Mrs. T.H.: Good for you. Talking things over with others who have similar questions and some of the answers is a tremendous help. Learning to be a good parent is worth all it takes.

Dear Doris: My husband doesn't think that I love him enough so he tells me that since I never fooled around before I should go out with just one guy just once. Then maybe I would love my husband more.

I say it is wrong. I love my husband and children dearly. My trouble is maybe I don't show it enough. My father was killed in a mine in France when I was six years old. After that my mother worked all the time so she didn't have much time to show her love for us kids.

I know of a lot of women who fool around even though they are married, but I still say it is wrong. — Just Mixed Up.

Dear Mixed Up: I'd say Hubby is mixed up too. Fooling around with somebody else is not the accepted way of showing love for one's husband.

But let's not throw out the baby with the bath water. He may be wishing you could take a course to learn how to "show it enough". When a woman is not demonstrative and a man can't draw her out, married love suffers.

You explain yourself by saying your mother never had time to show her love for you. Doesn't this suggest that your little ones need the hugs and kisses that you lacked?

I'm sending you a list of books about love and marriage. This side of human relations is too important to ignore.

Dear Doris: We have already received four or five inquiries as a result of your letter about lipreading. If the email pertains, we will see many more in the future.

We are most pleased to respond to any of these inquiries so don't hesitate to send them along if they have any bearing whatsoever on the problems of hearing-impaired.

Dear Mr. Fellendor: Don't worry. I'll be knocking on your door when I need you. And so, I hope, will our readers; either about learning to lipread or to improve speech.

(Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Uncooked Mincemeat

By MARY MOORE

Letter: (Dated December 14, 1966) My topic is mincemeat. You put a recipe in your column last year around this time and another last night for Mincemeat. I wanted to write you last year about this. The thing that puzzles me is that you cook this before it is used. I have been making mincemeat for years from a recipe that was my mother's and we just grind up all the ingredients, mix, bottle or put in the refrigerator until required for the pies or tarts. We usually make this about a week before Christmas and it keeps for quite a while; in fact I have used it up at Easter with no ill effects. I would like your comments. — Vera B.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

ANSWER: My comments are all commendable. I made up your recipe (see below) last week and stored it in the refrigerator. Last night I measured out 4 cups to make a double crust mince pie and it is lovely. I have three suggestions: Mince pie m a d e from this recipe must be cooked about 70 min. (at 425 deg. Fahr. first 15 min then 350 deg. Fahr. for remaining 55 min.) to be sure raw ingredients are tender and bonded. I added more sugar for its flavor and preserving properties.

MINCEMEAT

3¼ cups granulated sugar
2 lbs. dark California Seedless raisins
1 lb. currants
½ lb. mixed peel
5 lbs. washed, cored, quartered un-pared apples (Vera and I used Macs)
1 large lemon — grated rind and unstrained juice
2 grated whole nutmegs (or 2 tbsps. powdered nutmeg)
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup sherry or brandy or whiskey (optional) or apple juice

Put through medium knife of food grinder the suet and apples and combine with all remaining ingredients. Turn into about 7½ sterilized pint jars or 2 lb. plastic containers with snug-fitting lids and store in refrigerator until needed.

The only raw ingredient that is vulnerable is the suet, but refrigeration and sugar and sherry (if used) are adequate preservatives for a six-week period.

Model Carroll Roebke illustrates the three popular coiffures according to Hollywood's award-winning hair stylist Jerry Sweet. These range from the mini style which has no curl and requires no set, to the Midi set, and finally the Maxi-coif which necessitates the use of jumbo curlers.

Coiffures Now Follow Latest Fashion Styles

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

Seen the "new" look in hair styles? Coiffures are following the fashion trend and stepping the Mini, Midi and Maxi-styles. As the Mini suggests, this coif has no curl and requires no set. All that's needed is a four-inch cut, and tresses washed clean and shiny with baby shampoo. According to Jerry Sweet, Hollywood's award-winning hair stylist, tresses are brushed straight and combed from the crown in a pinwheel design. Strands dip forward to the brows, down at the sides and back. If silhouette is too flat, add a circlet of ribbon loops across the top.

The Midi-set increases your curl power. Medium-length hair is set on large rollers in a turn-under pattern, except for two exaggerated "kiss curls" that are secured on each cheek with no-pull fishid tape. Coif springs to life when understrands are plump-brushed and top layer smoothed into a page boy. Now, comes the step which separates the sensational from the so-so. Use the thumb and index finger to shape and stretch a long, loose curl down the left side, flipping end tips up to rest on turnunder bob. Come right side to circle the ear. Then as model Carroll Roebke illustrates, either view is equally eye-appealing.

You don't have to be a genius to duplicate the Maxi-coif, but some styling knowhow helps. Sweet suggests using jumbo rollers on long hair and twirling curlers back from forehead, but down at the sides and the back. Brush strands to crown and secure with a ring of bobby pins. Now, comb and tips into two-inch wide pouls that crest across the crown. Overlap them in an irregular pattern, and they won't seem so precise. Needle a decorative bow among the loops; however, be a swinger; always place ribbon at an angle.

Foxboro Bridge Has Problems

If it isn't high water or a strike it's cold weather and winter. The effort by the Cons-Bridge Ltd. of Toronto to complete two bridges spanning the Moira River in Foxboro has been harassed since work began on the project in June.

The bridge contract to span the Moira via the Thurlow Township Development Road is with the county of Hastings for $135,000 and was to be completed by September. Needless to say, it is a little late. The entire superstructure for the bridge was purchased from Wilson Concrete in a separate contract.

Problems on the job started shortly after construction began with the high water during June and July. "With over a foot of rainfall in June the Moira River was three feet above its supposed level," said Tom Press, company representative.

According to Mr. Press the strike at Wilson Concrete Ltd. posed the worst problem. The hollow girders are rectangular with a square hole in the centre and are quite large. They had been ordered before the bridge construction began but once the strike started—"They just sat up at Wilson's, and there was no way to get them to us," said Mr. Press.

There are two bridges being erected over the river and they will meet on an island which has about 100 feet of road connecting the bridges. The bridge on the west has a pier.

The girders have just arrived from Wilson and Mr. Press says he expects the bridge to be completed by the middle of September. Traffic is still passing over the old bridge but there is no pavement as the road has been graded with fill.

It looks as if all the company has to worry about now is the winter and judging from the display we had last Wednesday there is no doubt about it, winter's here.

Delayed Span Slowly Grows

The bridge over the Moira River in Foxboro connecting the Thurlow township development road is soon to be completed. Its completion has been delayed since the beginning by high water, strike and winter but a Cons-Bridge Ltd. spokesmsn feels it will be finished by the middle of December.

Parity Could Jeopardize Jobs Massey-Ferguson Brief Claims

TORONTO (CP) — Massey-Ferguson Ltd. said Thursday it has sent copies of a study it commissioned last year on the effect of wage parity on its North American operations to Prime Minister Pearson, Premier Robarts of Ontario, federal and provincial cabinets and members of Parliament.

A letter from Company President A. A. Thornbargh accompanying the report said it would be unfortunate if wage parity became critical in the company's labor negotiations without serious consideration of the public being fully informed of possible consequences.

The study, completed by Hedtie, Menzies and Associates Ltd. of Winnipeg in July, 1967, found the wages differential between Massey-Ferguson's Canadian and U.S. workers was about 30 cents an hour in 1965, and the figure had not changed significantly.

Parity for Canadian workers in 1965 would have added about 13 per cent to the company's $37,200,000 Canadian wage bill that year, the study said. Wage parity for Massey's 5,000 Canadian workers—about 80 per cent of all its North American employees—would cost about 30 times as much a worker as would parity for the Canadian auto industry.

Under wage parity, the study said, Massey-Ferguson would have to reappraise its Canadian operations and consider the economic desirability of gradually phasing out Canadian plants.

Speaking to the Personnel Association of Toronto Thursday, J. A. Belford, Massey-Ferguson vice-president for personnel, said that if the farm machinery business is "caught up in a pattern of U.S. wage parity settlements, the future of major Canadian facilities of the industry and the job security of its Canadian employees will be placed in imminent jeopardy."

Stelco Says Expansion Hinges on Carter Veto

HAMILTON (CP) — The Steel Company of Canada Ltd. says it will be forced to restrict or abandon its expansion plans if the Carter Report on taxation is adopted.

In a 32-page brief to Finance Minister Sharp, Stelco says the new tax proposals would severely limit the company's ability to raise capital on terms that would provide a reasonable rate of return.

If Carter's proposals on prime metal income and capital cost allowances are implemented, the return on investment and profit per tan would be reduced by 30 per cent, the brief said. In addition, net profit over the 15 year period would be reduced by about $200,000,000.

Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., in a 14-page brief to Mr. Sharp, said the steel industry's ability to compete is being threatened by the new tax proposals.

The Carter Report recommends that depletion allowances of the three-year tax holiday on new mines be replaced by direct government assistance in deserving areas.

The brief notes the company would not have participated in two recent iron ore mining developments—Wabush Mines in Labrador, and the Sherman Mine at Temagami—if the Carter Report's recommendations had been in effect.

BC Herring Fishermen Face Crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's herring fishing industry, once a $5,000,000-plus a year concern, has fallen on evil days.

Some 700 members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union are appealing to the federal government for aid because of cancellation of the winter herring season, which usually runs from Dec. 1 to May 15.

J. W. Patterson, an executive of the union, said Thursday the situation is grim for these men.

"Even when the catches were good they were, only making $2.17 a ton for herring, and processing companies were making about $22 a ton," he said. "But now, the herring reserves have gone so far down nobody's making any money."

He said he agrees fully with the closure, and blames Canadian fishermen for the decline in herring.

"It was overfishing on our part that caused it, and we'll have to wait at least two years before the situation gets any better."

In the total 1962-63 season, B.C. fishermen hauled in 265,647 tons of herring. Last season, the catch was reduced to 133,823 tons.

In the 1964 summer season, which ran from June 1 to Oct. 15, 87,406 tons of herring came over the side. This summer, it was a pitiful 2,810.

MANY BEAVERS — by Harry Sinclair Drago.

This is the story of a crippled Cree Indian boy in the year 1885, living with a band of Crees in British Columbia, far from their homeland in Manitoba. Many Beavers raises a grizzly from a cub and then faces the problem of what to do when it reaches maturity.

Written by the author of Mosaic of Belleville, this book depicts Canada past and present through the medium of her stamps. Each page has a beautifully reproduced enlargement of a Canadian Postage Stamp. Although it will be of particular interest to the young stamp collector, it will also please children curious about Canada's history.

THE SECRET OF WILLOW CASTLE — by Lyn Cook.

This is the story of Henrietta Macpherson, eleven years old in 1834. Set in Nepanee, it is a comfortable account of family life, with a bit of mystery tossed in. Henrietta was cousin to John A. Macdonald, and he appears frequently as a young man starting his law career.

THE WHITE ARCHER — by James Houston.

A tale that catches the vast and silent beauty of our far north. Most timely, it also tells how peace and understanding can come to former enemies. The New York Times finds a suggestion of an Eskimo King Arthur story here.

Interior view of 210 feet by 90 feet pre-engineered Kingston structure shows workmen preparing rink floor for flooding. Rink will have bleacher area on one side with change rooms, washrooms and second storey community hall at far end. Kingston rinks are being erected at Rideau Heights and at the old McGaffin Stadium.

Kingston's Two New Smaller-sized Fully Enclosed Rinks Are Given Close Inspection by Belleville City Councillor

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

While Belleville is debating whether to go ahead with the construction of a new Community Centre at the fairgrounds, Kingston is building two smaller sized rinks which are claimed will fill a big recreational need in that city.

Kingston Parks and Recreation director D. R. Fluhrer, admits the two small fully enclosed rinks in that city are not elaborate.

But he points out they will fill a big recreational need, and best of all, the cost is only about $145,000 each.

Yesterday on the invitation of Belleville Ald. Donald Carruthers who supports the idea of the smaller sized rinks, The Intelligencer went to Kingston to see at first hand what the small rinks were all about.

It was learned that one of the rinks is already up and fully enclosed. The superstructure of the second rink is up and the building partially enclosed. Artificial ice will not be installed now but both rinks are expected to be in operation this winter.

The rinks — 90 by 210 feet — are what is known as pre-engineered buildings with steel truss self - supporting roof structure.

The ice surface in the rinks is 75 by 175 feet.

Mr. Fluhrer admits that Kingston may have saved several thousand dollars by having two rinks built at the same time, and also by the fact that much of the finishing work is being done by parks and city property maintenance men.

In addition to the ice surface the rink structures provide a bleacher area along one side of the boards for accommodation of between 300 and 400 spectators. There is a five foot wide walk area between the rink boards and the outside walls of the structures.

At one end of the rinks there are change rooms, public washrooms, ice equipment rooms and storage area.

Above the washroom area and running full width of the rink structure — 90 feet — will be a community hall area with portable partitions.

Mr. Fluhrer said the basic structures were contracted, but city workmen were doing much of the finish work, such as installing rink boards, installation of change rooms and washrooms, and finishing of the second floor community hall.

The upstairs community hall could be omitted if desired, but Mr. Fluhrer sees a wide variety of recreational uses for the meeting facilities.

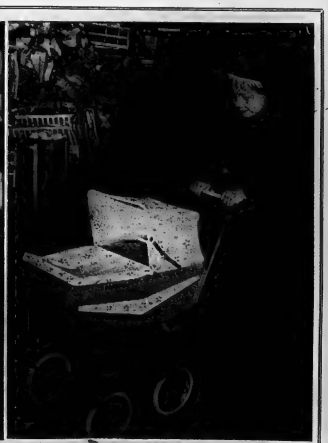
Financing of the Kingston rinks will be through city debentures of $180,000 for each of the two structures; there will be government grants of $10,000 for each of the buildings and the remaining cost of $35,000 for each rink is hoped will be gained through public subscriptions.

The $35,000 balance of the cost of each of the rinks is for artificial ice, which, according to Mr. Fluhrer is hoped to be realized from service clubs as a joint centennial project.

Last week, after Belleville council voted to table the arena project for consideration by the 1968 council, Ald. Carruthers recommended that the local parks board investigate the two Kingston rinks.

Ald. Don Williams as city parks board chairman, said his committee had already investigated such rinks, and the motion was turned down.



But Ald. Carruthers feels the city cannot afford a one-million dollar arena complex at this time and says he will bring in another recommendation to council for consideration of the Kingston rinks.

Christmas Getting Closer

Toys May Be Creative But Dolls and Trucks Still Popular

By ROGER WORTH
Staff Reporter

Children's tastes in toys may be more creative these days but the toddlers are still addicted to the age old dolls and trucks.

For the past few years miniature war machines and vehicles of destruction have dominated the toy industry. This year, however, the trend is toward the minute space vehicle and other scientific adaptations of real life adventures.

The range of toys for the older child runs from the moon shot installation to chemistry sets and microscopes.

A major change in the doll department is the increase in size of the toy people. A Belleville department store spokesman said today, "It's just fantastic the way these dolls have changed during the last few years."

"We now have dolls that can walk, talk, cry, drink and go to the bathroom — the next thing will be the doll that thinks."

The size of the dolls has increased to the point where some are as large as a two-year-old youngster.

Television heroes are also leading the trend toward changes in Christmas toys. Department store displays include such personalities as Batman and Robin, Superman, Steve Canyon and Tonto.

Two items back on department store shelves this year after a drop off in sales in recent times are the electric train and the old time cowboy and Indian sets.

Both cowboys and Indians appear to be more refined with dolls coming dressed in buckskin breeches — riding on horses.

The road racing sets are still popular although electric trains are on the way back. They are pushed strongly in several toy departments.

The new image in the toy industry is projected by the number of educational toys available on display racks. These are an innovation in recent years and sales are increasing steadily.

Games are also a major item for the father or mother to purchase during the Christmas season. The popularity of such games as monopoly and darts is holding although they are hard pressed by a huge selection of newer games.

The move away from the war toy was apparently started by parents who didn't complain — they just didn't buy the guns and tanks. One department store spokesman said today "it doesn't take long for the industry to change its product once the consumer stops buying."

As usual demand for such winter items, as sleds, skis, toboggans, hockey equipment, and skates remains about the same as in previous years. People seem to have more time for recreation.

he only people who don't have a problem selecting Christmas gifts are the kiddies — they still want that doll.

SPORTS SLICE

If you're ever down Boston way take a pail of a gaggle of baconeaters as to what is the most important thing that ever happened in the town of the bean and the cod.

Some of the berzkers of the staid village of the Cabots and Lodges will whisper Paul Revere, the tea-party, or the lobster bill.

Others will murmur Ted Williams in a healthy voice while the big majority will let out a cheer leader yell that will sound like "Carl Yastrzemski." Yaz, for short.

Then they'll hrittle over the clam chowder and filleted cod with a paraphrase of a famous sports cliche "Yaz was blessed."

And a lot of people agree with them. "Yaz" was voted the American League's Most Valuable Player the other day — with one discenting vote. Some inebriated wretch of the baseball writing fraternity from up around Minnesota wry put a verbal noose around his neck by naming Cesar Tovar, a jack-of-all-trades of the Minnesota Twins for the MVP award.

The underground has it that the Massachusetts State Police, the FBI; the Men from Uncle and Mission Impossible, with the Saint thrown in, are combing the streets of southern Mhassons for the dastard who dared vote against the beloved Yaz.

Tovar, they point out, batted only .267 and finished seventh in the overall standings. But he was so effective in the Twins veiled hint the most valuable player over a guy named Harmon Killebrew, a slugger of more than passing ability.

However the maiden sin of Tov to Boston's and perhaps baseball delights, has given the Beantown sportswriters and columnists something different to write about regarding their favorite subject.

Carried away perhaps by the sensational feats of the Yaz who was the big factor in bringing the Red Sox from ninth place to the top and the league beating, one predicts that the 28-year-old Yaz will become the most valuable player of all time.

But there did hang a huge pot of gold at the end of the Yastrzemski rainbow. Reportedly he signed a contract with the Bosox that called for an overall income of $224,000. However this included $50,000 for his dad as a Boston scout and some $12,000 for a brother's college education. Yaz sir, this guy is quite a business man.

The Boston American's sports writer Fred Foy announces in Boston and the world that Yaz will salt away $350,000 in 1968. This includes his Red Sox salary of $100,000.

Yaz may go down in history as one of the greatest players of all time but you can add the greatest gold-extractor title to his honors.

He'll go into the records for his sensational feat of the 1967 season, and tacked away somewhere will be the fact that he is the first to earn a quarter-million dollars over and above baseball's 100 grand in one year.

That's right. Count it. 250,000 smackers. You can almost hear the drooling of Uncle Sam's internal revenue beagles.

"Yaz" has been associated with the Portland Printing Company for the past four years. A company vice-presidency is in the offing, natch.

Paul Murphy vice president of the Portland Printing Company is the authority for the Yaz income of a quarter million next year. Says Murphy, "apart from baseball Carl will earn an extra $250,000. It will be so much better than last year when he earned $150,000."

"So much better?"

Asked if the "outside" activities of Yaz would affect his ability as a $100,000 player for 1968, Murphy cheek his head.

"Never," he said. "Carl is too much intelligent for that. His basic intelligence is the real reason Portland hired him long before he became a superstar."

Wings, Petes Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings and Peterborough Petes were hard-pressed for two periods before winning their games in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Thursday night.

The Red Wings moved to within two points of first place by trimming fifth-place London Nationals 6-1.

In Peterborough, the lowly Ottawa 67s kept on even terms with the Petes for two periods. Then, Peterborough notched only its second win of the season by rapping two goals in 44 seconds in the third period to win 3-1.

Ottawa has only three points behind Peterborough.

Seals Tie Wings — Flyers Nip Blues

Howe Held Scoreless In 4 Games

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Expansion teams in the National Hockey League raised their percentage against the veteran clubs a fraction Thursday by refusing to bow in the two games played.

The tie didn't do Oakland a great deal of good at the bottom of the Western Division, although they now are tied with St. Louis Blues, but it did move Detroit into second place in the east, a point behind Toronto Maple Leafs and a point ahead of New York.

The Flyers used their victory to vault Pittsburgh Penguins and Minnesota North Stars into second place in the west, two points behind leading Los Angeles Kings.

While 22-year veteran Gordie Howe was held without a goal for the fourth straight game, Gary Jarrett scored his third of the season for Detroit and Alain Caron his second for Oakland.

The Flyers also got an outstanding game in goal from Doug Favell, out for five games while Bernie Parent tended net. He handled 32 New York drives while the Flyers were pumping 18 shots at Ed Giacomin.

But in the last period, with the Rangers trying desperately to catch up, he turned aside 12 of 13 drives to keep the Flyers ahead.

GORDIE HOWE

Another rookie, Gary Smith, was the difference between a loss and a tie for Oakland as he held Detroit at bay in the final period.

In goal for the Wings, Roy Edwards allowed just his third goal since replacing Roger Crozier three games earlier.

So far this season, the six expansion teams have played 24 games against the six veteran teams at the league.

In pre-season consideration, it was thought the veteran clubs would wreak havoc among the newcomers. But such has not been the case.

With 10 victories and three ties to their credit, against 21 wins by the veteran clubs, the expansion teams have a solid .382 percentage against the veterans.

NHL rookies for the most part, the new six can probably look forward to increasing this percentage as their players gather the experience and confidence necessary to compete on even terms with the veteran clubs.

Looking into the future, Toronto president Stafford Smythe Thursday said there even now was consideration of expanding the league again by a further six teams.

The Leafs announced Thursday that Jean-Paul Parise, called up for their Wednesday game against Boston Bruins, has been returned to Rochester Americans of the American League and that centre Dave Keon probably will miss Saturday's game against Chicago Black Hawks. He's still limping with a charley horse.

In the only game scheduled tonight, Detroit is at Los Angeles to make another stab at first place in the east while the Leafs are idle.

Oil Kings Flyers Tie 6-6

Trenton's CFB Flyers blew a 3-1 first period lead but came back in the final period to earn a 6-6 OHA Intermediate Hockey League tie with the Belleville Oil Kings, in Trenton, last night.

The same two clubs clash in Tweed Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock while Belleville also has an exhibition game against Ryerson slated for the Tweed rink Saturday night.

Laliberte opened the scoring for Trenton in the game and closed it, at 14.40 of the third, to get his club the split in points.

A. McVicar also scored twice for CFB with D. LaRock and J. Asselin potting the other goals.

Jerry Jones scored Belleville's first - period goal while Hylie Bryant, "Pug" Kellar, Ralph Boomhower and Bryant again tallied in the second as their squad pulled into a slim 5-4 lead. Jerry St. Denis was the Kings' third-period marksman.

Three of the Oil Kings' goals came in a space of 32 seconds late in the second period after Trenton had taken a 4-2 lead.

The Flyers made it 5-5 early in the third but Belleville pulled ahead half way through the period before Laliberte's final equalizer.

Gas House Hockey League

Mulroney's and the Firemen meet have read the same script before last night's Gas House Hockey League doubleheader.

The Firemen blanked Mustangs and Mulroney's turned the same trick against Marysville, both by 4-0 scores.

W. Wells scored two of Mulroney's goals with J. Hill and M. Murphy adding the others. C. Bailey helped on a pair, Murphy and G. Brennen on one each.

Firemen goals were divided among B. Brooks, Davis, Talbot and Hurst. Talbot collected two assists, Brooks, B. Lloyd, W. Istead and Millar one each.

Hope To Fell Oaks Tonight

'Timber!'; Mo-Hawk Axes Ready

Oakville Oaks make their initial appearance of the season here tonight to tangle with the Mo-Hawks in OHA Senior "A" action. Game time is 8 o'clock.

And the Oaks could be running into quite a surprise.

The Mo-Hawks, winless in six games, are due to explode and if hard work is the fuse, the explosion should come tonight.

"As always when you're in

a slump, you press and one mistake leads to another. We know we have been slipping and there isn't a man on the club who isn't going to dig in and work that much harder to get back on the beam," Lionel Botly said yesterday.

Botly, the team captain, added: "We (the players) have talked it over and are accepting full responsibility for our poor showing lately. We have let Floyd (coach Floyd Crawford) down and it's up to us to prove what kind of a team we are. We appreciate the fans sticking with us and we're going to go out and win them some hockey games", he concluded.

Despite the club's 3-8-1 record, a look at the 10-team standing is encouraging. The Mo-Hawks are just one-point behind Woodstock, two behind Barrie, three back of Toronto and five behind Oakville.

It adds up to the fact that three of four wins in the next five games would pull the club right back into an upper-bracket fight.

There could be a lineup change or two in the near future too. Gary Greesdahl has been released and since he now lives in Kingston, may end up with the Aces. Crawford has been in contact with a defenseman that could turn out to be a big catch and centre Bee Lalonde should add scoring punch when he rounds into shape. He may be dressed tonight.

Close Scores In Quinte Puck Loop

A pair of one-goal decisions resulted from last night's Quinte Hockey League doubleheader here.

Stinson's Construction nipped Aluminum Stars 2-1 and Belvedere Hotel snatched a 3-2 win over Grant Realty.

Pete Mansell's goal broke the tie for Stinson's while Larry Soule was the club's other marksman. B. Simmons, R. Delnard, D. Forsythe and L. McBride had assists.

R. Lucki scored the Hotelmen's first two goals with B. Tomaso notching the winner. G. Little and K. Brooks had single assists.

Clair Likes Versatility; He's Got It!

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Frank Clair of the Ottawa Rough Riders has long had a liking for versatile football players, and this year R shows in his lineup.

When the Riders meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats here Sunday in the opener of their two-game, total-point series for the Eastern Football Conference title, Clair will have about a dozen players that can move from one position to another.

With team rosters restricted to 32 players, and only 30 dressed for a game, injuries can be disasterous unless a coach has some standby players ready. But with 30 players, this leaves only six extra men to fill in for first-string players injured in a game.

It's almost impossible to find six players who are good enough to fill in at every position should the need arise.

But Clair solved the problem by using versatile players in his starting lineup who can shift to another position and have one of the reserves fill his place.

Offensive halfback Don Gilbert was a regular defensive halfback for two seasons before moving to offence this year and could return to defence if necessary. By the same token, defensive halfback Don Sutherin also can play on offence.

Corner linebacker Wayne Giardino, the EFC's rookie of the year, played fullback at University of Florida and showed he had not lost his ball-carrying ability last Sunday when he averaged four yards in four carries against Toronto Argonauts in the EFC semi-final.

Jim Conroy, who lost his linebacking job to Giardino this season, also has filled in at fullback during the season.

And, if necessary, fullback Bo Scott can always move over to halfback where he played until this year.

Gene Gaines, another defensive back, also has had considerable experience on offence.

If Clair has to move one of his defensive backs to offence, he has veterans Larry DeGrow on the bench to take over the hole on defence.

Defensive ends Billy Joe Booth and Bob Brown initially made the team as offensive tackles. Booth was an all-star at the position until he moved to defence and has won all-star recognition at end.

Zuger?; The Cat That Beat Jackson Twice

HAMILTON (CP) — Joe Zuger?

He's the quiet, crewcut guy who runs the Eastern Football Conference champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a way that makes him almost inconspicuous.

As the Ticats head into Sunday's first half of a two-game, total-point EFC final in Ottawa against the Rough Riders for the right to play in the Dec. 2 Grey Cup final he has been all but lost in the adulation showered on Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson.

Despite his determined quiet off the field—a nod or shake of his head to answer questions—in the huddle he barks out signals with speed and confidence.

Tackle Angelo Mosca, last season playing on offence in a game in Ottawa, says Zuger called the signals so fast he went the wrong way, blocked the wrong man and still Hamilton scored a touchdown.

There is no doubt that Jackson is the outstanding quarterback in the east—leading in pass attempts, completions, yardage, percentage of completions and touchdown passes as well as being the eastern nominee as outstanding Canadian in the league.

But in two of three meetings during the regular season, Zuger and the Ticats won and when the points were totalled at the end of the season Zuger and the Ticats were one point ahead of Ottawa in team standings.

It has been said that Hamilton plays only hard enough to win.

Six season victories by less than a touchdown tend to give this weight.

If it is true, then the potential of the Hamilton club has yet to be tapped and Zuger, 27, may yet draw the acclaim, even in Hamilton, that so far has eluded him.

About the only people unanimously in favor of the 6-2, 210-pound Arizona State graduate are the Hamilton players and coach Ralph Sazio.

Sazio has no much faith in Zuger that after last season he traded alternate quarterback Frank Cosentino to Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference.

Zuger, an accomplished punter who this year averaged 45.8 yards on 125 kicks, played center linebacker and defensive half for Hamilton in his early years.

Loop Entry In Hoop Playoffs

Arrangements have been completed for a district entry to be formed to compete in the Ontario Basketball Association Intermediate "C" playoffs next March.

Chair Leahy announced yesterday that the team will "be known as Quinte Carm's, with Carm's Cleaners, of Trenton, sponsoring us".

"Most of our players will come from the four Quinte League teams but any other district players are more than welcome to try out for positions," Leahy said, adding "that our first open practice will be held at the RCAF court, Trenton, at 8 o'clock Monday".

The Quinte League consists of RCAF Flyers, Cobourg, and two Belleville teams, the Teachers and Aces. Each club plays once a week.

"Carm's will play exhibitions and perhaps enter some tournaments between now and OBA playoff time," Leahy concluded.

Club Pros Given Own Tournament

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Professional Golfers Association executive committee voted Thursday to form a new division of the PGA championship, for club pros only, with a $50,000 purse.

The new tournament will be played at the PGA National Golf Club here in late fall. The idea was approved unanimously by the tournament committee.

Entry will be restricted to resident club professionals. The low 25 scorers will qualify for the main PGA championship the following summer.

Overtime

Playoffs; Fight To Finish

TORONTO (CP) — Overtime, if necessary, will be played to decide the team which will enter the Grey Cup football classic in Ottawa Dec. 2.

The Canadian Football League announced the formula Thursday:

In the East, if Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders are tied at the end of the first game of their two-game total-point series for the Eastern championship, no overtime will be played. This game is set for Sunday in Ottawa.

However, if a total-point tie exists at the end of regulation time in the final game in Hamilton Nov. 25, there will be two 10-minute overtime periods. If the tie remains unbroken, there will be further 10-minute periods on a sudden-death basis—the first score wins it.

In the West, every one of the best-of-three series between Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders, will be played to a decision. A tie at the end of regulation time will result in two 10-minute periods and the game will continue until a winner is established. Unlike the East, there will be no sudden-death clause.

In both the East and West playoffs, teams will change sides on the field and kick off at the beginning of each 10-minute period.

CFL Boss

Clamp Down On Fans!

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Football League's acting commissioner has recommended "a substantial fine be assessed" against the home club if lack of crowd control interferes with playoff games.

Allan McEachern of Vancouver made the recommendation Wednesday in a telegram to Calgary Stampeders and the club's general manager, Rogers Lebew, said McEachern's warnings will be strictly observed.

Lebew said any fans who leave their seats at McMahon Stadium and set foot on the field "will be escorted from the park—not back to their seats."

The first game of the Western Football Conference finals, between Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders, will be played here Saturday.

Will Probe Soccer Ban

NEW YORK (AP) — A hearing into organized soccer's ban of the National Professional Soccer League has been scheduled for Nov. 27.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ordered professional soccer officials to show cause at the hearing why it should not be ordered to end its boycott of the NPSL.

The injunction had been requested by the NPSL as part of its $18,000,000 suit against organized soccer.

Defendants in the suit are the Federation International de Football Association, the world governing body of the sport; the U.S. Soccer Football Association, the American ruling body; the United Soccer Association, the rival league that now has national and world sanction plus the Canadian Soccer Football Association.

A half dozen NPSL players have been threatened with suspension in England because of their association with what was called an "outlaw" league. Although it did not receive the sanction of the USSFA, the National League last season fielded teams in competition with the United Association.

Will Fight For Title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raul Rojas of San Pedro, Calif., and Antonia Herrera of Colombia have signed to meet for the vacant world featherweight boxing title at the Olympic Auditorium Dec. 15, it was announced Thursday night.

The title was vacated when Vincente Saldivar retired about two months ago.

Big 'M' Progress Rapid

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Mahovlich, star left winger with Toronto Maple Leafs, may be back in National Hockey League action sooner than expected.

Dr. Hugh Smythe, club physician who has been treating Mahovlich for acute depression and tension since he entered hospital Nov. 7, revealed Thursday that his patient has been skating daily at a local figure skating club.

Originally it was feared he would be missing from the lineup until late December, but Thursday Dr. Smythe said:

"Frank is coming along exceedingly well.

"He's ahead in his progress and if it continues as favorably as it has, we should be able to make a decision early next week."

Stampeders Rated Eight-Point Favorites In Western Opener

EDMONTON (CP) — Although oddsmakers have made Calgary Stampeders eight-point favorites to win the first game of the Western Football Conference final over Saskatchewan Roughriders, one of the best-versed men in the game can't make up his mind.

With the best-of-three game playoff to decide the western entry in the Grey Cup national final starting Saturday in Calgary, coach Neill Armstrong of Edmonton Eskimos can't make up his mind which team to favor.

Armstrong directed the Eskimos to third place in the conference this season and Nov. 11 watched his team lose 21-6 to Saskatchewan in a sudden - death semi-final.

During the regular season his Eskimos met both contenders three times and pulled into third place in the last weeks of the campaign by beating each at critical times as his club closed the regular season with five straight wins.

Calgary and Saskatchewan wound up with 12 wins and four losses each and Calgary got the bye into the final on the basis of having won two of three meetings between the clubs.

But even now, table to look at the coming series without prejudice, Armstrong can't call a winner.

Saturday's 3 p.m. MST (4 p.m. EST) game will be televised nationally by CTV. The second game, in Regina Nov. 22 is scheduled for 4 p.m. CST (5 p.m. EST). A third, if necessary is set for Nov. 26 in Calgary.

Armstrong in an interview described both teams as strong offensively and "pretty well even" defensively.

"I guess you could say I'm a disinterested party now.

"I don't really care who wins . . . but good luck to the West in the Grey Cup."

Coach Eagle Keys of Saskatchewan and his Calgary counterpart, Jerry Williams, have nipped their lips in a quiet pregame war of "I wonder what's going on over there!"

The wind may be an important factor Saturday, though Peter Liske, the 30-year-old Stampeder quarterback who has tossed his team into the finals, has a reputation for ignoring anything short of a gale.

Stampeders have won their games in the air. Of their season total yardage of 5,785, only 1,361 yards were gained on the ground.

Ron Lancaster, who will be at the helm for Saskatchewan, has a different game. He divides his offence between the air and the ground.

"They're both winning quarterbacks," Armstrong said.

Senior A Scoring

GALT (CP) — The scoring leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series changed hands this week. But there are two new leaders instead of one.

Galt forward forwards Pete Brennan and John Beechey moved past Rod Graham of Kingston Aces to the top of the list. Each has 18 points with Brennan scoring eight goals and Beechey six.

Galt goalie Norm Defelice still paces the goaltenders with a 2.62 goals-against average.

Defelice also has two shutouts in eight games to lead in that department.

Graham is only one point behind the leaders with seven goals and 10 assists for 17 points.

Nationals Leave This Month

Rexe Gets European Trip!

OTTAWA (CP) — The newly-formed eastern division of Canada's national hockey team will get its baptism in international competition later this month and give playing coach Jack Bownass his first chance to see just how good his youthful squad is.

With an average age of just over 23, many of the players still could be playing junior hockey instead of pressure-packed international competition where national prestige can rise and fall with the result of games.

The Eastern Nationals will add goalie Ken Broderick of the Winnipeg-based western team before leaving next Monday for games in Sweden and East Germany against the national teams of those countries.

The team will play two games against each team, starting with the Swedes in Stockholm Nov. 22 and Galve Nov. 24. Dates and cities not yet been confirmed for the two games in East Germany.

Four more Winnipeg players will join the team for a five-game tournament in Moscow Dec. 5 to 10 against teams from Russia, Czechoslovakia and Finland. Russia and Czechoslovakia both will have their top two clubs in the tournament while Finland will send its national team.

Bownass will get defenceman Marshal Johnston and the Billy MacMillan-Gary Dineen-Serge Montesh forward line. Jackie MacLeod, coach of the Western Nationals, also will go along but only as a spectator.

Bownass has high hopes for his club but knows it has one serious shortcoming.

"We lack experience," he said in an interview.

"But we'll improve with competition."

Bownass has three teen-agers on his club and only eight of his regular 18 players are over 21.

Centre Bob Goring of St. Boniface is 18. Centres Denis Picard of Montreal and Bob Doherty of Charlottetown are 18.

Goalie Steve Reza of Peterborough is 20, as are defencemen John Ferguson of Port Arthur and Paul Cadieux of Ste. Agathe, Que.

Knights, Braves Share Lead

Bata Braves and Ivanhoe Knights are ricking side by side at the top of the Centre Hastings Hockey League standings these days.

The Braves whipped Stirling 8-1 while Ivanhoe pulled out a late 4-3 decision over Foxboro.

Both winners are sporting 3-0 won-and-lost records in the schedule's early going.

Leo Genereaux sparked Bata's lop-sided victory with a three-goal performance. The other tallies were shared by Doug Kellar, H. Wetzel, Don Phillips, Al Drake and Bob Adams. Jack Wright was the lone Stirling marksman.

Frankford and Cloyne clash in Madoc Saturday night while in a doubleheader, at Stirling, Foxboro meets Stirling and Bata tackles Frankford.

US Seniors Up Lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The United States broadened its lead Thursday to 13 strokes in the second round of the first world senior amateur golf championships.

The U.S. team total for two days of play is 17-over-par 448.

Canada took advantage of Canadian-type weather to move into a second place with a 461 total. Britain was third with 468, followed by Australia with 472 and Japan with 475.

Darkroom Work Discussed by Camera Club

At their regular meeting on Wednesday evening, Belleville Camera Club members were given a demonstration of black and white film development by member Jeff Skurzi.

According to Mr. Skurzi, amateurs who do their own darkroom work do so for their own satisfaction, rather than to save money. It is also the only way in which photographers can control the quality of their work from the clicking of the camera shutter to the finished print hanging on the wall. Mr. Skurzi feels that amateurs who do their own developing are almost certain to improve their photography in general and to get more enjoyment from it as a hobby.

Following the demonstration, Mr. Skurzi answered many technical questions by members and guests during a discussion period, and all agreed that the evening was most interesting and instructive.

It was announced that there will be only one meeting next month on December 6th, at which time an open competition will be held.

Baptist Church To Observe Anniversary

Anniversary services will be held this Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the Emmanuel Baptist Church on Robins Drive. Guest speaker for the day will be Rev. L. Keith Daniel, B.A., B.Th., B.D., of Ottawa. Mr. Daniel is well known in the Belleville area, having served as minister of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church a number of years ago. He will also sing at both services. The choir has prepared special music, under the direction of Mrs. Paul Wiegand, assisted by the organists, Mrs. B. Hamilton and Mrs. B. Kerr. The services will be conducted by the minister, Rev. C. H. Savage. An informal fellowship hour will be held in the church hall following the evening service. The church, a member of the Ontario and Quebec Baptist Convention, was dedicated six years ago following the establishment of Fareway Sunday School. Friends of the congregation are cordially invited to attend the observance of its anniversary this Sunday.

Horse, Cattle Lost in Fire Near Brighton

Mrs. Gordon Stewart was describing Thursday's loss of her daughter's three and a half year old pet and her new saddle in a fire that razed a barn and garage at the R.R. 2, Brighton, Stewart farm.

"Helen was the first to see the fire — it was about four o'clock in the morning. She ran out towards the barn with a coat thrown over her pyjamas."

"She thought she might get in the back door of the barn," said Mrs. Stewart, "but she couldn't get Ed out."

The loss total in last night's fire included three cows, one large steer and seven calves —two of them prize Hereford cross-breeds said Mrs. Stewart.

A tractor and some furniture stored in the garage were also lost. Mrs. Stewart said that a number of family belongings had been stored in the garage since the Stewarts had moved to the farm two years ago.

"Neither building destroyed was insured for contents" she said.

Brighton's volunteer fire department arrived on the scene but the hay-filled barn and the adjacent garage were already engulfed in flames.

A spokesman for Brighton provincial police said Thursday the cause of the fire had not been determined. Mr. Stewart was at a northern hunting camp.

POLICE CHIEF DIES

KITCHENER (CP) — Police Chief James J. Lautenslager, 60, died Wednesday of an apparent heart attack. Chief Lautenslager, a member of the city police force since 1939, was named to head the department in 1964. He was to retire at the end of the year.

Students Find Price of Freedom From CIA High

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1,200,000-member National Student Association, rocked last February by revelation of its long-standing ties with the Central Intelligence Agency, is finding out painfully that political and financial independence is a tough way to make a living.

The NSA-CIA divorce after an apparently happy although secretive marriage left NSA with little money, little purpose and a "child spy" image that was, at the least, embarrassing.

Now there is no money, no apparent purpose and an image that some NSA members and even a few of its own staff call radical.

After its break with the CIA, NSA underwent a complete reorientation. The CIA had funnelled $3,300,000 into the NSA international programs and those programs had become NSA's primary activity. When the CIA went, so did the international programs.

So NSA, with affiliates on some 200 campuses, turned most of its resources, energy and time to the U.S. campus, expanding its tutoring programs, its studies of stress on students, its drug education program and its interests in improving curricula.

So far, re-orientation has been painful and the politics—by NSA's own estimate—have been somewhere left of liberal.

Some 300 delegates from colleges and universities across the U.S. voted resolutions against the war in Vietnam, for Black Power "by any means necessary," against the present draft system and in demand of a greater student voice in university affairs.

PM Calls Death Penalty Barbaric, Arousing Those Who Would Retain It

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson's description of capital punishment as "mental barbarism" aroused retentionists and shattered an all-party agreement that was to have brought an abolitionist bill to a Commons vote Thursday night.

Mr. Pearson was to have closed the five-day debate but his remark brought a flock of retentionists to their feet either to protest his remarks or to review the arguments.

They were led by David Fulton (PC—Kamloops), the former justice minister, who said the prime minister had made "a maudlin appeal to emotion."

"Our case, and the moral justification of it, is equally good if not better than the prime minister's," Mr. Fulton said.

Nevertheless, a test vote on a surprise motion by Georges Lachance (L—Montreal Lafontaine) that would have killed the bill was easily defeated 125 to 76.

This was regarded as an indicator that the bill itself will carry when the key vote on its principle is taken.

The debate was adjourned at 10 p.m. and will not resume before next Wednesday, barring a change in the agenda of House business given by Government House Leader MacEachen.

Detailed study of a bill to establish a department of consumer and corporate affairs is scheduled today.

The final supply motion of the session goes before the House Monday and Tuesday, opening the way for a test of confidence in the government.

Under the capital punishment bill hanging for murder would be limited to killers of prison guards and police.

The highlights in its fifth day of debate were the 32-minute Pearson speech—a wholehearted rejection of capital punishment—and a passionate defence of the gallows by Ralph Cowan (L—York-Humber).

Mr. Pearson said retentionists had been unable to prove the deterrent value of the death penalty and had to fall back on emotional arguments.

Through execution of murderers, society fell into the trap of treating them as they had their victims. And no murder ever matched the horror of capital punishment.

"The mental barbarism, and I don't believe that's putting it too strongly, that characterizes executions and the awaiting of executions should have no place in our society."

If man took upon himself God's right to punish, he must also take upon himself God's promise to restore, he said.

Richard Bell (PC—Carleton) asked whether the government will carry out the law if the bill is defeated.

"Mr. Speaker, if this bill is defeated, then the law of Canada will be carried out," Mr. Pearson replied.

Asked by Georges Muir (PC—Lisgar) how he could support a limited move to abolition if he felt the gallows was purely retributory, the prime minister replied that "three-quarters of a loaf is better than none."

"I hope that we will have total abolition before long."

The Liberal government has commuted all 27 death sentences brought before it since taking office in 1963. The last execution in Canada was a double one Dec. 11, 1962, in Toronto's Don Jail.

A free vote April 5, 1966, on a bill to abolish capital punishment altogether was defeated 143 to 112 in one of the heaviest votes in recent years in the 265-seat House.

Mr. Cowan, a Liberal renegade and perhaps the staunchest retentionist in the Commons, lashed out at the cabinet for its policy of commutation and for bringing capital punishment to a vote for the second time in the same Parliament.

"I say that every one of these commutations has been illegal," Mr. Cowan contended in perhaps the most savage attack of the debate.

The death sentences of Georges Pelletier and Chessie-gunned two policemen during a Montreal bank robbery, and Reginald Caplin, who stabbed to death a Dorchester penitentiary guard, had been commuted.

Leopold Dion, sex slayer of four boys in Quebec City, and a West Coast man who killed two girls, also had been shown mercy.

The alternative in the bill of life in prison had meant an average term of eight years, 10 months and one day, he said, referring to 13 cases dealt with since the Liberals took office.

The bill would give a life sentence to a killer of women and children, lash out at the cabinet for its policy of commutation and for bringing capital punishment to a vote for the second time in the same Parliament.

"I ask you, why keep the Governor-General inside when he is not as important as the policeman at the gate.

"Let us put the valuable man, the policeman, in Rideau Hall and put the Governor-General at the gate."

The biting sally drew laughter.

Mr. Cowan said the first beneficiaries of the new law would be Francois Shirm and Edmond Gurnette, separatists now on death row for shooting a gunshop operator during an arms raid in Montreal.

"This Parliament is being asked to commute the death sentence of two separatists in Montreal so that the cabinet won't have the responsibility."

The cabinet should have the "backbone" to carry out its responsibilities. It had brought in the bill "without explaining that the first two people who will benefit from it are avowed separatists, two confessed separatists."

The air-conditioned Ambassador is a great success...and that's our problem. We had to build some without it.

You've caught us by surprise. We never figured that so many people would respond so quickly to the idea of air conditioning at no extra cost. Sure, it makes life just wonderful in the summer and sure it makes the heating system that much more efficient . . . but to get swamped with orders?

As a result, we couldn't get air conditioners fast enough. And we couldn't shut down the assembly line. So, as much as we didn't like the idea, we had to build about 1200 Ambassadors without air conditioning.

Our dealers have orders to sell these cars as quickly as possible and at sizeable discounts! We have solved the shortage so the Ambassadors we build from now on, and the Ambassadors you'll see in showrooms from now on, will have air conditioning at no extra cost.

If you feel you can put up with the heat for a little longer for the sake of an exceptional deal, see your nearby American Motors/Rambler dealer. But don't put it off. The discounts are substantial, so these cars will be sold quickly.

Mine Magnate Is Warned to Get Out of Firms

MONTREAL (CP) — Lowney G. Nicol, president of Carbec Mines Ltd. and Matachewan Canadian Gold Ltd., says threatening letters and telephone calls have warned him to get out of his two companies.

Mr. Nicol issued a statement Thursday after a day of hectic trading that dropped the combined market value of the two mining stocks—listed on the Canadian Stock Exchange—by more than $18,000,000.

Matachewan Canadian Gold closed Wednesday at $2.70 and reached a low of 80 cents Thursday, closing at 84 cents. Carbec Mines closed Wednesday at $3.95 and toppled to 76 cents at one point in Thursday's trading before closing at 85 cents.

Mr. Nicol said he had received numerous letters of intimidation and threats to force him out of the companies. Mr. Nicol's spokesman said the threats have continued "both by letter and phone" since July.

Mr. Nicol is former president of Midepat Industries Ltd., a mining company with extensive fertilizer mineral deposits in Peru. The company now is owned by a major U.S. engineering corporation.

A statement issued on behalf of both Carbec Mines and Matachewan Canadian Gold said "a conspiracy to undermine" the companies is said to have been uncovered and confessions obtained.

"These intimidations appeared to coincide with waves of selling in the two stocks," it added.

"The heaviest pressure started during the month of September and in one period of four days approximately 1,000,000 shares of Matachewan were literally dumped on the market.

"Since then the selling has been very constant in both Matachewan and Carbec. Every effort has been exercised to maintain the stock and protect the interests of the shareholders.

"In the last few days the conspiracy to undermine the stock prices had been uncovered and confession has been obtained from the parties concerned."

Marcel Gagnon, a spokesman for the two firms, said Thursday:

"There is no question of the underworld having been involved in this situation. It was just speculators who wanted to get their hands on two very healthy companies.

"Legal action will be taken against those responsible and the evidence we have now is in the hands of our lawyers."

'A French National Problem'

PARIS (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville said Thursday night "French Canada is a French national problem."

Referring to French policies on Quebec, he told a dinner meeting it is a French problem "not because we have designs but because we are interested in the survival of that French community."

"It is our duty to show it our friendship, to give it our help," Couve de Murville added.

"France has never spoken of separatism," he said.

"We say only that the French Canadians should have the same liberties and the same rights as the English Canadians."

Catholic Doctors Oppose Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Winnipeg psychiatrist Kevin Ford told the Commons health committee Thursday he believes that many of the abortions allegedly sought on psychiatric grounds are really wanted for social or economic reasons.

"The very nature of psychiatry, where as little is known about so much, lays it open to something very close to exploitation," Dr. Ford said.

He appeared before the committee on behalf of the Catholic Physicians Guild of Manitoba to argue against proposals to widen the legal grounds for abortion in Canada. Also appearing for the guild was Dr. Paul Adams, a Winnipeg obstetrician and gynecologist.

"We believe that the procedure of abortion is a direct attack on human life and should be considered as both immoral and criminal," Dr. Adams said.

"We find it disturbing that even the serious discussion of premeditated destruction of human life should be considered."

The committee is considering proposals to legalize abortion when the mother's life or physical or mental health is endangered, when there is substantial risk of a defective child being born and when the pregnancy is a result of rape or incest.

Panama Told to Release Man Wanted for Fraud

TORONTO (CP) — Panama City police have been advised by Ontario authorities to release Robert Colucci, former Toronto alderman charged with three other Canadians in a $100,000,000 stock fraud.

Colucci, who has been in Panama teaching English since last May 12, was arrested earlier Thursday on a warrant issued in Toronto.

Clay Powell, special prosecutor for the attorney-general's department, said Thursday night the arrest was "obviously a mistake."

He said Panama and Canada have extradition treaty, but the charge of conspiring to defraud the public is one offence not included in the international agreement.

The warrant by the Ontario Securities Commission was taken out several months ago, charging Colucci, stock promoter Myer Rush, lawyer Joseph Williams and Manuel Britton, all of Toronto, with conspiracy to defraud the public in connection with shares of British Mutual Overseas Fund Corp., and Darien Explorations Ltd.

Time Running Out for CBC to Prove Its Worth---LaMarsh

OTTAWA (CP) — Time is running out for the CBC to prove to Canadians that it is worth the millions of tax dollars spent on it, Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Thursday.

She said the Commons broadcasting committee she is really concerned about what will happen, perhaps within the next 10 or 12 years, with the arrival of satellite television when viewers in Canada can tune in to any country they wish.

Miss LaMarsh, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting, said she is hopeful the publicly-owned CBC will find "a Canadian role that expresses us as a people."

If the CBC is to become a pale imitation of American programming, "we just ought to forget about it."

Miss LaMarsh appeared before the committee as it continued its clause-by-clause study of the new broadcasting bill. It meets again Tuesday.

Public information shows and frank discussions are what the CBC does best, Miss LaMarsh said. She had praise for the Seven Days program and for a Toronto-area show, Nightcap.

She said Nightcap caused Canadians to turn off the Johnny Carson show to watch it. The show was "an irreverent one" that lampooned Canadian politicians and others and this was its great appeal.

She said she is not advocating the end of American shows on the CBC, but Canadians should be developing their own programs. She was sure they would sell around the world and give viewers a reason to tune in to the CBC.

Scotch Golf Unique

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — The team of Billy Casper and Don Cullett and Ken Still playing with Ray Floyd grabbed the first-round lead of the $125,000 Scotch golf championship with six-under-par 66s Thursday.

Bunched at 68 were Al Balding and George Knudson of Toronto, Marty Fleckman-Bert Money, Jerry Steelsmith-Dick Lyttle, Jerry Edwards-Jack Montgomery and Wes Ellis-Bert Weaver.

The format is unique in that the partners each hit drives, then select the better one for further play. They then alternate shots until the ball is holed out.

John Wayne Faces Difficulties In Producing Film on War

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The first major film about the Vietnam war is soaring completion, thanks to the bulldog determination of actor-director John Wayne.

So far he has endured corporate indifference, a couple of roving ailments, U.S. Army restrictions, the vagaries of Georgia weather and the taunts of anti-war zealots. Next week—expensive as it is—he has only four months of shooting time, he expects to complete The Green Berets.

The hulky actor came back with a touch of laryngitis, acquired in three weeks of night work in temperatures as low as 26 degrees at Fort Benning, Ga. He thinned at last map but seems to have withstood the rigors of double duties.

"I feel fresh—at only six pounds but I'm lighter than I have been for a long time," he said.

Taking a rare break from production matters, Wayne discussed the stormy history of The Green Berets. Last year the film was announced as a Universal production; later Wayne and his Batjac production moved the project to Warners. What happened?

"I guess those guys at Universal were scared of it," said Wayne. "They think they can run the picture business by computers."

"Well I got news for them: It can't be done."

The feeling in Hollywood is that many studios have shied away from Vietnam subjects on the grounds that it is an unpopular war." Wayne has an answer to that:

"What the hell war hasn't been unpopular? Nobody's enjoying this war, but it happens to be damned necessary. If we hadn't gone into Vietnam, Indonesia wouldn't have been encouraged to beat the Communists in their country. Thailand, which is the heart of the rice country in Southeast Asia, would have fallen to the Communists."

After Wayne purchased the Robin Moore novel, The Green Berets, he went to the U.S. defense department to seek co-operation on filming.

The department agreed to help Wayne, but military co-operation is not the same as in the Second World War and post-war days when studios could stage vast battle scenes with real troops.

"We received good treatment at Benning—within the letter of the law," says Wayne. "We could use the army's equipment if it wasn't tied up in training and could shoot in areas that weren't being used by troops.

"But the soldiers weren't available to us — unless they could get a two- or three-day pass. Then we paid them regular extra pay."

Wayne is unconcerned about any possible furor that might be caused by American opponents of the Vietnam war.

"Seems to me that those who protest the most are an articulate minority who attract more attention than their numbers would warrant," he said.

Channing Substitute Fails to Impress

NEW YORK (AP)—There was a trade rumor recently that a variety show called Pupendipity featuring popular music and musicians was a strong candidate as a replacement series for one or another of ABC's mid-season drop-outs.

It did not make the schedule, but the pilot show was used Thursday night as the emergency replacement for Carol Channing special. The latter has been postponed for at least two weeks pending the outcome of negotiations—soloists Astrud Gilberto and Buffy Saint Marie and groups like the Buffalo Springfield and The Four Seasons—performing under happier circumstances in the ten minutes of variety programs.

Flip Wilson, a young comedian and host of the show, tried hard to make jokes between the musical acts. Judging from the audience sounds on the tape, he had as little success with his live audience as he had with the living room viewers later.

Presumably Miss Channing's audience is one that includes large numbers of the "mature" viewers—and in televisionese that means people over 25. Pupendipity was aimed at the younger segment of the audience—the college and high school crowd.

There were a number of protest songs in the repertoires. Actor Frank Converse read a short, sad poem about a girl who left home and parents "after living alone for so many years," and Singer Neil Diamond sang a sad ballad about his imaginary playmate named Shilo when he once turned because his parents didn't have time for him. These both seemed to impress the young people in the tent theatre, but nothing in the parents in my living room asorted and wanted to watch something else.

In truth, Dean Martin Jumping on a piano and Buddy Ebsen doing an eccentric dance in the show that followed one another network did seem a welcome change of pace and release from the troubled world of the young.

Bulls Bow To Rockets

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Johnny Green and Don Kojis scored six straight points late in the fourth quarter Thursday night to lead San Diego Rockets to a 99-91 National Basketball Association victory over Chicago Bulls.

Joe McGlochlin led the Rockets with 22 points. High for the Bulls was McCoy McLemore with 23 points.

To Your Good Health

Baker's Cyst Is Really Bursitis

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a swelling behind my knee which has been diagnosed as a Baker's cyst. Can it be treated without surgery? What will happen if I do not have surgery? Will it be able to get around? — M. T.

A Baker's cyst is a swelling of the knee, at the back of the knee — the bursa over which the tendon of the calf muscle runs.

It is, therefore, bursitis in a particular location, and may result from injury, strain, pressure, possibly arthritis of the knee.

Like other cases of bursitis, it may be severe or mild. There may or may not be pain; often discomfort occurs it depends on the amount of swelling of the bursa, and while it may become quite painful, you would still be able to get around.

Sometimes injections of hydrocortisone are used; in milder cases no treatment may be necessary. If hydrocortisone does not lingerwe the condition, then surgical removal may be necessary but this is rare. It is a matter of comfort, and the size of the cyst create problems.

Dear Dr. Molner: I was very puzzled by your column on breast feeding. You said you didn't recommend using a supplementary bottle with nursing because the baby would then only want the bottle. I have been nursing my baby for five months and have used a bottle at least once a week. Many of my friends have done the same and have no problems.

Perhaps I misunderstood your answer but I'm afraid many potential nursing mothers might misunderstand, too. — Mrs. R. B.

You're right; others did misunderstand.

The column in question was from a woman whose husband didn't want to nurse and the baby because it would be "too inconvenient." She was told such convinced herself and thought she could use a bottle most of the time.

With such a reluctant start there was mighty small chance that she would make a serious effort at nursing. A baby can accept the occasional bottle without difficulty — but if you are going to do a successful job of nursing you have to start out with the intention of doing it. If you start with the idea that "I can use a bottle any time nursing isn't convenient," pretty soon it becomes all bottle.

You can't be half-hearted about it. And as you know, I thoroughly approve of breast-feeding babies.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking birth control pills but somehow miscounted and am pregnant. I continued the pills for about five or six months. She was told by various people that I could have an abnormal baby because of the pills. My doctor wouldn't give me a direct answer, and I am out of my mind with worry.

It is possible but not predictable. I wouldn't worry. The risk of abnormality from this appears slight.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is oleomargarine less fattening than butter?

It is all right to use the water an egg has been boiled in to make a cup of tea? — W. M. R.

Calorie value of butter and most margarines is the same.

Yes, you can use the water. Boiling has sterilized it anyway.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it safe to eat vegetables grown above the ground top of a septic tank drainage bed? — B. W. F.

Normally I wouldn't want to take the chance. The septic tank and the field could fail and contaminate vegetables. Risk is greatest in vegetables growing in the ground, of course.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Council Agrees to Proceed With Flooding New Arena

CAMPBELLFORD — The matter of putting ice in the new arena slowly was decided at a special meeting of council. Don Cole, Parks and Recreation head at the floor council members were hesitant to cover the surface with ice with the rink the arena has been inactive since August.

But at another night's meeting were; George Totton and Hugh Beach of the firm Totton, Hubert, Sowers and Associates, the engineering firm hired by the town to oversee the construction, Gebel Construction, the construction manager, and Brian McDonagh, project engineer for Gebel. Also on hand was Clifford Construction, general contractors, and Jeff Kearney of Duram Ltd. The latter firm applied the general finish to the floor.

While all the contractors and sub-contractors agreed that the cracks were larger than could be normally expected and that the floor should not have could be picked from the floor and that dust was a problem, no one accepted responsibility for the condition. Council had decided at a previous meeting to cover the floor with a polyurethane surface. Mr. Kenny warned council that although he guaranteed the floor his guarantee would be null and void if council proceeded with the polyurethane surface.

After lengthy discussion council decided to go ahead and flood the surface as soon as

Panama Pedlar's Thumbprints Prove He Isn't Gestapo Chief

PANAMA (AP) — The "finding" of another long-missing Nazi leader—former Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller—apparently is another false alarm. But Panamanian authorities still are holding a shabby pedlar who looks like Mueller.

Investigations Chief Hector Valdes said Thursday he has reached the "firm conclusion" that the pedlar, arrested this week at the request of West German authorities, is not the missing wartime head of Adolf Hitler's secret police.

"He is just a goofy old guy who is not the man West Germany is seeking," Valdes said.

Valdes added, however, that the West German embassy in Panama has asked for an opportunity to furnish evidence supporting the contention of German officials that the man could be Mueller. He said the man will remain in custody for the time being.

The pedlar says he is Francis Willard Keith, 61, born in Webb City, Mo. Valdes said a thumbprint of the man in custody matches a print of a Mr. Keith who arrived in Panama May 14, 1962, three years before Mueller disappeared in Berlin at the end of the Second World War.

Valdes said it also matches a thumbprint of a Francis W. Keith who worked in the Panama Canal Zone for six months in 1942. The investigator said the pedlar's identity as Keith was further established by his diary and by the testimony of a Panama City family with whom he lived for many years.

Simon Wiesenthal, whose Jewish Documentation Centre in Vienna helped track down Adolph Eichmann, said of the man held in Panama:

"I am afraid they got the wrong man. As far as we know, Mueller never was in Panama, but has been living in South America recently."

Mueller last was confirmed alive in Hitler's Berlin bunker in 1945. Many Germans believe him dead.

Identification of anyone as Mueller is hampered by the fact that there are no fingerprints of him available, West German officials said.

Mueller's divorced wife, who lives in Munich, was reported to have identified the man in Panama as her former husband from a photograph. But later the 67-year-old woman announced through her daughter that the man had more hair than Mueller.

Still unexplained were the suspect's reported German accent and the absence of any reference to a Francis Willard Keith in archives and newspaper files at Webb City. But some of the records of 1906, the year the man said he was born, were missing.

Tone of Russians' Protest Surprises Ottawa Officials

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — The Soviet Union Thursday strongly protested demonstrations earlier this month outside Soviet diplomatic buildings in Ottawa and Montreal during celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Diplomatic sources in Ottawa said the protest had been expected, but expressed surprise over its stiffness.

The protest, issued by the Soviet foreign affairs ministry, charged that the anti-Soviet demonstrations had occurred "with the obvious connivance of Canadian official authorities."

During the demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa Nov. 7, some 350 persons, many of them former East Europeans, threw rocks at the embassy and were reported to have insulted guests entering the building to take part in the anniversary celebrations. Rocks were hurled at the embassy's windows and the building was spattered with red paint.

The text of the Soviet note, carried by the official news agency Tass, said the Soviet government "insists on severe punishment for the initiators of and participators in the anti-Soviet provocation and on full compensation for the material damage caused to the Soviet mission."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the external affairs department said the department had been advised by Canadian Ambassador Robert A. D. Ford of the protest. The spokesman said the protest "will receive careful consideration" when the full text is received in Ottawa.

He noted that External Affairs Minister Martin already has expressed regrets to the Soviet embassy in Ottawa over the incident, and the government has offered to compensate for the damages to the embassy.

The Soviet note, as reported by Tass, said Canadian authorities "failed to take any measures which they were obliged to take" to ensure the immunity of the embassy.

It said a Nov. 8 note on the affair from Martin was "unsatisfactory because it actually contains an attempt to free the Canadian authorities of the responsibility for the provocations. . . ."

Thinking Can Be Handicap

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend who has won many tennis championships remarked the other day that he had finally figured out why he plays better against good opponents than against mediocre ones.

"A good opponent," he said, "forces you to play a fast game. And in a fast game, you have no time to think. And when you have no time to think, you commit fewer errors!"

I believe him. The ultimate object of any art or craft is to go beyond thinking. The best typists type unconsciously, their fingers moving almost ahead of their minds; the best pianists streak across the notes without thinking of them as notes, only as a confusion of music.

To achieve excellence in almost any pursuit, the unconscious mind must be allowed to take over. But this can be done only after long practice and tedious training. And the whole paradox of arts and crafts (including sports)—lies in the fact that the ultimate end of discipline is freedom—but a far different kind of freedom than that of the beginner or the amateur, who who has not yet mastered the discipline.

The conscious mind is a slow and cumbersome thing; before it can decide how to return a volley down the sideline, the ball has already gone past. It is only when the body has "learned to think," in a sense, that it responds faster than any mental process could. It is the reflex of the total personality that makes champions, not one or another element of skill.

Racing drivers are perhaps most of all aware of this deep truth. All of the top ones drive as well as one another, in a technical sense; they all "know" the same skills and have perfected the same techniques. What makes a Sterling Moss stand out from the rest, however, is an immediate access to the subconscious, so that he acts in a crisis without a millisecond's hesitation — the difference between life and death.

And even ordinary drivers cannot drive a car well until they no longer have to think about what they are doing, until the unconscious part of the mind takes over, to guard them from sudden accidents. Good "driver education" must be mostly psychological, or it merely "technical" education is wasted effort — as all is largely wasted.

Learning is a form of discovery, we put an accumulation of facts or postures; discovery by the total personality of the way to tap the hidden possibilities in body, mind and spirit, and make them work for us. This is why the champion seems to do it so easily.

Sunday School Lesson

Answer From A Friend

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Man's search for God, someone has said, is like a senjry standing in the dark, staring out in the darkness, "Who goes there?" Is there any answer? Yes, in it from friend or foe?

All the great Biblical writers insist there is an answer, and that it comes from a Friend. They do not try to prove God's existence. They simply point to experiences and events, that give evidence of the presence of a divine Power. This Power, they say, is both righteous and good. Men do not defy God without inviting tragic consequences upon themselves. At the same time, God is merciful. His heart yearns for fellowship with His children. He is like a Father who loves and cares for His own.

No one says this more tenderly in the Old Testament than the prophet Hosea. He even pictures God as a rejected lover who seeks the return of an unfaithful world, a world that has gone off after false lovers.

Hosea found himself caught up in a two-fold tragedy. He was the victim of a broken home. His wife was the erring partner. In addition, he lived at a time when his nation was about to be invaded. How could a good God permit either tragedy to happen?

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for November 19 is "God Yearns For His Wayward People," Hosea 13; 14.

In search for an answer, Hosea first looked back at the history of his nation. He remembered the providential events that led to its establishment as a nation after the people had been slaves in Egypt. In wonderfully tender language, he pictured God as a Father teaching Ephriam (Israel) how to walk; picking His children up in His arms when they fell. He held them, paid the prophet, with words of compassion (Hosea 11:1-4 RSV) But Israel as a nation had forgotten. Its people had become ungrateful, fickled and serving the God who had done so much for them, they had turned to false gods like Baal to find sanction for their evil ways.

Next Hosea looked into his own heart and found there a clue as to the nature of the heart of God. As he yearned for his unfaithful wife, so God yearned for His wayward people. As his own aching heart cried out for his erring partner, the prophet heard a cry coming from the aching heart of God, "How can I give you up, O Ephraim! How can I hand you over, O Israel!" (Hosea 11:8 RSV)

What does this say about God? Is God a weakling whose heart bleeds for His people, but who is unable to do anything about their waywardness? If God is God, why did He not force [srael to love Him? Why did He permit pagan forces to invade the nation?

For love cannot be forced. It must be voluntary or it is not love. Even God cannot force people to love Him. Their love must be a glad response to His goodness. God has made them capable of that response, but He has also made them creatures of choice. They must choose whether they will accept His love or reject it: To accept it is to feel His strength even in the most trying circumstances. To reject it is to invite tragic consequences on themselves and the world.

James Moffatt brings this out in his translation of Hosea 11:4. Instead of "cords of compassion," he translates the phrase, "harness of love." Even love has its harness. It requires a willful response. A horse without a harness cannot pull. And love without commitment cannot achieve fullness of joy.

The choice is not between God's "harness" or no harness." The choice is between the harness of obedience to God and the heavy "yoke" of obedience to the world (Hosea 11:7) The "harness" of God's love leads to a deep sense of fulfillment. The "yoke" of servility in the world can crush a person's hope and joy.

It is for this reason God yearns for His wayward people — that He may save them from the results of their own folly, and lead them into the fullness of His peace and joy.

Buddhist Monk First--and Perhaps Last---Foreign Witness

OTTAWA (CP)—The hesitant experiment of the Commons external affairs committee of delving into world problems by calling foreign witnesses appears doomed.

There was head-shaking by many of the committee members when the idea was first put forward. They said the committee would not make itself a platform for any foreigner who wanted to sound off.

The vote in favor of calling two foreign witnesses to testify on Vietnam was 4 to 2. The other seven members present at the time abstained. The vote and the abstentions cut across party lines.

The committee heard its first foreign witness Thursday when a Vietnamese Buddhist monk, Thich (Venerable) Nhat Hanh, 41-year-old scholar and poet, slapped the U.S. and Saigon around for 2½ hours. An observer from the U.S. embassy was busy taking notes.

He has been a professor of religion, editor of a Buddhist newspaper and a director of a publishing house. He is the author of 14 books, including collections of poetry.

Mr. Nhat Hanh said friends have warned him not to return to Vietnam because his outspokenness in opposing the war might endanger his life.

He said the Sept. 3 election in South Vietnam was "political chicanery."

Testifying in French and English for 2½ hours, he said the election was marked by censorship, suppression of free speech and manipulation to exclude the most likely peace candidates.

The description of the election by 22 official observers appointed by President Johnson as "reasonably fair" was "a travesty of the world fair."

"The present government of South Vietnam remains in power only because it has the direct military and economic support of the U.S.," he said.

The committee has also agreed to hear a witness representing the viewpoint of the South Vietnamese government but has not found one yet.

Committee Chairman Jean-Eudes Dube, Liberal MP for Restigouche-Madawaska, has suggested that the committee might take a look at the Rhodesian and Middle East situations after it disposes of Vietnam.

A few committee members have said privately it would be absurd if the group got so enthralled with its work it began trying to summon U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk on Vietnam, Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia, Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel and President Nasser of Egypt.

The more adventuresome members might be all for it but they comprise a small minority.

Donald S. Macdonald, Liberal MP for Toronto Rosedale and parliamentary secretary to External Affairs Minister Martin, began to apply the brakes Thursday.

He said the committee should make a policy decision on calling foreign witnesses. Marcel Lambert, Conservative member for Edmonton West, agreed.

Mr. Martin is understood to be opposed not only to foreigners making use of the committee to grind axes but to committee members travelling abroad to make on-the-spot inquiries.

He has applied cold water to the proposal of persistent Robert Stanbury, Liberal MP for York-Scarborough, that a committee delegation visit Saigon and Hanoi.

He said the committee should make a policy decision on calling foreign witnesses. Marcel Lambert, Conservative member for Edmonton West, agreed.

Mr. Martin is understood to be opposed not only to foreigners making use of the committee to grind axes but to committee members travelling abroad to make on-the-spot inquiries.

Corroded Box Electrocutes Boy in Pool

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Thursday night a corroded electrical control box cause dthe electrocution of Bruce Leighton, 15, as he swam in a high school pool.

Police said the box, which controlled underwater lights at the west-end Humberside collegiate pool, was so badly corroded that current was released into the water.

At least six of the 33 boys in the pool area were injured. John Barta, the class instructor, had to be rescued when he tried to save Leighton. The pool was built about 20 years ago.

The boy, knocked unconscious by the electric shock, lay at the bottom of the pool until pulled out by two other boys.

One youth reached Leighton and shoved him to the surface.

"I grabbed him and man did I get a shock, right up to the shoulder of my left arm. But I hung on and pulled him out."

Another boy, John Umney-Gray, knocked out by the shock, remembered coming up from a dive. "When I came to, I was lying on a blanket at the side of the pool."

Barrie Ritch, 15, said he felt as though a bol magnet was pulling him under. He screamed and was rescued.

None of the injured was kept in hospital, although William Ross, Toronto board of education chairman, said Mr. Barta was under medical care.

Miss Peru World's Prettiest

LONDON (CP) — Miss Peru, 21-year-old Madeleine Hartog-Bel, won the 1967 Miss World contest Thursday night.

The brown-eyed, black-haired beauty fainted seconds before coming on stage to be crowned. Then she was revived with smelling salts and, on the verge of tears, was crowned.

Second place went to Miss Argentina, Marta Sabaliauskas, a 20-year-old, chestnut-haired law student.

Third place also went to a South American, Miss Guyana, Shakira Baksh, 20-year-old stenographer.

Adding a note of jubilation to the Belleville school scene yesterday were these youngsters at Harry J. Clarke. They had good reason to be happy—look who's with them. Man with the horn is young Canadians' idol, Bobby Gimby, composer of Centennial theme song "Canada," who dropped in on city schools yesterday and led youngsters in sing-along. Medicare's Cost Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — A full national medical care insurance program would cost the country an estimated $1,000,000,000, Finance Minister Sharp told reporters Friday.

The figure is based on all provinces joining the program. To pay its share of $500,000,000, Mr. Sharp said the government would have to raise funds equivalent to 13¼ per cent of personal income taxes.

As an ample, he said the federal government would have to raise an additional $12.50 for every $100 now paid in income taxes.

Mr. Sharp added quickly that of course the government has not yet decided what tax sources it will tap to pay for medical care insurance, and does not know how many provinces are prepared to go ahead with it next July 1.

But he reminded a press conference that he had already declared the federal cost of medical care insurance will be paid out of higher taxes, and not by borrowing.

The press conference was held at the conclusion of a two-day conference of provincial finance ministers, called to discuss anti-inflation measures, principally. Mr. Sharp said he was pleased with provincial offers of co-operation in trimming government spending.

Charles MacNaughton, Ontario treasurer, declined any comment on the meeting.

He referred reporters to Ontario's statement Thursday, which put medical care below education and housing on the province's priorities list. Ontario also urged a form of fiscal transfer or equivalent payment by the federal government for provinces passing up the federal scheme.

But medical care insurance was the No. 1 topic at the concluding session of the conference Friday.

Mr. Sharp said that in reply to a question he had told the meeting the insurance plan is not an anti-inflation measure. Quebec's finance minister, Paul Dozois, immediately told reporters this meant that medical care insurance will be inflationary.

The $1,000,000,000 estimate was prepared for the conference by the federal finance ministry, $500,000,000 to be borne by the provinces.

Mr. Sharp said he will take provincial representations on the plan to a federal cabinet meeting next Tuesday.

Prime Minister Pearson has been insisting in the Commons that the government has no plans to amend legislation already on the statute books. It calls for federal payments to start next July 1.

Children Say Man Gave Them Dynamite, Caps

TRENTON — Police last night were searching for an unidentified man who may have been handing out dynamite to children, telling them it was fireworks.

Three sticks of Forsite dynamite and several electric blasting caps were confiscated by an east Trenton resident from a group of children early Friday evening.

Parents are asked to be on the lookout for any more of the free fireworks.

Seven Premiers Plan to Attend Robarts' Parley

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts Friday unveiled details of his ambitious Confederation of Tomorrow Conference, planned to be held in Toronto Nov. 27-30 with wide-ranging discussions on Canada's present condition and future.

By Friday, at least seven provincial premiers had indicated they would attend. Only Premier W. C. Bennett of British Columbia had said he would not attend, while the Quebec and Manitoba premiers remained question marks.

However, Mr. Robarts said all provinces would be represented and a four-man Ottawa delegation will attend as observers.

"We want to involve as many Canadians as possible in this discussion and examination as of the present position of our country," he told a press conference.

A tentative agenda released Friday shows discussions divided into seven sessions, ranging over seven themes and 13 topics. However, Mr. Robarts said the present Canadian constitution was a major issue.

"The main problem we face is dissatisfaction with the constitution as it is. Ontario is prepared to consider changes as wanted by other parts of the country . . . and the desire for change is not limited to Quebec. Take offshore mineral rights for example. That certainly was not limited to Quebec."

Major topics to be discussed include the status to be given French and English languages, possible ways the federal system could be improved, structure of government relationships between Ottawa and the provinces and major obstacles to be overcome to improve the country's development.

"What's up Doc!"

Police Battle Peace Marchers

MONTREAL (CP) — Five policemen and several demonstrators were injured Friday night in a wild melee outside the U.S. consulate where 2,000 students were protesting against the war in Vietnam.

None of the injuries was serious in the fight which broke out when mounted policemen charged into the crowd in an attempt to choke off the 45-minute demonstration.

Police arrested 48 demonstrators after many had hurled bodies of paint and stones at the building, smashing windows and ripping the American eagle plaque with blood-red paint.

The demonstration started in Dominion Square in downtown Montreal and the marchers paraded up various streets and around cars before stopping in front of the consulate.

The original marchers were students from the University of Montreal who joined up with students from McGill and Sir George Williams universities as they marched up the mountain.

The dozen police officers on horses stood by as Pierre Lefrancois, president of l'Union general des etudiants du Quebec —which organized the demonstration—spoke to the crowd.

When the slogan-shouting and stone-throwing began, the horses were moved in. Several women broke into hysterics as the mounted police charged through the crowd scattering the demonstrators.

The protestors retaliated with a barrage of sticks, stones and heaps of garbage that lined the street in garbage cans awaiting collection.

Francis Cunningham, U.S. consul in Quebec City, accepted a letter condemning American participation in the Vietnamese war as about 800 students paraded through the provincial capital. The students burned President Johnson in effigy.

When the Montreal demonstrators arrived at the consulate about 6:15 p.m., they were met by the mounted policemen, 30 officers on motorcycles and, about 100 constables on foot carrying nightsticks.

At least one police car was battered and its windows smashed as the students split into small groups to retreat down side streets.

Britain Awaiting Decision on Pound

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today tensely awaited an expected government announcement on measures to solve the latest sterling crisis, following three days of speculation and relentless pressure on the pound.

Financial experts agree that, following another heavy day for the pound on foreign exchange markets Friday, the government would have to break its silence and announce a decision before Monday.

The crisis followed a Paris report that Britain is negotiating a massive new international loan. The British government has refused to confirm or deny the report.

The government silence led to a flurry of speculation, including rumors of devaluation—a solution that Wilson has repeatedly rejected since he came to power three years ago.

Belleville toasted its own kind of birthday cake last night — the city's Centennial celebrations.

Recipe for the finale to the local take in the national jubilee was to blend a banquet and ball — and serve with liberal helpings of music and merriment.

It all took place at the city armory where more than 350 Bellevillians dined and danced, marking the end of their community's Centennial events.

Response to the ball was milder than expected. City firemen, who were awarded the proceeds for their Christmas benefit fund, had anticipated up to 600 at the gala dance.

However, for those who showed it was an evening of hard-moving fun, speckled with colorful period costumes on the dance floor.

There were other rewards, too, as the city paid tribute to those citizens who had worked hard to give the year's events the sweet stamp of success.

The tributes were unexpected by many — and differed in degree.

For Mayor Ellis the pleasant surprise was an unexpected kiss on the cheek. It came from Carol Anne Brant, the city's Centennial Queen — and the first to receive a plaque marking her efforts through the year.

More than 70 plaques were presented to individuals and organizations who helped make the Centennial celebrations a success.

And the variety and depth of the big birthday program could finally be appreciated as the civic awards were handed out at the pre-ball banquet in the armory officers' mess.

It took Mayor Ellis about an hour to make the presentations and briefly review the work each plaque signified.

The program was bigger — and cost much less — than communities twice the size of Belleville, said the mayor.

"I feel that what took place in Belleville in 1967 was truly amazing and everyone is to be congratulated," he told the banquet guests.

"So many, many people have contributed so much that we do sincerely thank you all," the mayor added.

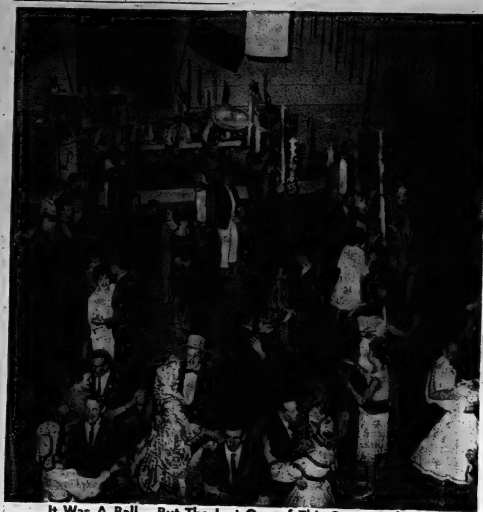
Framed plaques, more than 600 scrolls will be mailed to city residents who worked on Centennial projects.

Immediately after the awards, the diners lined up behind the far panel of the evening — Bobby Gimby, composer of the Centennial theme song. Canada — had stepped down on the dance floor.

The Toronto composer, who earlier in the day toured city schools for sing-spiels with young students — later led a different kind of a march through the gaily-decked armories.

Highlight of the evening was a band of flag-waving young-sters conscripted by Gimby from local choirs, who circled the dance-floor behind the composer jubilantly roaring out his famous song-hit.

The walk-on was followed by a parade of costumed dancers for prizes to the best-period-dressed people present.



First chosen as the best-costumed couple were Mr. and Mrs. Don Foster, who operate a city costume-rental agency — and suppliers to most of the outfitted dancers.

However, the Fosters refused the prize, pointing out they had an edge over everyone present since they were in the business.

The award went in the next best-dressed pair, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Collins. Mr. Collins was technical director for the city's Centennial program.

The rest of the festivities swept past midnight to the music of a 16-piece band which provided its services free — as did other local suppliers and workers.

Fittingly, it carried the common theme of the city's year-long centennial — voluntary service — right to the end.

It Was A Ball — But The Last One of This Centennial Year

Youngsters Greet Bobby Gimby During Stopover in Belleville

For hundreds of Belleville youngsters Canada's Centennial began all over yesterday.

Reason for the rebirth was the beaming personality of Bobby Gimby — the man who set the Centennial singing when his song Canada became a national hit.

It's still sweeping the country — and so is Bobby.

His trip to Belleville yesterday was only one stopover in what has been 11 cross-Canada tours since the Centennial began.

Every stopover is marked by the fact he never really stops.

For instance yesterday he:

- whirled around town playing before more than 2,200 youngsters from seven public schools;
- Swept a special marching choir through a rehearsal for Belleville's Centennial ball;
- Attended a banquet paying tribute to citizens contributing to the city's Centennial programs;
- Played before the Centennial Ball.

But the emphasis from first to last was always on the youngsters.

Gimby's sincere enthusiasm for mixing it up with the moppets drawn an instant response from them.

"Aren't I the luckiest guy alive — to have all this," he said gesturing toward a packed auditorium of cheering faces at King George public school, where students played late to sing with him.

As Canada's official Pied Piper — the appointment comes from the Centennial Commission — he has played Canada with youngsters by the hundreds of thousands in schools, parades and community centres.

"I've worn out three pair of shoes marching with the kids since I started," he muses.

Because of the children — and his delight in being with them — he never tires of playing his hit, which probably ranks only next to the national anthem for the playing record this year.

"When we go in and meet all those bushy-tailed bright-eyed youngsters it's like starting fresh everytime," he enthuses.

lingual hit came when he was playing with his orchestra at Murray Bay in 1965 and watched children on the street.

"But it was January 1966 I first sat down and started to work at it," he recalls. "The first eight bars came instantly — the next 32 took me about nine months."

He submitted it to the Centennial Commission and the rest is a matter of record — and record sales.

It also has probably established a record for cross-Canada tours — a project which won't end until Centenial Year is over.

There are still hundreds of visits with thousands of youngsters eagerly waiting the man with the horn.

He played in Canada theme everywhere he's been — a trumpet — decorated in gold papier-mache and rhinestones by his daughter, Lynn.

There's only one problem — the rhinestones and jewelry take a beating from so much constant use and keep dropping off.

"We travel with seven pieces of luggage and a glue-pot," says Bobby.

He also left behind hundreds of happy youngsters who may remember Canada's Centennial for that one happy sing-along with the man with the horn.

In its own way the song may contribute its own share in the fight to maintain national unity and identity.

That's probably what External Affairs Minister Martin meant when — Bobby recalls — he told the composer recently at a banquet:

Open Plan Instruction Investigated

PICTON (Staff) — Vice principals, board members and supervising principal Carl F. Reid returned Wednesday from an inspection trip of schools in Birmingham, Michigan, a suburb city of Detroit.

The group saw three "open plan" schools in operation. These are of a type similar to the proposed school for Picton. Board members and all present for the tour were highly enthusiastic with the methods.

They observed team teaching in operation in the open area where several classes were working without the benefit of walls — without interference with each other — and without noise being a factor. Mr. Reid said, that this method of teaching is perhaps a little more complicated in scheduling classes but provides better teaching for the student. The team teaching arrangements observed seemed to be highly economical of teachers' time, providing greater individual attention for students.

IN MEMORIAM

MORRIS — In loving memory of a dear husband and grandfather, who passed away November 19, 1966.

A wonderful memory we have of you,
For all of us who did love best.
Her life was unselfish for others
She lived.
No words can be received but for
Those who loved you.
Mother may you rest in heaven,
Just some thoughts from those who loved you.
Just some memories host and true,
Blessed memories we will treasure,
And always be thought the world of you.
Sadly missed by daughter Muriel and son-in-law Mike Keller and grandchildren Marie.

PETERSON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Blanche Peterson who passed away 3 years ago Nov. 18th, 1964.
Life's links were when I woke that morning
The sorrow the day would bring,
The call was sudden and death severe.
To part with one we loved so dear,
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why things have to be,
But God in heaven, God has planned,
And we must agree.
Lovingly remembered by husband and family.

ALD. B. G. WILLIAMS

Williams Enters Race

Only two members of the 1967 Belleville city council remain uncommitted regarding election intentions following an announcement today by Alderman Donald G. Williams that he would again be a candidate.

"I feel I have a responsibility to the youth of our city — there are many things to be completed with respect to our parks and recreational program," said Ald. Williams in announcing he would stand for re-election.

He said one of his aims in the coming year would be to achieve full co-ordination in all recreational programs and facilities.

At the same time he emphasized it was necessary for the city to continue to progress with in the budget of each department.

Ald. Williams' decision to offer himself for re-election leaves only two aldermen, Thomas Carruthers and John Deacon, who have not committed themselves.

Two other members — Ald. Armen David, Keegan, Boyle and Allin — previously announced they would run, while two Sodos and Joss, have said they will temporarily bow out of municipal life.

BEV DAVIES of Belleville, 23-year-old hippie living in Toronto, met and talked to France Philip in London four years ago as result of winning first place in Canada 1963 Science Fair. During Philip's recent visit to Toronto she tried to present him with a rose. She was ignored.

Belleville Hippie First Met Prince At Science Parley

TORONTO (CP) — Times change.

Four years ago, Bev Davies of Belleville met and chatted with Prince Philip in London.

Last week, Miss Davies, now a 23-year-old hippie from Toronto, tried to present a rose to the Prince but was unsuccessful.

The Star, in a report on Prince Philip's Toronto visit last week, said Miss Davies reeked of the royal visit and decided it would be a nice gesture to present him with a rose.

So she picked one from a city hall flower bed and walked outside the Royal York Hotel.

However, she was ignored by the prince.

The newspaper reprints a letter signed by Audrey Davies of Belleville who says she is Miss Davies' mother.

Mrs. Davies writes that Bev, as a result of winning first place in Canada Science Fair, 1963, for a science project, was presented to the prince four years ago while attending a science conference with 900 youths from 36 countries.

The letter says, in part: "So this hippie may well have hoped to be able to say 'Hi' to Prince Philip. And who knows — maybe he really missed something by not waiting for that rose she had presented to him.

"I'm sure she would go her way happy to have seen the prince — and did it bring back memories of the past? Were they more pleasant ones than she now experiences as a hippie?

"Many of our hippies are very clever and creative people. Is the life of the hippie the one they really chose, or is that our society has no place for them?"

Young Girl Hit by Car

TRENTON — A 12-year-old girl is in Trenton Memorial Hospital recovering from injuries received when she was struck by a car early this morning.

She suffered head lacerations and body abrasions and is being X-rayed this morning to determine any further injuries.

PAYROLL ROBBER JAILED

TORONTO (CP) — John Dennis Bannon, 26, of Bristol, Md., who commuted by airliner twice to hold up a Toronto trust company, was sentenced Friday in 15 years in prison by Magistrate David Cone. Bannon had pleaded guilty to the $22,418 Globe and Mail payroll robbery of 1963, and two robberies of the Royal Trust Company in September.

Four Groups Oppose Trenton Radio Bid

The application was made by Ralph C. Ellis of Toronto on behalf of a group interested in initiating a radio station in Trenton.

Filing briefs in opposition were D. R. Williamson, president of CHUC, Cobourg; Frank Murray, manager of CJBQ, Belleville; Gordon Keshin, president of the CTV television network; and the Northern Broadcasting Company which operates radio and television stations in Kingston and Peterborough as well as other communities in Ontario.

Mr. Ellis termed Trenton "a healthy, growing community" in his brief and said the new station would provide 18 hours of programs a day and would not have an adverse effect on either the neighboring stations or on the advent of a second television service in the area.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Williamson both described the proposed Trenton operation as "absentee ownership."

In addition, Mr. Murray said CJBQ had not up a frequency-modulation station as a public service and said if a new competitor opened up at Trenton there would have to be a curtailment of service because of reduced revenue.

Mr. Williamson doubted the Trenton group's ability to achieve the $48,000 annual income from national advertising set out in the application. His station had been on the air for 10 years and had only recently managed to turn a slim profit.

Cheese and Dairy Show To Be Held Here Nov. 29

Close to $1,500 in prize money, along with trophies and other silverware, will be up for grabs at the British Empire Dairy Show being held in Belleville on Nov. 29-30.

The show at 191 Front Street, is being held in conjunction with the 40th annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association.

The convention sessions will be held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on North Front Street — not at the Tops Motel as previously indicated.

As in previous years top grade cheddar will be on sale at the cheese show and a few doors down the street — at Victoria and Grey Trust Company — free samples of cheese (with crackers) will be handed out to customers as a promotional gesture.

At the annual cheese makers' banquet at Club Canara on Nov. 30, Centennial Year celebrants will have one of their last opportunities of the year to dress up in period costume.

The invitation has gone out for cheese makers and their escorts to turn out in old-fashioned costume for the annual banquet and dance.

The Arena Is Not Dead

Ald. Thomas Carruthers' announced intention to attempt to revive the question of an additional ice surface in Belleville for recreational purposes will get its test on Monday.

At that time the alderman will use Kingston's experiences as a guide and attempt to convince his fellow aldermen that an expenditure in the neighborhood of $150,000 will answer the demand for additional recreational facilities.

His first attempt to have council consider this alternative met with failure two weeks ago when his amendment met with defeat.

There is no doubt his argument will be countered by those advocating the community centre concept. Coupled with these presentations are the recent comments of Dr. T. L. Woodley, who in a letter carried on this page, called for a greater depth, range and participation in recreation.

For the public these arguments are all to the good. The resident of Belleville can not help but be the benefactor as the discussion continues.

Whither the Liberals

It was only a short time ago the Liberal Party in Canada was looking with some glee at the plight of the Progressive Conservatives as they underwent a shuddering change of leadership.

The rank and file thought it could do nothing but improve the party's chances in the next election. Members of Parliament felt it strengthened their position. For a half dozen cabinet ministers it was the opportunity to learn by watching for their upcoming contest for the leadership.

But since then newspaper reports have tainted the rosy hue.

Twice Prime Minister Pearson has cautioned the leadership hopefuls to restrict their campaigning until after he has made his decision to retire.

The Windsor Star caustically chastizes the candidates by saying "this is no time for Cabinet ministers to be running off in all directions in pursuit of the holy grail of leadership."

But leadership is not all that plagues the Liberals. Disunity, deficits, housing, inflation, economy waves and other related problems appear to be more than the Government can cope with, at least effectively.

It brought the Hamilton Spectator into print with a cutting reprimand for Finance Minister Sharp, terming "his promise to punish the people of Canada with a tax increase because of the myopic maladministration of his own Liberal government one of the deepest insults in memory".

The Spectator thunders on: "The wound hurts all the more because the salt of necessity is rubbed in. Mr. Sharp and the oddly assorted and disharmonious band of political contestants who share the cabinet table with him, have allowed things to get into such a mess that a tax increase is probably necessary".

The Montreal Star, in commenting on the "ridiculous situation" of the Liberal leadership race said:

"The contrast between this Liberal party performance and that of the Conservatives in handling their leadership could not be greater. The Dump-Diefenbaker campaign was carried out with great professional dignity. It was not Mr. Camp's fault that Mr. Diefenbaker gave it its faintly ludicrous quality. Mr. Camp's performance was flawless.

"There are apparently no Camps in the Liberal party. That once highly professional party has become a set of bungling amateurs."

Those PCs who bore the brunt of the snickers, the jibes and derisive comments must be doubled over in mirth today.

Humane Treatmeut

Comments yesterday by Kenneth Gardner, Belleville's temporary dog catcher, are a boon to animal lovers. While assuming the duties of ailing Charles Thurlow, Mr. Gardner has been called upon to house a considerable number of strays. With some of the dogs having been lodged in the city pound for weeks he has set about to find homes for the pets.

It adds a little strength to the argument that facilities in the Quinte area are less than adequate. The mayors of Belleville and Trenton and the reeves of Sidney and Thurlow townships have agreed to discuss the matter on a regional basis.

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society is vitally interested and is prepared to investigate the possibility of hiring a full time humane society inspector for this area.

It is to be hoped the upcoming elections in the Quinte area will not unduly slow progress towards a better solution of this ever with us problem.

Ottawa Offbeat

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You've got to hand it to Prime Minister Pearson's illustrious Company of Young Canadians for setting a perfectly splendid example of how to save money — Ottawa style.

And the style in Ottawa, bless its big generous bureaucratic heart, is to cut spending plans if necessary, but not necessarily spending.

The key word is "plans" of course.

It's the modern Civil Service adaptation of the old reliable wartime magic formula of Prime Minister Mackenzie King — remember? — "conscription if necessary, but not necessarily conscription."

It worked then, and it works now.

This year the Company, if figures in the Federal Estimates (as listed on page 285 of the Blue Book) don't lie, is spending $2,645,600 with David DePoe and his companions-in-arms for the care and feeding of beatniks, weirdoes, glue-sniffers, pot-smokers in the all-but-real nightmare world of Yorkville — and, to be fair, on other projects perhaps more worthy and deserving.

Next year, if figures "leaked" from Ralph Campeau "secret close to the Company," still stand, David DePoe and his associates will have $2,600,000 at their disposal.

Now, it used to be that when you subtracted $2,600,000 from $2,645,600 you had $45,600.

Check?

But that seems to be only the "old" math.

And the Company is working with what must be the "new" math — at least the way calculations are made in this multi-billion-dollar world of Federal spending.

For the way the Company has it figured, it is saving the taxpayer $1,300,000.

How come?

Like this . . .

The Company has put in for $3,000,000 in the next Federal Estimates which comprise, department-by-bureau-by - board-and-by-agency, all 136 of them, the Government's spending program for next year that Finance Minister Sharp has been cutting.

Seems that he and his little axe finally got around to the Company and chopped that $3,000,000 Estimate back to $2,600,000, thereby "saving" the $1,300,000.

Isn't that just dandy!

Great little system.

With it a $45,000 saving can be transformed into a $1,300,000 economy.

So now you know, when the Federal Mandarins talk reassuringly of saving "hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars," just how enormous, really the economy is.

Odd too, that, since it was only a couple of weeks or so ago that key Conservative Mike Starr put this question to Prime Minister Pearson:

'Are organizational changes taking place in the Company of Young Canadians to overcome some of its problems and will the budget for it remain at its present level?"

"No," the Prime Minister replied. "The Budget is in accord with the desire of the Government to reduce expenditures, and wherever possible they will be reduced."

Reduced for the Company of Young Canadians by $1,300,000 in "make-believe money," and $45,000 of the kind of cash it takes to pay the rent and buy the groceries.

Strange, this babying along financially of the Company whose talent for trouble must have embarrassed the Prime Minister terribly.

The Company has been given its lumps in the Commons by both Conservative and Liberal MPs, has come under censorship fire and has offended even the universities where reformers and non-conformists usually are held in high regard.

The Young Canadians have managed, as a Government agency, to refer to the United States and President Johnson as "obscenities" — and yet can well imagine how old diplomat and Nobel prizeman Lester Bowles Pearson felt about that.

But an organization that can make a $1,300,000 economy out of a $45,000 saving isn't going to go quietly, even if its trouble-starred lingering does sort of make a bad joke out of the Government great "economy" campaign.

Maritime Difficulties

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste

Out of the first annual report of the Economic Council of the Atlantic Provinces comes one main conclusion which demands attention: The steady increase in emigration from the Atlantic provinces complicates the problems of the area and adds to its economic difficulties in reducing its growth potential. . . .

Primary industry cannot create many more new jobs in the Atlantic region. It must rely on a rapid increase in employment in manufacturing industries and in those which create services. Employment in manufacturing industries in the next five years must increase by 84 per cent and by another 24 per cent in the following five years. During the 1966-1976 period, manufacturing industry must provide 40,000 new jobs, yet it created only 14,000 between 1961 and 1966. . . .

The difficulties now being experienced by Dosco—which are not new by any means—place the problem of Nova Scotia and of the other Atlantic provinces on the national level. They can no longer be looked on as a regional problem.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

November 18, 1947

Frank Murray, a resident of this city for some time, has become a member of the commercial staff of CJBQ. Mr. Murray served six years with the RAF and has a varied background with the British Broadcasting Co., and the Irish Radio Service. His appointment becomes effective immediately.

Expressions of sincere gratitude emanated today from the officials of the Salvation Army Citadel here and especially from Campaign Chairman Mark Vanner for the generous response of the general public to the Salvation Army's recent appeal for funds.

For the first time such a project has been held since before the war, the Kinsmen Club of Belleville next spring will sponsor a motor show in the Armouries and in connection with the show, a draw on a new Buick automobile.

Work has commenced in clearing and getting the ground in shape for the parking of cars in the rear of stores on Front St. along the back of the Grand Trk. The men employed are supplied by the unemployment office on Campbell St.

Miss Monica Barry, BA, of the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents at Queensboro.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Egan of Westport were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Scanlan. Mrs. Egan is the Diocesan president of the Catholic Women's League and was here to address the members of the local branch.

Conservative party nominations for a candidate to contest in the next Federal elections took place at Stirling today. There was a large attendance of delegates from all parts of the riding of West Hastings. Only two names were placed before Sheriff Morrison who is the Returning Officer, and Col. T. Graham enters the field as an independent Conservative supporting the Union Government and E. Guss Porter will be the Conservative candidate supporting the Union Government.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 18, 1967 . . .

The first operation of standard time in North America began at midnight in eastern Nova Scotia, 84 years ago—in 1883. Scottish-born Sir Sanford Fleming, who came to Canada in 1845, probably had more to do with the introduction of standard time around the world than anyone else. He first publicly proposed the international standard time measurement at Toronto in 1878.

1820—Proust died.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—Maj.-Gen. Sir Stanley Maude, British commander in Mesopotamia, died from an attack of cholera. Lord Cavan orders the field as an independent Conservative supporting the Union Government and E. Guss Porter will be the Conservative candidate supporting the Union Government.

W. A. Findlay spent last week with friends in Colborne.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Saylor have returned to their home in Stirling after visiting their son here.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—British 8th Army was in pursuit of the Axis troops south of Benghazi; Japanese admitted loss of a battleship.

Time passed, the Vietnam war dragged on, and both the Harris and Gallup polls show now Johnson's standing with the people is at an all-time low. Yet, nothing has changed.

Since the biggest monkey on Johnson's back is, and has been almost from the begining of his presidency, the Vietnam war, it would seem the wise use every device to lighten the load.

One handy device would have been repeated talks to the public on the war, with explanations. Years from now biographers and historians will have a field day trying to explain Johnson's growing reluctance to make such talks.

This is particularly strange since, in private, he talks incessantly and with force.

Even President Truman, with less education than Johnson, was better at public speaking. There were no decorations, no literary flourishes, or attempts at them. Truman was terse, tough and to the point.

Johnson has a habit of throwing in bits and pieces on Vietnam in a speech.

But those bits and pieces get lost in view and memory. Recently Johnson has been depending on aides—like Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey and State Secretary Dean Rusk —to answer critics on Vietnam.

That there is a broad desire for explanations from Johnson was illustrated last Sunday when a minister, who should have taken the trouble to be better informed on some details, undertook to criticize Johnson for not talking more. Johnson sat in a pew listening to him.

His concentration on the Vietnam war seems to have got in the way of his wording on Congress. That has a grice tag on it: When Congress finally finishes up this year's its record will be unimpressive.

In short, Johnson will have to perform on his own, in full sight of the public whose approval means so much to his ego and his political future.

Watching him do it, or try to, is what will be fascinating.

Toivo-Come and Get It

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Belleville a 'cultural wasteland? Nonsense — I have been associated with the Belleville Theatre Guild, directing, acting, etc., for nearly 15 years. I wish to ensure Toivo Vaino that before every performance, we have hundreds of people who state that it is so good to have something cultural going on in Belleville, because Belleville is a cultural wasteland, etc., but that they are very sorry they can't attend because that is when the Royal Order of Rabbit meets or something similar!

To Toivo Vaino I'll say, if you want to see cultural (ugh) activities in Belleville stop crying about it and do something.

The Belleville Theatre Guild is presenting "The World of Carl Sandburg" next week. It promises to be one of the best productions we have ever done — but we need an audience. So come and bring a hundred friends.

Then laugh, cry and applaud with us and come to our next meeting. We'll give you a job and we'll all live happily ever after — even if it's doing one act plays for the Royal Order of Rabbit.

An apology and a tip of the hat to all those who work or attend our productions with sincerity — possibly even Toivo Vaino.

Church Lighting Commended

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

St. Thomas Anglican Church, shining against the dark sky, is a beautiful sight.

Last year, when it and a number of other buildings were illuminated temporarily, I wrote a letter to you. In that letter I expressed my admiration for the building and the hope that the flood - lighting project would be continued for it.

Now those responsible for St. Thomas Anglican Church have evidently installed permanent lighting equipment.

I am not suggesting that their action was a result of my earlier letter. Obviously many people shared my pleasure. The parishoners of that church should be congratulated for their action.

Visitors to our city, who drive up Bridge St. or Church St., after dark, will be thrilled with the sight of those ivy - covered stone walls and the tower silhouetted against the darkness of the night. Those of us who drive up and down those streets regularly will experience continuing pleasure. The people who reside in the immediate neighborhood and those who travel by foot in that vicinity will have even greater appreciation.

Surely, too, many folk who then think that Christian edifice will be reminded of the Source of all light.

War Drags On

U.S. Public Seeks Clarification on Vietnam From LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public opinion polls show President Johnson near the bottom of the barrel. There is no place for him to go but up.

To go up he'll have to start fighting, for a change. Much of his time in the White House has been like living in a monastery, he has done so little talking to the people about national problems.

But as a politician, and with the 1968 elections coming up, it can be taken for granted he will try to fight to restore himself in the public mind. How he fights will be one of the most fascinating sights between now and the elections.

It has become a cliche to say his popularity, including both public liking and confidence, would leap up if the Vietnam war suddenly ended. But that would be depending on a miracle, if he waited for that.

Yet public opinion stood the president—as expressed in polls —has been neither perceptive nor brilliant. One example is what happened after his two meetings in June with Soviet Premier Alexi Kosygin in Glassboro, N.J.

The Louis Harris poll, published two week after those meetings, showed Johnson's popularity had shot up to 56 per cent, an 11-per-cent jump compared with a couple of months before.

New Brunswick Trappists Keep Unusual Retreat

NORTH ROGERSVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Modern attitudes mixed with religious traditions blend into an "oasis of peace and silence" for laymen in the out-of-the-way community in Eastern New Brunswick.

The oasis is an imposing stone-gilded structure amid 40 acres of spruce and sprouts — in the guest, or retreat, house of the Order of Cistercians of the Strict Observance, commonly called Trappists.

A Roman Catholic order of priests and brothers dating from 1098, the Trappists lead a semi-cloistered life of meditation and farming, yet bend an ear to the worldly and spiritual ills of laymen.

Rev. Camille Doucet, French-speaking commander of the Trappists, says the guest house he laymen is different in scope from the usual concept of retreat.

Most retreats are regimented affairs, from a few days to a week, with participants — male or female — adhering to strict silence, prayer and similar attendance at services. Not so the Trappists'.

"We idea of this house," says Father Doucet, "is to furnish a place where men who want to escape worldly turmoil can come in solitude to meditate.

"Unlike most retreat houses, ours gives the individual the freedom to dispose of his own time."

Father Doucet says he and several others among the 20 Trappists here—13 priests and seven brothers from New Brunswick and Quebec's Gaspe—are always available to laymen who seek guidance.

There is no charge to the individual, though most make hefty contributions, to live in the 15-room guest house, paid for by the Trappists' central monastery at Oka, Que.

"We would not want to turn away any man because he is poor," says Father Doucet. "That is why we have no set fee."

Business has been brisk, he says, and even included one Protestant minister. Nearby is a special building for wives of laymen.

To none Catholics, the Trappists are an anachronism in a world gearing more and more to practical work with the laity by religious orders.

But Father Doucet says the ecumenical movement made it clear the Trappists were to continue the accent on the contemplative life.

"Our lives must be testimony to the world. We are also trying to set a public example by maintaining a model farm and employing local labor at just wages.

"In the old days, the laity donated time and labor to the monks. That is why upon entry by hiring the labor, we consider it an act of charity to the man."

Father Doucet says the practical viewpoint of many people is that Trappists should be out baptizing, saving mass, hearing confessions. But the order's purpose is to live a good faith."

And Father Doucet attempts to put the order's purpose across to the public in a series of articles in weekly and religious newspapers that play up his theme of "oasis of peace and silence."

The Trappists here—the only ones in the Maritimes—finish by growing brussel sprouts, making bricks and running a chick - raising business that markets mostly in New Brunswick.

Built in 1902 the monastery laid spring put up its modern guest house to replace an older section which also entered to laymen for more than a half-century. Two miles down the road are the Trappists' female counterpart in their own convent—the Trappistines.

Lutheran Church For Deaf

VANCOUVER (CP) — Hand-carved signs in the manual language of the deaf adorn the altar of the newly built chapel of Trinity Lutheran Church for the Deaf here.

The manual letter C for Christ is included in a number of the altar's semi-abstract carved crosses. The altar also includes the deaf language sign for three and the sign for one, which, when combined, signify the Trinity.

The altar was fashioned by Vancouver artist Tony Bizig, who also carved a cross and crown suspended above the altar.

The new church will seat 150 people. The building contains a large assembly room, a pastor's study and a large kitchen.

Construction was made possible by grants of $62,000 from the Lutheran Church, Canada, and the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

The Lutheran Church Women's Missionary Society donated $6,000 and another $6,000 was raised by deaf members and their friends.

Desolate Peruvian City Is Priest's Concern

VANCOUVER (CP) — "This place is like a crater on the moon," thought Rev. Neil Macaskey when he saw the impoverished city of Comas in Peru for the first time four years ago.

The 29-year-old Roman Catholic priest found dead landscape and appalling poverty when he arrived in Comas in October, 1963.

"It was like nothing on earth," he recalled in an interview. "It was all rocky, pock-marked desert. For miles around all you could see was dust and rock."

Father Macaskey was interviewed while home on furlough from a mission operated by himself, four other priests and five sisters. Born in Vancouver, he is a graduate of Holy Rosary Scholasticate in Ottawa.

He said he was given a thorough grounding in Spanish and the customs and conditions of Peru, but nothing he learned here prepared him for the stark realities he encountered in the Latin American country.

Comas, he said, is a city of 180,000 crammed into three square miles 15 miles outside Lima, the Peruvian capital. Comas shares with Lima the dubious distinction of possessing —with the possible exception of Hong Kong—the worst slums in the world, Father Macaskey said.

"Our West Coast slums are rich by comparison," he said. "Homes in Comas are windowless barrels scarcely bigger than tool sheds.

"Most people sleep on the floor. There is no plumbing and a putrid stench hangs over the city day and night."

Father Macaskey said the church now is building a "human development centre" in Comas containing facilities for medical and dental care, social assistance and family education.

UN Sunday Is Proposed

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A priest assigned to the United Nations by the Holy See proposes that his church consider establishing a special UN Sunday on an annual basis.

Such a day, comparable to missionary Sunday celebrated Oct. 22, might raise more than $100,000,000 among the 500,000,000 Roman Catholics in the world, Msgr. Ettore de Filippo said in an interview.

In addition to raising money for UN humanitarian projects, he suggested, such a day would give priests an opportunity to explain the principles of the United Nations charter "and give us a universal mentality."

"Having a representative of the Holy See at the UN is not enough, but to have Catholics all over the world support the idea of the UN and work with it.

Msgr. de Filippo spent 11 years at sea as chaplain to ships' crews, commercial cruise passengers and immigrants from Europe to Australia and the Americas before joining his former language teacher, Msgr. Alberto Giovanetti, the Vatican Observer, in 1965.

"We are now working to get the Vatican more involved in the United Nations," he said.

He said the Vatican gives a token $5,000 annually to the UN for refugee relief.

The diamond-patterned British wool jacquard Jersey dress and jacket come in off-beat color combinations of bottle green-fuchsia-mauve; mauve-olive - aubergine; bottle green - mauve-orange; and navy-bottle green fuchsia. Successful Living

Husband Sulks Over Wife's Absence

Dear Doris: My husband is a gardener. He is now 70 and has an easy job working nearby. I had to go to the drug store the other day and stopped in to see a friend before I came home.

When I got home I saw he had been in and gone out again. So I left his supper in the oven when I finally had to go out to choir practice. I came back at nine to find him lying in the living room in the dark.

Said his back was bad; that I was never home to make his supper. Wanted to know who I was with, who brought me home. Where I had been in the afternoon.

If I stayed home every minute he wouldn't be satisfied. But this is getting me down. — Married Forty-Seven Years

Dear Married: Aside from the fact that jealousy and self-pity sometimes show up with aging, couldn't you two communicate a little more? A message from him when he came in and went out again, a note from you to say his dinner was in the oven — are these too much to ask?

I'd like to see you two make it to the half-century! You have just as much right as he has to come and go.

Dear Doris: I am almost frantic trying to toilet train my little boy. He was two years old in June and I have been trying to train him ever since. I have tried everything and as a last resort I smack his bottom.

My husband and I are continually arguing over it, as he tells me I am not handling the situation correctly.

You have tried ignoring it, being nice about it, humoring him, bribing him, and nothing works. Other boys of his age are toilet trained and my son is very intelligent for his age. I thought it would be so easy, but have been so disillusioned. He is an only child. — Very Worried.

Dear Worried: When you worry, he gets tense. And he can't possibly come through for you then. Don't rush him.

Some take until three or four to get the necessary muscle control; and it won't come with spanking. If you had six children you would have less time to concentrate on this something less - than - world-shaking event.

You and your husband would be less at loggerheads about this if you both were to read a chapter on it in a fine book on child training — name of which is in the mail to you.

Dear Doris: I have given a topic, your ten-year leaflet "What is Love?" to my husband's 17-year-old sister. I think it is marvelous. She is engaged and I hope she learns that she is much too young.

She has only grade nine and has quit school in the hope of finding a job so she'll have some money for her wedding in June. — Dina

Dear Dina: Another year of school would be a better preparation for next June's event. Even then she has about one chance in six that her choice of a mate is the right one.

Love that lasts a lifetime is made of more than teen-age eagerness and excitement which are delightful, but, alas all too temporary.

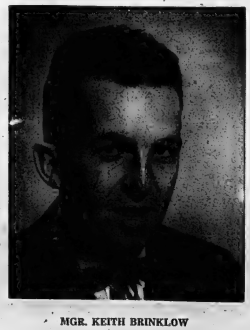
Points for Parents

By MARY BEYSON



Mother: "Terry tries so hard to do everything Dick does — even though he is two years younger. He feels so frustrated when he can't keep up with Dick and his friends."

Encourage a younger brother to have friends of his own age — especially if there is more than a year's difference in the two brothers' ages.

An older brother may be a good example to follow — but a younger brother is at a disadvantage if he must always strive to do things for which he is neither physically nor emotionally ready.

WEDDING

BURKE — PARES

TWEED — St. John the Evangelist Church, Flixton, was the setting for the wedding of Mary Anne June Parks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Parks, Kelsdar, and Gary Edward Burke, Madoc.

Rev. Peter Murphy was the officiating clergyman and Rev. F. O'Neill was present in the sanctuary. Glen and Craig Leonard were ushers. Sister Mary Wilhelmina, Tweed was organist and soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length sheath gown of silk tagoda, styled with an Empire bodice of imported floral Swiss lace, scalloped neckline and lily-point sleeves. The waist was accentuated by a self bow and sash and a flowing mantilla train of similar lace was caught at the shoulders. A headpiece of crystal-centred rosettes held her scalloped veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Glenn Yanch was her sister's matron-of-honor, and wore an Empire gown of shocking pink chiffon over taffeta, featuring a scoop neckline and short-the-elbow sleeves. Her bouquet was a matching pom-trimmed mauti-bow with illusion veil and she carried a bouquet of white 'mums and yellow sweetheart roses.

Miss Laurie Love of Oshawa was flower girl and wore a white dress, similar to the bride's, trimmed with pink roses. She carried a basket of white 'mums and pink Sweetheart roses. Randy Love of Oshawa was ring-bearer.

Glenn Yanch of Oshawa was groomsman and the guests were ushered by Archie Parks and James Parks.

At the reception in Price's Restaurant Reception Hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a burgundy sheath with beige accessories. Her corsage was of white 'mums. Mrs. Burke assisted, wearing a shrimp sheath dress with matching crepe, with matching headpiece and white 'mum corsage.

For travelling, the bride chose a blue wool and mohair boucle two-piece suit with black accessories. She wore a pale pink corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke will live at Windsor St., Oshawa.

Know Your Antiques

Hair flowers formed into a wreath are the decorative motif of this shadow box. The hair was taken in 1860 from the deceased members of a family in Newtown, Ohio. Chenille and thread were used to form some flowers but most of the petals are of braided hair.

Victorian Hair Pictures Are Unlike Today's Art

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Hair is one of the few media ignored by today's modern painters who use stones, seeds, scrap metal, paper and other oddities. The hair pictures of Victorian days are unlike the art of today. The hair of a deceased was woven, braided, or sewn into decorative designs or flowerlike forms. They were displayed in a shadow box or worn as jewelry.

One elaborate shadow box made in 1860 was filled with hair flowers entwined in a wreath. The centre of the display featured a wreath of colorful flowers made of thread and chenille. The hair flowers surrounding it were in shades of brown and black.

Q. Antique automobiles are my real love, but it is impossible to keep several in my apartment. Were there dishes or glassware that pictured the early cars?

A. The Royal Doulton factory of England made a pattern called "Motor Objects" about 1906. Eight different scenes were made as decorations on a cup or other dish. "Devil", "The New and The Old," "Horse, A Horse", "After the Run," "Blood Money", "A Nerve Tonic", "Room for One" and "High yer on Governor" are the titles. These were, all decorated with a picture of an old car and several people.

The title was placed near the bottom of the design. A border of trees and hills surround the plates. The pattern was made for plates, pitchers, cups, saucers, serving dishes, and tea and coffee and chocolate pots.

Q. How is an old samovar used? Is the tea pot in the centre hole?

A. The long tube in the centre of the samovar held hot coals. The coals heated the water used in the making of tea. Some samovars had a small depression at the top of the tube. A pot of hot tea could be kept warm on the top of the coals. The tea was not made in the samovar.

Q. A coin-like disk is soldered on the bottom of my silver plated goblet. The disk has the words "Middletown Plate Co." and pictures of the scales of justice over the words "Middletown, Con."

A. The Middletown Plate Company of Connecticut was organized in 1864 to make silver plated wares. It was one of the original companies that joined together to form the International Silver Company in 1898.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Casserole Cabbage Rolls

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: . . . I am sending along recipes which I hake together along with Melba Toast. — Mrs. J. H. H.

ANSWER: I hereby acknowledge receipt of both the Cabbage Casserole (see below) that tastes like Cabbage Rolls and Orange Currant Pudding. I have tested both and think they make a fine combination for an even dinner. I will give the recipe for your Orange Currant Pudding next week, and the Cabbage Casserole today. Other readers, please save this Cabbage Casserole recipe and watch for Orange Currant Pudding early next week and use both together for an even dinner.

NOTE: Mrs. J. H. H. says "I began using this method one day when I hadn't time to shape cabbage rolls."

1 lb. ground chuck beef
1 tbsp. cooking oil
1 chopped onion (or 2 tbsps. instant)
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
3 tbsps. raw long grain rice
One 10-oz. can tomato soup
1 soup can water
2 cups coarsely shredded cabbage

In large frying pan sear the ground chuck beef in oil for a minute or two then add onion, salt, pepper and rice. Mix well while gently sautaing for 2 or 3 min., then add soup and water, and mix well. Turn cabbage into greased baking dish or casserole which may be carried to the dining-room table. Pour meat mixture evenly over the raw cabbage. Do not stir. Bake covered 1½ hrs. at 325 deg. Fahr.

P.S. from Emera: This re-heats excellently so if you are so inclined make and bake two of these and serve one for the current meal and cool and chill and cover and store the other for a meal three or four days hence, reheated at 325 deg. Fahr. covered, for at least one hour.

Ann Landers

Children From Foster Homes Need Kindness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an offcur in Job's Daughters and we are having a big dance in a couple of months. I want to ask Chuck who is one of the nicest, most mannerly fellows in the whole school. All the kids are crazy about him.

I was surprised when my mother told me I should not ask him because it might injure my reputation. Chuck lives in a foster home and this is what my mother has against him. She says all kids in foster homes have parents who aren't married, or they are alcoholics, or in jail, or they don't want the kids. According to her, the family is trash no matter how you look at it.

ANN LANDERS

Is she right? I am just sick over this. — SO DISAPPOINTED.

DEAR SO: It's not true that all kids in foster homes have parents who are not married, alcoholic or in jail. Some foster children are orphaned, or they have only one parent who is unable to care for them. Even if the boy did come from the type of home your mother described, it would not necessarily mean that he is no good. Kids who have unfortunate backgrounds need acceptance and kindness from people like you — to prevent people like your mother from breaking their spirit.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just finished reading the letter from the woman who screamed bloody murder because her husband married a girl working in the shoe store. Some people don't know when they are well off. Eight out of 10 wives in the U.S. would be thrilled to trade places with that woman. I'm included.

Ask her how she would like to sit alone every night wondering where her husband is and what he is doing. Ask her how she would like to worry about whether he turned over in a ditch because he was drunk.

I could write a book about what I've gone through with a husband who let me know early in our marriage that he had no interest in me, his home or his children. Whenever I hear a wife complain because her husband spends too much time around the house I wish I could tell her how lucky she is. Do it for me, will you please? — WHAT'S SHE GOT THAT I DON'T HAVE?

DEAR WHAT: Maybe she doesn't have anything that you don't have. Maybe her husband has something that your husband doesn't have. Namely the maturity to accept responsibility.

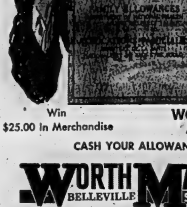
DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister and I just learned two facts which really knocked us out. (1) Dad was married for a three years to another woman before he married Mom. (2) She was adopted when she was two months old.

When we told Mom how it all came out we were she said she wasn't trying to keep anything from us. She said it didn't occur to her to mention these "details." She cried for an hour when she heard the news. Now we both wonder what else is being kept from us. I have a feeling I'm adopted too. Are we justified in feeling betrayed, or is Mom right? — HURT.



DEAR HURT: You and your sister should have been told about the previous marriage and the adoption years ago. Had you grown up with the knowledge it would have had no significance. This way, it looms large and important in your minds and has shaken your confidence in your parents. Sorry, but they made a big mistake.

Rural Poverty Remains

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's rural development programs have failed to solve Canada's rural poverty problem, says a report prepared for the Economic Council of Canada.

The report, released Friday by the council, was prepared by Helen Buckley and Eva Tihanyi, research economists at the Canadian Centre for Community Studies.

It examines the economic impact of the agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA), the Maritime Marshland Rehabilitation Act (MMRA) and the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act (PFRA).

The report says that despite general technological advances in rural areas resulting from the programs, an estimated 500,000 rural families across Canada entered the 1960's "in dismal poverty."

Public investment in land and water development under ARDA, PFRA and MMRA could not alone subsidize rural poverty unless the programs were changed quickly and completely.

ARDA programs had too often committed public funds to projects that did not satisfy the basic economic guideline that for every $1 spent the rural economy should get at least $1 in benefits.

"Indeed, it is possible that ARDA has played a part in prolonging undesirable farm situations by its addition to farm income that ARDA promises could have influenced some farmers to postpone or reject potentially better off-farm solutions."

Montreal Says It's Tops For Efficient Thieves

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's assistant police director says the city's underworld is the best organized and most progressive on the North American continent.

Maurice St. Pierre said Friday in an interview that the criminal community in Montreal has "progressed rapidly during the last few years."

"Thieves are better organized here. You don't find organized gangs operating so much in other places.

"You might see a man enter a bank somewhere and hand the teller a note. But they don't run around in armed gangs like they do here in Quebec."

Director St. Pierre said it is a federal offence in the United States as soon as money is touched and the courts are stricter.

"We're so slow in Quebec. It can take up to 18 months to get through the courts with a holdup suspect. It's too long."

The Montreal police department was doing everything it could to curb the rising crime rate in the city.

There have been nearly 80 bank robberies to date this year, compared with 36 in 1966, and armed raids on armored trucks by and around Montreal beyond the underworld, more than doubled.

The department has beefed up its surveillance on banks and has inaugurated a special "moving squad" headed by Lieut. Philippe Young of the crime prevention bureau.

Cripples Face Two-year Wait For Operations

TORONTO (CP) — Doctor Gordon Murray said Friday it will be at least two years before his technique for rejoining severed cord will be widely available to crippled persons generally.

In a statement, Dr. Murray said work is still experimental and in no way reflects a universally acceptable procedure.

"While the preliminary results are most encouraging, it will take at least two years or more to reach a final assessment."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counselor

There was no change in the local labor demand during the past week, as depicted by the employment opportunities listed by local employers with the Canada Manpower Centre. The demand for the female worker was only half as strong as that for men seeking work. This trend covers both casual and regular employment.

Since the Canada Manpower Centre assumed direct local responsibility in the administrative, professional and technical field there has been considerable activity from employers and clients interested in this labor category.

At the present time there is a good demand for the experienced and qualified professional worker.

It is encouraging to note that planned highway improvements in the community will provide additional job opportunities in the months ahead.

In the female division locally an experienced bank teller is required, either on a full-time or part-time basis. A mature reliable woman is in demand for motel domestic work. A general office clerk is better sought by a retail store. Registered nurses and registered nursing assistants are in demand, both locally and in other areas. Excellent wages are being offered by a major company located in the Province of Quebec for a qualified stenographer. A knowledge of both English and French is essential, with at least two years of secretarial experience.

In the male division locally there is still a requirement from two industrial plants for licensed second and fourth class stationary engineers.

A position is available in a neighboring town for a qualified fitter or oxygen on a permanent basis. An industrial plant has an opening for an electrical apprentice who has completed his second or third year of training. Another industrial plant requires a mechanical draftsman who would be responsible to the plant engineer. Two licensed Class "A" automobile repair mechanics are still in demand, with one position calling for experience in truck repair and the other for experience in the repair of automatic transmissions. In neighboring towns there are positions for accountants in the industrial and institutional field. A large number of mine and smelter laborers are required in Northern Ontario for surface and underground work.

If interested in any of these positions, seeking other employment or thinking of reentering the labor market, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 224 Church Street, Belleville.

He was well-named — The Grey Ghost.

He was an equine white tornado as he blurred his way through the field on the back stretch kicking dirt into their faces twenty one out of twenty-two times during a brilliant racing career.

He died on Thursday at the comparatively early age (for horses) of 17.

He was Native Dancer, a whirling grey dervish of the tracks who became one of the Sport of Kings' most popular champions who never knew he was the darling of millions of television peepers.

The Dancer's coat had turned to almost pure white with the passing of the years.

On Wednesday he was stricken with a severe stomach ailment. He grew worse and was rushed to a veterinary centre in Philadelphia.

An emergency operation was performed to remove a large stomach ulcer but the Dancer succumbed a few hours later.

He will be buried at owner Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm in Baltimore where he stood at stud at the time.

The Dancer's services came high. It cost $28,000, the highest for an individually-owned stallion, to have a mare mated with him. Foal or no foal it cost the mare's owners $4,000 at least for mating with the Dancer.

And the grey sire pondered a large family. They have won more than four million since they first appeared on a race track in 1953. One of his sons Kayal King won the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness in 1966 and now is standing stud at Sagamore where he's become the stall of his illustrious sire.

The Dancer was only two years old in 1952 when he was voted champion of his age and horse of the year. He reigned as champion three year-old in winning nine out of ten and again as American and older champion in 1954.

His racing career ended when he was but a four year-old. Sore feet was the reason.

Dancer was in his prime when flat-racing was first shown on television sets. His light grey coat made him stand out against the dark shades of the rest of the packs, and even non-racing fans picked him as their video screen favorite as he ghosted his way through the field.

He lost but one race in 22 starts. This came in the Kentucky Derby when he finished second to Dark Star but track pundits said he was roughed at the first turn and "finished strongly but could not overtake the winner."

During his racing career Native Dancer enriched his owners coffers to the tune of $785,246, the seventh highest total in history at that time.

The long by a head in the 1953 Derby was his only one. He won the other two legs of racing's Triple Crown for three-year-olds the same year, the Preakness and the Belmont.

Racing men have sometimes strange ways of naming their colts. For instance one was named Buck because it was sired by Front Ace out of Queen's Pride.

Vanderbilt, Dancer's owner had his own methods, clever ones at that. He, too, used the kids the names on the colt's parents.

Native Dancer received his name because his sire was "Polynesian" and his dam "Geisha."

The horse in its day was what Babe Ruth was in baseball; Red Grange in football, and Bobby Hull is to hockey.

The Dancer's feet are forever stilled, but his memory will live long in the hearts and minds of the men of the tracks.

Menard Takes Over Point Leadership

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A Jackie Gleason he isn't but you could hardly begrudge Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford his "How sweet it is" comment in a joy-filled dressing room last night.

The Mo-Hawks had just ended their six-game OHA Senior "A" winless string by whipping the Oakville Oaks 10-1.

It was the loop's most lopsided score of the season and sent a paying crowd of 1,027 home happy.

Belleville spotted the Oaks the opening goal but from the 10-minute mark of the first period, it was strictly a Mo-Hawk night is howl. They charged into a 3-1 lead by period's end, made it 7-0 with four goals in as many minutes in the middle frame and completed the route with another trio in the third.

Left-winger Minnie Menard led the Mo-Hawk war dance and climbed near the top of the loop's scoring race with a four-goal night. He garnered three goals and added an assist, boosting his record to 12 and 8 for 20 points.

Defenceman Lionel Botly, who averages about three goals a season, exploded for two in just over a minute and also had one helper. Dave Jones and Mickey Cherevaty scored one and assisted on two each.

Larry Shuker ticked home Terry Holmes' ice-bagging screen shot at the five-minute mark of the game but from then out, Joe Juskin was unbeatable in the winners' net to support his mates' scoring blast. Belleville outshot Oakville 37-29.

Oshawa referee Stan Westfall assessed Oakville 12 of the game's 15 penalties, including three misconducts and a game misconduct when the Oaks protested his calls.

Brown notched the equalizer at 10:31 of the first, beating young George Tracey from five feet out on a passing play with Jones and Cherevaty. Jones decked defenceman Don Curtis out of his skates before sinking a pretty backhand at 14:40 and Menard scored his first ripping home a high beauty, at18:44.

Overlapping penalties set the stage for Botly's first goals of the year in the middle host. Two Oaks were off when he blasted a high point shot that went in off Terry Holmes' hand at 5:26. He made it 4-0 at 6:31, rattling a right-boards shot off the far goal post and back into the other corner. The goals finished Oakville and Menard triggered his second from 20 feet in front before Cherevaty's shot took a hop over the unlucky Tracey's pads at 9:52.

Tracey began to fade despite the score and stole goals off the sticks of Marineau twice, McConnell, Menard and Godson. In the third, Menard tipped home Baker's shot; Godson converted Cherevaty's goal pass and McConnell scored from the doorstep on Marineau's setup while Juskin turned back several dangerous Oakville bids among 11 saves.

Dave Jones was honored as the O'Keefe player of the month in a between-periods presentation.

LaLonde Returns After 16 Years

The Mo-Hawks, beginning what they hope is a climb up the OHA Senior "A" ladder, had one new face in the lineup last night and are shooting for another next week.

Centre Ilec LaLonde's transfer from The Eastern League came through yesterday and he split centre-ice duties with Ralph Place on a line with Eddie Marineau and Wayne McConnell last night.

Lalonde played Junior "B" hockey here at the age of 16, in the Chicago Black Hawk chain, before going on to three years in Junior "A" with Galt and Peterboro.

He played Mo-Hawk coach Floyd Crawford and after a quick "come ahead," joined the club in practice earlier this week.

"He's a good, experienced hockey player and I know he'll help us as much as he can," Crawford said following his signing.

Meanwhile, another long-distance call from Des Moines coach Howie Milford put Crawford on the trail of defenceman Bernie Gould.

"Gould just turned 27 and comes highly recommended. I talked to him Thursday and he hopes to be here in time to work out with us Monday," Crawford said. He added that Des Moines of the International League, has an abundance of defencemen. "They have to carry a certain number of junior-age players so reluctantly released Gould when they had to let somebody go. He may be just what we need but I want a look at him on skates before signing."

Goaltender Nobody Wanted Leads Wings Into First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roy Edwards, the goalie nobody wanted, Friday carried Detroit Red Wings into the National Hockey League Eastern Division lead with his fourth straight victory since joining the club.

The 30-year-old rookie, called up just before Roger Crozier announced his retirement from hockey, has allowed just a goal a game since moving up from Fort Worth of the Central Professional League.

But, no one really should be surprised at his showing, especially since he opened the season at Fort Worth with three shutouts and hadn't lost in nine games.

The 4-1 victory over Los Angeles Kings, leaders of the Western Division, moved Detroit a point ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Veteran Gordie Howe with his 11th goal of the season, gave the Wings a 1-1 tie after Lowell MacDonald had opened scoring for the Kings.

Norm Ullman, Dean Prentice and Alex Delvecchio wrapped it up in the third period, in which Detroit fired 15 of their 34 shots at former team-mate Terry Sawchuk.

A carpenter in the off season at his Seneca Township home near St. Catharines, Ont., Edwards' hobby has followed him home after nine years of professional wandering.

Even in his last year of amateur, he came from nowhere to stardom when he replaced John Henderson in goal for Whitby Dunlops and led Canada to the 1958 world hockey championship.

The next year Chicago Black Hawks turned him professional and placed him with Calgary of the Western League where he was named the Prairie Division rookie of the year award.

Since then he's been with Buffalo of the American League on three occasions, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., of the old Eastern Pro League, Portland and Spokane of the Western League, Pittsburgh of the Amateurs and St. Louis and Fort Worth of the CHL.

Even at Buffalo last year he played behind Ed Chadwick and was called up by the Wings to be second to alternate goalie George Gardner.

The Wings even got him by a round-about route this season when they traded Pittsburgh Penguins of the NHL Hank Bassen for him because the Penguins didn't think he had the makings of an NHL goalie. Pittsburgh had drafted him from Chicago.

Before moving up this season, Edwards allowed just 12 goals in nine games, that included a tie and a fourth shutout in the sixth game.

But the Wings seem to have the magic touch when it comes to bringing goalies into the league, starting with Sawchuk in 1950, Glenn Hall in 1964 and Crozier in 1965.

These are all the first-string goalies the Wings have had in the last 17 years and each was named rookie of the year in his first season, winning the Calder Memorial Trophy.

The Wings are idle tonight, but Sunday give Edwards a big test when they put him out against the Black Hawks in Chicago.

Tonight Montreal Canadiens play the Seals in Oakland, Chicago is at Toronto, New York Rangers meet the Bruins in Boston, Philadelphia Flyers are in Minnesota against the North Stars and Pittsburgh is at St. Louis where Hall lends goal for the Blues.

Riders Face Stingy Defence, Past Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders have a history and the stingiest defence in Eastern Football Conference to overcome here Sunday when they open their two-game, total-point EFC final series against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

In 21 previous seasons under coach Frank Clair, the Riders have met the Cats seven times in the finals and won only once —last year when they finished the regular schedule in first place for the only time in that span.

Until last year, the Riders had finished second—the same place they wound up this season —for seven straight years and advanced to the Grey Cup only once. That was in 1960 when they beat Toronto Argonauts in the final.

In the last 13 years, the 1960 Ottawa club was the only second-place team to represent the East in the Grey Cup. It won a 16-6 decision over Edmonton Eskimos.

The 1960 season was unique in another respect. Hamilton finished last in the East, after leading the league for three seasons. But the Ticats recovered in 1961 to start a string of five first-place finishes.

In all those past seasons, the Ticats were noted for a tough defence. This year is no exception. They allowed only 195 points during the regular season, an average of slightly less than two converted touchdowns a game.

But the Riders, who defeated Hamilton 72-17 in the 1966 series, scored more points this year than they did in 1966 and the Hamilton defence this year was even more impressive, allowing less than 13 points a game.

The Riders are going into the series with a healthy club—the same unit they had at the end of the season with the possible exception of fullback Rick Black.

He was out most of the year with a shoulder injury, but was taken off the injured list earlier this week and may see action in the series.

The Ticats have been making minor changes throughout the season and Sunday will be no exception. They have added Jim Smith, a halfback recently cut by Buffalo Bills in the U.S., who will be playing his first game in Canada Sunday.

The Sunday game, which will be broadcast on the CBC television network starting at 4 p.m. EST, will be played on what virtually amounts to a new field.

Lansdowne Park was re-sodded little more than a week ago for last Sunday's EFC semi-final when Ottawa whipped Toronto Argonauts 38-22. The field was spongy then, due in part to rain which fell throughout most of the afternoon.

But it has been covered by an inflated plastic tarpaulin all week, with warm air circulating under the plastic to dry the turf.

There is a possibility of some snow or rain Sunday, but it should not make much difference to the footing, although it could make the ball slippery.

While the Riders have played well in mud this year, they are hoping for a dry field as an aid to scoring points. They want a big margin to take to Hamilton next Saturday for the opening of the series.

Ottawa piled up a 17-point lead at home in the opener of the 1964 final but found it wasn't enough. Hamilton won at home by 15 points to take the series by a single point—39-38.

Well-Reared Players

These defensive linemen with a California high school are regarded by opposing football teams with the affection reserved by owners of china shops for charging bulls. Danny Herring (74), is 15 and tips the scales at 312 pounds. His teammate Bob 'Big Man' Pointer, 18, is the largest football player in the United States at 447 pounds.

Ottawa Better This Year: Watkins

HAMILTON (CP) — Ted Watkins, an all-star end in 1966 whom Ottawa Rough Riders saw fit to reject in 1967, says his old club is stronger than the Rider club that last year won the Eastern Football Conference final.

Now with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Watkins won't concede anything to his old mates when they meet Sunday in the first of a two-game, total-point, EFC final series at Lansdown Park, but he will admit the Rider attack is "more varied."

Watkins pulls no punches in discussing the team that let him go "in a trade when they acquired a sensational 19-year-old rookie to replace him at split end—Margene Adkins.

In addition to having more experience at guard, Watkins says the backfield has improved with veteran Bo Scott at fullback in place of Jim Dillard who the Riders traded off to Toronto Argonauts early in the season.

Scott was inserted in the fullback slot when Halifax native Rick Black, who was given a shot at the starting position, was sidelined with injuries for most of the season.

"He is faster and as strong as Dillard," says Watkins. "He can go inside or outside. Maybe he can't catch as well as Dillard, but he's a better player overall."

Still looking at the Ottawa backfield, Watkins said "(Don) Gilbert adds more speed . . . (Ron) Stewart is always dangerous . . . and don't forget both Stewart and Gilbert can throw the ball."

Turning to Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson, who led the conference in passing this season, Watkins said he is more of a seasoned quarterback than last year when Saskatchewan Roughriders won the Grey Cup final from Ottawa.

The Grey Cup final this year will be in Ottawa Dec. 2.

Watkins also said the Ottawa defensive line "is always tough" although he feels the defensive backfield is not as sound as last season despite heading the conference in interceptions.

But when versatile players are being discussed, one of the overlooked players is Hamilton end Tommy Joe Coffey, who paced the league in scoring with 107 points on five pass receptions, 13 downs, 20 converts, 18 field goals and three singles.

Coffey led the Tiger-Cats with 43 receptions during the year for 683 yards and was the favourite target for quarterback Joe Zuger.

Don Sutherin the former Ticat who replaced Moe Racine as Ottawa's placement kicker late in the year, booted three during the season from an average of 32.3 yards with his longest 25 yards.

But Coffey has booted them from 42 yards and averaged 36.2 as each of his 18, a difference that could be decisive in a series where every point counts.

Bobby Hull's World Of Hockey

By BOBBY HULL

It isn't going to help New York, I don't believe, that Rod Gilbert missed a couple of weeks of training camp. He is important in the Rangers' bid rise to higher than their fourth-place finish last winter.

HARRY HOWELL.

Gilbert scored 28 goals and was particularly prominent in the first half, when New York ran in first place almost till Christmas. He is just outside all-star ranking at right wing, not far behind Gordie Howe and Ken Wharram.

I don't say it won't happen again, but perhaps they won't all be inst good in combination again.

Ed Giacomin, the goalkeeper, had an especially good season, all the more impressive because he played in 68 of New York's 70 league games. Roger Crozier was in 56 for Detroit, but most other regular goalies played in 35 or 40 and got some relief.

But the real key to the Rangers is Harry Howell, their veteran right defenceman. After 15 years he was finally picked as the best defenceman in the league, and nobody deserved the award more. I can testify to that because, as a bell rhinestone, I have to cover Howell's side. His checking gave me a bad time.

Howell does a lot of unobtrusive things that aren't noticed because he's like Tim Horton of Toronto. He doesn't move out of his style to be spectacular.

He isn't a baggage-smasher who rides you off with a lot of muscle and noise. He'll take you out cleanly — last year he got only 54 minutes in penalties and the 40 points he picked up made him second only to Pierre Pilote among defencemen in offensive production.

TODAY'S CUE FOR KIDS: How do you beat a defence? That's a question I'm often asked. In the beginning, every time you go down the ice, use different moves which depend on several factors. You have to know which way the defencemen you are approaching is liable to move. You have to know how many men are with you, how good your decks or shift is, how good your shot is. Many players slow up when they hit the defence. Don't. That's exactly the time to turn on the jets. Give yourself plenty of time to take off so you have plenty of room to move on goal. Use your best moves, either a fake or shot. And if you've got a teammate with you, pass to him or fake in his direction to confuse the goalie.

Minor Hockey

Rangers trounced the Americans 9-1 and Dukes downed Canadiens 3-2 in a pair of Belleville Minor Hockey Association novice games played last night.

B. Walmsley and B. Wallen were the only two-goal scorers for the Rangers as B. Beer, G. Woodley, P. Haynes, P. Burnett and W. Bates added one each. Woodley, W. Billy, Wallen, Hayman, P. Kerr and Bunnett drew assists. Lon Scanlon scored for the Americans with Mike Allison helping.

Tony Meagher starred for the Dukes. He scored his club's final three goals to build the victory margin, also assisting on an earlier goal. Kevin Day and Ron Sturgess were the other marksmen. S. Warwick, Cave, P. Coates and Sturgess had assists. Terry Calnan and Brian Sullivan fired Canadiens' goals and R. Wanley assisted on one.

Keys Looks To Passing Despite High Wind

The weather forecast was for 50-degree temperatures with winds of 25 miles per hour—conditions under which Calgary quarterback Peter Liske has been effective in several games.

"I don't really look for them to go with the running attack," Keys said before bringing the Riders here Friday for the first game in the best-of-three western final. All year they have been throwing with it (the wind) or against it. So if you can handle the football that way I don't see any reason to change."

Stampeders were established as five-point favorites for the game after the favorable forecast was issued Friday, but a change for the worse in the weather could shave the listed odds.

Field conditions at McMahon Stadium were good after a dry week and there was no forecast for rain or showers.

The game today, starting at 2 p.m. MST (4 p.m.EST), will be shown on the CTV national network.

The Saskatchewan coach indicated Roughriders will continue to rely strongly on the running game and fullback George Reed.

"Reed is our No. 1 carrier. Ed Buchanan has been carrying ever so often at times in a game and Al Ford three or four times a ball game . . . We use the ball as necessary.

The questions that remain to be answered are what defensive tactics Calgary will employ to stifle the Calgary passing and how to penetrate the tough Stampeders defence.

"I think it's going to be tough to stop Calgary from scoring a lot of points," said Keys. "I think we're going to have to score more points than we scored in Calgary games this year."

In regular - season action this year, Stampeders defeated Roughriders 36-10 in Calgary Aug. 13, lost 29-27 in Regina Sept. 24 and won 10-11 in Regina Oct. 22.

Each club had a 12-4 record but Calgary had a bye into the finals by winning two of three against the Roughriders. Saskatchewan defeated Edmonton Eskimos 21-3 in the semi-final Nov. 11 at Regina.

Ten Blues On All-Stars

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues, the powerhouse club of the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association football conference, showed their class again Friday by sweeping 10 posts on the league's 1967 all-star team.

The Blues led the selection for the second in the annual Canadian Press poll of coaches, football writers and broadcasters in the league's 6 cities.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs had seven players among the all-star selections announced Friday. Queen's University Golden Gaels placed five men on the team and McGill University Redmen three as 25 players were named to fill the 26 offensive and defensive spots. There was a tie for one position.

In all, five Toronto players were picked for the offensive unit and five for the defensive squad. Mustangs had four players named on offence and three on defence while two of Queen's five all-stars were chosen for the offensive lineup. McGill players were chosen for two defensive berths and another for the offensive team.

As expected, Toronto's running and passing attack led the poll with league scoring champion Mike Raham topping the vote-getters in the offensive backfield and Mike Eben, a perennial all-star, at end.

MP Suggests New Consumers' Department Aid Canadians to Spend Their Money More Wisely

OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed federal department of consumer and corporate affairs should help people of modest means learn to spend their money more wisely, it was contended in Parliament Friday.

George Lalonde (L—Ottawa St. Anne), speaking during Commons debate on third and final reading of the bill to set up the department, said the department could do much "in the field of consumer education."

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) said the teaching of better buying habits would be a big step towards keeping prices down to reasonable levels.

The bill ran into heavy criticism from opposition MPs and three amendments, all aimed at defining the proposed department's task with more precision, were introduced shortly before the Commons rose. One of them would ask the government in the drug-manufacturing business.

Debate on the bill is expected to resume late next week.

The Commons will deal Monday and Tuesday with motions to provide money for government expenditures. These motions also provide the opposition with an opportunity to bring up any subject for debate.

Mr. Lalonde, who made a sharp attack on the advertising of expensive toys during the Christmas season, said the consumer "has to be taught how to plan her budget," particularly in a modest household. "She must be shown how to save money, how to choose products, how to establish priorities among the family's needs."

Mr. Herridge said no greater advance could be made than the provision of information and education in an attempt to establish better buying habits on the part of those who lack such habits at the present time."

An amendment presented by Max Saltzman (NDP — Waterloo South) would establish a corporation with the power to "manufacture, sell, distribute and promote dairy products in Canada."

Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) moved that the minister of consumer and corporate affairs be given power to investigate price increases and required to report to Parliament "with appropriate recommendations."

The Commons approved, by a voice vote, an amendment moved by Herb Gray (L—Essex West) to change the department's name to consumer and corporate affairs, reversing the positions of the words consumer and corporate. Mr. Gray suggested this was more appropriate since the main purpose of the new department seemed to be to serve the interests of consumers.

Mr. Herridge called it "a good amendment." Mr. Nielsen said it "is as phoney as the bill," and Howard Johnson (SC—Okanagan - Revelstoke) agreed. The Yukon Conservative said later, on presenting his own amendment, that changes were needed that will put teeth in the bill.

During the question period, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons there is not "the slightest justification" for a Soviet charge of official Canadian connivance in anti-Soviet demonstrations in Ottawa and Montreal Nov. 7. Canada would formally reject the charge.

Prime Minister Pearson, under persistent questioning on the plan to introduce national medical-care insurance next July 1, said the government is making no proposals to change the enabling legislation.

But he stopped short of a categorical promise that the plan will start on time. He said Public Works Minister Sharp will report Monday on the results of a federal - provincial finance ministers meeting at which the plan was discussed.

Bemersyde Chapter IODE To Continue School Awards

CAMPBELLFORD — Members of Bemersyde Chapter have been contacted to confer with a light lunch. This service was provided at Keeler Public School, opening last year.

A framed picture of Queen Elizabeth, Prince Phillip and family will be presented to Merryvale School. Also a picture of Queen Elizabeth will be donated to Hillcrest School to place in the auditorium.

Mrs. Helen Meyers reporting for Services at Home and Abroad reported 37 articles, variously knitted articles were sent to Headquarters earlier this year and an approximate amount will be sent early in January. Mrs. Meyers also heads a committee to arrange Christmas boxes for shut-ins in the nursing home and chronically ill in the Memorial hospital. Eighty-five boxes were given last year.

It was decided to hold the usual dinner early in the new year and to procure a speaker.

The nominating committee was appointed, members of which are: Mrs. Shirley Druif, Mrs. R. Douglas and Mrs. A. Weaver.

The usual grants were made to the various funds, the Lucy Morrison Memorial Fund, $50, also $50 to Overseas Relief and a number of smaller amounts to be forwarded to Headquarters, to the amount of $132.

Regent Mrs. Ruth Vandervaart presided and as it was decided not to hold a December meeting the business was taken care of to the end of the year.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Membership in the Ontario Social Credit party increased by 69 per cent last year, delegates to the party's annual convention were told Friday.

Great Lakes Levels Are Above Average

OTTAWA (CP) — Barring freak changes, there should be no problems about low water levels in the Great Lakes for at least a year.

The levels of lakes Huron, Erie and Ontario are at least a foot higher than the same time last year and well above the average established over the last 51 years.

"With normal winter snowfall, the lakes should continue above their average levels," says Gerry Dekker of the energy department's tides and water levels division.

Mr. Dekker, who believes, but has been unable so far to prove, that there is some type of cycle involved in the rising and falling of Great Lakes water levels, predicted two years ago that the water levels would be "above average" by the end of 1957.

He said that readings taken from automatic recording devices Wednesday show that the water level in Montreal harbor is 4.5 feet above its height at the same time last year. It had been running below average until the middle of September.

Lake Superior is only a tenth of a foot higher than last year but Lake Huron is up one foot, Lake Erie up 1.1 feet and Ontario up 1.3 feet.

Lake Erie's record high, in 1952, was about five feet higher than its record low in 1934. Lake Ontario had a difference of 6¼ between its two record levels, which also were observed in 1952 and 1934.

Lake Huron has a difference of almost six feet between extremes, with its highest point in 1952 and its lowest in 1964 when record seasonal lows were established in every month.

In Montreal harbor, which usually reaches its peak level in January or February, there is a difference of more than 2½ feet between its 1952 record high and 1934 record low.

Gathering Considers Role Of Vanier Family Institute

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the Vanier Institute of the Family spent Friday afternoon in a soul-searching session while its patron, Madame Pauline Vanier, watched quietly.

After listening to hours of formal speeches at the organization's third annual meeting which began here Thursday members were asking what the institute was really all about, what it was doing and should do.

Embarrassing Coincidence

OTTAWA (CP) — Hundreds of letters pouring into the Vanier Institute of the Family have given its members a collective blush.

The letter - writers confused the institute with a nationally - advertised marriage arrangement bureau which has a smaller name.

Stewart Sutton, secretary-general of the institute, said Friday that the bureau, called the Francois Vanier Centre, has "absolutely no connection" with the Vanier Institute of the Family.

The institute was incorporated under the patronage of Governor-General and Madame Georges P. Vanier in 1965 for the purpose of strengthening family life. It was to gather information on which to base educational programs designed to help families cope with modern life.

Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, Anglican Bishop of Ottawa, touched on a key point when he asked the institute to help it to consider whether it should publicity state its position on topics such as family planning and abortion.

Rev. John Shea of Ottawa, director of the Canadian Catholic Conference, asked if the Vanier Institute was able and willing to present its ideas on the divorce issue coming before Parliament.

Strong opposition came from Edgar Gray of Quebec who said it was not part of the organization's job to take sides.

Several institute members stressed the need for youth in the organization.

Chesley is "fearsome to us" but adventurous to the young, Mrs. Wilma Hansen of Calgary said, suggesting responsible high school students might be brought into the institute.

Donald Harris of London, Ont., suggested institute-sponsored seminars for young people, perhaps at provincial campuses. A Vanier school on family life might be established to extend the organization's influence.

Dick Tiger Flattens Challenger

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The light heavyweight champion of the world of boxing still belongs to Dick Tiger who today made secretive plans to take off to be the new republic of Biafra in strife-torn Africa.

Tiger, almost as amazing at the age of 40 as he was the popular former light heavyweight champion, Archie Moore, successfully defended his crown Friday night when he scored a 12th round knockout triumph over a game fighter and the No. 1 challenger, Roger Rouse of Anaconda, Mont.

Tiger got a morale boost just before the nationally televised fight. He learned for the first time in nearly six weeks that his wife and family were safe in Biafra after fleeing the war in fear for the seventh time—a girl, seven pounds, born seven days ago.

Galt Ties Regals 1-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took Galt goalie Norm Defelice 44 seconds to warm up Friday night. But that was too long.

Defelice gave up a goal to Larry Jones 44 seconds after Regals' Ontario Hockey Association senior game with Guelph Regals.

After that, he was unbeatable in turning aside 33 shots.

The game wound up a 1-1 overtime tie after the Hornets got a goal from Bert Brown in the third period.

FLYERS WIN

In other games Friday night, Barrie Flyers tripped Orillia 7-4, and Belleville Mc-Navts crushed Oakville Oaks 10-1.

Dave Nicholishen fired four goals to pace the Flyers. Other Barrie goals went to Jon Weeks, Ralph Konowan and Dave Ferguson. Danny Patrick, with two, and Bill Little replied for Orillia.

To Avoid Chilblains, Avoid Chill

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: What can I do for chilblains? I have had them for several years and no doctor seems able to help me. — L. L.

A chilblain is the result of exposure to cold, damp weather. The tissues have been damaged. When they are exposed to cold, then afterward, when the flesh warms up, you have redness, burning, itching, often a burning sensation.

The best answer, and really the only effective one I know, is to keep feet, toes, ears warm. Use wool socks, mittens rather than gloves, earmuffs, whatever is necessary. If you can prevent the chilblain areas from becoming chilled, you will be spared the discomfort when they warm up.

The same thing can be true of frostbite, the type of damage being much the same, except that frostbite implies exposure to severe cold weather. Chilblains come on from less severe but prolonged exposure to damp cold. Frostbite, even on less severe cases, can be an important factor in frostbite, too. It's more than just a matter of temperature. Dampness and wind increase the danger at any given temperature.

I think I should point out that there are other conditions, sometimes loosely called chilblains, which are a wholly different matter. In some individuals, a reduction in temperature, sometimes a very slight one, results in a paleness or blanching of fingers or other extremities.

These folks have blood which is unusually sensitive to cooling. Cooled, it thickens, thus limiting circulation in the extremities, and blanching is the result. It isn't a very common condition but is found from time to time. Some such individuals are sensitive even to cool breeze on a summer evening, and have to wear a sweater when the rest of us wouldn't.

I mention the condition just in case someone might be mistaking it for chilblains.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read in your column that it is not necessary to wait until cataracts in the eyes become "ripe" to operate and remove them. Would you explain this again. — Mrs. R. C.

It used to be believed, years ago, that cataracts should be allowed to become "ripe" — that is, that the lens of the eye should become thoroughly clouded. (That's what a cataract is — a lens that has become cloudy.)

With the relatively crude instruments and methods years ago, the assumption was that cloudy ("ripe") lens more easily. Actually, of course, the lens can be removed any time it proves to be necessary.

Many people postpone the operation as long as they have enough vision to let them get along fairly well. But someone doing very fine work requiring sharp vision is wise to have the cataracts removed sooner — as soon as the cataracts interfere with his work.

Dear Dr. Molner: Every night I use a sun lamp on my face for 10 minutes, as per instructions.

I would like to know if I was being exposed to radiation such as from radio - active harmful to my health. — V. J. G.

No, ultraviolet light (other than the sun or a sun lamp) is not radioactive. It's a form of radiation, but of ultraviolet light, not gamma rays as in the case of radioactivity.

Too much ultraviolet can be harmful to the skin, but in moderate amounts will do no harm. (Always remember to protect your eyes with goggles; shortwave ultraviolet can be harmful to the eyes.)

Today Romney Will Reveal If He Will Seek Presidency

DETROIT (AP) — Standing on almost the exact spot where he launched his political career less than six years ago, Governor George Romney today makes the long-awaited announcement whether he will seek the 1968 Republican presidential nomination.

Few doubt he will seek the prize.

Coming nine months before the Republican convention, an announcement to run would make the 60-year-old third-term governor the first major figure in either party to publicly declare as an aspirant.

About 600 party leaders and workers were invited to a breakfast and at 11 a.m. news conference at the Veterans Memorial Building in downtown Detroit where, as a successful auto executive and prime mover in Michigan constitutional reform, Romney announced for the governorship in 1962.

Romney, born in Mexico of most Mormon parents who fled the U.S. to avoid persecution of their sect, represented the polygamous and exile industries in Washington.

He went to work for Nash-Kelvinator in 1948 and rose steadily to become chairman of American Motors Corp. when it was formed by the merger of Nash and the Hudson Motor Car Co. six years later.

Romney has stirred frequent controversy in the last year and his standing has fluctuated in public-opinion polls.

One of the facts of Romney's life could cause him trouble in any campaign, and that is the fact of his birth.

As recently as this week, Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem. N.Y.), chairman of the House of Representatives Judiciary committee, pulled for court test of Romney's eligibility to run for president.

The U.S. Constitution requires a president to be a "natural-born citizen" but does not spell out whether someone, like Romney, who was born of U.S. citizens abroad, qualifies.

Interfaith Conference Said Unqualified Success

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Interfaith Conference, financed by a $50,500 centennial grant, is described by Executive Director Eve Gilstorf as an "unqualified success," as it winds up 28 months of work.

"We have opened a door which has shed light and brought 34 religious faiths together in fostering and promoting religious activities across the country," she says in a final report to the board of directors.

It will be delivered at a meeting in Winnipeg next Thursday.

The conference was established in July, 1965, at a meeting called by the federal centennial commission.

Firemen Say Doll Is Hazard

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario fire marshal's office has released a report which says that 4 type of doll sold in Ontario stores last Christmas represented a "definite fire hazard."

The report, prepared by a new research group in the fire marshal's office, was included in the quarterly report of the office issued Friday.

The researchers based their finding on studies of 13 rag-type dolls given to the North York fire department by parents following claims the plastic face masks were a potential fire hazard.

Fire Marshal M. S. Hurst said Friday he ordered the study because of conflicting opinions over whether the dolls were really hazardous.

Mr. Hurst said release of the report was timed to put fire chiefs on the alert in case the same dolls show up this Christmas.

Agress with SS Tactics

Kennedy Condemns Extremists on Both Sides of Vietnam Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert F Kennedy (Dem.—N.Y.) condemns "extremists on both sides" in the Vietnam issue, saying they make it difficult to carry on a responsible dialogue on war policies.

Kennedy, who has been restrained in his criticisms of President Johnson's course, said in an interview he agrees with the president that what Johnson called storm trooper tactics do not advance the cause of dissenters

By "extremists," Kennedy said he meant those who violently demonstrate against the president's policies and supporters of those policies who indulge in name-calling and question the patriotism of critics.

Kennedy's appeared to be a typical reaction to Friday's news conference, at which Johnson defended his policies in lively fashion

The president, walking about with a microphone dangling from his neck, interspersed his report on military progress on Vietnam with bits of humor, smacking one fist into another and thumping the lectern.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, said Johnson was "quite fair" in saying that he expects responsible criticism but objects to violent dissent.

However, Senator Albert Gore (Dem.—Tenn.), a Senate foreign relations committee member, challenged Johnson's contention that national security is involved in the war. He said Johnson applied it overzealously. "Certainly there are legitimate criticisms which "create dissent rather than allay it."

Chrysler's Parity Pact Ratified by Tradesmen

DETROIT (AP) — Skilled tradesmen have ratified a labor contract with Chrysler Corp. ending fears they might block the agreement through their minority veto power in the United Auto Workers union.

The 12,000 tradesmen Friday night accepted the agreement by a slim margin of about 55 per cent, the UAW said. Earlier, the union's 83,000 production-line workers at Chrysler approved the three-year-pact by a reported 70-percent vote.

The union won wage parity for Canadian workers in the agreement. It will be granted gradually during the life of the pact.

Balloting by the tradesmen was "nip and tuck," a UAW spokesman said. He said skilled workers at 34 UAW locals across the U.S. ratified the pact and eight locals rejected it, with votes still to be counted in two remaining units.

"Outcome of the ratification cannot be changed by the two locals whose members have not yet voted," said Douglas A. Fraser, chief UAW negotiator at Chrysler, in a statement announcing the vote.

John D. Leary, Chrysler vice-president for administration, said company officials were pleased with the ratification.

The tradesmen's veto power, gained initially this year, is expected to be a questionable element again negotiations with the auto industry giant, General Motors Corp.

GM is the next target of the UAW for a contract to replace the one which expired Sept. 8.

The union has been working without a labor pact at GM while negotiating first with Ford Motor Co., second largest automaker, and then with Chrysler.

Many disident leaders of the skilled tradesmen demanded wage increases of up to $1 an hour, sayin gthey were needed to keep pace with similar workers outside the auto industry. The skilled tradesmen include millwrights, electricians, plumbers and tool-and-die makers.

The Chrysler settlement, similar to that at ford, gave skilled workers pay increases of 39 cents hourly the first year, with three per cent ipcreases in each of the next two years.

Production workers won pay increases of 32 cents hourly the first year, plus three-per-cent boosts in each of the next two years.

Under the old contracts, the average industry worker was paid $3.41 an hour in straight-time wages.

Tremblay Testifies In Bribery Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Rene Tremblay testified Friday he had not expected to see Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne three years ago on the night that crown alleges Mr. Lamontagne was offered $20,000 in Mr. Tremblay's parliamentary office.

Mr. Tremblay, former immigration minister, said he made no arrangement for a meeting July 14, 1964, among himself, Mr. Lamontagne and Raymond Denis, who is charged with attempting to obstruct justice. He said he gave no instructions to Denis to summon Mr. Lamontagne here from Montreal.

The former minister, Liberal MP for Matapedia-Matane, testified Mr. Lamontagne was introduced to him as the immigration department's lawyer in the deportation case of Joseph Bonnano.

He had exchanged a "few words" with Mr. Lamontagne and Denis about the case, then left the office.

Mr. Lamontagne also was lawyer at that time for the United States government in legal proceedings in Montreal to extradite narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard for trial in Texas.

The crown alleges Denis tried to dissuade Mr. Lamontagne from opposing bail for Rivard, now serving a 30-year prison term in Atlanta, Ga.

Testifying in country court through interpreters, Mr. Tremblay said it was not until July 16, 1964, that he received an official request to annul a deportation order against Bonnano.

He told the court he had never seen a July 9, 1964, letter from Bonnano's lawyer to former Liberal MP Guy Rouleau asking Mr. Tremblay to intervene with the immigration minister to obtain Bonnano's freedom.

The letter, read into the record by defence counsel Louis Assaly, complained of "arbitrary and dictatorial" action by the immigration department and labelled as "the product of a sick imagination" allegations that Bonanno was "in important member of the international Mafia."

Mr. Tremblay, the only witness Friday, testified that he authorized Denis to deliver Rouleau's lawyer, Raymond Daoust, July 15, 1964, to hear representations on the Bonanno case.

Asked by Mr. Assaly whether this was to discuss bail in the Bonanno case, Mr. Tremblay said it was to discuss the case at the request of Mr. Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson. He had heard of Mr. Rouleau's request from Denis.

Nicholson Pushes Co-op Housing

MONTREAL (CP) — Labor Minister Nicholson says it is regrettable that co-operative societies have not made more use of National Housing Act loans to ease Canada's housing shortage.

Addressing a one-day seminar on public and co-operative housing, Mr. Nicholson said Friday that housing projects by co-op-erative societies—with financial assistance coming from trade union funds—could help reduce the housing shortage.

"I am well aware that other countries, notably Sweden, have encountered substantial success in co-operative house-building," he said. "But it is also significant that a large measure of financial support was drawn from trade union funds."

The minister said National Housing Act loans have been available for co-operative housing projects since 1953 and that some labor unions are beginning to show an interest in the field.

Dr. A. F. Laidlaw, general secretary of the Co-operative Union of Canada, said co-operative housing may prove an important factor in the coming years in attempts to solve the housing crisis.

He said co-operative housing should have special appeal for Canadian families in the middle-income range.

"Canadians are beginning to lose faith in the housing system which has served them with considerable vigor in the last 20 years but which is failing to show results for a great many families.

"The virtues of home ownership are not taken for granted any longer, especially since the Canadian population is becoming more mobile all the time."

Outlining advantages of co-operative housing, Dr. Laidlaw said that in addition to the primary financial benefit, atmosphere, green spots, neighborliness and a sense of interdependence are important factors that can result.

"It is time to question some fundmental concepts, including whether a good housing program is compatible with private ownership of urban land and whether Canadians can ever be decently housed as long as housing is ruled by the accepted laws of the market place."

Jacques F. Fortin of the Economic Council of Canada told the seminar that between 1967 and 1970 an estimated total of more than 750,000 new dwellings will be required in Canada.

CF-5 Fighter, Bomber Months Behind Schedule

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of the new CF-5 fighter-bomber now is five months behind schedule.

Latest issue of the Sentinel, monthly magazine published by the information division at Canadian Forces Headquarters, says the first CF-5 will come off the assembly line at Canadair Ltd., Montreal in January, 1968.

Original production schedule called for the first plane to be completed in August, 1967.

The Sentinel also says the first training course on the CF-5 at Cold Lake, Alta., will start in January, 1969. Originally the first CF-5 squadron of 18 planes was to have been formed by that date.

Former Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, now transport minister, originally gave the total price of the CF-5 program —115 planes—as $215,000,000.

However, the defence department has since disclosed some additional costs:

—$23,000,000 for the armament control system;

—$8,000,000 for the ground control system; and

This brings the total cost to about $296,000,000.

Informants said the government's current austerity program may result in production of fewer than 115 planes for the RCAF.

The CF-5 is an improved Canadian version of the American Northrop F-5. The Canadian type will have more powerful engines, a new nose to carry photo equipment, an improved navigation system and a new nose gear to shorten the takeoff run.

Early next year, about a dozn RCAF pilots will go to Williams Air Force Base in Arizona for two months of training on the American F-5. They will become the first instructors on the CF-5 at Cold Lake, the RCAF's big training base northeast of Edmonton.

Premier Johnson: 'Radical Changes'

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson has promised to push through "radical changes" in Quebec's legislative procedure.

"I want radical changes in the rules so that we can get rid of some archaic customs which no longer are relevant," he said in an interview Friday while attending the Union Nationale party's second annual secret caucus.

The premier, however, denied newspaper and radio reports that he plans to replace the lieutenant-governor with the reading of the speech from the throne when the legislature opens in January.

"I am more interested in reforms that will update our archaic system to the 20th century," said Mr. Johnson.

The suggestion that the premier replace the lieutenant-governor was contained in a brief submitted by Union Nationale members to the bipartisan rules committee of the legislature.

Changes might also include the alteration of the legislative council — the 24-member appointed upper house — to make it an elected body.

The Union Nationale now has 14 life-appointed members of the legislative council and the Liberals have 10 members. The elected legislative assembly — or lower house — consists of 108 members.

Reports stated the speaker of the legislature no longer would wear a frock tai, while gloves and black gown, but would be permitted to wear a dark-colored suit with gray-striped trousers.

Mr. Johnson promised at a reception following the caucus that the Union Nationale party will be the people's party "as long as I am chief."

Women Teachers Over 40 Are Out

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused of discrimination in hiring practices Friday because applications to teach in defence department schools are not accepted from women over 60.

The Canadian Teachers' Federation in a 19-page brief to the cabinet called also for establishment of a federal education office and federal contributions to the pensions of teachers working in the government's external aid program.

It says the defence department will accept applications from male teachers up to 60 Years of age and wants the same limit for women.

" . . . We are firmly of the opinion that no adequate or acceptable reason exists for the maintenance of a difference in age limits.

"We consider this to be an unfair employment practice; we are also convinced that it would be in the best interest of children in the schools if the supply of mature and experienced teachers were not thus restricted."

French-English Problem in Sturgeon Falls

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A Warren-area secondary school board has asked the Sudbury high school board to take in its 43 students because it is concerned over the use of French in the Sturgeon Falls secondary school.

In a letter signed by Ester Dixon, secretary of the Warren-area board, the board said the students do not receive proper background in English because of the use of French in the classroom and over the public address system.

The board asked if the students could be admitted to either Garson-Falconbridge or LaSalle secondary school at some future date.

But, the Sudbury high school board passed a motion turning down the proposal because of lack of room. George W. Thomson, Sudbury high school superintendent, said 80 per cent of the students at Sturgeon Falls are French.

Principal H. D. Trudel said he had not been approached on the subject and added that the public address announcements were made in both English and French.

Mr. Trudel said that under department of education regulations French, Latin, geography and history courses are taught in French. It was a matter of choice if the students wanted the courses taught in English.

Mrs. Dixon said the board sent the letter because of complaints from parents, but admitted that not one letter had been written to the board.

She said the five members of the board, all English-speaking, had received complaints from their children, but added that the students themselves had not been asked about the situation.

Total enrolment at the Sturgeon Falls school is about 1,200 students and nearly 1,000 of these are from out of town. The school was financed wholly by department of education grants.

The Warren area secondary school board is made up of Rattler, Dunnet, Crerar, Hugel and Kirkpatrick townships. Sturgeon Falls is 30 miles west of North Bay.

Tired Old Pedlar Not Gestapo Chief

PANAMA (AP) — The tired, old pedlar suspected of being Adolf Hitler's last Gestapo chief, has shambled out of the limelight a free man and says he expects his business of selling ties and combs to benefit from his international publicity.

Francis Willard Keith, who informants said was Heinrich Mueller, boss of Adolf Eichmann, went to the home of a well-known Panamanian family after the government released him Friday following 76 hours confinement.

The family said it had known Keith since the time he says he arrived here in 1940, five years before Mueller was last seen in Hitler's Berlin bunker just before the collapse of the Nazi regime.

"I have never been in Germany," Keith told reporters in clipped English. "I would not be ashamed to be German. I'm Scotch by race."

Asked about Hitler, Keith replied that he "was what you call president here."

"More than that I don't know."

German authorities said, however, that they want to investigate Keith further and were informed by Panama that his release would not prevent them from submitting evidence in an extradition hearing.

Government Minister Fabian Velarde ordered Keith freed on the basis of U.S. and Panamanian documents establishing that the pedlar who says he was born in Webb City, Mo., 61 years ago, had been in Panama since 1942.

Authorities said Keith's diary shows he arrived in Panama in 1940, went to South America in 1941 and returned in 1942.

Informed sources said records were uncovered showing Keith was employed as an American civil guard at the U.S. Embassy in San Jose, Costa Rica, from 1944 to 1945. A search of the man's safe deposit box turned up a U.S. passport in his name.

Besides the extra business he expects to pick up as a result of the furor, Keith also indicated a lawyer would look into the possibility of filing a suit for "moral damages" against the West German government, which requested his arrest.

Britons Pay More, But Can Sell for Less

Cheaper Pound Tightens Belt

LONDON (CP) — Repercussions to the 14.3-percent devaluation in the British pound rolled around the world today.

Many countries expressed confidence in the economic future of Britain although at home there was bitter discontent among Laborites, Opposition Conservatives and men-in-the-street.

Australia, one of Britain's major customers, said it would not devalue its dollar.

But the British government's announcement Saturday that the pound would be devalued to $2.40 from $2.80 U.S. and to $2.57 from $3 Canadian provoked matching devaluations in Spain, the Republic of Ireland, Denmark, Israel, Hong Kong, Malta, Fiji, Bermuda and Guyana.

Major currencies such as those of the United States, Canada, the Common Market countries, Switzerland, Sweden, South Africa and Japan remained firm.

Observers said that such positive actions could give Britain an export boost because its lower sterling rate would make its goods cheaper in those countries.

The Conservatives reacted as expected. Their leader, Edward Heath, charged that the governing Labor party had reduced Britain "from a prosperous nation to an international pauper."

The Tories spread word that they expected the government to resign and call new elections.

London bookies reported a rush of betting on the Conservatives in the next election, officially not due until 1971.

Most countries that devalued with Britain are suppliers of food and raw materials, meaning British buyers can import from them at the same old prices.

British salesmen in countries that held fast are in effect getting a 14.3 per cent subsidy to boost their competitive edge. Increase their profits or a combination of both.

Most economists say prices on the home market will go up, resulting in a curtailment of buying. The government hopes this will turn manufacturers to the export market so that Britain's balance of payments will move toward the black again.

Wilson Faces Fight

LONDON (CP) — An historic right-about-face by Britain's Labor government has brought the pound to a new low and swapped a critical economic crisis for a lesser political one.

Prime Minister Wilson's weekend action in devaluing sterling by one-seventh—to reverse an alarming outward tide of currency reserves—enraged the Opposition Conservatives and left his own Labor supporters shocked and dismayed today.

But the massive government majority, though conditioned for years on the ministerial theme that degradation of the pound was unthinkable, was expected to make an 180-degree turn behind the new party line and beat off a Tory confidence motion Wednesday.

Wilson faced a tougher job in getting the backing of the powerful Trades Union Congress—financial and moral mainstay of his party—which will be necessary for a hold-the-line wage policy to complement the new export stimulus he hopes will pull Britain out of its financial morass.

Canada Raises Its Bank Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government and the Bank of Canada reacted cautiously to Britain's devaluation of the pound.

The central bank raised its re-discount rate to six per cent from five, effective today, and said it would continue "to facilitate the provision of adequate credit to meet the needs of sound economic expansion."

Finance Minister Sharp said the government will maintain the Canadian dollar at its current exchange rate, the equivalent of 92½ cents in U.S. funds. Britain's devaluation, he said, "resulted from special circumstances affecting that currency —the pound sterling."

While Mr. Sharp said the government does not believe devaluating the pound will have any substantial effect on Canada's international financial position, government officials were expecting some slow-down in Canadian exports of manufactured goods to the United Kingdom.

Canadian exports to the U.K. have for years been running at about double Britain's sales to Canada. Last year, exports to Britain totalled $1,138,809,000 and imports were $644,709,000.

Most recent figures show that Canadian exports to Britain totalled $870,398,000 in the first seven months of this year, and just about half of these were fabricated materials, totalling $329,189,000.

The highest cost to Britain of goods imported from Canada and other non-sterling areas, together with the other austerity measures taken by the U.K., may put a crimp in the government's target of Canadian exports totalling $11,250,000,000 this year.

At the new exchange rate, instead of Britons having to pay six shillings and eight pence to buy $1 of Canadian goods, they will have to pay a little over seven shillings, nine pence.

Hitherto it cost Canadians about $3 to buy a pound sterling's worth of British goods. Now they'll be able to get the same goods for about $2.57.

Mr. Sharp said in a statement Saturday that under the present pattern of Canada's international trade and payments, the British action "would not have a substantial effect on Canada's international financial position."

Stock Prices Plunge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stock market prices—with the exception of important gold mining companies—fell sharply around the world today in reaction to Britain's devaluation of the pound.

In Toronto, shares of major industrial issues lost as much as $1.50 in the first half hour of trading, apparently in fear of a possible adverse effect on exports to Britain.

A renewed interest in gold mining shares, however, sent several stock prices to record highs.

Dome Mines rose $8 to $58 at the opening of trading, although the big jump was trimmed a bit later. Campbell Red Lake Mines rose $4.25 to $77.

The Toronto exchange's gold index, which measures movements of major issues in that group, rose 12.36 points to 194.90.

Monoxide Kills Three at Motel

Thirty-two ambulances carried the stricken to hospitals from the seven-storey, 210-room Yankee Clipper Inn near here.

Killed were Bruce Plagman, 22, of Cleveland, who was married Saturday afternoon; Betty Ann Bishop, 50, a dance school owner, and her sister Mary Bishop, 56, a registered nurse, both of Elyria, Ohio.

A faulty burner on a swimming pool heater caused a vent to clog, and deadly, odorless carbon monoxide fumes wafted through the ventilating system of the inn, Fire Chief Robert M. Wright said.

Gas Forces Evacuation Of U.S. Town

NEWTON, Ala. (AP) — Hundreds of residents darted back to their homes for a few minutes Sunday night to grab clothing, knapsacks and pots under a threat of the escape of 100,000 gallons of deadly chlorine gas.

More than 100 persons were allowed to brave the danger to bring out items essential for a second night away from home for nearly 3,000 persons who fled Saturday after a box-car freight train was derailed and caught fire. Two boys were reported missing after the evacuation. Skeet Pate, an Alabama department of public safety agent, said six tankers of ammonia were burning near tankers loaded with propane and a tanker of chlorine gas.

Dak To Battle Flares

SAIGON (AP)—Entrenched North Vietnamese troops struck a hard blow at a battalion of U.S. paratroops Sunday in the 18-day-old Dakto battle as American planes hit the Hanoi-Haiphong area for the fifth straight day.

The battle grew among American commanders that the Communists at Dak To are trying to do what they achieved earlier this year just below the demilitarized zone—draw large American forces away from thickly populated areas and pin them down in the sparsely settled mountains.

About 9,000 Americans and 14,000 South Vietnamese now are at Dak To, 270 miles north of Saigon, opposing an estimated 6,000 to 8,000 North Vietnamese.

North Vietnamese soldiers dug in on a hill 24 miles southwest of Dak To killed 40 paratroops of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade and wounded 42 in all-day battle Sunday.

South Vietnamese Join North In Rejecting Quakers' Gifts

DA NANG (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today gave the Quaker yacht Phoenix until 11 a.m. Tuesday to get out of South Vietnamese waters and take with it the $6,250 worth of medical supplies originally intended for North Vietnam.

Government sources in Saigon said another reason the 36-foot yacht and its crew of eight pacifists was barred from South Vietnam was that the crew refused to turn the supplies over to the Vietnamese Red Cross. Instead they insisted on giving them to Buddhist "struggle movement" groups which oppose the South Vietnamese government.

These sources said the government had guaranteed to the Quakers that the Red Cross would pass the medicine on to the Buddhists.

Vietnamese Navy boats intercepted the Phoenix at the outer edge of Da Nang harbor Sunday night and forced it to anchor in the open five miles from the docks. The government in Saigon issued orders not to let the Phoenix dock or unload her cargo, and to let the crew ashore and to let no newspaper men or other visitors board her.

Defying the U.S. state department, the Phoenix carried $18,000 worth of medial supplies to the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong last spring. The yacht sailed for Da Nang with the shipment now aboard after the North Vietnamese refused to let her bring them to Haiphong, saying the boat would be endangered by the "intensive barbaric bombing of North Vietnam by U.S. warplanes."

British Middle East Plan Given Best Chance of Endorsation by UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A British resolution seeking a Middle East settlement was given the best chance of adoption among three headed for a vote in the UN Security Council today.

Delegates expected that the vote would come late tonight.

The three resolutions all would send a UN representative to the Middle East to seek settlement of issues left by the Arab-Israeli war in June, including withdrawal of Israeli troops from territory they seized.

But they differ over how he should work and what form the settlement should take with respect to the Israeli withdrawal from territory seized in the war, as end to Arab belligerency against Israel, the fixing of borders, freedom for Israeli shipping through disputed waterways and solution of the Arab refugee question.

The British resolution, introduced Thursday 11 days after the others, has been widely hailed as "balanced."

Diplomatic sources said that at a meeting at the U.S. mission Sunday, U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg joined Lord Caradon of Britain in rejecting suggestions for changes put forward by Ambassadors Jose Maria Ruda of Argentina and Geraldo de Carvalho Silos of Brazil. They had been trying to merge the British resolution with an unpublished Argentine-Brazilian draft.

The informants said they believed Britain would vote for the British resolution. They said that if Argentina did also, it would have the nine votes necessary for adoption, because it already had those of Britain, the United States, Nationalist China, Canada, Denmark, Ethiopia and Japan.

One diplomat said the Soviet Union was prepared to abstain.

Santa Claus Brightens Parade

The Brownies on Parade

PICTON (Staff) — One fellow in Prince Edward County who year after year managed to retain his popularity and in his annual appearance Saturday afternoon.

Old St. Nick arrived in Picton in spite of no snow and with a heavy drizzle of rain falling. In spite of the poor weather however hundreds lined the streets for the parade. Many sat in parked cars and stood in doorways until the parade time drew near, but the rain did not dampen the spirits of the children.

They were wide-eyed and excited as ever while they watched one of the finest Santa Claus parades, Picton has ever seen pass down the town's main street. Floats, majorettes and five bands provided a blaze of color to the parade. Clowns decorated cars and of course Santa himself added to the thrills of the parade. The parade is held in Picton each year, sponsored by merchants and the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce. Fire Chief Duane Forbay and his committee this year did a fine job in providing the people of Picton and the County with a fine parade.

Seek Next of Kin in Denmark

BRIGHTON — While 27-year-old Egon Pedersen lay unconscious in hospital this weekend, area police and Danish diplomats tried to locate his relatives across the Atlantic.

Pedersen has not regained consciousness since Saturday afternoon, when his eastbound car skidded out of control on Slippery Highway 401 pavement, just east of Highway 30 near Brighton.

He was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering severe head injuries caused when he was thrown from his car.

The compact auto had spun out of control, rolled over the Highway 401 grass median, and finished in the westbound lane, Provincial Police from Brighton said.

Sunday morning, Brighton OPP notified the Danish Consulate in Toronto for assistance in locating the injured man's next of kin. Police said they found a Danish passport in Pedersen's personal effects.

His address was listed as R. R. 4, Milton.

Danish Consul Froelich-Nielsen said by telephone from Toronto last night he drove to Kingston, where Pedersen had been transferred.

The Consul said he wired authorities in Denmark, asking them to try and locate Pedersen's family.

The only clues to the injured man's background were found in papers on his person, Mr. Froelich-Nielsen said. Pedersen was likely employed in Canada with limited immigrant status, the diplomat said.

A spokesman from Kingston General Hospital said today Pedersen's condition remains unchanged and critical.

Trees Laid Waste by Vandals

Vandals have wrecked a tree rehabilitation project in Belleville — and roused misgivings about a planned civic beauty spot.

A reaction of outrage was registered over the weekend as the destruction of 20 young trees along the four - lane sweep of east Dundas Street was revealed.

The trees,—Norway maples planted seven months ago — were planned as replacements for the city's big elm trees lining the broad eastern entrance to the city and now dying of Dutch elm disease.

Of 25 trees — already sprouting up to 10 feet high— only five are left standing on the north side of the thoroughfare. The rest have been laid waste by vandals.

"This is just outrageous," said a spokesman of the Belleville Horticultural Society, an organization intimately connected with the project.

Junior members of the society were particularly disconsolate. The youngsters, along with city workmen, proudly planted the trees last April 27 as part of a Centennial year project.

"Every one of these trees cost the taxpayer money," said the society representative. "And if the parents of the ones responsible had to pay for them they'd know just how much damage has been done."

The society currently is planning to establish an arboretum — a site with varied specimens of trees — somewhere in Belleville, probably on city parkland, and already has discussed the idea with parks board officials.

"This sort of vandalism doesn't encourage that kind of project," said the spokesman.

"But we're going ahead with it anyhow."

The society recently reckoned on a similar spate of vandalism when it began any such public project, but the fears proved vague "in retrospect", he said.

The damaged saplings have been tied to support peel in the hope that they may recover.

However, the society spokesmen held little hope they would make it.

The vandalism was confined to trees growing on the south side of the traffic lanes. The five trees spaced on a mall across the road are flourishing.

Liquor, Jewellery Stores At Deseronto, Entered

DESERONTO — Thieves with expensive tastes in liquor but a poor appreciation of jewellery, staged a double smash-and-grab here during the night.

Windows at Lott Jewellery and the local liquor store were shattered and thieves made hurried haul.

However, Mayor Gerald Lott, operator of the jewellery store, was luckier.

The thieves in such a hurry they merely reached through the broken window and took the first items that came to hand — mainly bracelets and a few lockets.

Mayor Lott said they were among the least valuable items in stock and were worth only about $30.

Ironically, the burglaries were discovered by the town's former police chief, who quit less than two weeks ago.

Lynn Thomilson now an officer with the Napanee force, was driving home from night duty, when he spotted the broken liquor store window.

He informed provincial police — who have been patrolling the village since he resigned Nov. 11 — and provided assistance to the town's only remaining police force.

Intelligencer Carriers Enjoy Hockey Game

Newspapers mean contact. For 40 Belleville and district youngsters newspaper gave them just that — and a chance to cheer and participate in one of the nation's newest event Saturday — hockey night in Canada.

The challenge set was winning new readers for the newspaper.

Saturday, the winners were bunded in one big group and embarked aboard a bus for Toronto.

There, after being treated to supper, they were ready for the highlight of the prize night — the Chicago-Toronto game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The 40 youngsters and their escorts were solid-rooting factions for their favorites — with a hearty balance of support for a hometown hero, Chicago's Bobby Hull.

However, for any Toronto supporters in the group the game had an all-round happy ending — a 3-2 tie.

PICTON (Staff) — Malcolm Davidson, a successful farmer who has gained a wide reputation as being an outspoken critic of both major farm organizations and a prominent member of strong farm organization will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Farmers' Union at Bloomfield Monday night.

Mr. Davidson, who is from Clinton, Ont., is familiar to many farmers through his frequent appearances on CBC programs.

IN MEMORIAM

WILSON — In ever loving memory of our dear father, Alfred Wilson, who passed away eight years ago, Nov. 30, 1951.

The love we breed in memory hold,
We have our treasures, can unfold
The volume closed for years to ours,
Line now in death's cold chill,
Turn back the pages, blot out ill,
When we are at our best.
Memory is the only thing,
That time cannot destroy,
—Never forgotten by wife Eleanor, children and grandchildren.

LOVEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Lovey, who passed away, Nov. 30, 1956.

No labor or anxiety, his thoughts are free,
He's left us a memory, we are proud to see,
Someone has Lord, in Your keeping,
For whom on earth, we can see no more,
—Ever remembered by wife Muriel and family.

FRY — In loving memory of our dear son, Larry Fry, who passed away, Nov. 30, 1952.

Time has not lessened memories to us,
But perhaps it was just as well
That we could not foresee the years of suffering,
To see we loved so well.
Our thoughts are with the forgotten
by drunken Hinks and husband
Ernest.

REID — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harrison Reid, who passed away, Nov. 30th, 1956.

Sadly missed by wife Ivy and family.
Lovely as a rose was he,
Sweet as the violet that grows by the sea,
Oh for that touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

BENNETT — In memory of a dear husband, Stanley Bennett, who passed away on this month of November, 1957.

Memories are golden,
Memories are dear,
I wish that God could have spared him
a while
To walk these years with me,
Silent is the voice we loved so best,
The heart that was so kind,
But not for thought to reach,
Sleeping beneath the flowers and the snow.
And when, though absent, is just as dear,
—Ever remembered, Bob and Cathy.

FRY — In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Ernest Fry, who passed away Nov. 30th, 1955, also our dear son, Larry Fry, who passed away Dec. 2nd, 1952.

In memory a daily thought,
In heart, a sacred treasure,
—Lovingly remembered by daughter, son and family.

DAVIDSON — In loving memory of our dear son, Larry Davidson, Davidson Sr., who passed away, Nov. 30, 1954.

Although we smile and make no fuss
We miss you more than words can say
Your memory is our treasure,
That's when we miss our need of all,
—Sadly missed, Mom and Dad.

Kids Can Have Fun in Many Ways

A book is the only passport needed to a wider world — and the younger the reader's imagination the greater the horizon.

Lining the shelves were more than three score entries to the library's shadow-box competition — a contest where young readers were invited to give artistic realization to themes from their favorite books.

"We were just amazed with the results," reected children's librarian Jean Williams. "It was aimed at encouraging creativity in the children. Some of them came up with very original ideas."

The entries were all three-dimensional, limited only by the size of the shadow - box — most used shoe boxes.

Otherwise, the possibilities were limitless and the young artists had free rein.

The results were a revelation in depth of modern child-hood interests, imagination and ingenuity.

The subjects flanked such story-book characters as Goldilocks with five hero figures like Bobby Hull; the historically significant, like Jacques Cartier, with the bevy-seven characters of the Sleeping Beauty fairy tale.

One eight-year-old resident, Gerry Byrd, went to a Simpson's catalogue to find the characters for his Three Bears display. Its simplicity caught the eye of the judge, Helen Keeler, and won Gerry first prize in the junior section.

In contrast, 10 - year - old Michael Calnay, researched history books after he got the idea for the Jacques Cartier display while doing wood-work. His palmsticking cut-out won him the prize for the most original entry on display.

Sharing other top honors and Jane Burkholder, 10, first and second winners in the junior prize; Paul James 10 and Jane Burkholder, 10, first and second winners in the junior section.

Several public teachers also went to some pains to promote the idea for the contest among their students.

Shadow-box show at Corby children's library had a happy ending for these youngsters Saturday. Prize-winners in contest to encourage creativity among youngsters were Lynn Mattis, 8, Michael Calnay, 10, Jane Burkholder, 10, and Gerry Byrd, 8. The show pleasantly surprised organizers by drawing more than 60 entries on storybook themes.

All-woman Tweed Council Likely to Seek Re-election

TWEED — The fate of the much-publicized "political government" may be known this Thursday or Friday night.

Nominations for the 1968 village council are slated for Thursday evening, from 7 to 8 p.m. in the municipal offices, and nominees have 24 hours to qualify.

Indications are that Reeve Barbara Allen and her four female council colleagues will seek nominations to continue what is thought to be the first-ever all-woman municipal government anywhere.

"The only thing I'm concerned about is a 'male backlash' vote," says Mrs. Allen, who fears some men may run for council for no other reason than to disrupt the female monopoly.

Not that the Tweed council-women haven't some accomplishments to be proud of, says Mrs. Allen.

The village policing problem has come full circle with the hiring of former Belleville policeman George Cole as Tweed's one-man force.

After Chief Joseph Paquette's mid-summer resignation, council solicited the services of the provincial police, a local by-law enforcement officer, and now hope to return to the former village constable system.

A long-term project initiated by the 1967 council aims at ridding nearby Stoco Lake of its pollution problems.

Raw human excrement has been dumped into the popular tourist and cottage waters, says Reeve Allen, who claims no action was ever taken on the problem before this year.

A consulting firm is now pacing an anti-pollution scheme for the village, to be screened by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. The program is slated to be finished by 1968, says Mrs. Allen.

The "powderpuff" council has certainly only been in existence since Sept. 14, when Mrs. Annette Whitfield was appointed to replace the second of two male members there since last December's election.

A predominantly-female slate of candidates have their hats in the ring for the coming January November, and the two women who were the male ballot votegetters were appointed to replace the retiring pair of male councillors.

Of the five women councillors, only Reeve Allen had previous council experience.

Conservation Authority Moving Ahead Rapidly

The Moira River Conservation Authority has come a long way since it was established 20 years ago — back in July, 1947.

Since then the Authority has acquired 15,529 acres of reforestation property, and another 2,340 acres of water control, wild life and conservation area properties and has planted a total of 2,428,625 trees.

Of the total trees planted, 61,250 were planted in 1967. Area school children planted a total of 14,750 trees as a Centennial Year project on Authority property near Thomasburg.

The 20 years which the Authority has been in existence have seen many changes, both in membership make up and in cost of operation.

Originally Authority members were mostly elected members of their respective municipal councils and this policy was followed for the first 16 years.

In 1967, 11 of the 18 Authority members were also council members, but since then there has been a marked change, and this year only three of 21 members are council members.

James Sprachett of Tudor and Cashel has the distinction of being the only Authority member to have represented his municipality continuously since 1947.

A number of the recommendations contained in the original conservation report have been carried out by the Authority, or are under active consideration.

These include the setting up of conservation areas, the establishment of river gauging stations, the construction of water control dams and the establishment of a watershed forest.

An Authority forest of 90,578 acres comprising 18 areas of marginal and sub marginal land was originally recommended. So far that Authority has close to 15,000 acres.

The Moira Authority has the greatest acreage of any Ontario watershed under forest management — due mainly to the comparative low cost of marginal land.

But inflation has struck the cost of marginal land which now at an average of about $11 per acre, is more than double what it was in 1950. It is expected that the cost of such land will continue to increase.

Since 1961 the levies as participating municipalities have remained fairly constant and since then have showed increases of only about one per cent per year. This year's levy was about $18,000.

Hungerford township has approximately 30 per cent of the total Authority forest area of 15,529 acres. Next in line of the municipalities is Elzevir with 3,372 acres.

Increased use of the Authority's three conservation areas — the Col. Vanderwater area at Thomasburg, the Peters Mills area, at Madoc and Prices Area at Actinolite — but the most noted increase is in the number of campers.

During the past summer the Authority issued 201 camping permits, an increase of 38 per cent over last year. Also the average stay in camp was longer than in 1966.

And more tourists are finding their way to Authority campsites. A year ago campers from only states in the USA registered. This year there were registrations from seven states, including Florida and Minnesota.

Lingham Lake reservoir in Grimsthorpe township will be main the only sources of reserve water to augment the summer river flow although arrangements are made with the Department of Lands and Forests to augment the flow during September and October by releasing water from Skootamatta Lake.

A couple of years ago a low control dam was installed at the foot of Main Lake and other structures are planned for the east and west branches of Moira River below Main Lake.

The contract for the Stoco Lake dams has been let but due to high water conditions construction will not commence until next year. The Deerock reservoir project will be proceeded with as quickly as possible.

Youths Brighten Christmas for Elderly

Members of the Belleville Junior Horticultural Society were busy Saturday making Christmas a merrier scene for senior citizens. The youngsters worked at the city's recreation centre turning out colorful candle holders which will be given to Hastings County Home residents. The donations are made from birch hewn in northern Quinte forests.

Candles From Trees

Yes Virginia, Candlesticks do grow on trees.

But only at Christmas — and then, thanks to a busy band of Belleville youngsters.

Saturday, it also turned this city's recreation centre into a minor mass-production area — where 40 members of the Junior Belleville Horticultural Society cheerily churned out seasonal centrepieces for the Hastings County Home.

The job actually was a cooperative one.

It started a while back in North Hastings County where Department of Lands and Forests wardens selected and chopped a group of birch trees.

The trees were shipped to Belleville where students at Moira Secondary School shear-ed them into eight-inch logs, each neatly punched in the centre.

Saturday, the junior horticulturalists seized the birch pieces, speared them with colored candles, festooned with holly and pine cones.

Belleville Woman Presents Ideas to Institute

OTTAWA—A Belleville social worker, Mrs. Vincent Castellano, cla-ms the Vanier Institute of the Family might find answers to family problems by looking at the experience of the Indian.

A member of the Mohawk Indian Tribe, Mrs. Castellano, at the annual meeting of the group here Saturday, said "Society's fundamental truths are more even evident in the primitive culture."

William Boss, a University of Ottawa public relations officer preparing a report for the institute, said "the David DePoes of this country" should be members.

More committed and concerned people—"the hippies who get out and do things which affect and condition the society in which their children will live"—had to be brought into the institute "at the risk of its own security."

The institute should commission papers on various aspects of family life, he said, although such action might make it feel "out on a limb and uneasy."

Another Indian spokesman was Dr. G. C. Monture of Ottawa, an engineering consultant who grew up on the Six Nations reserve near Brantford.

He suggested the institute look into the problems of Indian families facing the technological age.

An investigation of problems facing the Indian family forced to move from the reserve because there was no "viable land" left would prove "startling."

Dr. Wilder Penfield, Montreal neurosurgeon, was re-elected president of the institute.

Excitement in Education

Education is always news — and there seems to be always something new in education.

When our whole approach to living changes as rapidly as it has in the past few years it is encouraging that educators are not willing to remain happy with the status quo.

The recently-announced Robarts plan for regional or county boards of education rather than the present system of municipal boards is one that will be hotly argued for months to come. There is no reason to fear the outcome. In most of these debates, the outcome generally hinges on the expressed desire of the majority of the people. It is a fact of our way of life that the people eventually get what they want — even if on occasion it does not materialize as quickly as they would have it.

Closer to home, innovations are in progress or being given serious thought.

One of the experiments being watched with interest is the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School decision to allow Grade 13 students the option of attending classes.

There are safeguards, of course, on the option, but in these years when youth is prone to rebel at imposed controls, the BCI test should provide excellent fodder for the argument as to whether young people are willing to accept self-imposed standards.

At nearby Picton, public school principals and board members returned from a visit to Michigan schools expressing solid enthusiasm for the "open school" plan.

Under this system, enclosing a small group of students within four walls is done away with and several "classes" meet in a larger area. Team teaching reportedly provides greater individual attention for the students and is more economical of a teacher's time.

In Belleville, both the public school board and the separate school board are considering changes.

A major addition to Hillcrest school will have aspects of the open area teaching unit in which continuous regrouping of the pupils will give them extra time in subjects in which they may be weak.

The separate school board is also thinking along somewhat similar lines with grades as most readers are familiar with them eliminated.

No doubt local educators are also keeping an eye on the Peterborough County school board. Within the past month, this board became the first in the province to accept beginning students three times a year. It is obvious immediately this changes the whole concept of education.

Education might be the most costly item in our lives today, but it is exciting and revolutionary. It should serve as a tip to residents in the Quinte area planning on running for school boards or who allow their names to stand for appointment that the homework no longer is restricted to the pupils.

Centennial Flashback

It seems like a long time ago we turned the corner into 1967. Maybe you get this impression every year about this time when the urgency of the Christmas season all that lies ahead and the pleasant days of summer now only a warming glimmer.

Yet this year seems to have been a tremendously long and busy one and in reflection it can be attributed to one thing — centennial.

This was pointedly brought to mind Friday night when Belleville closed out its centennial celebrations with its final official fling, the Centennial Ball.

It was a gala occasion and a fitting one.

It gave one a pleasant feeling when Mayor Jack Ellis read off the list of names of those people who made tangible contributions to our centennial year.

Plaques and scrolls can be only a token appreciation for the countless hours of pleasure, enjoyment and education tied in with the dozens of events.

For 1967 may prove to be more than a celebration of 100 years of Confederation. It could mark the birth of a new era in cultural achievement in Belleville and district. It heralds a new era in recreational planning centred around Zwick's Island and could result in closer co-operation with neighboring municipalities.

The ball was a success — but then why shouldn't it have been for it was for the people of Belleville who made 1967 a vintage year.

We can only say "thank you — all of you."

Britain's Back Door Bid Slammed Shut

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain seems to be trying to slip into the European Common Market by the tradesmen's entrance. But she likely will find the back door as firmly shut as the front.

There is considerable concern on the Continent about the extent of penetration by big American investments. Large American corporations have either established major branch plants within the Common Market or have purchased local industries.

Prime Minister Wilson's offer of an industrial pool to fight this threat of domination might, under normal circumstances, be well received.

But Wilson tied his offer to Common Market negotiations and as long as the two are linked, continental reaction may remain listless. While five of the six Common Market partners back in Britain's bid for entry, France has used a bogful of tactics to block negotiations.

As long as French opposition continues, Britain is likely to remain in the cold, no matter what Wilson may offer. French officials maintain Wilson's proposals amount to no more than a "cream puff," among the most serious weaknesses in Britain's case—the difficulty to maintain stability in the British pound.

Yet the problem of American penetration remains. Established free trade within the six-country orbit seems to have accomplished little to stop the big-is-powership spread. One way of erecting more effective competition would be the establishment of industrial bodies that spill over national boundaries.

That brings in the possibility of supranationalism which French President de Gaulle strongly opposes, even within the European community's nuclear organization, there are moves to reduce Euratom's authority and to link its operations to national rather than supranational control.

Some resentment within the Common Market against the French position is already evident. This resentment may increase as a result of the British issue and French foot-dragging in building the European community into a unified political structure. This idea of a deepening rift has not been lost on Wilson.

Despite economic difficulties, Britain has been able to move ahead in the sophisticated areas of industrial development. Britain's nuclear power program is far more advanced than any on the continent and is perhaps equal to that of the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Britain also has made tremendous strides in electronics and computers. These are British-owned industries and their sophisticated state could prove highly attractive to continental businessmen seeking bigger co-operative ventures. It only remains for the five to display more energy in convincing the unbending sixth member.

New York City Schools Face Serious Problems

Christian Science Monitor

New York City is desperate about its public schools — and well it may be. It faces monumental problems, and, if some have been eased, others are still growing. It must serve amazingly diverse areas, needs and ethnic groups. For example, more than half the children in the public schools are nonwhite, with the last this means is today's Northern urban areas.

These coalitions have resulted in a continuing flood of reports, studies, suggestions, and programs. Notwithstanding the earnest effort which has lain behind most of these, they have done little to correct the situation. Despite busing of pupils between school districts, special incentives for particularly able teachers to go into underprivileged areas, and many remedial programs, there has been no widespread improvement either in pupil performance or parental satisfaction.

The city has now been presented with its farthest-reaching, most drastic, and, hopefully, most promising new proposal. It comes from a six-man panel appointed by the Mayor and headed by McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation. Its most startling proposal is that the vast New York public school system, with its one million pupils and some 900 schools, be broken up into anywhere from 30 to 60 separate school districts. These, modeled roughly after school districts in suburban towns, would be largely self-governing. Of the 11 members of each district board six would be elected locally and five appointed by the Mayor. Thus there would be both a strong local hand and help from those having wider experience.

The objective it both to meet parental feeling that the school administration is too remote from their children's needs and to encourage local thought and initiative to meet local needs. That a school board is, say, in Harlem would be given the opportunity — and much of the power — to choose the studies, the programs, the kind of teaching, the supervision which Harlem parents feel would be of greatest help to their children, with their special, individual needs in short, there would be a massive decentralization of authority, direction and inspiration.

Although such a step would be no cureall (many other improvements and fundamental reforms are needed) it has one tremendous merit. It encourages greater interest and greater thought on the part of those directly connected. In the end, no matter what is done from on high, any local problem can be best solved by those on the hard local thought. People grow under responsibility. They contribute most when this is expected of them. They take a sharper interest when they feel that that interest will be effective. For these reasons we believe that the Bundy report could turn out to be an imaginative step toward better schooling in America's largest public school system.

U.S. Does Good Job In French

London Free Press

Canada, which has a national interest and sue for the teaching of French, does not do as good a job in many of its schools as in the United States.

This is the conclusion of a Canadian teacher during a two-month investigation of the American education system.

This report of Dr. Gerald Nason, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers' Federation will come as sobering news to anyone who believed the striking toward improvement in French teaching in the schools of England-speaking Canada were complete and sufficient; and to the thousands of adult Canadians who have returned to classes in recent months.

It will come as an eye-opener to those Canadians who have come to believe that the educational systems of this country are in all respects superior to those of the United States.

The findings of Dr. Nason peculiarly do not apply across the entire spectrum of Canadian elementary and secondary schools. It likely does apply to those areas where French is still taught as purely a book subject, with teachers and pupils acquiring no real feel nor participation in the experience. It indicates that efforts in Canada to change this should be extended.

A Housewife and the Law

(Jack Wasserman in The Vancouver Sun)

This column is an answer to the law-abiding citizens who think the only people who get into the clutches of the police are master criminals or social delinquents. They say, "It can't happen to me because the worst thing I've ever done is overpark or jaywalk."

Arina Cockett is a 34-year-old housewife. She went out to buy some fish and chips for the family dinner one afternoon in early September. Eight weeks later she was booked into jail.

She was taken from her Kerriedale apartment and her baby in the night by two uniformed members of the Vancouver city police department last week. She was thrown in contact with garbage and drunks. She was left with the distinct impression that but for the chance arrival of a friend before the police took her away, her baby would have been placed in the custody of the Children's Aid.

None of this happened because anyone was sinister or nasty. It happened because some minor mistakes were made by an assortment of people, including Mrs. Crockett. She was caught up in the vast, impersonal, police juggernaut. The "system" took over the people and the people who should have cared were too busy and too harassed by the system to pay any attention.

It was convenient to handle Mrs. Crockett like a criminal because she knew she had been jaywalked. And somehow the city hasn't managed to collect the $5 fine.

Life Runs in Cycles

Milwaukee Journal

There are foundations in our land to study almost anything. One of the more unusual is the Foundation for the Study of Cycles. Almost everything fluctuates in cycles, the foundation says — moods, the weather, war and peace, prosperity and depression.

People, regardless of geography, flock to join Protestant churches at about nine-year intervals, the foundation claims, and a peak is due next year. Human creativity often flowers at 7.5 month intervals, or so it was determined by studying diaries kept by such artists as Keats, Shelly, Mozart, Goethe, Victor Hugo and others.

The foundation found that such unrelated things as marriages in St. Louis, construction in Hamburg, pig iron prices and immigration all have the same up-down cycle—18.3 years.

Release of Prisoners Switch in Propaganda

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Vietnamese Communist gestures with regard to their American captives illustrate a shift in propaganda emphasis during the last 18 months and suggest that both Hanoi and the Viet Cong are investing hopes in the anti-war movement in the United States.

In July, 1965, after more than a year of air attacks on North Vietnam and heavy use of American air power in the south, Hanoi and Viet Cong propaganda threatened vengeance against captured U.S. crews, even listing broadly at public war crimes trials.

Now the stress is on humaneness. The Viet Cong, for example, has just released three prisoners and is returning the Pentagon's sources in Cambodia, will represent the beginning of a "trickle" if the Communists are satisfied with news stories about the three.

The Communist have had little success so far from attempts to make propaganda capital of statements attributed to captive U.S. airmen. The statements attributed to them have been, for the most part, read by others in the prisoners' names, in English-language broadcasts. This leaves the authenticity of the statements open to question.

Sixteen months ago the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong insisted that all captured airmen, as Hanoi put it, "are not prisoners-of-war and cannot enjoy the provisions of the Geneva Convention and must be the treatment of prisoners of war." This hinted that captives might be publicly tried and executed.

Citing the trials of Nazi leaders at Nuernberg, Germany, Hanoi said captive Americans could "by no means claim to be free from responsibility as far as criminal law is concerned; neither can they claim to be mere instruments who act only as ordered out of respect for military discipline."

At about the same time, Hanoi broadcast a proposal to the Viet Cong in the south that it "set up a court to try and appropriately punish those American pilots who owe blood debts to our people."

For about a week in that period Hanoi broadcast alleged confessions of U.S. prisoners condemning the U.S. government and "begging forgiveness." Hanoi reported captives were paraded through the streets amid demonstrations against them.

The "war crimes trial" line was dropped rather abruptly in the summer of 1966 and not used again. For months there-after the Communists occasionally broadcast names and ranks of captive Americans and, at times, statements attributed to the prisoners.

The release of selected American prisoners instead of threats of reprisals against captives in general could mean the Communists think they might catch more flies with sugar than with vinegar.

The tactic could be aimed at giving certain anti-war elements in the United States a sense of accomplishment, and thus hold the promise of building additional pressure against the center of the Eastern Front gathered momentum.

Services Mark 136th Anniversary at St. Andrew's Church

The 136th anniversary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held yesterday.

On hand to help celebrate the occasion was Dr. C. Ritchie Bell of Lachute, Que., who spoke to the congregation at special commemorative services last night.

A history of the church in Belleville, prepared by Kenneth S. Hill, was distributed and a display of historical objects connected with St. Andrew's was viewed by the congregation following the service.

In his history Mr. Hill compares the present day church to those of earlier times.

"The government in 1821 granted an acre of land on the corner of Church and Hotel streets to the representatives of the Church of Scotland." The first church structure was erected on the site in 1831.

The structure was large enough to seat about 300 people and was lighted by candles until gas was secured in 1858. A disruption in the Church of Scotland caused the church to be without a minister for most of the period from 1844 to 1850.

Members worshipped in St. Thomas' Anglican church.

In 1871 a congregational meeting voted to spend $9,000 on a new brick church which would seat about 500 people.

It was erected and used by the congregation until 1894 when the building and its contents were lost in a fire. The loss was estimated at $35,000 with insurance coverage at $18,100.

The cost of the second church was largely financed by the congregation with a $1,000 mortgage from a Scottish insurance company.

It is interesting to note that pew rents varied from $12 to $25 per year. By 1851 the number of communicants was listed at 190 with the average Sunday collection $177.

The St. Andrew's WFMS was formed in 1885 and boasted a membership of 31 by 1888. The minister's stipend by 1888 had reached $1,500.

Following the fire which razed the second St. Andrew's Church in 1894 the building committee had plans and specifications prepared for a new structure, which would cost an estimated $28,000.

By the time it was completed in 1895 the total cost amounted to $34,000.

The church progressed under Rev. W. M. MacLean who was pastor of St. Andrew's for 30 years prior to his retirement in 1904. He was succeeded by Rev. R. S. Laidlaw whose stipend by 1907 had reached $1,400.

Mr. Laidlaw moved to Brandon, Manitoba, in 1909 and was succeeded by Rev. A. S. Kerr early in 1910.

During 1917 the officials boards of St. Andrew's and John Street Presbyterian churches held a number of meetings in connection with the joining of the two congregations. The union did not materialize.

Pew rents, a dwindling source of income for the church were abandoned during this period. The membership at the end on 1923 was 395.

In 1925 the congregations of St. Andrew's and John Street Churches voted on whether to enter the United Church. St. Andrew's voted against and John Street in favor on the issue.

The report claims many people left St. Andrew's to enter John Street Church, while the opposite was also true. Mr. Kerr entered the United Church and St. Andrew's was without a minister.

The next pastor, Rev. R. G. Stewart remained in Belleville for three years and was succeeded by Rev. J. A. Seymour in 1928.

In 1930 the congregation spent $32,000 in alterations, renovations and additions to the church structure.

Mr. Seymour was killed in a street car accident in Toronto in 1934 and was succeeded by Rev. James Walker who resigned in 1943. The Rev. D. C. Hornby was inducted in November 1943 and continued until 1954. The membership at the end of 1954 was 770.

He was succeeded by Rev. R. B. MacLean who was inducted early in 1955 and during his term several extensive look place in the church.

In March of 1963 the present minister, Rev. A. L. Sutherland was ordained. Mrs. Lena who resigned and went to Scotland for a year.

Historical objects on display included a deed for land granted in 1831, a picture of orland replaced Mr. MacPenser dating back to 1830 and many other items.

The congregation at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church celebrated its 136th anniversary yesterday. Here guest speaker Dr. C. Ritchie Bell from the Presbyterian College in Montreal discusses a wine pourer dating back to 1835 with Kenneth S. Hill and Gerald Boyce.

The Smith Report Recommendations Could Be Fatal for Albert College

By HARRY MULHALL
STAFF REPORTER

The winds of proposed social change are stirring some chilly apprehensions along the academic corridors of Belleville's Albert College.

The long-established Canadian co-educational centre is sharing a common cloud with other church-owned projects these days. And the shadows — at least in Albert's case — are being scanned for something threatening, perhaps fatal.

At the moment the cloud is no bigger than the Smith report on taxation, but the mere mention of the document is sufficient to set any church-owned school's bell to sound an alarm.

The Smith Committee recommended that the provincial government tax church property up to 25 per cent over 10 years.

Since Albert — one of Canada's oldest residential schools — is a United Church school it automatically qualifies for the tax bite.

However, whether its financial resources are qualified to offset such a threat is another issue, college administrators indicate.

The Smith recommendations come at a time when Albert is facing the perplexities of the national cost spiral.

"It would make it increasingly difficult for a school such as ours," admits administrator Taylor Franklin, the man charged with Albert's business operations. "Should it come to full taxation it would be a real problem."

Updating of facilities along with mounting operational costs — teachers' salaries, for instance alone keep pace with the rest of Ontario — already place a premium on Albert's financial resources.

This includes its most dependable, fixed source — student fees.

"The fee cost has had to increase each year in order to cover operational costs to the point where it's prohibitive for some of our clientele," reveals Mr. Franklin, who last year administered a budget of $250,000.

Albert this year has a registration of 130 which is not a peak — its maximum at present is estimated at 185.

Increasing enrolment would mean greater fee income — but this also would call for more facilities, more costs.

Its alumni association also is another funds source, but would the college be reluctant to tap it again to share any new tax burden.

"This would be an additional amount," says Mr. Franklin. "It's a question of how many times you can go to the same source."

While a private school, Albert's "clientele's" does not inhabit the upper crust of privilege and affluence.

Nonetheless, it has its own firmly-based traditions.

Founded in 1857, it is the oldest co-educational residential school in Canada.

"Albert has always served to the middle-class family," says Mr. Franklin. "But it's becoming increasingly difficult."

Struggling to carry on the traditions, Albert's board of governors and its staff "hats to look forward to the time when there wouldn't be a field in which Albert could serve."

But the Smith recommendations could decide the issue unless there were some offsetting measures found — either through legislation or some other source of income," admits the administrator.

The same rueful reaction comes from a high church source.

"If we're taxed at the full level it's going to make it increasingly difficult," Dr. H. W. Vaughan, secretary of the United Church Board of Colleges, warned recently in Toronto.

More explicitly, would implementation of the Smith proposals prove even fatal to Albert?

"Of course, that's always a possibility," Mr. Franklin admits. "But the governors would be most regretful to be in a position where this would be necessary."

The issue also implicates the community generally, Mr. Franklin indicates.

Albert's annual budget is now a fair size outlay; it employs 48 people — 16 of them drawing teachers' salaries, all living and spending in Belleville.

"Here is the equivalent of a small industry" the administrator reminds.

"If we come to the point eventually where we are going to lose . . . this affects Belleville to that extent."

A Matter of More Money

Administrator Taylor Franklin signs cheques from Albert's budget. But he could have more money worries if Ontario government ever decided to implement Smith committee recommendations that all church property be taxed. Albert is a United Church school.

HORSES ELECTROCUTED

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP) — High voltage electricity killed two horses Sunday but the two young women riding them escaped injury. Donna McCrosson, 21, and Sheila Armitage, 27, said they rode their horses between a power pole and a chain link fence. One horse brushed the pole, and the other the fence and the two collided. Police blamed a short circuit in the power pole. They said the two women apparently were insulated from the current by their saddles.

United Fund--$90,000

Slow but sure wins the race but the tortoise (United Community Fund) is not racing against anything.

As of today $90,000 which is approximately 50 per cent of the $185,500 goal has been donated to the fund and Bob Porter, director of UCF, said this morning that the campaign will most probably be extended again.

Only two of the nine sections in the drive have been completed, the Air Force and Federal Service sections which between them should bring in a total of about $5,000.

In the commercial division only 11 out of 56 canvasses are complete. Industry has a better record as only five out of 25 canvasses have yet to be finished.

There is quite a problem in the professional division where two areas, the insurance and real estate fields, are behind in their collection, according to Mr. Porter.

If the United Community Fund has not reached its goal before the YMCA begins its annual fund drive then there will be a race and perhaps the competitors will get the tortoise out of his shell.

Mother Threatens Suicide in Protesting Daughter's Choice

Dear Doris: Mother does not approve of my steady because he is European. She has gone through divorce and unhappiness herself and fears I will suffer as she did. She vows she will kill herself if I marry him.

We are both 20, and our love for each other is strong. He is an auto mechanic, while I have my high school diploma. His parents object to me because I am not of the same race as they are. He says he intends to live as a Canadian now.

Would it be wise to enter into a lifetime relationship with all the problems we are faced with? Would love count in this case? — Badgered and Afraid

Dear Badgered: A threat of suicide as a means of forcing action isn't cricket. I wonder whether your disillusioned mother would approve of anyone at all, for you?

With both families against the match, with the difference in culture, the discrepancy in education — is there much more that could make things tough?

Love most certainly counts, but don't be hasty. Riding the storms might take more maturity than you possess. Consider a period of separation, of dating others for a while. You may indeed discover a more likely prospect.

Dear Doris: Our parents are having a 50th wedding anniversary. What could we arrange for them if they are unable to make it down here for a holiday? My father has a bad heart.

I am making a cake and sending it to them. They would never say what they need or like. I told them they should have electric blankets up there but she does not seem to care for them. They already have gold watches. — Barbie.

Dear Barbie: Take your pick: An electric clock, a transister radio, a lean-back chair, a footstool, a camera, a gift certificate. All of these have rung the bell with golden wedding brides and grooms.

I'm guessing your mother has not the least idea just how cozy and snug, and light, an electric blanket could be. Reconsider.

This is an ideal situation for which to plan a card shower. Means notifying old friends and asking each to send Mum and Dad an anniversary note or card.

You don't just add a wife to your personality, like a new gold watch; you enter upon a new kind of life. You'll either come out different or the knot will come untied.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let, Doris help you see the light.)

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Klaver of Deseronto announce the engagement of their daughter Virginia Anne to Andrew C. Maracle Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Maracle, New York State. Marriage will take place at the Church of the Redeemer (Presbyterian), Deseronto on Saturday, November 28, at 2.30 p.m.

* * *

Previous to the marriage of Mrs. Dyson James Sargeant (nee Lynda Grant) she was honored at miscellaneous showers given by Mrs. Jack Daniels in Wilberforce with Mrs. Exley Matthews and Mrs. Elwin Wood as hostesses; at the home of Mrs. Margaret Zakos when the office staff of the Bell Telephone Co. attended and one at the home of Mrs. J. Tomson; also at a kitchen shower held at the home of Miss Holly Lloyd assisted by Miss Karen Lloyd.

Sargeant – Grant

Tabernacle United Church was the setting on Saturday, November 21, 1967 at 3 p.m., when Lynda Florence Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Grant was united in marriage to Dyson James Sargeant, son of Mrs. W. J. Sargeant, Belleville, and the late Mr. Sargeant.

Rev. Robert Crooks assisted by Rev. M. McFarlane of Ottawa (formerly of Tabernacle) officiated at the ceremony, and traditional wedding music was rendered by Mr. Alec Gordon who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Earl Bamfield.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line floor length gown of silk sheer over peau de soie highlighted with a chapel train, embroidered with French chantilly lace extending from the shoulders. A four-tier veil of scalloped tulle illusion was caught to an organza headdress studded with pearl drops and crystals. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white gardenias.

Miss Holly Lloyd as maid of honor wore a jade green velvet Empire styled gown with matching headdress and accessories and carried a cascade bouquet of butterscotch shade mums. The bridesmaids Miss Maureen Sargeant sister of the bridegroom, Miss Nancy Boldrick, Belleville, Miss Barbara Wood of Richmond Hill and Miss Judy Fullman of Wilberforce were gowned identically to the maid of honor. The junior bridesmaids Miss Debbie Henderson of Owen Sound, cousin of the bridegroom and Miss Heather Grant of Belleville, sister of the bride were also identically attired to the other attendants.

The reception was held at the Masonic Temple, where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a golden waffle - knit nylon sheath with matching jacket, brown accessories and a corsage of orange ice gardenias and yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy double knit sheath with matching coat, pink accessories and a corsage of white gardenias and pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and points east, the bride chose a double knit gold sheath dress with matching coat, brown accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant will reside in Belleville.

Career Planning Is Topic At University Club Meet

Mr. Kenneth Bradford, president of Loyalist College, was the guest speaker at the November meeting of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district.

Mr. Bradford spoke on "Career Planning" with special emphasis on careers for women. He stated that career determination was much the same—for both men and women and that each individual is different. Men and women differ in their definition of what a career means to them. To a woman it is an outlet for creativity whereas a man views a career in terms of long range satisfaction.

In the last decade, the time a married woman is not employed because of family obligations has been greatly shortened. With the advent of day nurseries many women return to work on a part-time basis within five years and on a full time basis within ten years.

Rapid changes in any line of work necessitate refresher courses in order to keep up to date.

"Community colleges such as Loyalist are planning to fill this need. The interim is the woman's own personal need. In order to find out what women want in the fields of continuing education can be found out in several ways. House to house calls provide a good deal of information but this requires a great deal of time and many staff members. A get together of women who express their opinions and see how others feel and think overcomes the problem of time and staff.

It is hoped that women will be able to bring their children to school with them and persons taking a course in "Early Child Care" will look after the children while the mothers are taking their respective courses.

Women may take as many or as few courses as they are able and there is considerable variety within the courses offered.

There are over 2,000 community colleges around the world. Ideas for new methods of presenting courses, of new courses themselves come from any source. Not only are ideas of other centres instituted but Loyalist itself after only three months in operation receives many letters requesting information about its technical courses.

Before courses are set up the needs of the community must be explored, the availability of qualified teachers and courses offered in nearby community colleges must be taken into consideration.

The courses offered have a strong social approach and cover such fields as business administration, social welfare and a variety of technical courses.

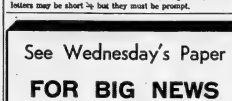
Loyalist now has 168 day students and 258 people registered for various night school courses of whom 49 are in Bancroft.

A lively discussion period followed the speaker's talk.

Mr. Bedford was introduced by Mrs. R. M. McFarlane and thanked by Mrs. R. H. G. Cunningham.

In the prior business meeting, four of the five delegates who attended the triennial meeting of the University Women's Club held in Vancouver last August gave reports about various aspects of the conference.

This is an ideal situation for which to plan a card shower. Means notifying old friends and asking each to send Mum and Dad an anniversary note or card.



Confidential to It's All Compromise: Those, my boy, are words of wisdom. There's not a marriage made that doesn't call for a high grade of yielding and adaptation on both sides; and the fellow who goes through the ropes without a willingness to submit to some change is cheating.

You don't just add a wife to your personality, like a new gold watch; you enter upon a new kind of life. You'll either come out different or the knot will come untied.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to begin talking things over? Let, Doris help you see the light.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Did you write and thank Aunt May for the gift she sent you?"

Daughter: "Oh, I forgot. I meant to do it last week. I'll write her a long letter when I have time."

A thank you note that is rude as no note at all. Children should be taught that courtesy letters may be short but they must be prompt.

Mother: "Don't forget to write to Aunt May right away and thank her for the birthday present, so she will know you received it and like it."

FRANKFORD UCW

FRANKFORD — One of society's biggest problems is the individual's fear of personal involvement in the problems of others, John D. Watkins of Belleville Children's Aid told members of Frankford United Church Women.

The social worker spoke on family counseling at the general meeting of the UCW held Nov. 7 in Rose Lowery Hall.

Mrs. Arnold Stickle, president, was in charge of the meeting and Mrs. Hans Hoer, Mrs. Gerald Harrington and Mrs. Don Keller conducted the worship service.

A donation was given to the Children's Aid Society and boxes will be sent next month to patients at Hastings Manor.

Rev. J. Weese conducted the election of officers.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Splendid Recipe for Oven Pudding

by Mary Moore

Another self-saucing pudding! An added dividend to this doubled-up dish is that it may be baked at the same time as a main dish casserole, and presto! you have an oven dinner.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Balls on Noodles with Tomato Sauce; Cole Slaw with Shredded Carrot; French Dressing; Lattice Plum Pie; Tea.

These self-saucing puddings are at a premium and when Mrs. J. H. H. sent us this highly recommended recipe for Orange Currant Pudding Shirley politely lifted it out of my fingers and said, "I want to be the one to test this." "It's yours!"

Next morning she walked in with a generous sample for my dessert that evening and it is good.

ORANGE CURRANT PUDDING (serves 5 to 6 - self-saucing - courtesy Mrs. J.H.H.)

Batter:
½ cup butter (room temperature)
One-third cup light brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup currants
½ cup milk

Sauce:
1 cup light brown sugar (second amount)
1 tablespoon butter
2 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons fresh frozen orange juice concentrate (or use ½ cup fresh orange juice and only 1 and two-thirds cups boiling water)

To make Batter cream together the butter and sugar; beat in egg and blend well. Mix together sifted flour, baking powder and salt. Add alternately with milk and beat well. Stir in currants. Pour into buttered rather large baking dish or casserole — preferably 3-quart size for you must have room at the top for the sauce. Also it should be one you can carry to the table.

To make Sauce sprinkle batter with brown sugar (second amount) and dot with butter. Mix together the orange juice and boiling water and pour evenly all over top. (Do not worry as it turns out fine.) Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for one hour. Mrs. J.H.H. suggests letting this cool but Shirley and I both preferred it hot but it was excellent cold.

Ann Landers

Reader Disagrees With Ann's Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wish you would stop giving stupid, unrealistic advice to wives whose husbands have been unfaithful. How can you expect a woman who has been through the tortures of hell to "forgive and forget?"

ANN LANDERS

It looks good on paper, Ann, but human beings just don't operate that way and you should know it.

We were married 17 years. I thought our marriage was solid as the rock of Gibraltar. My husband was doing well in his profession. Our children were a credit to us. His home was his castle — or so I thought. And then those ugly little clues began to pop up — every wife whose husband has cheated knows them well. Makeup stains on his shirt which he tries to explain away as "yours, dear." Those last minute phone calls saying he won't be home for dinner. Then he announces he must go away for the weekend — business, of course. When he returns he's too tired for conversation, let alone love.

Finally you tell him of your suspicions. He confesses, swears he loves only you — says he doesn't want a divorce. She means nothing to him. He'll never see her again. He looks you straight in the eye and says, "You owe it to our children to put this out of your mind and go on as if nothing happened."

The next thing I know he hands me your column and you're on his side! "Forgive and forget," you counsel. "Never mention the incident again." How in God's name can I forget? Do you have an answer for me, Ann Landers? — BETRAYED.

DEAR BETRAYED: Yes, I have an answer for you — and for the hundreds of other wives who wrote as you did.

You don't want to forgive and forget? All right, then, don't. Keep the painful memories alive by rehashing the past at every opportunity. Let him know his deceitfulness has destroyed your faith and broken your heart. Cry a lot. Drop a few cutting remarks in the presence of the children. Why should the skunk enjoy their respect after what he has done to you? And don't forget the ultimate punishment. When he wants your love, oblige him, but keep the love-making wooden and mechanical so he'll know your heart isn't in it. Force a little smile now and then to make sure he knows you are trying to be brave.

After a while he'll get fed up with the sub-zero temperature at home, and he'll tell himself he has a right to seek warmth and passion elsewhere. By that time you'll have decided that maybe you should forgive and forget. But it will be too late.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boyfriend is in Vietnam. He has been there for eight months. I wrote to you a month before he left and asked if we should become engaged. You said no (I was 17 then and you said to wait.) Isdidn't listen to your advice and accepted his ring two days before he shipped out.

I realize now I made a big mistake. I want to send his ring back to him and tell him it's over. My mother says I should wait until he comes home. I'm so mixed up I don't know what to do. This time I promise to take your advice. What is it? — SORRY NOW.

DEAR SORRY: If your boyfriend is fighting in Vietnam the last thing he needs is a shaft through the mail. Wait until he comes home and then give him the jolly tidings.

SLICE SPORTS

By Geo. H. Carver

HODGE PODGE

It happened in Peterborough ever two decades ago. A Belleville softball team, plus a Belleville umpire was battling the local squad in softball combat. The umps was decidedly off color and had the local bleachers in an uproar. Finally they stood it as long as and surged on the diamond, converging on His Nibs. The handful of Belleville fans also left their seats and headed for the plate. "We got nothing against you guys," shouted a Peter fan. "Whadya want to help him for. We're going to toss him in the river." "Help him, hell," snorted a Belleville supporter. "We didn't come out to help him, we came to help YOU."...

Gale Sayers, the great NFL halfback, recalls the day when he was with Chicago Bears and the club was playing the Packers. Gale carrying the ball found himself facing the great Willie Davis and Ray Nitschke. He charged into the middle of them. The next thing he knew, he says, "I was four feet off the ground. Willie had one leg, Nitschke the other. Davis said 'Okay Ray baby, make it wish.'"...

Joe Ryan, the great Kansas runner, was feted at a gala luncheon in New York city. Later he was besieged by hundreds of autograph seekers. As he sat, head down, signing the papers, his mother, an impish woman, thought she would fool her famous son and get an autograph of her own. She joined the line in front of Joe. He never looked up. When she got home she looked at the paper. It read "Dear Mom, never mind scrawlies."...Bobby Hull told me about Eddie Shack in a game some time ago. Shack streaked in and screened Bobby completely from his teammates. "He helped me to my feet and apologized," said Bobby. "Then he did it again and said it was an accident. He clobbered me the third time," said Hull. "I reminded him that twice he told me it wouldn't happen again." "I know," said Shack, "but you know what, Bob, sometimes I lie a little."

Gordie Howe was watching an amateur hockey team practice and being timed how fast they skated around the rink while carrying the puck. Gordie was so impressed with one young puck-carrier that afterwards he went to the youngster and complimented him, saying it looked like he had the puck nailed to his stick. The youngster grinned, looked around him and said in a low voice, "Do you know that is exactly what I did."...

...Kansas City Chiefs have lineman Bill Pickens, 6-6, 271 pounds said he once stopped at a restaurant that advertised "all you can eat for two dollars." Pickens recalls that after he had consumed ten pieces of chicken, the waitress told him "All you can eat is right. You've had all you can eat."...

Belleville hockey fans of the senior "B" days of the Petes, Belleville, Whitby, B'nguise days will recall when Wild Bill McMaster was playing for the Petes. In a hot battle with the Dunlops the Petes Wild Bill tangled with big Ben Gezzola and in the fracas bit the big Dunlop drawing blood from an ear. The Petes coach Eddie Redmond admonished McMaster afterwards with "Tch, tch, Bill, you know you shouldn't eat meat on Fridays." A sequel to this yarn is that the next time the Petes played the Dunlops, McMaster found a bottle of catsup on his seat in the dressing room... True or false?

And speaking of senior "B" days, this reporter recalls the night the Belleville entry trekked to Clinton, N.Y. to play a weekend series of exhibition games. On the return bus trip, Johnny Green decided he was hungry enough to eat anything. He was. He picked on the reporter's hat and had chewed half the rim off it before he decided it was not chicken. After the laughter and "neats" had subsided, the gang took up a collection to re-cover the reportorial nozzle.

On another occasion we took a fan to Pembroke via the train bus and by game time he was nowhere to be found or near. He came to the press box where he spent most of the time snoozing on the floor and bookbag for a last set of artificial molars. On the trip home he went to all the players with "That's the best darn game of hockey I ever saw you guys play."

Mo-Hawk Miscues Costly; Lose 7-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

WOODSTOCK — The Mo-Hawks dropped back into ninth place in the OHA Senior "A" standing here yesterday when they dropped a battle of defensive mistakes to the Woodstock Alcans.

The score was 7-4 — with the Mo-Hawks committing the lion's share of the miscues and the Alcans proving the better opportunists.

The small, dimly-lighted arena here is a tough one for the goalies. Neither Woodstock's Al Bennett nor Belleville's Joe Junkin looked overly sharp although Junkin pulled off some good stops in the first period when the visitors held a 15-5 shooting margin. Over the route the Alcans outshot Belleville 39-31.

Toronto Marlboros visit Belleville for an 8.30 meeting with the Mo-Hawks Tuesday.

Woodstock spotted their visitors an early 1-0 lead yesterday before pulling ahead 2-1 by period's end and 5-1 half way through the game. It was a 6-2 contest going into the third when the Mo-Hawks outplayed the Alcans and outscored them 2-1.

Centre Dan Mahony and linemates Wayne Boddy and Art Sullivan enjoyed a big point production for the victors. Mahony scored two goals and assisted on three others. Boddy had a goal and three assists and Sullivan one of each. Dino Leggio, Bob Robertson and Tommy Walker notched the other goals.

Belleville's leading point-getters, Menard and Jones, were held to one assist, that by Dava Jones. Greg Marchen, Eddie Mariseau, John "Shaker" Baker and Hec Lalonde were the marksmen. George Godson assisted on two, Baker, Bob Taylor, Wayne McConnell and Lionel Bally on one each.

Lalonde, quickly rounding into form, displayed some fine stickhandling and passing in a sound performance. Ralph Plane, who has been playing despite a kidney injury, was dressed but did not see action.

Each club's first goal came with the opposition two men short. Marchen beat Bennett with a blueline shot at 4:23 and Leggio tied it with a blast from the right side seconds after Junkin had robbed Boddy.

Junkin and his mates faltered early in the second. Sullivan scored into a wide open net when the puck came out from the side and Junkin lost both it and his stick at 2:46. Walker netted a corner drive at 5:34 and Mahoney pulled a pretty deke to earn a point-blank goal for a big 5-1 score near the mid-way mark.

Phoenix Stops Reds, Kings

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Hockey League's soft touches turned tough during the weekend.

Phoenix Roadrunners, last in the five-team WHL when the weekend began, picked up three points in two games while on an interlocking swing through the American Hockey League.

The Roadrunners bumped Springfield Kings 4-2 Saturday and tied Providence Reds 2-2 before Sunday.

The points gave Phoenix a share of fourth place with Vancouver Canucks, who dumped WHL leading Seattle Totems 6-1 before a crowd of 10,000 in Seattle Saturday.

Second - place Portland Buckaroos edged San Diego Gulls 3-1 at Portland Saturday in the weekend's only other action.

AUTO RACER DIES

RUFINO, Argentina (AP) — Driver Norberto Polinori was killed Sunday in an accident on the third lap of the 308-kilometre Rufino Auto Race. Polinori died when run over by another car while inspecting his own car after a routine accident.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The word is out in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior section—watch Moe Galaiel!

Galaiel, reputed to be 37, had his second big game in a row Saturday night when he scored three goals to guide Toronto Marlboros to a 4-3 victory over Collingwood Kings.

The veteran fired two goals late in a game at Belleville last Tuesday to spark a 4-2 victory over the Mo-Hawks, and snap a five-game Marlies losing streak.

Galaiel also got a goal Sunday at Barrie as the Marlies swamped the Flyers 6-1.

In games Saturday, the league - leading Galt Hornets edged Woodstock Alcans 5-4, and Kingston Aces clipped Guelph Regals 8-3.

A 32-yard scoring burst by quarterback Allen Smith was the only major score of the game as Hamilton's talented defensive unit outmanded their Ottawa counterparts in the first game of a two-game, total-point Eastern Football Conference final.

The next game is set for Hamilton's Civic Stadium next Saturday when the Tiger-Cats again hope to contain Ottawa's torrid touchdown twins—Whit Tucker and Margene Adkins—and aven'e a humiliating defeat suffered in the 1966 final, losing the last home-and-home series 73-17.

The winner of Saturday's game advances to the Grey Cup final Saturday, Dec. 2, in Ottawa against either Calgary Stampeders or Saskatchewan Roughriders, the defending Canadian Football League champions.

This is the fifth straight year Hamilton and Ottawa have met in the conference final with last year's setback the only time the Ticats have missed reaching the Grey Cup final.

Hamilton's rugged defensive team set up the winning scoring play with less than a minute gone in the game when Ottawa's Don Gilbert had the ball jolted loose and the Ticats recovered at the Rider 41 yard line.

Two plays later, Smith, picked up earlier in the week from Buffalo Bills of the American Football League, made his debut in Canadian football by taking a handoff into the line. The hole was closed, but Smith changed directions and shooted around the right side of the line using his great speed to leave the Ottawa defensive backfield behind.

After the touchdown, Hamilton's defence took over and held Ottawa to a third-quarter field goal by Don Sutherin.

Hamilton also intercepted three passes by Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson and held the usually high - scoring Ottawa team in check both on the ground and in the air.

Fullback Bo Scott, who battered through the Hamilton line for 65 yards in 20 carries, gave Hamilton two points late in game by fumbling a pitch-out from Jackson. He had to dive on the loose ball in the Ottawa end zone for a safety touch.

Hamilton's three other points came on kicks. Tommy Joe Coffey converted Smith's touchdown and added a single on one of his two field goal attempts that went wide. Quarterback Joe Zuger punted for singles.

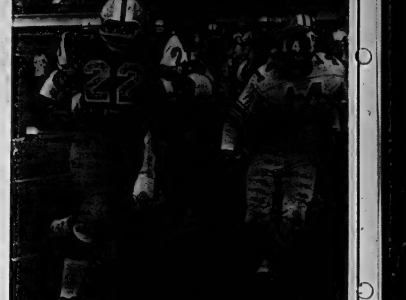
Despite good protection against the Hamilton defensive line, Jackson was able to complete only eight of 28 passes. He was not entirely to blame for the Riders losing 76 yards gained through the air. His receivers dropped passes five or six times.

The Riders did pick up 141 yards on the ground, but stalled then in scoring range.

Three times they tried for field goals. Sutherin was good on one from 12 yards at a sharp angle but missed from 32 yards out. On the last play of the game Moe Racine was short on a 51-yard try.

While Zuger had better luck passing than Jackson, Ottawa's defence also played a solid game and prevented the Ticats from taking a bigger lead.

In the fourth quarter Hamilton halfback Garney Henley picked off a Jackson pass on the Hamilton 47 and ran in the Ottawa 24. But Zuger couldn't generate an offence and was forced to punt into the wind.



The other interceptions, by Bob Krouse and Ron Brewer, gave Hamilton possession on the Ottawa side of the centre stripe, but deeper penetrations on runbacks were wiped out in both cases by clipping calls.

Zuger threw only 14 passes and completed eight for 104 yards to go with Hamilton's 32-yard rushing total. His favourite target was fullback Willie Bethea, who caught four for 19 yards, but his big gains came on three to end Ted Watkins, a former Ottawa all-star, who grabbed three for 37 yards.

Sutherin broke two ribs late in the game and Adkins suffered a mild concussion while trying to block Hamilton defensive half Ted Page. He was taken to hospital overnight for observation.

Jackson tossed to halfback Ronnie Stewart three times for 23 yards and completed two with Gilbert for 34. His big payoff bombs to end Adkins and flanker Tucker were handled easily by the Hamilton halfbacks throughout the game. Tucker got loose to catch only one pass, for 11 yards, and Adkins didn't catch any.

Despite a steady snowfall Saturday, the field was bare. A plastic tarpaulin was removed from the field Sunday morning and replaced immediately after the game when the snow started falling again.

Enter College Final

Marauders Blank X-Men

HALIFAX (CP) — McMaster University Marauders survived the oddsmakers, a muddy field and 4,000 rain-drenched partisan St. Francis Xavier fans to down the X-men 7-0 in the Atlantic Bowl Saturday to earn a berth in next Saturday's Canadian College football final in Toronto.

Both teams were unbeaten going into the game and the X-men were ranked No. 1 in the country to McMaster's No. 3 by Canadian college football ratings.

A second-quarter single by Tom Allan gave the Marauders their winning margin but quarterback Dick Waring added the insurance points when he climaxed a 100-yard march eight minutes later by wading off tackle on a eight-yard touchdown run.

St. FX coach Don Loney, who said his Maritime college champions blew the game twice, wished the Marauders well in the Canadian championship.

"We'll be IN" them because they're from the East," said Loney, whose X-men defeated Waterloo Lutheran 40-14 in the 1966 College Bowl.

"We lost it twice," said Loney of the muddied St. FX dressing room. Referring to scoring opportunities in the first and final quarters, Loney said "we had our chances, but didn't take advantage of them."

BLUES WIN TWICE

HALIFAX (CP) — University of Toronto Blues, Canadian intercollegiate hockey champions the last two seasons, defeated Halifax Canadiens 3-4 and 10-4 in a pair of weekend exhibition games. The Blues came from behind to edge the Junior Canadiens Saturday but were in command all the way Sunday.

Satellites Win Grid Title

TORONTO (CP) — Brampton Satellites slogged their way to a 4-0 victory over St. Vital Bulldogs Saturday in the Canadian senior football final played in a quagmire at Etobicoke Centennial Stadium.

For the Satellites, formerly East York Argos, it was an unprecedented fourth straight Canadian title, their 53rd win in 55 games, and revenged a setback to the Bulldogs in the 1962 final.

With the muddy field providing little solid footing, both teams found their offensive efforts bogged down.

Spurs Blank Chelsea

Manchester U. Opens Gap

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United staved off a late rally and defeated Southampton 3-2 Saturday to increase to two points its lead at the top of the English First Division soccer standings.

In a London game marked by the arrest of numerous spectators but no serious injuries, Tottenham Hotspurs blanked Chelsea 2-0 to go into a deadlock with Manchester City and Liverpool at 22 points.

Liverpool, held to a 1-1 tie by Sunderland, still is second on goal average. And Manchester City, which downed West Ham 3-2, is ahead of Tottenham on goal average.

Fifteen persons were arrested at Tottenham Stadium after disturbances in the crowd of 52,007. Five were charged with possession of offensive weapons, including a meat hook.

There also was trouble in the crowd at a game between two London teams in the Second Division game—Crystal Palace and Millwall. Several spectators were escorted from the stadium.

Goals by John Aston, Brian Kidd and Bobby Charlton to one by Ron Davies gave Manchester United a 3-1 halftime lead over Southampton United successfully withstood heavy second-half pressure. Martin Chivers scored for Southampton in the 56th minute and later put the ball in the net again but was ruled offside.

Sunderland was unlucky in its tie with Liverpool, which couldn't dent the Sunderland net. Liverpool got its point when Sunderland's Colin Todd kicked the ball into his own goal. In the 83rd minute Ralph Brand missed a great chance to give Sunderland the victory when he shot wide with only the goalkeeper to beat.

Blackpool, with goals by Gerry Ingram and Jimmy Robson, downed Charlton Athletic 2-0 and kept its one-point lead at the head of Division II. Second-

Three Teams Top Tied

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Rain postponed the last round of the $115,000 Haig Scotch Golf championship and 52 teams were in play today, although the weatherman said there is a 20 per cent chance of rain.

Three teams dropped out of competition Sunday when the delay was announced because of prior commitments for Monday. They are Bruce Crampton and Ted Makagna, Tommy Bolt and Tom Weiskopf and R. Sikes and J. D. Sikes.

Tied for the lead after three rounds at 203 were Richard Martinez of Laguna Beach, Calif., and Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif., and the duo of Howie Johnson of Palm Springs, Calif., and Lee Trevino of Horizon City, Tex. They are 13 under par for 54 holes. At 204 is the team of Dave Stockton of San Bernardino, Calif., and Laurie Hammer of Sarasota, Fla.

Well back in the pack tied for 16th place are the Canadian twosome of George Knudson and Al Balding, both of Toronto. They shot a 72 Saturday for a total of 211.

The rain, the first measurable precipitation at this Southern California spot since June, stopped play at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

Members of a team both hit tee shots and then pick the better drive to play out the hole, the golfers alternating shots.

Canada Finishes Second

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The United States team shot a total of 903 to whip squads from 16 other countries Saturday in the first World senior amateur team golf championship.

The Americans were led over the tough par 72 No. 2 championship course in the closing round Saturday by Ken Palmer of Lincoln Park, Mich., whose 71 was one of the few under-par scores of the windswept four-day tournament.

Scores were based on the three low men of each four-man team in the 72-hole tournament.

Following in order were Australia 940, Great Britain-Ireland 941, Japan 958, France 971, Germany 975, Zambia 982, Bermuda 1,007, Switzerland 1,047, and Italy 1,053.

Stamps Snatch 4th-Quarter Win From Saskys

CALGARY (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders were back at the drawing board today, down one game in the Western Football Conference final and, perhaps worse, minus at least one top defensive end.

Though Saskatchewan mounted an effective balanced offence on Saturday, Calgary Stampeders' defence came through and held off the Riders for a 15-11 win in the first final game.

Preparing for Wednesday night's second game of the best-of-three final in Regina, the Roughriders were without Garnet "Ekstran, who pulled a hamstring while grabbing Calgary quarterback Peter Liske.

Liske, often harrassed and throwing against an inspired Saskatchewan secondary, completed a touchdown pass to Terry Evanshen in the second quarter and another—the winner—to Lovell Coleman in the fourth period.

Bill Goods converted both touchdowns and Jim Furlong punted with a 30-m.p.h. wind for a single. The lead changed hands in each quarter in 30-degree weather before 21,631 spectators.

Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan tossed a 16-yard touchdown pass to Hugh Campbell in the third quarter. Jack Abendschan converted, scored a single and a 42-yard field goal.

"It[illegible]y costly, mighty costly," said Jim Duncan, Saskatchewan assistant coach, reporting Ekstran has "had the course" and defensive end Don Gerhardt picked up a knee injury in the second quarter.

Saskatchewan's defence intercepted three of Liske's passes—two by Bob Kosid and one by Dale West. Calgary's defence, led by Wayne Harris, also made three interceptions.

Duncan tabbed the "big play" as a diving catch by flanker Gerry Shaw of Calgary in the final quarter but equally big was the Stampeders' defensive effort in the late stages of the second.

The Riders "controlled the ball too well," said Calgary coach Jerry Williams. But his defence worked the clock and the drive died on the Calgary eight on a fake field goal pass to Jim Worden.

"When you get down to three minutes it's hard to move fast against them," said Campbell, who got behind Bill Gaskins for a third-quarter touchdown pass to put Saskatchewan ahead 11-7.

The Roughriders had the edge on the ground with powerful George Reed and 126 yards rushing to Calgary's 22. The Stampeders had the margin in the air with 367 yards to the Roughriders' 153.

Liske completed 15 of 27 passes for 225 yards and Lancaster 14 of 29. The Roughies had an unexpected edge with Al Ford punting nine times for a 39.8-yard average and Furlong nine for 36.1.

If necessary, the third game will be at Calgary Saturday Nov. 28.

Campbellford Ties Picton

Oil Kings Nip Flyers

One week ago Picton Merchants whipped Campbellford 12-8 in OHA Intermediate play but yesterday they found goalie Father Appleton and his mates a different club.

Picton had to overcome an early 2-0 deficit and ended up with a 4-4 tie in the contest played in Picton last evening.

Elsewhere,- Belleville Oil Kings snapped a 2-2 tie late in the second period at Tweed and shaded the CFB Fivers of Trenton 4-2.

The Oil Kings are scheduled to play in Napanee tonight while Picton, still undefeated, are idle until Campbellford visit for the third consecutive time next Sunday.

Belleville jumped ahead of Trenton 2-1 in the first period in Tweed Sunday afternoon. "Pop" Keller and Hyde Bryant sandwiched goals around one by the Flyers' LaRock. Joe St. Pierre notched the tying goal at 13.00 of the second.

Keller triggered the winning marker at 16.30 and Bill Moxon in the Oil Kings' net threw back the Flyers' bids over the remainder to protect the one-goal margin until Carl Boomhower scored late in empty net at 19.54 of the third period.

The winners held a slim 33-30 shots-on-goal edge over the distance.

Belleville was minus a couple of regular players. Defenceman Gary Reid is lost to the club, perhaps for the season, with a fractured knee-cap. Jerry St. Denis missed yesterday's game with a broken nose.

In Picton, the Merchants blasted 48 shots at Father Appleton but the goal-tending priest kicked out 42, including 18 without a slip in the third period. Campbellford led 2-1 after one period and trailed 4-3 going into the third.

Fry scored the tying goal for the visitors at 12.32 of the third. Fife, Meagher and Seymour had their marking goals.

Picton scorers were Billy Hopkins, George Jarblin, Carl Storey and Joe Scott. Tom O'Halloran in the Merchants' goal faced 29 shots.

According to unofficial figures here, Picton has won three and tied one in four league starts.

Bruins Whip Leafs, Rangers; Hawks Tie; Kings Stop Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a weekend that every true blueblooded National Hockey League fan had been waiting three years to see.

Al MacNeil, a native of Sydney, scored his first goal in three years and Darryl MacDonald of New Glasgow, N.S., got three after spending the last three seasons in the minor leagues.

MacNeil, 32, who scored his last NHL goal with Chicago Black Hawks during the 1966-67 season, scored the scoring for Pittsburgh Saturday night and the Penguins went on to a 5-3 victory over St. Louis Blues.

MacDonald, 26, whose last games in the NHL were with Detroit Red Wings during 1980-67, got his three in the second period Sunday to lead Los Angeles Kings to a 4-3 victory over Montreal Canadiens.

He also assisted on the fourth goal to bring his season points total to 16 with six goals and 10 assists.

Boston Bruins walloped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 in other Sunday action, while New York Rangers defeated Minnesota North Stars 5-2, Detroit and Chicago battled to a 2-2 tie and Vancouver Canucks edged St. Louis 3-2.

Oakland Seals edged Montreal 3-1 Saturday as Chicago and Toronto tied 5-5, Boston downed New York 8-1, Philadelphia and Minnesota played to a 3-3 tie, and Pittsburgh defeated St. Louis 5-3.

The weekend action gave Detroit a one-point lead over Boston and Toronto atop the Eastern Division, while Los Angeles managed to cling to a one-point lead over Philadelphia in the Western Division.

Detroit has 21 points after 17 games, and Los Angeles has 19 points after 17 starts.

Scoring leader Bobby Hull could manage only one assist during the Black Hawks' two weekend ties, but maintained a five-point lead over Detroit's Gordie Howe, who failed to get a point, and New York's Jean Ratelle, who scored one goal and two assists.

Hull has 24 points, including 15 goals.

Chicago coach Billy Reay said during the weekend that Hull should actually be going better.

"If anything, Bobby should have more than 15 goals," Reay said.

The Hawks have scored 44 goals this season—second only to Montreal's 58 as the lowest in the East-ern Division—and have allowed 58. They are in last place with 15 points, one behind the Canadiens.

Brian Campbell scored the other goal for Los Angeles in a game that was marred in the final minutes by a scrapbrawl around the Montreal players' bench. A fan attacked Montreal coach Tue Blake, but several players retaliated and the man was bloodied and beaten off.

Doug Mohns and Wayne Maki scored for Chicago as the Black Hawks stretched their unbeaten string to nine games which includes five victories and four ties.

It also marked the first time rookie goaltender Roy Edwards of Detroit had allowed more than one goal in five NHL games.

Bruce Henderson and Bart Crashley scored the Detroit goals as Edwards remained undefeated this season. He was unbeaten in nine games with Fort Worth of the Central Professional Hockey League before moving to the Red Wings.

The game wound up with a melee on the ice when Gordon Kannegiesser of St. Louis jumped on Van Impe and Pat Hannigan came to the aid of his Philadelphia team-mate.

Eddie Shack, a former member of the Leafs, paced the Bruins with two goals and one assist. He now has six goals in 14 games. Derek Sanderson, Phil Esposito, Al Secord, Rick and Glen Sather also scored for Boston as the Bruins fired 33 shots at veteran goaltender Johnny Bower in the first 34 minutes. Bower left the game in favor of alternate Bruce Gamble.

Brian Conacher and Ron Ellis were the Toronto marksmen.

Gerry Odrowski and George Swarbrick scored the oakland goals. Saturday. Ralph Backstrom replied for Montreal.

Ab McDonald, Paul Andrea, Art Stratton and Jim Roberts got the other Pittsburgh goals after MacNeil opened the scoring. Terry Crisp, Ken Schinkel and Roger Picard replied for St. Louis.

Buzyk scored twice for Boston Saturday, while Derek Sanderson added the other. Marshall got New York's lone goal.

Bears' Bombs Blast Cards Off Perch

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago Bears, who spent half a season prying open the bomb bay doors, have started dropping blockbusters all around the National Football League.

Chicago, which failed to complete a touchdown pass until the closing minutes of its seventh game, blasted St. Louis Cardinals 30-3 Sunday at R. F. Kennedy Stadium loosed scoring bombs of 51, 67 and 93 yards.

A week ago, sub quarterback Larry Rakestraw stepped up in the second quarter and unleashed three TD passes in a 34-7 triumph over New York Giants.

"I guess you have to give Larry a little credit for my big day today," Concannon said after stashing the Cardinals' defence for 359 air yards. "Sometimes, these things can be contagious."

The Bears' third straight victory squared their season record at 5-5 in the NFC's Central Division. The loss dropped the Cards, 5-6-1, out of first place in the wide-open Century Division race.

Cleveland Browns, 6-4, grabbed the Century lead by edging Minnesota Vikings 14-10 on Leroy Kelly's three-inch TD plunge with 28 seconds to play.

The Giants 5-5, also stayed in contention, one game off the Browns' pace, with a 35-30 victory over Pittsburgh Steelers—but lost running back Tucker Frederickson for the remainder of the season when he suffered torn ligaments in his right knee.

Unbeaten Dallas Cowboys drubbed Detroit Lions 41-7, Los Angeles Rams downed Atlanta Falcons 21-3, Green Bay Packers thumped San Francisco 49ers 13-6, Washington Redskins surprised Dallas Cowboys 27-20 and Philadelphia Eagles smashed New Orleans Saints 48-21.

The eight-game program established a one-day NFL attendance mark of 482,980, the perfect average topping 60,000 for the first time ever.

The Bears spotted St. Louis a first-period field goal by Jim Bakken before moving ahead to stay on Concannon's six-yard run, which capped a 70-yard drive.

Concannon's 93-yard bomb to Dick Gordon—longest TD pass play in the league this year—then touched off a 30-point second period burst.

Kelly's second touchdown of the game carried Cleveland by past the Vikings after Walter Johnson recovered Dave Osborn's fumble on the Browns' 47 with 3:36 remaining.

The Giants lost Frederickson on the first drive tackle Jim Morse, who broke his left leg, in the first period. But Randy Wiggins, subbing for Frederickson, scored two touchdowns and Fran Tarkenton passed 25 yards to Gordon Jones for the Giants' as New York overcame an early 6-0 deficit.

The Colts' Johnny Unitas crossed up Detroit by turning loose a powerful running attack that netted 199 yards. Tom Matte led the way with 119 yards and two touchdowns, in 17 carries as the Coastal Division

Baltimore Clippers downed Binghamton Dusters 5-1, Buffalo rapped Hershey Bears 4-2, Rochester edged Providence 3-2 and Springfield downed Phoenix 4-3 Saturday.

Andre Lacroix led the Aces Sunday with three goals, while Simon Nolet and Keith Wright added two each. Jim Johnson, Mike Roulin and Larose got the others.

Mike Byers scored twice for Springfield, while Hextall, Brunon Horvath, Jean-Paul Parise and Dick Gamble added the others.

Habs Whip Generals

Flyers Trim Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hap Emms ended a 15-year hockey drought Saturday night as Niagara Falls Flyers celebrated by whipping Toronto Marlboros for the third time in a row.

The score was 4-3 but Emms' Flyers' general-manager, took most of the attention in whipping the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action from his seat in the Maple Leaf Gardens.

It was the first time he has attended a game on a Sunday in his 15 years as general manager of the National Hockey League.

In other weekend games, Kitchener Rangers knocked off twice, 7-3 over Oshawa Generals on Saturday, and 5-4 over St. Catharines Black Hawks Sunday. In the other game played Sunday, Hamilton Red Wings trounced Ottawa 67s 10-1.

Two goal performances by Steve Atkinson and Tom Webster propelled the Flyers, enabling them to maintain a four-point lead in fifth place over the Red Wings.

The Marlies, playing before 6,622 fans, got two goals from John Wright and one from Doug Acombe.

Centre Ross Webley of Niagara Falls broke up the game and was checked into the boards in the second period.

Canadiens spoil a wild weekend. Eight major and three misconduct penalties were handed out in the third period of their game in Oshawa. Ralph Stewart was the Montreal star, scoring two goals and assisting on another. Norm Descouteaux, Rejean Houle, Marc Tardif, Arthur Despardi and Jacques Grenier also got in the act for the Canadiens.

In St. Catharines, goals by Tardif and Michel Jacques in the last five minutes gave Canadiens their win. Wanderers Bob Gratton, Houle and Andre Gaudette got the other Montreal goals.

The Red Wings moved to their 10th win, led by veteran Danny Lawson's three goals. Rookie Rich Preston scored twice for Hamilton, and single goals went to Gary Coalter, Ron Climie, Ray Lecierc, Eddie Halonde, Ray Sonmor and Jim Pierre Jarry was Ottawa's only scorer.

N.H.L. Scoring Leaders

Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens snapped a seven-game his third-place standing among National Hockey League scorers during the week-end, but there generally was little change at the top of the standings.

All the action was reserved for further down there Lowell MacDonald of Pittsburgh and Irvine of Los Angeles Kings joined the select few, each with 16 points.

MacDonald, a native of New Glasgow, N.S., scored twice Los Angeles goals and assisted on the fourth as the Kings beat Montreal 4-3 to retain their Western Division lead. He now has six goals and 10 assists.

Irvide's three assists in the game gave him the same totals. They are far off the pace set by Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers.

Hull got an assist Sunday as Black Hawks tied Detroit 2-2 to give him 15 goals, nine assists and 24 points. Ratelle scored a goal and assist as Rangers beat Minnesota North Stars 5-2 for five points and 24 assists. He has 19 points, the same as Howe on 11 goals and eight assists.

Other Sunday scorers Bryan Campbell scored once Sunday and assisted on the other three Los Angeles goals to push on two goals and eight assists.

Devaluation of Pound Sterling Signals New Battle of Britain

NEW YORK (AP) — The devaluation of the pound sterling signals another great Battle of Britain and, as in previous military and economic wars, much of it will be fought with the sweat and tears of its ordinary citizens.

British workers are "now on their mettle," said Prime Minister Wilson. They must make more goods to raise exports to earn money to pay their country's bills. And they must deny themselves the rewards of working harder.

For six straight years Britain has been unable to send more goods abroad than it imported, meaning it was living beyond its means. This diluted the relative value of its currency.

This latest predicament of Britain deeply involves the United States, among many other nations. There now are bound to be suspicions that the U.S., which also has a balance-of-payments problems, might devalue the dollar.

Such rumors will be turned ridiculous by monetary officials, but they are far from being absurd.

Sunday the U.S. Federal Reserve Board boosted its lending rate. In raising to 4.5 per cent from four the price it charges banks to borrow, the Federal Reserve Board conceded that investment money could begin to flow from the United States to Britain, attracted by rate increases there. The Bank of Canada, too, raised its discount rate, to six per cent from five.

This, then, is perhaps the most immediate effect of the British action. And it is an important one, too, for after a delay of weeks or months it likely will exert pressure on all other interest rates.

Chancellor of Exchequer Long Enemy of Devaluation

LONDON (CP) — A source close to James Callaghan says that a month after the chancellor of the exchequer took office in 1964 he was approached by a prominent European banker who urged that the pound be devalued by 13.5 per cent.

Callaghan, who one day plans to make public the name of that banker, refused. He would not accept any "soft options," insisting that Britain must maintain a constant struggle to overcome her international payments problem without devaluation.

Twenty times since, the Labor government took office, Callaghan and his colleagues emphatically rejected devaluation proposals. Last July the chancellor told Parliament that those who favored cheapening of the currency were deluding themselves. It would merely mean a reduction in the standard of living at home.

Now in a sudden reversal, Callaghan defends devaluation as a magnet to attract more foreign currency to Britain and as a means to build surpluses to pay off huge debts.

The immediate impression among some observers who have been able to speak to the chancellor is that he has been pushed in a corner. While he maintains he coolly planned devaluation for two weeks, he also is reported to have said he acted under "the heavy weight of propaganda" against the pound.

There is much evidence that Callaghan found himself in a crisis and worked in desperation to rescue Labor's tattered economic policy.

Whether Callaghan now will be switched from his post is a matter of much speculation. A lot may depend on the early results of devaluation.

While a high cabinet source says there is no split in the government and there will be no general election, there is some suggestion that not all of Prime Minister Wilson's supporters favor cutting the pound.

Translating Sterling Into Dollars Difficult

LONDON (CP) — Canadians living in Britain will face a small devaluation problem not met by Britons.

It results from the fact that the Canadian, on making at a British price, mentally translates it into dollars and cents. He does the reverse for the pounds in his pocket and decides whether he'll buy.

Until now, it's been relatively simple. The pound was a nice $3 in Canadian funds, the shilling an even 15 cents. Seventy-five cents equalled five shillings, which bought a pack of cigarettes with something to spare. A dime was eightpence, the price of a short subway ride and until recently a good cup of coffee. Fourpence, or 5c as even nickie, was good for miles on a bus.

Now, the mental calculations became fiendishly complex. The pound is $2.57 Canadian; the shilling something like 12 4-5 cents, though not exactly; five shillings work out to around 64 cents. The dime is nine pence and a fraction, and the nickel 4½ pence and a bit.

There is the compensation that Canadians paid from home will have more funds to juggle with. A good investment for part of the increment might be an abacus.

Split Within Labor Party Seems Inevitable

LONDON (Reuters) — When Prime Minister Wilson decided to devalue the pound in order to calm Britain's troubled financial waters, he may have unleashed a political storm that could shipwreck his administration, political observers said Sunday.

They said that a fundamental split within the governing Labor party seems inevitable when the impact of the tough austerity measures that go along with devaluation hits Labor's supporters.

Wilson's personal standing and his government's long-term chances of keeping power would be virtually settled by the reaction of Labor supporters within the next few days, they said.

Meanwhile, informed government sources said there are no plans for a cabinet reshuffle. They added they know nothing of rumors that the chancellor of the exchequer, James Callaghan, plans to hand in his resignation.

Some reports said Callaghan wants to be replaced as chancellor and that Foreign Secretary George Brown will also be involved in a switch.

Callaghan will bear the brunt of the already shimmering storm when he gives details of the government's new economic plans to Parliament today.

The broad outlines of a massive campaign emerged Sunday to convince Britons that the government has been in control of the economic situation since it came into power in 1964 and is not now reacting from a position of weakness.

Prime Minister Wilson argued on radio and television that the pound was devalued by 14.3 per cent in an all-out effort to cure the nation's financial ills.

In one of his sharpest criticisms of the government, Heath charged that devaluation was entirely due to Wilson's mishandling of the economy.

Authoritative sources said Callaghan decided two weeks ago that the pound must be devalued for the first time since 1949, and the cabinet agreed to this unanimously Thursday.

Saturday night's government announcement, which ended a week of uncertainty and speculation about the future of one of the world's big trading currencies, also gave news of massive international credits to help Britain out of its troubles.

Britain has already arranged with central banks of unspecified countries credits amounting to $1,000,000,000 and the International Monetary Fund has said it will favorably consider a request for further $1,400,000,000 credit.

The sources said neither of these standby credits were asked for by Britain.

British Goods To Be Cheaper

TORONTO (CP) — Most major exports from Britain, such as cars, whisky and woollens, will be affected by the British decision to devalue the pound, says John Mackie, chairman of the British Automobile Manufacturers Association (Canada).

Mr. Mackie said in an interview Sunday it is "only a matter of how much and when."

"I don't think there's any doubt about a reduction."

Some shop owners here dealing in British goods don't know if parent firms might increase their wholesale prices if retail prices in Canadian consumers are reduced.

Ernest F. Carr, president of the Canadian Importers' Association, said: "It should make it easier for Canadians to buy British goods. They should get more value for their dollars. But that's rather evident."

J. T. Wood, vice-president and general manager of Household Finance Corp. of Canada, said the increase in bank rates would have a stabilizing effect on the economy.

Mr. Wood said he doubts the increase in the bank rate would create higher interest rates for commercial and other borrowers. He said the rates are already high and there might be an influx of United States funds if they increase much more.

Brown Blasts Miner

LONDON (Reuters) — A new storm broke around the head of British Foreign Secretary George Brown Sunday with a complaint about some remarks he blurted out in the House of Commons bar.

The matter arose in a public statement issued by an official of the National Union of Mineworkers, telling how Brown had tried to squeeze past him one crowded day at the bar.

The official, Jim Oldham, said Brown told him:

"You miners have never had it so bloody good. What do you mean, coming down here marching and protesting against a Labor government."

Oldham quoted Brown as also saying:

"The trouble with you is you have had it too good and it's time someone told you what I told Lord Thomson the other week."

This was an apparent reference to a controversial incident at a recent dinner party during which Brown caused a furore with an impromptu remark in which he criticized Lord Thomson, the Canadian-born newspaper publisher.

Common Market Lands Will Help Bolster Sterling

PARIS (Reuters) — All six European Common Market countries will contribute to a $1,400,000,000 International Monetary Fund loan for Britain to help bolster the devalued pound sterling, West German Finance Minister Franz- Josef Strauss said Sunday night.

The West German contribution would be $200,000,000, he told correspondents after a meeting of Common Market finance ministers held here at invitation of France.

Besides West Germany, the Common Market countries are France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

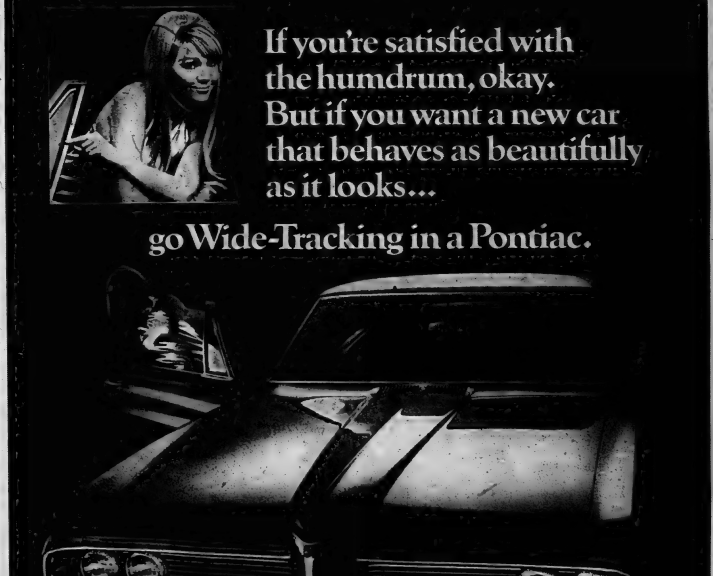
Grivas May Stay In Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Gen. George Grivas, Greek commander of the armed forces of Cyprus, arrived in Athens Sunday for consultations with military leaders amid speculation he is being relieved of his command.

Asked when he will return to the Mediterranean island, where trouble between Greek and Turkish - Cyprots threatens to plunge Greece and Turkey into war, Grivas replied;

"It depends."

In Ankara, Turkey, diplomats reported one of the demands the Turkish government had made on Greece was the removal of Grivas from Cyprus.



Grivas has been a hero of Greek-Cypriots. He led the Greek-Cypriot uprising for independence from Britain in the 1950s. Britain finally granted independence in 1960.

Reports in Athens were that the Greek military regime was ousting Grivas from command because he had disobeyed instructions from Greek military chiefs to end an attack by Greek-Cypriot armed forces Wednesday against the Turkish-Cypriot villages of Kophinou and Ayios Theodoros. Twenty-five Turks and two Greeks were killed.

Dispatches from Nicosia, the capital of Cyprus, reported relative calm on Cyprus Sunday, but the government there reported sighting Turkish Air Force jets flying at low levels over northern coastal areas and near Nicosia's airport.

Unprecedented Move

'Parade of Concern' in Nova Scotia Draws 20,000 Marchers

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Nova Scotians closed ranks behind Cape Breton steelworkers here Sunday in a massive demonstration unprecedented in the history of the province.

In a "parade of concern" for the employees of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp.'s steel plant here, an estimated 20,000 persons marched through the streets, carrying placards denouncing the company for its announced April 30, 1968, shutdown of the plant.

The 2,300-man mill is the economic backbone of this city.

Led by a group carrying a huge banner which read "O Canada, S O S, Save our Steel —Cape Breton always supported Canada 100 per cent," the marchers assembled at the gate of the steel plant.

The march, organized by union, church and civic leaders, was orderly and without incident.

As the crowds grew new signs appeared. Some read, "Hawker Siddeley let us down" and "Hitler 1939—Hawker Siddeley—1967."

These were in reference to the Hawker Siddeley group of England, Dosco's parent company.

The ranks of demonstrators included housewives—some carrying their children, miners, steelworkers, students and even placard-carrying nuns.

Canon Melvin French of nearby Sydney Mines, an organizer of the march, said:

"Sooner or later we had to get together or the lid would have blown off. . . . There was a feeling there."

Mayor Russell Urquhart said he was hopeful the demonstration would convince governments of the sincerity of the people and help bring about a solution.

Premier G. I. Smith and Federal Health Minister Allan MacEachen were piped onto the sports centre grandstand and took their places beside other members of Parliament and the legislature.

Premier Smith said he had been in contact with Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec regarding that province's announced interest in purchasing the Dosco works there.

He said it was impossible to say what such a move would mean to the plant here, "but we will continue in constant touch with Quebec."

Mr. MacEachen said he appeared to officially confirm that the federal government would give "direction and assistance in reaching a solution to this problem."

Eamon Park of Toronto, assistant Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America, said:

"One of the most serious problems we face in Canada is that of uneven regional development in our country. We are much more likely to destroy Canada by uneven economic development than we are to fall prey to any separatist speeches."

Romney in Running

Romney Seeks Presidency

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Governor George Romney, who declared his candidacy for the 1968 Republican party presidential nomination by pleading to lead the United States out of the war in Vietnam, said Sunday that neutralizing Vietnam is "the most promising alternative" to the current U.S. policy.

"Neutralization is a specific alternative; it deserves very careful study," said Romney, the first Republican presidential hopeful to throw his hat into the ring."

Romney, speaking on the Columbia Broadcasting System television show Face the Nation, accused President Johnson of handling the Vietnam war with a "ping pong" strategy, escalating the war a little, calling for peace and then escalating the war again.

The current administration leads the American people toward "a mountain of false hope only to fall back in the crevice of sickening reality," Romney charged.

NWT Council: Indians May Not Use $5 Million Town

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Twenty - nine motions are to be introduced today to the 25th session of the Northwest Territories council amid predictions by some councillors of the liveliest debates yet in the week-old fall session.

Many of the motions are directed at securing additional powers from the federal government in a move to hasten provincial status.

The 12-member council will consider a request for a N.W.T. government takeover of all education; four motions aimed at liberalizing liquor laws, and suspension of a $3,000,000 program to build a new Indian community to which, the motion claims, residents of a nearby village might not move.

Councillor Bob Williamson of Rankin Inlet has advised council he will ask that Commissioner Stuart Hodgson urge the federal government to present in the Commons a promised white paper on development of N.W.T. self-government.

The white paper is expected to be largely based on the Carruthers commission report and endorsed by the N.W.T. council. The paper has been tentatively promised for early next year. The Carruthers report recommended gradually shifting powers from Ottawa until the N.W.T. government has authority approaching that of a province.

Councillors are also urging greater emphasis on improved transportation, particularly in the northern parts of the territories where some members have termed service occasional at best and rare during the six weeks of freezeup and breakup each year.

There's a backroom debate going on about whether extension to Yellowknife of the Great Slave Lake Railway, now terminating at Hay River on the south shore of Great Slave Lake, would be economically feasible. The latest major discovery of minerals in the south is around the Pine Point mine, 50 miles east of Hay River accessible by barge in summer and year-round by railway.

Opponents feel that unless further resources discoveries are made in the Yellowknife or surrounding region, the 350-mile railway extension would not be economical.

Legal Aid Available To Ontario Residents

"Ontario has the most sophisticated legal aid system in the world today," said Crowned Solicitor, director for legal aid in the Quinte and Prince Edward area. Explaining the legal aid system to a group of Belleville welfare people at a meeting last week, Mr. Butler emphasized that "it is practically available to everybody."

When a person feels he needs help financially because of litigation he applies for legal aid either himself or through a lawyer. If the section of law that his case will come under is covered by the legal aid program, the application is sent from the legal aid office to the welfare council to determine whether the applicant is eligible.

In borderline cases the recipient is asked to pay back the government in payments or perhaps is awarded a part of the fee. There is a right of appeal if the application is refused.

There are panels according to the type of cases that lawyers (when asked to participate) elect to be on. Mr. Butler reported that in Hastings and Prince Edward there was 90 per cent acceptance of the program. The figure is above the national average.

The Belleville office has a five-day work week and processes an average four applications for legal aid each day. Since the initiation of the program around 400 applicants have been accepted. About 150 have been refused on various grounds. Almost 40 per cent of the applications came from lawyers who were approached by clients for advice.

Although the system is complicated, the red tape is there only as a protection. There are 127 sections in the act and 12 different forms are used for various purposes. In all, the act is controlled by 127 different regulations.

However, it does allow people who would normally not be able to afford counsel to go to court fully represented.

The system also carries advantages for lawyers. Family cases (such as alimony/maintenance and alimony disputes) do not usually pay very much but under legal aid the lawyer is assured of getting paid for his time and advice.

It is also pointed out legal aid covers appeals which are very expensive and in many cases are not made because of the financial burden.

To check the system is possible but Mr. Butler said "there have been very few instances of this . . . if people cheat there is no legal aid for a lawyer."

Most of the lawyers seem to agree that the system does the most good in family cases since usually they are fined because of money problems. One lawyer claimed "if a woman has been left with children sometimes she can hardly afford to feed them, let alone hire a lawyer."

Mr. Butler added it will be divorce, alimony and family cases that the system will be covering more and more in the future.

Lose Two Players

Raiders' Win Costly

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a "must" game for Oakland, one the Raiders had to win to stay atop the Western Division standings in the American Football League. But the price they paid for it may have been too high.

Glen Daniels, their leading rusher and No. 4 in the league, and linebacker Bill Laskey went out with ankle injuries—Daniels possibly with a fracture—in the Raiders' 31-17 victory over Miami Dolphins Sunday.

Both Daniels and Laskey are expected to miss the Thanksgiving Day game at vast tough Kansas City Chiefs while San Diego Chargers, only one-half game back, play a weak Denver Bronco team.

San Diego stayed close with a 35-21 victory over Kansas City. Denver slipped Buffalo Bills 21-20 and New York Jets held off Boston Patriots 29-24 in the other AFL games.

Daryle La Monica threw touchdown passes of eight, nine and 46 yards to Billy Cannon for all the points Oakland needed to beat the young expansion team from Miami.

Daniels bowled over from the one for another touchdown, his sixth of the season.

William Ellis

Trained Staff Needed

"Canada is in urgent need of trained technologists and technicians," said William Ellis, registrar of Belleville's Loyalist College, Friday evening. He charged that for every professional engineer there should be three or four technologists and eight or nine technicians. At present, the opposite appears to be the case.

Mr. Ellis was the guest speaker at a meeting of the Ontario Vocational Education Association. The meeting, held at the new Loyalist College, was attended by vocational teachers from local high schools who have much of interest in Mr. Ellis's topic — "Post-Secondary Education."

This was the first meeting in a series. The OVEA meetings will take place each month on a variety of subjects, but within the framework of a general topic. The next meeting after high school. The next meeting, scheduled for Jan. 19th, at Modra 25 will be concerned with Industrial Training.

Students, employers, and the general public appear to misunderstand the qualifications needed by Loyalist and other colleges; For example' occasionally employers ask for a technologist when a technician is what they had in mind. The OVEA intends to help overcome this and other problems by making a study of the various educational opportunities, and industrial training available in this area.

To Your Good Health

It Is Never Too Late For Flu Vaccinations

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Just a reminder, now that we're getting into the winter season. I know I've reminded readers before, but if you haven't had a flu vaccination, it's never too late, even though it is recommended that immunization be completed by early December.

U.S. experts, from studying the patterns of flu outbreaks, report that they anticipate "a substantial number" of cases of the Asian-type flu this year, primarily in the eastern part of the country. But influenza has a nasty record of fooling us from time to time and breaking out when and where not expected.

The rule for vaccination, if you don't remember, is this: If you haven't had flu vaccine you need two injections, about two months apart.

If you have been vaccinated for it before, you need only one injection, a booster, provided your last flu vaccine was given you some time since the summer of 1963. Personally, however, since protection fades gradually, I prefer two injections if more than a year or two has passed since your last one.

Dear Dr. Molner: By mistake I ate two pieces of pork liver which were not well done. Is there any pre-treatment to prevent getting the disease caused by pork worms when the meat is not thoroughly cooked? — K.N.

There is no pre-treatment. In fact, there is no specific treatment if the disease does develop, except to ease the symptoms. So just hope that the meat you ate was not contaminated.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am violently allergic to eggs. I read that a person allergic to eggs could die if bitten by a bee. Is there something I could take to counteract bee sting? I plan on having a garden again next spring and am terribly worried. — J.M.

Allergy to eggs and bee stings have nothing in common — except that a person strongly allergic to one thing usually has a tendency to be allergic to something else too.

Thus being allergic to eggs is rather feeble cause to suspect that you might be strongly allergic to bee venom also.

If you are that much worried, go to an allergist for tests to see whether you are unduly sensitive to bee venom. If so, he can give you desensitization treatments and advise of first aid in event of a sting.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that wearing eye liner on the lower eyelid is harmful and would eventually cause one to go blind. I have been wearing it for about two years. It hasn't seemed to irritate my eyes, although once in a while I find them bloodshot. I am concerned — T.C.

Cosmetics of any kind, including eye liner, can have an irritating effect on some women, and getting a little of the liner into the eyeball could irritate the delicate membrane. Blindness is not involved, however.

The way some gals pack on the trim, I am surprised that we don't see more red eyeballs.

Dear Dr. Molner: My friends seem to think that going to Florida thins their blood and makes them feel better. I do not agree and we get into arguments. Does a hot climate thin your blood? — X

No, that's an old fiction without any basis in fact. Even your friends may feel better in a warm climate. Some may also have difficulty in becoming used to the cold weather when they return north, but it isn't because their blood is thinner or thicker. The consistency remains the same.

(There are one or two rare conditions in which blood actually becomes thicker from either cold or heat exhaustion, but this has nothing to do with the vast majority of us.)

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Tweed Area Activities

TWEED — There was a good attendance at the card party held Wednesday night in St. Carthagh's Hall, sponsored by the Catholic Women's League. Winners were: Mr. and Mrs. Tracey Quinn, Mrs. John Gehan, James Rivers and Mrs. Vincent Tebo.

Beginning Nov. 21, Dr. C. W. Connor, of Kingston, Ontario, will begin practice in Sharbot Lake one day a week. He has set up an office in the rooms formerly occupied by Dr. Donald Weatherhead, who has moved his dental office to Perth. Dr. Connor will receive patients every Tuesday for both morning and afternoon appointments.

Mr. and Mrs. Vasilis of Toronto have recently purchased the Green Acres Restaurant on highway 37, about 1¼ miles north of Tweed.

The new owners have already made extensive renovations and are now open for business. The restaurant is built on the shores of Skootamatta River, with a picturesque view.

Mrs. W. J. Pigden and children, Actinolite, and Mrs. C. Kleinsteuber, spent a few days recently at Cookeville, visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Wheal on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. James Mills, Peterborough, visited her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dorion Bosley, Tweed, and attended the King — Vandyke wedding in St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed.

Mrs. William Silverthorne, Bridge Street, Tweed, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynn accompanied by Mrs. W. J. Henry, Cobourg, spent the week-end at Oakville and Toronto and attended the graduation exercises at York University, when Marion Mildred Lynn Bander received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Joseph E. Atkinson College.

The Hunters' Dance held in the Centennial Hall, Plevna, was well attended. Edward White and the Mississippi River Boys provided the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Garry Dion, Kingston, spent two days recently in Queensboro and Tweed. They drove to Peterborough and visited there with Mrs. J. M. Feeney before returning to Kingston the following Monday.

Mrs. Stan Lloyst, Arden, has returned to her home after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Ingles, Mr. Ingles and boys in Tweed. Mr. Lloyst and Mr. Ingles spent some time hunting.

Diefenbaker Tells Ukrainians West Must Aid Captive Lands

NEW YORK (CP) — John Diefenbaker former Canadian prime minister, said Sunday night that it's time for Canada, the United States and other Western countries to begin a campaign in the United Nations to have the Soviet Union "live up to the principle of self-determination" for "captive nations" under its rule.

The campaign should call attention to the Government's Soviet stand on self-determination, Diefenbaker told the World Congress of Free Ukrainians.

Saying armed action is free the "captive nations" is unthinkable, the former Conservative leader said the most effective course of action would be a "vigorous call for action" which is "sooner or later" would force the Soviet Union to bow to public opinion and free the Ukraine and other nations under Soviet rule.

Diefenbaker was the main speaker at the banquet and received the Shevchenko Freedom Award, named in honor of Taras Shevchenko, a Ukrainian poet. It was given in recognition of "long and outstanding service to Canada" and his "dedication" to the cause of Ukrainian freedom.

Diefenbaker said the continuing failure of the United Nations to pass a charter of human rights reveals that "many nations have been given lip-service to the UN charter, but are not prepared to produce a binding charter in place of the Declaration of Human Rights."

"If there had been a United Nations charter of human rights, what happened to the people of the Ukraine, the Baltic states and elsewhere in the world could be remedied by international law."

Michael Starr, whom Diefenbaker said was the first Canadian of Ukrainian descent to be named to the Canadian Privy Council, spoke to the congress Saturday and referred to the Ukraine as a land "enslaved" by the Soviet Union.

The former Conservative cabinet minister said no tyranny is more blind "than that exercised by the men of Moscow."

He said the people of the Ukraine "are creatures of a godless and thankless state machine of foreign manufacture, operated by foreigners for the benefit of a foreign system of government."

Part of Starr's speech was given in Ukrainian. Diefenbaker opened his remarks with a greeting in Ukrainian but gave all his speech in English.

Starr also was a head-table guest at Sunday's dinner. Other Canadians at the head table were Msgr. Basil Kushair of Winnipeg, head of the Pan-American Ukrainian Conference, and Lloyd Francis, an MP, a member of the Canadian UN delegation who brought greetings from Prime Minister Pearson.

Canada had about 40 delegates to the conference.

Diefenbaker also said the International Court of Justice should be given compulsory jurisdiction to assure justice among the nations of the world.

"When the U.S.S.R. tramples on the rights and fundamental freedoms of the Ukranian and other captive nations, the world has no jurisdiction to protect the victims in the absence of a voluntary submission of the U.S.S.R. to the court's jurisdiction."

He also called for strengthening of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization without which, he said, talk of freedom is useless.

Johnson Fearful CBC To Be Propaganda Tool

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson has pledged that Quebec intends to be firm with Ottawa to prevent the CBC from becoming a "propaganda agency" for the federal government.

The provincial premier said Saturday at the end of a three-day session of the ruling Union Nationale party the federal government's new bill on broadcasting now before Parliament borders on fascism.

Mr. Johnson criticized the bill because of a section that deals with the promotion of national unity, and said his government will try to obtain control of Radio-Canada network of the CBC.

There can be no definition of national unity without the presence on an equal basis of the French element," Mr. Johnson said. "We don't think an organism like the CBC should promote ideas which originate from one government. This is quite close to fascism."

He said the federal government in Canada is "Liberal and English-speaking, which is still worse," adding, "would you mind censoring that please."

The premier said he has been toying with the idea of taking control of Radio-Canada for the last eight or nine months and that the idea was taken before the caucus which supported it wholeheartedly.

Mr. Johnson said his stand at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto Mar. 30-31 will reflect constitutional views of the Quebec population—and just views of the Union Nationale party.

Asked at his post-caucus press conference whether it would be easier to reflect Quebec opinion by inviting the official Liberal Opposition to form part of the Quebec delegation, the premier replied:

"Which wing of the Liberal party shall I invite?"

He said he did not know where Opposition leader Jean Lesage, head of the provincial Liberal party, stands on the constitutional question.

The premier also said that Sidbec, the government-backed steel company, has been authorized to negotiate for certain steel-making assets of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. outside the Maritime provinces. This did not exclude Ontario.

Asked whether Sidbec would study the possibility of buying a Deace plant in Ontario, Mr. Johnson said: "This possibility is not excluded."

Law Creates Crime

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Most of us would define a "crime" as something that is "against the law." But few of us think of a law as something that "creates crime." It is time we began thinking about it.

One of the most obvious examples is the U.S. law limiting the eligibility of poor families for relief if there is a working father in the household. This law has driven thousands of Negro husbands away from their families so that the wives could collect Aid-to-Dependent-Children allotments.

Even more serious are the laws against gambling, prostitution, drug-taking, and so forth. It is these laws that account for the rise and the influence of "organized crime" in the U.S. This is where and how the Syndicate got its original bankroll.

In all our high moral fulminations against organized crime in the big cities, we rarely stop to consider that the origin of Syndicate crime was the stupid and ineffectual law of Prohibition, which put huge sums into the pockets of gang chieftains who dealt in illegal liquor, and which corrupted hundreds of police forces throughout the nation.

Then, when Prohibition was repealed, the gangs shifted their fields of operation to women, gambling, and dope. They became so rich in these three areas that most of them entered respectable enterprises, and now control thousands of "legitimate" businesses built on loan-sharking.

We cannot stop gambling. We cannot stop prostitution. We cannot stop dope-addiction. These are bad things that people want to do to themselves, and they will find a way to do them, no matter how repressive society becomes. As long as there is a market for these commodities, organized crime will supply it, for the profit is far greater than the risk of punishment.

I do not suggest that gambling, prostitution, or drug-taking be legalized. It is difficult to cope with the aberrations of the human spirit. But it is worth recognizing that organized crime does not make its money by attacking persons or stealing property — it makes it by gratifying needs that are forbidden by society.

As long as these personal vices are considered "crimes" — rather than as pathological disturbances in the social body — organized crime will flourish, police will be corrupted, and politicians will remain susceptible to outside influence. The effort to legalize morality always has the opposite effect, of demoralizing legality.

Front End Alignment

By Ray Stapley

A reader writes:

"Could you explain to your readers the meaning of front end alignment? It seems each year I have to add out $21.50 to have my steering adjusted and I'm wondering if this is actually necessary. My mechanic tells me it's because I drive over rough gravel roads, and if it is not corrected the tread on my front tires will be worn away in no time."

Your mechanic is right. Driving over rough terrain does play havoc with front end alignment, which, when badly out of adjustment, can scuff off the front tire tread in as little as 500 miles.

Most motorists haven't a clue as to what takes place when major surgery is being performed on the angles of the front wheels. The terms "camber", "caster", and "toe-in" seem to mean just so much Sanskrit. However, the car's steering is really fairly easy to understand.

Wheel angles and inclinations are set by the supporting mechanism to achieve easy steering, good tracking and safe manoeuverability while keeping tire wear to a minimum.

Caster is used to allow easy steering and road stability. When you sit in your office you are face to face with the principle of caster. You may have noticed that when you pull the chair, the wheels on their casters swing around and follow behind. The caster is designed so that its swivel point is a little ahead of the wheel. Otherwise it would be impossible to pull the chair in a straight line because all the wheels would tend to go in different directions.

Camber is an adjustment to keep the wheels in proper contact with the pavement and compensate for the slope of the road away from the crown. To balance a bike that you are riding along the side of a hill, you must keep it in a vertical position and at an angle to the hillside. This means the tires are running on only one side of the tread. Camber in the car simply means tilting the wheels to an angle to maintain full tread contact with the road.

Toe-in is the most important adjustment of the three, to overcome the natural tendency of the wheels to toe out, and to compensate for normal play in steering parts. It is this adjustment that prevents tread scuffing off.

Steering adjustment on modern cars is very exacting and must be carried out under scientifically controlled conditions. When I started 19-the garage business 20 years ago, alignment machines were practically unheard of in smaller shops. They were available, but expensive, and many mechanics relied on an assortment of shims and wedges which were pounded into the steering to adjust caster — for better or worse. Camber could only be adjusted by removing and straightening the solid axle.

Measurements were often made with a piece of string stretched between the wheels. If, for instance, it stretched 48" inches from the backof 48" inches from the back of the caliper, the distance between the fronts of the same wheels would have to be 47½ inches to be correct. The motorist was quite happy with these primitive methods if they got results and saved him a buck.

Today's sophisticated equipment requires a skilled technician, and while shims and wedges are still used, they are not bolted in with a hammer.

NDP Scraps Special Status for Quebec, Wants National Poll

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party has scrapped its stand on special status for Quebec in favor of a cross-country survey of grass-roots opinion on constitutional reform.

The new policy, adopted at the weekend session of the party's 105-member federal council, was announced Sunday at a news conference attended by T. C. Douglas, the national leader, and the party executive.

Read first in French by Robert Cliche, the NDP's Quebec leader and associate president, and then in English by James Renwick, NDP national president, the policy statement outlines plans for a public opinion survey that will be followed by interviews with organizations and public debates.

Mr. Renwick said the party hopes to have "a declaration of common objectives" in time for discussion on the constitution at its biennial national convention at Montreal in July, 1969.

The statement said that if basic social, economic and constitutional reforms are required "such changes should only be sought through a new alliance of the Canadian people in which the broadest cross-section of public opinion is represented."

Mr. Douglas said there is a tendency in all parties, including his own, to approach national unity only as a constitutional problem. The constitution was "a tool to be used, not a yoke to be borne."

He said Canadians need to agree on common objectives—full employment, economic growth, housing, health, education—before they will be able to assess what constitutional changes are needed.

The definition of new federal powers must not, however, cut across the rights of French-speaking Canadians or inhibit the expression of their cultural and linguistic heritage.

Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader, complained that Premier Robarts' Confederation for Tomorrow Conference, originally billed as a meeting at which all parties would be represented, was being restricted by its choice of hosts.

The site on the 55th floor of the Toronto-Dominion Centre made it impossible for the news media to involve the public the way they should.

Clifford Scotton, party secretary, opened the news conference with the announcement that the council had approved a 36-per-cent budget increase to pay for additional publicity and research in anticipation of an early federal election.

MP. Douglas said he expected the Conservatives to move a vote of non-confidence in the government in the supply debate today, but if they didn't, his party would.

He said the NDP would not support a Conservative motion that called for a postponement of medical care insurance, but "if it is a straight vote on how they (the Liberals) are handling the economy we would support it."

The federal government could meet its share of the medical care cost without a tax increase by cutting military expenditure.

During the three-day session the federal council continued its study of a lengthy list of resolutions left from the NDP's July convention. They will be dealt with at the council's March meeting in Ottawa.

Resolutions approved stressed the need for:

—Public support to keep farm income commensurate with production costs while at the same time keeping down food prices;

—A housing policy whereby all levels of government will undertake dealing in real estate;

—A science policy to encourage basic research into transportation, pollution and mineral development.

—Provide old age pension of $125 a month at age 65 related, but not tied, to the Consumer price index.

—Levying stiffer penalties against industries which pollute water, air and soils.

—Federal assistance to lower living costs in the North;

—Federal aid to keep the Dominion Steel Coal Co. steel mill at Sydney, N.S., operating until alternative industry can be developed.

Nixon Is GOP Choice

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The latest Gallup poll says rank and file Republicans in the four major regions of the United States favor Richard Nixon for the Republican U.S. presidential nomination in 1968.

The former U.S. vice-president also leads nationally with independents, a group the Gallup poll says is numerically stronger than Republicans for the first time in history, and with dissident Democrats—voters who currently express disapproval of Democratic President Johnson's performance in office.

But the poll shows Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York only a few percentage points behind Nixon with independents and the so-called dissident Democrats.

The findings are based on an early November survey and two previous surveys in which persons were asked to select their top Republican choice from a list of seven.

The latest results show Nixon favored by 42 per cent of the Republican rank and file polled; Rockefeller by 15; Governor George Romney of Michigan 14; Governor Ronald Reagan of California, 13; Senator Charles Percy of Illinois, five and Mayor John Lindsay of New York City and Senator Mark Hatfield of Oregon, three. Five per cent listed no preference.

Two AP Men Tell of Finding Viet Cong Camp in Cambodia

The U.S. command for years has charged that Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces find sanctuary in neighboring Cambodia, charges which Cambodia's ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, has repeatedly denied. Western newspaper men were admitted to Cambodia to cover the visit of Mrs. John F. Kennedy. Two Associated Press men were to the border across from War Zone C, which they have covered from the South Vietnamese side.

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The discovery of a Viet Cong camp site four miles inside Cambodia has angered Prince Norodom Sihanouk and ruined leaders about his past denials that Vietnamese Communist forces were given sanctuary in his country.

Cambodia's ruling prince is said to regard the discovery by an American newspaper men as a fabrication and part of a campaign against him by the U.S. press.

We found the Viet Cong camp, recently used, on the border opposite War Zone C, about 70 miles northwest of Saigon. It had been used for several months and probably was a staging area for the Loc Ninh battle, only nine miles away, earlier this month.

The prince, who contends the United States is the aggressor in Vietnam, is reported to have told intimates our reports were part of a campaign inspired by the U.S. command in Saigon to justify military operations against Cambodia.

We informed Prime Minister Son Sann of the camp site before the stories were published.

His initial reaction was cautious and he said he would make an official investigation.

Evidence of Viet Cong occupancy found in the camp included military rations written in Vietnamese, North Vietnamese medical supplies and similar items. Dated scraps of paper indicated the camp had been used for several months dating back to last February.

There were unmistakable signs that several hundred men had used the camp. Occupants had left only a few days before. From the camp a heavily traveled road headed west through the dense jungle to the frontier, crossing it nine miles from Loc Ninh. Logs had been put down to counteract the monsoon mud. Trucks indicated heavy trucks had used it.

One embarrassed young lieutenant escorting us said perhaps the road was used by timber thieves. Another suggested it was built by the forestry department.

American officers have charged for years that the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese use Cambodia as a sanctuary when the going gets too rough for them.

American authorities in Vietnam have pinpointed at least 20 permanent camp sites. Many of them are in a five-mile area adjoining the border where the Cambodian Army does not patrol. Frontier security is left almost entirely to village militiamen, a questionable force open to Viet Cong pressure and infiltration.

Pike Said 'Tragic' Example

HAMILTON (CP) — Episcopal Bishop James Pike of California was told Saturday he is "one of the most tragic examples of the current revival of liberal theology."

Dr. John Montgomery of Chicago, formerly of Waterloo, made the statement while sharing the stage with the bishop at a McMaster University teach-in.

He said the bishop has strayed further and further left since entering Protestantism at the point of an unstable theology.

Bishop Pike, threatened by bishops of his church earlier this year with charges of heresy, said criticism by Dr. Montgomery was unfair and personal and unlike any he has received in 75 previous appearances.

Dr. Montgomery, referring to a reference in Bishop Pike's recent book, If This Be Heresy, said the bishop had "let his personal drives toward wish fulfillment" lead him to the survival interpretation he places on psychic data.

In the book, the bishop refers to communication he believes was received from his dead son.

Dr. Montgomery said the bishop "endeavors to provide "empirical" evidence for human survival after death by way of psychic phenomena. . . ."

In reply, Bishop Pike said he does not believe the Old Testament is exact truth and that heresy, in the form of idolatry, exists when the church tries to make men's mores into morals and turns the words of men into the words of God.

Levesque's Supporters Form Political Group

MONTREAL (CP) — A new Quebec political movement was born in Montreal during the weekend, dedicated to the "sovereign state" thesis of former Liberal cabinet minister Rene Levesque.

More than 370 delegates from across Quebec attended the two-day founding convention of the Sovereignty Movement.

Mr. Levesque, the MLA for Laurier who resigned from the Liberal party when it rejected his proposal for a sovereign status for Quebec, spoke to the delegates saying the movement, at only provincial.

It would attempt to create new structures and recruit adherents before setting up a new Quebec political party next spring.

Stressing the eventual need for a common front among advocates of Quebec sovereignty, Mr. Levesque did not exclude the possibility of alliances.

However, he said the basis for a free Quebec must embody his group's concept of a Canadian economic union. The main function of the new association, he explained, will be to propagate and formulate this concept.

New PC Chief To Make First Major Speech

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons began a two-day supply debate today that will give the opposition a chance to move motions of non-confidence in the government.

The debate also will give Opposition Leader Stanfield the first chance for a major Commons speech since he took his seat a week ago as member for the Nova Scotia riding of Colchester-Hants.

Debate on supply—funds for running the government—was announced last week after discussion on the bill to abolish capital punishment for a five-year trial period lagged down.

A vote on capital punishment had been expected Thursday night after Prime Minister Pearson spoke on the issue but when he resumed his seat former Conservative Justice minister Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) rose to speak.

Huntsville Natural Gas Fire Is Seen Seventy Miles Away

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An earth-shaking natural gas explosion ripped open a 30-inch pipeline Monday night and left 400 homes without heat in below-freezing temperatures.

The blast destroyed two barns, damaged a home and left a crater 125 feet wide in a field near this town of 3,000, in the Muskoka region of Ontario, 90 miles north of Barrie.

There were no injuries in the blast which ripped the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. natural gas line on the outskirts of the town.

"I thought it was an earthquake," said Mrs. Ronald Langford, on whose farm property the explosion occurred at 5:39 p.m.

"There was so much noise and heat it was hard to tell what was happening. It looked like the whole world was on fire."

Two barns on the Langford property were destroyed by fire and the house was damaged when a piece of frozen clay tore an 18-inch-square hole in the kitchen ceiling.

Mrs. Langford and her mother, Mrs. Mary Hemming, 82, escaped injury.

Robert Saider, general superintendent of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co., said about 398 customers in the town, most of them homeowners, would be without heat until breakfast time today when service would be partially restored. Full service was expected to be restored by noon. Only Huntsville was affected by the gas stoppage.

The line is part of the main line from Alberta gas fields which supplies Eastern Canada. When the blast occurred, gas was drawn from storage fields in southwestern Ontario to avoid disruption of service in areas other than Huntsville.

Occupants of at least 15 ho' within a quarter of a mile of the blast were evacuated. They began returning home about four hours after the explosion.

Flames shot 200 feet into the sky and could be seen as far away as Orillia, 40 miles south, and Midland, 70 miles to the southwest.

A 30-foot section of pipe weighing more than a ton was hurled an eighth of a mile, landing about 400 feet from the Langford home, and a crater 12 feet deep was left in its place. The crater was surrounded by a burned out patch of wood, about 400 feet wide. An inch of snow in the area was gone.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines officials on the scene said cause of the explosion could not be determined immediately.

Heat from the fire could be felt three-quarters of a mile away on Highway 11.

A passenger train which passes within 300 yards of the pipeline was delayed two hours at nearby Novar before being allowed to continue south.

The pipeline was about three feet under ground. A leak occurred in one end of the pipe section and it blew out at both ends, resulting in two jets of fire shooting into the air.

Four Young U.S. Navy Deserters Turn Up In Moscow Preaching Peace

MOSCOW (AP) — Four U.S. sailors who deserted the cruiser Intrepid in Japan told the Soviet public today that a majority of American servicemen do not want to fight in Vietnam.

A Soviet peace committee, looking after the four said they are "resting" in Moscow but declined to give their whereabouts or future plans or to allow foreign newspaper men to talk with them.

The four young men said on Moscow television Monday night they deserted in protest against U.S. policy in Vietnam. They are Richard D. Bailey, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.; John Michael Barilla, 20, of Catonsville, Md.; Craigth W. Thomson, 20, of San Jose, Calif. and Michael Lindner, 19, of Mount Pocono, Pa.

The four young Americans jumped ship Oct. 24 while the Intrepid was in Japan for a recreation stay after a tour bombing North Vietnam.

Israeli Planes Attack Tanks on Jordan's Bank

TEL AVIV (CP) — Israeli jet fighter-bombers attacked Jordanian positions on the east bank of the Jordan River today for the first time since the Arab-Israeli war in June.

Jordan claimed two Israeli planes were shot down and said the pilot of the first one bailed out and was killed.

Israel admitted the loss of one of its French Mystères and said the pilot bailed out over Jordanian territory.

The Israelis said their air force went into action after the Jordanians moved tanks up to the ceasefire line and fired across the river.

The Jordanians countered that Israelis started the attack with artillery and tank fire, then called in their planes when Jordanian positions returned the fire.

It was the fourth consecutive day of firing across the river.

An Israeli spokesman said Jordanian tanks opened fire at 8:45 a.m. (1:45 a.m. EST), a few miles south of the Umm-Shart Bridge, at a point where Israeli and Jordanian gunners duelled for two hours Monday.

"Israeli forces returned the fire to silence the source of the enemy shelling," the spokesman continued. "The enemy fire did not stop, so the air force was called in."

The Jordanian communique said the Israeli attack was concentrated in the area of the Allenby Bridge, 10 miles north of the Dead Sea.

Own Bomb Kills Score

U.S. Toll at Dak To Mounts

SAIGON (CP) — U.S. artillery and planes today pounded dug-in North Vietnamese gunners delaying the evacuation of scores of wounded U.S. paratroops trapped on a hillside near Dak To.

U.S. casualties mounted to at least 229 dead and 422 wounded in the 19th day of fighting around the Dak To valley, the second most costly battle of the Vietnam war for the Americans. Twenty of the Americans were killed by their own bombing.

It rivalled in intensity the 1965 fighting in the Ia Drang valley — also in the central highlands and also just before U.S. Thanksgiving—in which 230 Americans were killed.

Brig.-Gen. L. H. Schweiter, commander of the 173rd Airborne Brigade, said the North Vietnamese were dug in so well on Hill 875 the U.S. guns and bombs couldn't hit their bunkers.

"We're going to have to dig them out man by man," he said.

So far, 10 choppers were hit trying to get to the Allied wounded. The helicopters returned disabled to nearby base camps.

"It will be too late for many of those guys," one doctor said. "In this climate gangrene sets in overnight."

The wounded trapped on Hill 875 near Dak To were part of the 173rd Airborne Brigade's 2nd battalion that had been battling North Vietnamese troops on the hill since Sunday morning.

U.S. spokesman reported 71 Americans killed so far in the battle for the hill, 20 of them when a bomb from a U.S. plane mistakenly dropped onto their position.

Mayor, Soden Only Opponents

By ROY PEACOCK

Belleville's much discussed million-dollar arena complex proposed for the local fairgrounds was shoved a bit further into the background yesterday, but at the same time a move was made to provide needed additional ice facilities and display accommodation for the Belleville fair.

Subject to approval from the city parks and recreation department, city council yesterday voted to call tenders for the construction of a pre-engineered type rink structure for the Belleville fairgrounds.

The structure would have an artificial ice surface of 75 by 175 feet and could also see use as a community recreation centre and as a display area for use during the annual fall fair.

The cost of the structure, similar to the smaller type rinks currently being built at Kingston, has been estimated at $145,000.

Council voted 8 to 2 to call tenders for the smaller type rink but heated discussion on the proposal resulted in some fancy name-calling as well as a warning from Alderman Kenneth Soden that it would be a sad day for Belleville if a structure of this type was built on the fairgrounds.

Alderman Thomas Carruthers brought in the recommendation to call tenders for the $145,000 rink structure.

The recommendation asked that tenders be in by December 15th. A debenture issue of $200,000 was proposed to help offset the cost.

Alderman Carruthers said the structure would provide much needed ice facilities and also display accommodation for the fair.

He emphasized that he was not opposed to the originally proposed arena complex but maintained the city could not afford the expenditure at this time.

The motion to call tenders was seconded by Alderman Ernest David, who said he had

64 Die at Cincinnati In Crash of Airliner

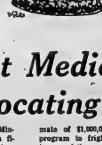
CINCINNATI (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jet passenger plane crashed and burned in an apple orchard about a mile and a half from the Greater Cincinnati Airport Monday night, apparently killing 64 of the 72 persons aboard.

"We counted up all our passengers again, and now find there were 75 passengers and seven crew members," said TWA district manager A. B. Krueger. "There are 18 survivors.

"That leaves 64 persons not accounted for. I don't want to say they are all dead, but I don't have much hope for finding any more survivors."

Six of the survivors were reported in serious or critical condition in various area hospitals.

The tragedy occurred across the northern Kentucky border, about 600 yards away from where a passenger jet crashed two years ago, killing 58 persons.



More than a score of persons were waiting inside the airport restaurant for the arrival of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Maude Cuneo said she saw a "great ball of fire," that it looked to her as though the plane had "exploded in the air."

Trans World Airlines said the 79 persons were aboard its Convair 880 Flight 128 bound from Los Angeles to Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Boston. It was about two hours late, TWA said, because a faulty door of another plane caused passengers to be shifted in Los Angeles to the one that crashed.

Woodrow McKay, chief tower controller, said the plane was making a routine instrument approach. An airport spokesman said there had been no indication from the pilot of any trouble.

The cause of the crash was not determined.

OTTAWA (CP) — A move to launch a federal investigation into the auto insurance business has been made by Barry Mather (NDP-New Westminster.) A notice of motion to have such an investigation carried out through the proposed department of consumer and corporate affairs appeared on the Commons order paper Monday.

Stanfield Jabs at Medicare Plan But Avoids Advocating Delay

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's position on a medical care program is "utterly destructive of credibility," Opposition Leader Stanfield charged Monday.

He said in the Commons the government is presenting two faces to the public by asking the provinces for spending restraints while it stands adamantly against a delay in its medical care legislation.

Mr. Stanfield, replying to a brief statement by Finance Minister Sharp on last week's finance ministers' meeting, stopped short of suggesting the federal program be postponed.

But he said that if the government has no intention of further delaying the plan, it makes a "farce" of its so-called consultation with the provinces on restraint.

NDP Leader Douglas charged that the finance minister had produced the annual cost estimate of $1,000,000,000 for the program to frighten the provinces and the people of Canada.

It was a "highly suspect" estimate and he wanted an opportunity to challenge the basis for the figure, Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Stanfield said there could be no genuine discussion on budget cutting as long as—by Mr. Sharp's own estimate—a $1,000,000,000 program lay untouched on the table.

He urged both the federal and provincial governments "to work—in struggle—for agreement on, priorities" of spending. This, he said, would be genuine consultation.

In his opening statement Mr. Sharp did not mention medical care insurance. The fate of the program was understood to have been discussed at a three-hour cabinet meeting Monday morning. It had been an "entirely satisfactory meeting" with the provinces, Mr. Sharp said.

Manjuris Trial First of Three

A Grand Jury returned true bills yesterday in the three indictments slated for the General sessions which opened yesterday. A true bill was returned in a charge of dangerous driving against Harold Nicholson Morton and another on the charge of possession of stolen goods against Raymond Hart and Raymond Woods.

The trial of Alexander Manjuris, charged with uttering forged medical receipts and a forged charitable donation receipt as deduction on his income tax, began yesterday afternoon, before Judge J. C. Anderson.

Manjuris is charged as a result of two successive incidents in March of 1966 and in March of 1967.

Yesterday's testimony was concerned with employees and officials of the Belleville Income Tax Office.

Staff Director of the office, Harold E. Garland, testified that Manjuris, an employee, when he handed in his tax returns, asked for his medical receipts back so that he could use them in a lawsuit, the result of two accidents in which Manjuris was involved.

Garland explained that he obtained the file on Manjuris' returns and took it and his 1967 return to a special investigator.

The witness stated that Manjuris had received his 1966 medical receipts back in the same request.

Under cross-examination by Robert Temple, counsel for the accused, Mr. Garland admitted that for the year 1966 at least 20 members of his staff had had errors in their returns.

He said that two of the errors were concerned with tax exemptions worth about "20 odd dollars" and 330 respectively. Manjuris' returns would have been about 535 from the target, an earlier witness estimated.

The case is continuing.

Rotarians Hear Story, Of 'Electronic Age'

TRENTON — Whether we like it or not, mankind is on the threshold of the "plugged-in society."

A long-time Canadian General Electric public relations expert last night outlined some of the inevitabilities of the electronic age to local Rotary Club members.

George Grey, of Richmond Hill said ner lower 48 by the year 2,000 will be almost completely wired to electricity.

"In an age when 40 per cent of all the scientists who ever lived are alive today, electricity turns on lights each day, helps teach, warms us, controls our traffic, and keeps our food fresh," said Mr. Grey.

Some of Mr. Grey's predictions for the 21st century:

- Moving, enclosed, air conditioned sidewalks.
- Underground conveyor belts to transport goods to and from cities.
- Weatherproof communities enclosed in plastic domes.
- Year - round lightweight clothing with built-in air conditioning.
- Cooking by computer-operated mechanical arms
- A robot housekeeper in every home.
- 42-inch colored television sets capable of drawing 70 channels from around the globe, wristwatch radios, and tele-video phones.
- plastic airfare highways which can be paved in five miles per hour and ready for traffic within 80 minutes after being laid.
- Super-subways operating in vacuums, and high-speed monorails overhead in cities.
- Electric cars, with a 40-mile range before recharging.
- Undersea oceanic colonies, creating their own atmosphere.

In general, the line between man and machine will grow thinner, promised Mr. Grey.

Workers Assemble '350-ton Dish'

TRENTON — A 350 - ton "dish" is keeping a local industry busy in its debut in the space communications field.

About 50 employees at the Central Bridge Division of the Toronto Iron Works here are working toward a December deadline for completion of the giant dish — a reflector antenna nearly 100 feet in dia meter.

The antenna is the first to be undertaken under a licensing agreement signed between Central Bridge and LTV Electrosystems, a U.S. communications firm with head office in Dallas, Texas.

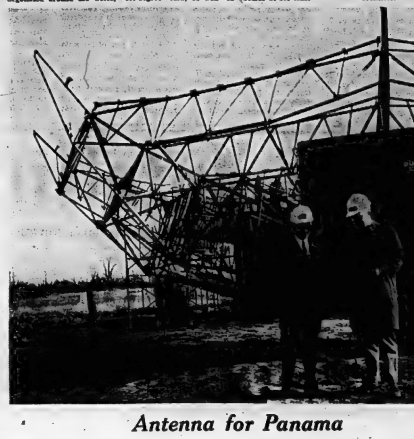
Now being assembled in a field near north Trenton plant site, the reflector dish will be shipped to Panama, where its satellite tracking powers will be put to use in picking up television signals from the "telstar" now being used by Canada, the U.S., and European nations.

Central Bridge were awarded the half-million-dollar contract in June, and an estimated 40 per cent of the Trenton plant's present work force is fabricating and piecing together the antenna's massive components.

The dish will tower on its base some 150 feet above the ground, and will be completely disassembled for shipment to St. John's, en route to Panama.

"These antenna may ultimately replace microwave communications systems," says Central Bridge vice-president D. M. Cameron," and their military potential is obvious."

"This is the first satellite tower we've built, although we've had experience in microwave antenna building," says Mr. Cameron.



Some of the antennae built by Central Bridge for the U.S. firm may be destined for Canadian use. Others are being negotiated around the world.

Mr. Cameron said:

Sitting on its base, the antenna dish can complete a 360-degree turn, as well as having overhead mobility.

Four counterweights required to balance the giant tip the scales at 108 tons.

Various nations enter agreements to purchase television signals from satellite-owning countries.

Antenna for Panama

This reflective dish antenna now under construction at Central Bridge Ltd. in Trenton, will be sold to Panama for the reception of satellite signals. Here D. M. Cameron, vice-president of the parent firm, Toronto Iron Works, looks over the plans with works manager Richard Burnet.

The Tatham Construction Company has started on the installation of a sewer line running from North Front Street across to North Park Street. The contract with the city of Belleville (Sewer Contract 2) is for $75,000. To put the pipe 15 foot below the surface 11 feet of solid rock has to be conquered first.

Edwin Goodman Guest Speaker For Sales Club

"How to avoid the topic of politics while speaking at a dinner meeting" would be a difficult subject for the guest speaker at the Sales and Ad meeting tonight to elaborate on, orate on.

Edwin A. Goodman, tomorrow's guest speaker, is vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party for Ontario and was chairman of the recent PC convention as well as campaign chairman of the 1965 general election.

The noted lawyer is a Bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada and has been president of both the University College Alumni Association and the National Ballet Guild of Canada. He is also a director of the Mt. Sinai Hospital and Baycrest Hospital.

Two Members Not Running

At least two members of Belleville's eight member public school board will not be running in the municipal, election on Dec. 4.

Board members Bill Townson and Morley Loveless indicated at a meeting last night they will not re-offer their services.

Earlier board chairman Macdonald Smith announced he will be running for city council in the civic elections but now claims he may change his mind.

"The government's plan to set up boards' of education throughout the province may make a difference in my decision," he claims.

Mr. Smith has been ardently promoting the board of education idea for the past year.

Two other board members, Mrs. Miriam Graham and Jerry Brennan announced last night they will be running for re-election. Both spoke to a meeting of the women's progressive conservative association of Belleville.

Jack McFarlane, an appointee to the board who attended his first meeting last night, will also re-offer in the elections.

Gerald Joyce and William Van Tassel have not reached a decision on whether they will stand for re-election.

Nomination for the public school board as well as other municipal positions will be held Wednesday night at city hall.

Council Agrees to Purchase SA Citadel

Belleville city council last night voted to purchase the Salvation Army citadel property until their new citadel on Victoria Ave. is completed in about one year's time.

Council made the $30,000 offer to the Salvation Army last January but the offer was not immediately accepted. Recently the Salvation Army indicated it was prepared to accept the offer.

Yesterday there was question whether the city's offer had a time limit and also to what use the property would be put if purchased by the city.

The consensus, however, was that the city was obligated to complete the purchase with Mayor Ellis noting that this was little enough to do for an organization which had done so much for the city.

Ald. David agreed that the city had a commitment to the Salvation Army.

He suggested the building would be useful as a meeting place for senior citizens or for the drama club.

Ald. Keegan said he was opposed to th e, purchase, claiming he couldn't see any use for the property. He felt there were many other necessary projects in the city which should go ahead.

And Ald. Boyle said the city should have some definite purpose in mind for the building. In effect, he said the purchase would be a grant to the Salvation Army.

Ald. Allin suggested that the property might be used as a youth centre.

Mayor Ellis said this use had been considered. "There is a definite possibility that it could be used as a youth centre for the next few years," he said.

He went on to say that the building was in an area which would be suitable for that purpose.

The motion to purchase the property was carried by an 8-2 vote with only Ald e rmen Boyle and Keegan dissenting.

Accident Free for Five Years

Price on Foster Ward Sewers Over $127,000 -- Tender Accepted

Tenders for the installation of sewers in the Foster Ward area have come in at $15,000 over the engineering estimate but winter works subsidy will reduce the net cost to within the amount approved by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Last night the tender of Cobourg Construction Ltd. was accepted at $127,200. The tender was the lowest of four received for the work.

The winter works subsidy on the project is expected to see about $34,000 returned to the city.

"But before the sewer installation gets underway the city will negotiate with Cobourg construction for the installation of a second forcemain under to the city sewage plant.

Council was told there was a good possibility of the second forcemain being constructed through Foster Ward area next summer. The proposal is that the forcemain be installed in the same (though slightly wider) trench to be dug for the sanitary sewer.

Several councillors wondered about the advisability of negotiating with Cobourg Construction for installation of the forcemain instead of calling new tenders for both jobs.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said, however, that it was felt the city had obtained a "good" price on the sewer installation and it might be unwise to recall tenders.

Mayor Ellis said it was felt that the Ontario Water Resources Commission would absorb the negotiated cost of the forcemain installation.

Mr. Purcell said it would be a simple matter to separate the costs of installing the sanitary sewer and the forcemain.

Main reason for doing both jobs at the same time would eliminate the need for a second road disruption within a six - month period. The engineer said the cost of the forcemain installation could amount to as much as $90,000.

Council also voted to prepare the way for installation of sanitary sewers in the northwest area of the city at an estimated cost of $68,900.

The cost of the project was provided for in the current year's capital works budget and council has already given two readings to the necessary bylaw but the work has been deferred when it was felt there was no immediate need for the development.

Now, however, there is likelihood of industrial development in the area in the near future and it is felt all approvals should be obtained so the project could go ahead if needed.

Mayor Ellis said it was unlikely that there would be any expenditure this year other than the cost of advertising to allow application for OMB approval.

Also at last night's meeting council voted to make application for O.M.B. approval for the construction of sanitary sewer and watermain services to the proposed site of the Loyalist College in Sidney township at an estimated cost of $174,000.

Plans are to install a 10-inch diameter sewer for 600 feet from Avondale Road to the extension westerly of Bridge Street and then a 6-inch sewer for the remainder of the way to Avenlough Road. Total length of the sewer would be 2630 lineal feet.

The new watermain would be 24 inches from the intersection of Harder drive and Avondale Road to the extension of Bridge Street and then a 16-inch main westerly to Avenlough Road.

And finally council gave first and second reading to by-laws authorizing th. construction of watermains on Tice Crescent, College Street East; Pearl St., Safe Blvd. and McFarland Drive, all in the Hillcrest area.

Three Aldermen Want Action On Dundas Bridge Proposal

According to Mayor J. R. Ellis their recommendation the fate of the proposed Dundas Street bridge has come a little too late, but three members of city council yesterday said they would like to see the river bridge go ahead next year.

The three Alderman stating they were not opposed to the Dundas Street river bridge were Aldermen Jack Allin, Dr. J. Russell Scott and Enos Davis.

The aldermen were referring to a motion passed in council a month ago delaying action on the overpass structure over the CPR tracks leading to the Bay Bridge Road. In effect, however, the motion stalled further progress on plans for any phase of the three stage Dundas Street project.

Alderman Allin assured he was not opposed to the proposed bridge over the Moira, but felt that this phase of the Dundas Street project should be done first.

"I'm not stalling the bridge project, I would like to see it go ahead next year," he said.

Alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott said he was in the same position. "I have never been opposed to the river bridge," he said.

"Of course your motion (four weeks ago) precluded that," observed the mayor.

Alderman Allin took a view similar to that of the two other aldermen. He said the river bridge was needed and that the last of a bridge connecting east and west Dundas street was causing downtown traffic congestion.

"I'm sorry," re-iterated Mayor Ellis, "you voted to have the project stopped."

"But," protested Alderman Scott, "that was merely a technicality."

Two weeks ago Alderman Donald Joss presented a notice of motion indicating that he would seek to have the Dundas Street bridge questioned re-opened, but the alderman was not in attendance at yesterday's meeting.

Council was told that Alderman Joss was holidaying in the Bahamas.

Three Intersections Get Traffic Lights

Installation possibly will not take place until early in the New Year, but city council last night voted to purchase traffic signal lights for placement at three city intersections.

The traffic lights will be installed at Coleman and Catherine Streets; Bridge and Church Streets, and at Victoria and Fatley Avenues.

Cost of the lights together with installation will be $14,-300 with Stacey Electric Company Ltd., getting the contract.

Alderman Doug Boyle suggested that lights at the corner of Church and Bridge Streets could pose a problem due to ice and snow conditions in the winter.

To a question from Ald. Scott as to when the lights would be installed, City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said he did not expect this would be until some time in February.

City Sign Illegal

With Centennial year having almost run its course, city council last night moved to obtain additional mileage from the Centennial sign placed above the city hall front door.

The Centennial symbol on the electrically lighted sign will be erased and the city's coat of arms and the words City of Belleville painted on instead.

Even at that the repainted sign is going to be slightly illegal.

It seems that the city's coat of arms contains parts of the Royal coat of arms and has never been officially approved. The cost of changing the coat of arms and its approval would be in the neighborhood of $200 and the city is just not going to bother.

And the city will erect a plaque on Zwick's Island setting out the vital statistics of the steamer locomotive donated by the CN railway.

The plaque will give dimensions, horsepower and other information regarding the display locomotive, t o g e t h e r with the fact that the display engine was made possible through the CN railway and city firemen.

Cost of the plaque--$270--will be assessed against the over-all Zwick's Island Centennial Park project.

A Versatile Touch of Ontario Art

Operation 67, travelling art show representing the pick of Ontario arts and crafts pastimes, opens in Belleville today. Versatility is a keyword with the exhibition, sponsored by the city's Ceramic Guild. One of the biggest pieces on display — a glaze-lite exhibit, being hung my Mrs. Meg Pedersen (left) and Mrs. Lois Foster — contrasts with tiny work being viewed by Mrs. Audrey Davies. It's a sterling-silver condiment set, and is a replica of Toronto's city hall. The show runs nearly two weeks at Corby Public Library auditorium.

City Plans Caucus Talk On Front Street Purchase

City council will give more consideration to price before committing itself to the purchase of vacant property to provide a permanent entrance to off-street parking facilities on Front Street just north of Bridge.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said he had been unable, as directed by council two weeks ago, to obtain 60 day options on the two properties necessary for the entranceway. However, agreements for purchase had been obtained with the owners being prepared to accept a total of $47,950.

It turned out that the above price included only two fifths of a jointly owned 7.5 foot alairway property, and that separate negotiation would be required to obtain ownership of the remaining three fifths.

Some feeling was expressed that the price was higher than the going rate for "raw" land in this area, while Ald. D. Boyle said the owners talked at the city paying legal costs in connection with the sale.

In the end the matter of purchase was laid over for discussion at a caucus meeting of council scheduled for later this week.

Two weeks ago the city parking authority recommended the city take options for the purchase of the two properties now being rented for use as an access roadway to their off-street parking area. Cost of the property would be paid out of parking authority revenue, it was stated.

Going First Class

It is with regret we note the decision of Ald. Kenneth Soden not to contest an aldermanic seat in the Dec. 4 municipal election.

We have had opportunity to differ with Ald. Soden in the past and take issue again with the letter to the editor carried on today's page.

Mr. Soden charges we have given editorial support to the concept of a skating surface "arena" rather than support the "community centre" proposal.

We have written two editorials on this subject. The first flatly opposed approval of the community centre project by this year's council. Our arguments were fully stated on Nov. 3.

In the second editorial we commented that Ald. Thomas Carruthers was again going to present his argument for a skating surface.

In neither article did we support Ald. Carruthers stand. We merely recorded Ald. Carruthers' stand that an option exists.

Ald. Soden comments that "the citizens of Kingston and Peterborough do not have to drive off to Toronto to see major attractions."

Well, Kingston citizens contributed $100,000 towards their Memorial Centre in the years leading up to its completion in 1952. These same citizens contributed the same amount of money in refurbishing an old movie house to turn it into a civic theatre. In addition The Domino Theatre, by its own efforts, converted a warehouse into a 350-seat theatre.

Perhaps Belleville's residents are willing to do the same thing. But is it not a weakness in Ald. Soden's argument for a community centre that he and his supporters have not marshalled similar public opinion?

Ald. Soden calls for casting out some members of council — but then neglects to inform the electorate just whom he has in mind. It is criticism pursued earlier by aldermanic candidate Ian Reilly which caused us to take sharp issue with such tactics.

It is a course which does not measure up to Ald. Soden's previous standards. He was courageous enough to support the community centre concept openly and was even willing to rebuke the chamber of commerce for its comments — chastizing this body for being out of its field.

Going first class is an admirable sentiment. We would much rather see Ald. Soden "go out" of civic politics in the same fashion.

Conservation and Tourism

Twenty years ago the Moira River Conservation Authority was an embryo group of elected representatives wondering where they were going.

They were an early part of a new concept in Ontario — a concerted attempt to preserve the province's natural resources and to make use of them for the benefit of those residents coming along in the future.

Even James Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel — the lone remaining member of the original 18 — probably wouldn't have forecast its future.

But what is growing as an important factor of the authority's work is the tie-in with tourism, that money-earning industry which is pushing the big on Ontario's chief asset.

The statistics are still in the minor stage, but a 28 per cent jump to 201 camping permits last year indicate the boom is pushing into the areas along the Moira.

In the years ahead it will likely become a much more important consideration. Each year road improvements in the north of Hastings are initiated. The Kawarthas have seen the mass exodus on weekends as bulging Toronto seeks summer relief from big-city trials.

Hastings and its neighboring counties will be next.

It makes the job of conservation an even more important one. Members of the authority will be called upon to spend more of their time each succeeding year on this aspect of their responsibility.

Authority members should get more recognition for their work. For too long their contributions have been considerable . . . but anonymous.

Pearson-watchers Turning to Drapeau as Logical Successor

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Jean Drapeau?

Think about it.

And thinking, it will begin making a lot of good common political sense to an increasing number of anxious federal Liberals.

For it becomes more certain with every passing day that Prime Minister Pearson is counting the months, if not the weeks, wistfully, to retirement.

The awful pressures of responsibility are making such a mark on him as to become obvious to all, even his most ardent admirers.

He signals it all too clearly as more and more often, in impatience and irritation, he flings himself back in his seat in the Commons with his distracted, "oh, for goodness sake!"

It doesn't sound like much just four words, none of them virulent, all of them on the soft side.

But Pearson-watchers who have been observing him, these last 18 political years of his, know it's his way of saying, almost in fatigue: "how can I stand it!"

Too bad, for he has been by far the most likeable prime minister that Parliament Hill has known in living memory.

Sad or not, that's the way it is.

And it leaves the Liberals in a desperate bind.

They're caught in the vice of their tradition requiring them to alternate their leaders between French and English, as with governors-general and chief justices of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Now being a regional rather than a national party, with their power vacuum in the West, they can ignore the French-English tradition only at their peril, running the high hazard of alienating their power base in Quebec which currently gives them 56 of their 132 MPs.

So the next leader almost has to be French, or at least fluently bilingual. An English-French "Franglais," no less, and a very rare bird.

Paul Martin? Of course.

His's essentially "saleable" in all sections of the country. And he has the necessary qualifications of race and language, appealing to both English and French.

But, more and more Liberals are asking, what about Jean Drapeau,the dynamic mayor of Montreal?

In Quebec he is a hero figure, larger than life, the wizard of Expo and the builder of the rub-ber-tired whispering wonder of Metro and the spiderweb of crosstown freeways.

In Montreal, an adoring city gave him a head-spinning 97 percent of the total vote as mayor in the last election.

And across Canada he's the one Canadian, English or French who stood up to interfering old French President DeGaulle and read him a lecture on international good manners, telling him, right there in public, that Canada was quite capable, thank you, of managing its own affairs.

Objections to Jean Drapeau? Sure, some things, but to these, the Drapeau-for-leader Liberals have the answers.

Is Drapeau a Liberal?

Does it matter? Weren't the "three wise men" from Quebec now so big in federal liberalism — Manpower Minister Jean Marchand, Wilfrid Pelletier and Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau — initially New Democrats?

Has Drapeau any party politics at all, and isn't he, in fact, a "neutral?"

Wasn't Pearson a supposedly non-political "neutral" as a civil servant, the deputy minister of External Affairs until the Liberals put him aboard the Sudbury train bound for Expanola, "capital" of what was to be his Algoma East constituency? And wasn't Mackenzie King, the most political of all the politicians, the self-same kind of "neutral" as deputy minister of labor before the Grits drafted him?

Did Nova Scotia's Robert Stanfield when the Tories recruited him three months ago and rode to the top of the public opinion polls with him?

Drapeau too lists into the race even if the Liberals could enlist him?

So was Stanfield, late into the running, and difficult to compare, too — but look what has happened.

Same thing could happen with Drapeau, and in the next election race, with Stanfield, he'd start 'way out front as prime minister.

Millions around the world today greeted the wedding of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh as a "fairy-tale romance." In Canada, hundreds of thousands rose early to listen to the broadcast of the ceremony. Congratulations to Princess Elizabeth, and to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten on their marriage have been forwarded by Mayor Frank S. Follwell on behalf of the citizens of Belleville.

The Hon. George H. Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, was the central figure at a round table discussion with Hastings County officials at Shire Hall yesterday. Egyptian President Nasser declared 11 years ago today—in 1956—he would never become, as he put it, "the stooge or satellite or pawn or hireling of anybody." He said Egypt would remain free of all foreign ideologies and that the idea of tyrind to create an Arab empire or of trying to dominate such an empire is, in his words, "repugnant to Egypt and to me."

Wiretapping and the Public

Montreal Gazette

A resolution on wiretapping narrowly missed — by three votes — being sent to the federal government by the Canadian Bar Association, during its annual convention recently in Quebec City. The resolution will be held over until next year's convention.

The resolution, the result of long debate, makes an earnest effort to protect the privacy of the citizen, without binding proper legal authorities from making use of this form of electronic espionage when the need for it is obvious and justified.

It would not permit wiretapping to be a practice, but allow it to be used, in specific cases, when a judge issued a writ for its use — similar to the one-time provision of a search warrant.

Considerable interesting argument accompanied the formulation of the resolution. An electronics expert pointed out that the laws concerning wiretapping are now obsolete, because they were set up when wires were actually tapped, that is, a device was attached to a telephone wire enabling eavesdroppers to listen in. Today, much more sophisticated equipment makes eavesdropping possible by radio without any physical "tapping" at all.

The Bar Association was living up to its highest principles in the debate, which was concerned on the one hand with the protection of the individual citizen's privacy, and on the other with the need of protection from criminal elements and foreign agents.

It is believed the Federal Government is studying the matter and the association's discussion are bound to rank high in the Government's consideration.

Bennett's Comedown

The Vancouver Sun

In national political affairs, Premier W.A.C. Bennett is now leading British Columbians to declare themselves to be irrelevant, immaterial and incompetent.

He is urging them to condemn themselves to a permanent role on the fringes of national government, without a voice in either the governing party or the official opposition.

His reaction to the death of Social Credit as a national force (if it ever was one, is to call for the election of a solid slate of the election of a solid slate of Socreds from B.C. They would sit by themselves in a little corner of the Commons while the 242 representatives of the other nine provinces east of the Rockies ran the country according to the broad divisions of the increasingly two-party system.

This is the practical significance of the premier's policy statement at last weekend's convention of the B.C. Social Credit League.

He told delegates to abandon efforts to elect Socreds from the "stoog ground" outside the province and to "concentrate on the good soil in B.C. . . . because here the harvest is ready."

This is a sad coup-down for a man who predicted a Social Credit victory in every federal election since 1952 except the last one. Although they may sympathize with Mr. Bennett in his distress, however, British Columbians are unlikely to follow him into his private cul-de-sac.

On Culture, Centre And Responsibility

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Dear Sir: It is only the awareness of my community responsibility that prompts me to write and take issue with your recent correspondent, Mr. Toivo Vaino, and also with your recent editorials leaning towards left arena-type structure proposed by Alderman Tom Carruthers.

As to Mr. Vaina, I would advise him to get out of his easy chair and open his eyes to what wonderful organizations and people there are working to provide many types of entertainment in Belleville — a cynic would have to have his head buried deep in the sand to proclaim Belleville a cultural wasteland. The Belleville Branch of the Ontario Music Festivals, the Belleville Symphonette, the Belleville Community Concert Association, just to mention a few, have been working hard to provide us with refined works of culture — wonderful ballet, serious dramas, lovely comedies, top grade musicians, orchestral groups and vocalists. Where have you been, Toivo? — you don't enjoy the hockey, but get out and help with the other cultures that you do enjoy; all of the above organizations, and welcome your help or, at least, your patronage at the gate.

You and Mr. Vaino like to call our proposed new Community Centre an arena. Mr. Carruthers' proposed building is an arena, usable practically for hockey only. This type of building would solve no problems in Belleville; it is definitely what is not required in Belleville. You might as well throw the $250,000 or $200,000 into the Bay of Quinte.

What is required is a new modern Community Centre that the people of Belleville, young and old, can take a new civic pride in, a beautiful building that will house rodeos, circuses, grand operas, ballet, theatre groups, water shows, political and church meetings, major ice shows, major league hockey training camps, fair board cattle shows, floral exhibits, etc., exhibition games between our national team and the touring Russian, Swedish and Czech teams — and many other uses.

We and our wives and elderly people could sit there in comfort in seats — with backs yet. The old centrally located arena will then provide all the ice time required by our minor sports organization, the Quinte skating club, and all other teams and organizations for their games and practices, and provide much-needed skating time for our school children and adults.

We have also had in Belleville too many advocates on council of the status quo — men who do not want progress for Belleville. The citizens of Kingston and Peterborough do not have to drive off to Toronto to see major attractions, but the people of Belleville do. (Those who can afford the time and money to go, that is — the rest just have to do without).

Electors of Belleville, let us not be misled once again! There are men running again for aldermanic seats that we have been electing election after election, and they are only serving the best interests of the people — they will not make decisions, but straddle the fence, issue after issue, and they practise petty politicking and vote-vindication. Now is the time to throw them out resoundingly. I am hoping that Mr. Orr and Mr. Mac Smith standing, and I only hope that other good, well-qualified men and women will come forward on nomination day to allow the election to serve the long-suffering people of Belleville, to be decisive most better service than they have been receiving from some of their councillors. Let us go first class for a change — the people of Belleville are not cheapskates; we have always said our way, and first class will be the most economical in the long run.

K. J. SODEN,
ALDERMAN

Problem Was Solved Before It Existed

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

Your photograph in the Intelligencer of Friday, November 10 showing children walking through mud on streets surrounding Sir John A. Macdonald school spurred the day after The Intelligencer published a statement by Mayor Ellis, beginning, "With the City of Belleville and the township of Sidney now close to signing an agreement on the matter, a move toward the extension of Harder Rd. in West Belleville could soon go ahead."

The article continued, "one of the main purposes for the roadway extension is to provide a shortcut for pupils in the above area walking to the new Sir John A. Macdonald Public School and Centennial Secondary School." The article further stated that although there was doubt that the agreement could be signed in time for roadwork to be done this year, the Mayor hoped that the pavement would be signed in time to remove the fence, and spread gravel before the children out of the mud.

This information was made public at the council meeting on November 6, as well as in The Intelligencer on November 10. There is difficult to understand why Dr. Scott should identify himself through a newspaper photograph, with a problem already solved by Mayor Ellis.

It is a matter of public record that, since September 1, 1966, Mayor Ellis has been negotiating on behalf of the city, for a road allowance extending Harder Road to join Wright Ave., Glen Rd. and Avondale Rd.

Mayor Ellis has always worked for the betterment of this area and for all of Belleville, and upon re-election will continue to do so.

"Avondale District Resident."

Canadian Exports Could Feel Pound Pinch

OTTAWA (CP) — Devaluation of the British pound could pinch Canadian exports of manufactured and semi - manufactured goods and foodstuffs, trade experts predicted Monday.

At the same time, if devaluation is successful and stimulates British exports, industries will need more of the raw materials that make up about half of all purchases from Canada.

What results is a mixed bag of prospects that could leave Canada's over-all trade picture with Britain little changed, yet causes damage to a number of exporters.

Sales of fully manufactured goods include up only five to 10 per cent of last year's $1,-122,572,752 exports to Britain, but this was the fastest-growing category of all.

With these items now 14 per cent more expensive on entry, British industries that could not previously compete with imports may capture markets at home.

Even more important may be the effects and semi-manufactured goods, bought to be finished for both domestic and export demand. If devaluation gives competitors in Britain a price margin, many Canadian semi-manufacturers could be shut out.

Prospects for metals, lumber, paper and pulp are more favorable. Exporters using these products have been in the doldrums, with inventories low, and this may change in 1968 if they can sell vigorously abroad.

Exports of foodstuffs are more difficult to predict. The long-term outlook for wheat and flour is gloomy although there may not be any immediate effect.

Consumer preferences must override price increases if such specialty items as Canadian cheese and fish are to hold their place in British shops. This holds true for other foods.

Council Votes to Build Small Rink

changed his mind about the arena complex.

"This looks like a good idea," he said of the smaller rink-type structure.

He suggested that when the city does go ahead with the arena complex a downtown location should be chosen.

But Alderman Carruthers took strenuous objection to the new proposal.

Noting that it was not his intention to run for re-election, the alderman said if this type rink structure was to be built he was glad he wouldn't be around.

"It's a sad day when we leave the running of the city to some retired merchants," said the alderman

He said that construction of the smaller type rink would merely result in throwing away $150,000 which the city could have an arena to be proud of for $66,000 a year over the next 30 years.

"This proposal is typical of Belleville," went on Ald. Sodos. "Alderman Carruthers wants Belleville citizens to go third class. But Ald. Carruthers himself doesn't go third class — and he supported the original proposal for the arena complex."

He was also highly critical of Alderman David for changing his mind on the arena question.

"If we build this type rink now we will never see an arena complex," he said.

Alderman David jumped to his feet to object. "I resent the implication that I am two-faced, that I am a florflusher, and a bluffer," he yelled.

Alderman Donald Williams, chairman of the city parks and recreation committee, pleaded with council not to make the smaller type arena or the arena complex a political football.

"We all agree that we need a new arena complex," he said. The question is whether we can afford it now or later."

He said that for city council to call tenders on the smaller type rink without consulting the parks and recreation department would be a snub to that board.

He said the parks committee had already made plans to go to Kingston next Wednesday to get full information on the smaller type rinks.

Alderman Carruthers assured Ald. Williams he had no thought of "going around" the arena committee, and offered to change his recommendation to allow for tenders to be called with the committe's approval.

Mayor J. R. Ellis said that one of the reasons he had recommended two weeks ago that the arena matter be laid over until next year was that the money earmarked for the arena was needed this year to install sewer and water services to the Loyalist College site.

"We have a whole new year for consideration of the arena complex next year and the money could be put back in the capital works budget," he said.

Mayor Ellis said he would not support Alderman Carruthers' motion and said in any event council could not award a tender after December 15. He also questioned the $145,000 estimated cost figure.

"Please do not rush this thing," he said. "It may do irreparable harm."

Alderman Dr. Russell Scott said there had been too much discussion already on the arena project, but he shared the view that the city had an obligation to provide display accommodation for Belleville Fair.

He said if next year's council decided to go ahead with the arena complex the city already had complete plans.

In the meantime if no action was taken now there would be no building on the fairground. He said the proposal under discussion should not interfere with later construction of the arena complex.

Alderman Keegan commended Ald. Carruthers for bringing the smaller type rink proposal before city council.

"This type of rink structure is portable — it could be moved to any place in the city, even Hillcrest," he said.

"But time is urgent and this is the answer," he said.

Alderman Jack Ellis admitted that council may be unable to take any action in December, but suggested it would be a good thing to have plans of plans on the rink proposal ready for next year's council in early January.

Alderman Williams said his committee would go to Kingston and get all the information needed to call tenders.

"I feel this might go through and we could get to work in January," he said.

Mayor Jack Ellis and Alderman Soden were the only two council members voting against the recommendation to call tenders.

Approving the motion were Aldermen Williams, Doyle, Carruthers, David, Deacon, Williams, Keegan and Scott.

Farmers Should Swallow Their Pride: Davidson

PICTON (Staff) — Ontario farmers and farm leaders should swallow their pride and make every effort to come up with some formula of farm operation which would assure economic success.

This is the feeling of Malcolm Davidson, Huron county farmer, who last night spoke to the Prince Edward County Farmers' Union. The meeting held at Baxter's Hall at Bloomfield, was attended by a large number of county farmers.

Mr. Davidson talked on the importance of building farm policy along more economic lines.

"It is my hope . . . that every effort will be made to finding a formula that will come as close as possible to satisfying farmers needs," he said. "Anything else will be extremely costly in terms of lost farm income."

The speaker said it was his feeling that the special committee on farm income will produce reasonably acceptable policies and programming within 18 months' time.

He also said he was fairly optimistic that the government will be prepared to put many of the recommended programs into effect.

Mr. Davidson referred briefly to controlled production or controlled management, claiming that surplus production would be a major obstacle to an adequate income.

That being the case, he said it would be up to farmers to take steps to insure that efficiency should be the only criterion and concern, Mr. Davidson suggested that if all the land, buildings and capital were in the hands of the 20 per cent of the most efficient farmers they would produce more, force prices down and probably reduce competition by controlling sales and production.

Free enterprise rejects that true idea but the committee feels it is an absolute necessity in many production sectors.

In closing Mr. Davidson stressed the importance of every producer keeping milk records and a set of accounts to help him do a better job.

A question and answer period and election of officers followed Mr. Davidson's talk.

The new county director is Dan Nielsen, lady director, Joan Keogh, secretary Bill Jones and treasurer Abe Nann. Mary Nielsen was re-elected as publicity director. Directors were also elected.

Trenton May Acquire New Gravel Pit

TRENTON — Expropriation Bay and a municipal quandry caused by a gravel pit.

Town council's public works committee has had an independent appraisal made of Carr's gravel pit on Catherine St. after Parks Board complaints that: 1) the pit was gradually biting into the Mount Pollon park area; and 2) the site represented a safety hazard.

Council last night endorsed a public works motion that an offer based on the appraisal be made to L. C. Carr, owner of the west Trenton pit, which lies immediately to the north side of Mount Pelion.

The public works recommendation passed by council also stipulated: Failing agreement with L. C. Carr steps be taken for the expropriation of the said gravel pit for municipal purposes."

The Parks' Board asked for town council action on the property after receiving complaints from Catharine St. residents that rocks and dirt were causing damage to their homes.

Parks' Board members, in a letter to council, criticized that body for permitting homes to be built in the area in the first place.

The pit is also regarded as potentially dangerous to any children playing in the mountain area.

Excavation in the pit is gradually cutting into the face of the town-owned park property on Mount Pelion.

Indications were at the last Parks' Board meeting that face-lifting plans — including proposals for play areas and pathways — were being considered for Mount Pelion, but only pending ownership of the adjacent property.

Beef cattle farmer Walter J. Devereux saves some of the steak for himself with Canada Life.

Just outside of Ridgetown, Walter J. Devereux has a cash crop and beef cattle farm that is a model of efficiency and good management.

"Our family has been in farming for generations," says Mr. Devereux, "As a matter of fact this farm was my grandfather's and my father's farm. We've seen agriculture change over the years until it has reached the highly competitive stage of any business. You have to plan carefully to succeed at farming now.

"With all the obligations a farmer has," he added, "you have to plan carefully for the future of your family and yourself too.

"I have always relied on the skilled advice of a knowledgeable Canada Life agent.

"He has shown me how to organize my financial affairs so that I can concentrate on developing the farm. In this way, I can keep some 'steak' for my family and myself. They're taken care of and I can look forward to lots of golf and fishing when I want to take things a bit easier."

Mr., Mrs. Earle MacKay Wed for 40 Years

A most enjoyable event took place last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. William R. MacKay, 248 College Street, west, when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl R. MacKay, of Carrying Place, RR 1, were honored on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary, with approximately 35 friends and relatives present.

Mr. and Mrs. MacKay were married in High Park United Church, Toronto, by the Rev. C. V. MacLean. Their attendants were: Miss Dorothy Bruce, of Toronto, and Mr. Ronald Trenholm, of Amherst, Nova Scotia.

The evening was spent in reminiscing about the 'good old days' and the changing times, politically, educationally and scientifically, amid a background of spaciousness highlighted by lovely flowers, and an attractively appointed tea table with its cera layr lily-of-the-valley in a crystal of snow-white 'mums and dark red roses. Tall red and white candles in crystal holders and dainty tea services completed the setting. The three-tier anniversary cake was topped by lily-of-the-valley in ac rystal holder, and accented on the layers with touches of silver.

Those who presided at the tea-pouring were: Mrs. Daniel Walker, of Thomasburg, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Roy MacKay, of Toronto, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Refreshments were served by four of their sieven grandchildren, two girls and two boys, the Misses Peggy and Valerie, (the latter denures in her grandmother's wedding gown) and the two boys, Bill and David.

Mr. and Mrs. MacKay have three sons, William of Belleville, James of Owen Sound, and the Rev. Harry MacKay, of Burlington, Ontario.

Mr. MacKay took part in World War II, acting as Warrant Officer in the RCAF. As a hobby he is still greatly interested in the cultivation of flowers, and as practical employment he busy in the carpentry trade, Mrs. MacKay is still devoted as a piano teacher.

Services Director Speaks At Joint CWL Meet

A joint meeting of St. Michael's, St. Joseph's and Holy Rosary parishes CWL was held in the League Room of St. Michael's Parish, for their November meeting last Monday evening.

Mrs. J. Whalen, the president welcomed guests and members of Holy Rosary and St. Joseph's parish. Mrs. L. Farrell reported on various charities given to needy families, such as, clothes, dental care, Girl Guides and Brownies uniforms.

Social action convenor Mrs. R. Ackerman mentioned the new method of teaching religion by Sister Joan Mary and suggested hearing her method at an opportune moment. Mrs. Ackerman also requested aid for Mrs. P. Kelly who is working with the mentally ill in rest homes. Requests were also for old facesleetie sheets for use by the cancer clinic and donations are to be left at Logan's Jewellers.

Mrs. L. Buckley introduced guest speaker, R. Porter, Director of Community Services in Belleville.

Mr. Porter spoke on different roles of civic action committees and the needs in Belleville with gaps which C.W.L. can fill, saying that as gaps are filled there are new ones to be met. He said there is available a directory — listing all the services rendered for this community, churches and synagogues. He went on to say the volunteer bureau in Belleville is unique — in that it is staffed by the ladies headed by Mrs. Burrell, which offers orientation courses for volunteers to present a wide range of jobs available, helping people to develop skills to do volunteer work. C.W.L. represents a group of volunteers, for example, Mr. Porter commended the Christmas exchange, a voluntary effort to help needy people at Christmas. He requested as C.W.L. to register intentions with Christmas exchanges to avoid duplication.

He also spoke of the voluntary service of Meals on Wheels, designed to help the convalescent, aging and handicapped. Mr. Porter suggested to do only what is needed in the aging and avoid taking from them the initiative which they do possess.

Other voluntary services mentioned were: craft on wheels, recreation program, loan cupboard to supply medical supplies, home care service, visiting nurses, homemakers and housekeeper. He mentioned a service in England which could be performed here and that being the telephone chain for older people which helps to give them a sense of security in the knowledge that at a certain time each day the call will come. Another service to be developed is a shopping service for those who are unable. Family care, a service exclusively to children was also discussed.

Mr. Porter also mentioned various services lacking in Belleville and vicinity. He said there was a great need for an ombudsman kind of approach, and that it is one's Christian duty to help the non agressive or articulate people to pursue their rights. He felt that there are many people not on welfare or relief who barely struggle along but cannot pay dental and eye care.

Mrs. R. Ackerman thanked the speaker and presented him with a token gift.

Refreshments were served by Mary Lynch and committee.

Jellied Moulds for Buffet

by Mary Moore

It is so beautiful and tastes so good I must give it to you but for the life of me I cannot put it into a category or name it.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Split Cheese-stuffed Wieners; Oven French Fries; Creamed Brussels Sprouts; Spinach and Lettuce Salad; Self-dancing Orange Currant Pudding (see Monday); Coffee.

Is it a jellied salad? Is it a dessert?

If common sense prevailed it would be a dessert but the popularity of jellied salads on buffets has swept the country and my bet is it will be served as a sort of jellied relish.

"It" consists of two layers when turned out: one creamy white on bottom another ruby red on top. It will be irresistible for those of you who want a pretty rosy red and white "something" for your holiday tables.

YOU NAME IT

MOULD (two layered - white and ruby-red)

(NOTE: You need a 1½-qt. mould for this.)

Red Layer:

one 3-oz. package black cherry jelly powder

1 cup boiling water

one 14-oz. can pitted red cherries (50 percent sugar syrup)

White Layer:

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) plain gelatine

¼ cup lemon juice

one 3-oz. package vanilla pudding mix

2 cups milk

1 cup commercial salad dressing (not mayonaise)

½ cup plain milk

To make Red Layer dissolve the black cherry jelly powder in the boiling water, stirring. Drain cherries and reserve them. Measure ¾ cup cherry liquid and add to gelatine mixture, stirring. Chill until it begins to thicken. Arrange cherries in bottom of a 1½-qt. mould (fancy if available). Carefully pour partially jelled red jelly over and chill until firm.

To make White Layer soak the plain gelatine in the lemon juice 5 minutes. Then stir over low heat until dissolved and clear. Prepare vanilla pudding mix by heating 2 cups milk and stirring pudding mix in until thick. Stir in dissolved gelatine liquid and salad dressing and ½ cup plain milk. Beat well. Just before pouring over gelatine mixture make some gashes in the red layer about ¼" deep, then pour a little vanilla pudding mixture over, making sure some fills into the gashes. This binds the layers together. Pour on remaining pudding mixture and chill until firm.

When mealtime arrives loosen edges of mould with tip of paring knife, then lower mould into hot water and count steadily to ten. Cover with large serving plate and deftly invert. Very pretty — and I suppose you will end up by calling it Ruby Red and White Mould.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE TAYLOR

Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor Happily Wed for 50 Years

AMELIASBURG — Residing in the village for the last two years a couple who lived in Belleville for 30 years celebrated their golden wedding anniversary here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor identified for many years as active workers with the Belleville branch of the Salvation Army were married during the First World War at Cain's Corner, Gloucestershire, England.

Earlier Mr. Taylor had come to Canada as an immigrant and was working on the railroad in Western Ontario at the outbreak of hostilities in 1914. His bride-to-be Elizabeth Barnes had been his sweetheart since childhood.

The nuptial ceremony was in the Anglican church with the Rev. Wilkinson Shorey officiating. Their best man A. W. Wilkins, who settled at Hamilton, Ontario, later on came down during the week-end to be with them for the occasion.

Mr. Taylor went overseas with the 21st battalion recruited at London, Ontario, and then transferred to another outfit in the Canadian contingent — the 54th Battalion from Coutney, B.C. He then continued his career as a railroader after leaving the army until in 1958, engaged as an engineer of long standing, he retired.

The Taylors moved to Belleville in 1929 and lived in the area ever since with the exception of six years when they made their home on the east coast to be near a son.

When they made their home in Belleville they devoted considerable time and effort to activities of the Salvation Army. Mr. Taylor served as secretary-treasurer of the local citadel for several terms.

Among the many cards they received was a special message of congratulations from Premier John Robarts.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor have three sons — William at 66 Elizabeth Crescent, Belleville; Arthur of Niagara Falls and Donald at Halifax. They also have 14 grandchildren.

Psychiatrist Helps With Home Problem

Dear Doris: When I read the letter from Frustrated I felt obliged to try to help this lady out.

I had the same problem with my husband (of talking out on a discussion) for ten years; finally I cracked up. After getting psychiatric treatment I began not only to understand myself but my husband as well. You are correct in your answer about a man's fear of showing emotions and I have taught my husband not to be afraid.

I waited until we were comfortably settled in the evening with the light out, and then carefully asked him for advice on what was troubling me. Sometimes I just told him my problem and why I was upset or afraid. In this way he could not turn and walk out, yet his fear, which I knew to be on his face, could be seen by no one. Sometimes I honestly complimented him on his ability to reach a decision and so help me out.

We have two outgoing children but one who is still withdrawn as the result of the atmosphere he lived in as a wee child. — Hope I Helped

Dear Hope: Score for psychiatry! Now we see what you can do by finding opportunities to talk things out with that withdrawn child.

Dear Doris: I am single and 33. I want to meet a good girl and marry her. In my romantic life usually the ones I cared for didn't care for me and vice versa.

Where do I go from here? There is one girl at the job I am interested in but you know "claim" heart never wins fair lady." I am too chicken to be hurt again. (Have had several before.)

Please advise as to how to approach our gals. I don't care for flirtatious, fickle and out-for-your-money girls. — Still Alone and Lump It.

Dear Alone: Here is my one-sentence rule in courting: Be thoughtful, courteous, clean-cut, and make it obvious that you have something besides sex on your mind; learn how to make good conversation. — D.

P. S. If the faint heart prevails, you face nothing but more loneliness. I'm sending you my list of books on sex and dating, and a little tear-out leaflet called "Tips on Talking." Take heart!

Dear Doris: I think you have answered the correspondent about the little blind boy adequately. The parents of visually handicapped children are now encouraged to take a certain amount of instruction or training in how to handle these children and one of the main ideas is to allow the child to live as normal a life as possible.

Even a sighted child falls and cries and is picked up and brushed off, comforted and left to play again. The overprotected is deprived of being permitted to live as full a life as he could learn to live otherwise. — Sadie Bending, Editor — CCB Outlook, (Canadian Council of the Blind)

Dear Sadie: So that when a parent gives a blind child the brush-off, so to speak, she is really being kind in the long run? Thank you, Sadie.

Many Places Available To "Discuss Life"

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A word, please, to the 17-year-old girl who got into trouble when her boyfriend kissed her on the school premises. She was upset because she said there was no place for teenagers to go to "discuss life."

If kids really want to discuss life (not make out), I can suggest several places for them to go. Here are just a few: the zoo, a bus depot or an airport, car dealers' showrooms, theatre lobbies, the public library, a museum or art gallery. They can also get on a city bus and ride to the end of the line and back.

Please publish this letter for all teenagers who want privacy and have no imagination. — COOL CAT.

DEAR COOL: Your list sounds fine — all except the cardealer's showrooms. Car dealers might not look kindly on teen-agers who want to sit in their showrooms and discuss life. Thanks for the other suggestions.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently my mother-in-law had to make a hurried trip to another city. My husband drove her in his car.

An unavoidable delay made it necessary for them to be away overnight. When they returned my husband told me they had checked into a hotel as Mr. and Mrs. He added hastily, "Twin beds, of course."

My mother-in-law is 67 and while I don't think a stranger would pick them out as man and wife, one wouldn't pick her out as his mother.

Neither has money problems and my husband paid for the trip. He could have well afforded the price of a second room.

I am not questioning the morality of the situation. I am questioning the judgement of these two people. A comment from you, please. — DETROIT.

DEAR DETROIT: In an emergency, such a setup would be O.K. But since there was no emergency and money is no problem, they should have had separate rooms. The fact that they registered as Mr. and Mrs. made it a little too cute, in my opinion.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Get out the wet noodle and give yourselves 20 lashes. Recently a woman wrote that she was furious with the newspaper for printing an engagement without checking both sets of parents. Her son had not mentioned a word about getting married. She was certain the girl manoeuvered him into it by the picture and story in the paper.

You told the mother that the paper was not at fault — that the real problem was the lack of communication between her and her son. Then you added, "I know of no paper in the country that verifies engagement stories."

Our paper does and I'll tell you why. Several years ago, a rejected suitor wanted to get even with the girl who had turned him down. He sent her picture to the newspaper and announced her engagement to a young man who was several rungs beneath her on the social ladder. The girl's parents were prominent citizens and you can imagine the scene in the publisher's office.

You can be sure that now we check out all engagement announcements. — E.H.C. — ATLANTA JOURNAL.

DEAR E.H.C.: So does the Chicago Sun-Times, the Pueblo Star-Journal, the New Haven Register, The Leader in Corning, N.Y., the Gazette in Kalamazoo, I could go on and on but I'm sure you get the idea. Sorry about that, everybody. Color me red.

Stanfield in Maiden Speech Attempts to Oust Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — The new Opposition leader, Robert Stanfield, seized his first opportunity to move non-confidence in the government Monday, declaring that it has been careless about inflation and is no longer taken seriously by the Canadian people.

The vote, which could topple the minority Liberal government, will be taken Saturday.

Mr. Stanfield's maiden speech in the House of Commons was a calmly delivered, 45-minute denunciation of Prime Minister Pearson's regime for complacency and mismanagement on the economic front.

Finance Minister Sharp called him a "singularly timid maiden" who offered no alternatives to the "hard decisions" the government has to face for the good of the economy.

Mr. Sharp announced earlier this month that tax increases will be made soon, but he gave no details.

Mr. Stanfield said that until recently, it had been thought impossible to get inflation, high interest rates and high unemployment all at once, "but, of course, the government has managed to do it."

"So we have both inflation and unemployment, and the government seems unable now to work on one problem without making the other worse."

Mr. Stanfield moved that the Commons express its regret "that the mismanagement of this government has endangered the rate of economic growth, the prospects of satisfactory levels of employment, and the ability of individual Canadians to meet their own commitments."

The issue, said the former Nova Scotia premier, is "the credibility of this government." People did not believe it could provide the leadership the country needs and develop the policies necessary for sustained growth and expansion.

New Democratic Leader Douglas moved an amendment calling upon the government to make it "crystal-clear" that national medical care insurance will begin July 1, 1968, the date on which the federal government has said it is ready to go ahead.

Mr. Douglas' amendment would also urge the government to deal with the economic situation by establishing a Canada investment board to set priorities for both public and private investment, by returning the dollar to a floating exchange rate and controlling capital movements in and out of the country, and by taxing financial gains now escaping taxation."

The prime minister will be out of the country during tonight's votes. He left by plane Monday night for a week in London, where he will receive the freedom of the city, got an honorary degree from the University of London, and have talks with Prime Minister Wilson.

Mr. Pearson did not enter the economic debate during the day. His main intervention in the Commons was a rebuke to Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec for saying that the CBC should not promote national unity.

Premier Johnson said Saturday that the Quebec government will try to obtain control of the CBC French-language network or establish its own. Mr. Pearson said the government's attempt to make the CBC serve the cause of national unity borders on fascism.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons it is surprising that there should be "any objection from anybody that the declared pursuit of national unity is the primary duty and objective of all Canadians, and of all Canadian agencies," including the CBC.

Mr. Stanfield said he was forced to conclude after reading Finance Minister Sharp's budget speeches of the last two years that "the government has been far too complacent about the dangers of inflation."

The federal government should have started trying long ago to bring about "a process of continuing consultation" among representatives of provincial governments, business and labor, he said.

Estates General Will Define For French-Canadian Desires

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 2,500 French-speaking Canadians Thursday open a four-day conference under the banner of the Estates General of French-Canada "in search for consensus on constitutional needs of the French-Canadian nation."

Prof. Jacques-Yvan Morin of the University of Montreal described the Estates-General—a French-Canadian version of an ancient institution originating in feudal France—as "a constituent assembly" rather than a group whose aim is to give the province a new constitution.

Mr. Morin, an expert in constitutional law, said in an interview that delegates will "analyse social, cultural, economic and political problems" rather than decide on what he calls "global constitutional options."

We have no pretensions about giving Quebec a new constitution," he said. "We are going to analyse specific problems rather than decide on global options such as associate statehood, particular status or independence."

Among issues to be considered are the state of the French language, immigration, radio and television, money and banking, spending power, international relations and Quebec's territorial integrity.

Leader Robert Stanfield of the federal Conservatives is expected to be an official observer. The federal Liberals decided officially to boycott the sessions because, they argue, the group usurps the role of political parties. But at least two Liberal MPs have said they will attend.

The separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance national also decided to boycott the assizes, but RIN members are expected to be present.

Premier Daniel Johnson and Opposition Leader Jean Lesage issued a joint statement last April on the eve of elections for Estates General delegates, saying the institution could "bring precious aid to the legislature."

In government circles at Quebec City it is felt that institutions such as the Estates General questions: What does Quebec want?

Johnson Views Canada As Two Unequal Nations

QUEBEC (CP) — Canada, as seen by Premier Daniel Johnson, is a country consisting of two nations—two unequal nations.

The 52-year-old leader of Quebec's Union Nationale government says Canada's constitutional crisis can be traced to a single source—conflict between two nations.

As opposition leader in the legislature in 1965, he declared that Union Nationale would lead Quebec out of Canada if French Canada was not granted equality.

It was in that year that he became a champion of the "two-nations" concept with the publication of his book Egalite ou Independance—Equality or Independence.

This is expected to remain his theme when he heads the Quebec delegation to the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference in Toronto next week. Mr. Johnson became premier in June, 1966.

He announced during the weekend that Quebec wants to gain control of the French-language radio and television networks of the CBC.

He cited the two-nations concept in saying that the French-Canadian nation, whose "homeland" is Quebec, should have an equal say in the operation of the national broadcasting system.

The political significance, as well as the meaning, of the two-nations concept seems to vary according to the invidual embracing the theory.

It is recognized by the Quebec Liberal party, which officially seeks special status for the province under a new federal constitution.

Mr. Johnson argues that the two nations must be squared off as equals under a new federal constitution which would establish "a bi-national Canada."

But he rarely has indicated how this bi-national Canada would be administered by government in day-to-day affairs.

In his book Mr. Johnson tries to justify the two-nations thesis by arguing with dictionary definition and observation of constitutional evolution in Canada.

French and English Canada, he maintains, each form distinct communities distinguished by language, religion, culture, evolution, tradition and "vouloir vivre"—will to live.

Citing le Dictionnaire Larousse for its definition of the word "nation," Mr. Johnson concludes that, sociologically speaking Canada is made up of two nations.

He looks at English Canada and see "progressive formation of a veritable English-Canadian nation" seeking to concentrate powers in the central government. "It's the Ottawa government they consider as their national state."

He looks at French Canada and sees a French-Canadian trying "to make Quebec their national state," reinforced with powers to protect the French culture in Canada.

This is natural, he says, because Quebec is the only province where French-Canadians form the numerical majority.

The British North America Act, he adds, meets the needs of neither of these evolving communities. He describes it as a straitjacket imprisoning the evolution of both nations.

Northwest Seeks Title To Its Own Resources

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The federal government was called on Monday to acknowledge that vast natural resource wealth in the North is the property of the Northwest Territories.

The 12-member territorial council voted unanimously to ask Ottawa to become the trustee of N.W.T. resources — because the largest potential resource reservoir in Canada—and that control be transferred when the territories become a province.

Councillor Bob Williamson, 36, a geology graduate of Saskatchewan and professor living at Rankin Inlet on the Hudson Bay coast, said control of natural resources was a constitutional matter which had given ownership to provinces.

The federal government claims the N.W.T. will not achieve provincial status until it can pay its own way, he said. But the N.W.T. can pay its way until, like the provinces, it controls its own natural resources.

In earlier council sessions members took exception to Northern Affairs Minister Laing's statements that N.W.T. resources must, in the foreseeable future, remain the property of all Canadians. Mr. Laing, before Wednesday, had also predicted that in three years resource production in the Territories would increase to $100,000,000 from $70,000,000.

Lyle Trimble, 32, of Aklavik, said Monday the N.W.T. must have control of its natural resources if the country is to develop and the population expand.

The Carruthers commission report last year on development of N.W.T. government said members were not prepared at the time to make recommendations on ownership of natural resources.

Several councillors said in interviews outside council that if trusteeship were agreed to, it also would infer Ottawa intends to eventually grant provincial status.

Council also called for a complete report by Commissioner Stuart Hodgson, and a full discussion at the councils February session, on a $5,000,000 village being built for a group of Indians in which some say they will not live.

Councillor David Searle said he had been informed by several residents of Rae, 40 miles northwest of Yellowknife, that they will not move to the new town being built about four miles across an inlet of Great Slave Lake.

SLICES SPORTS

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1967

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The deer-hunting season is over as far as the game house cuplom is concerned.

But for the distaff side, it is open season the year round.

Mrs. Barbara Sullivan, 37 Smithview Avenue gives some advice to the Lady Blazes, members of the sex which has been hunting since Mother Eve fired an apple at Adam with the result both had their licences cancelled for life in the Garden.

Mrs. Sullivan, who currently directs her remarks to the younger huntresses who have yet to make the "kill," Here's what she says:

BY BARBARA SULLIVAN

Ladies, it is that time of the year again. Hunting season!

We are starting out on an expedition that comes often in our lives.

We are about to go after a very rare animal, male in sex. They come in a variety of shapes and sizes, are two-legged. The "honey" is a husband.

Places suggested to snare these creatures, in my experience are: bars, taverns, smoke-filled back rooms; perched on bar stools in lounges surveying the female that struts its hind end around lodges.

This animal once spotted must be approached with caution when coaxing in for the kill. If cornered too quickly he tends to become sheepish and you might detect a faint howl as he tries to make his retreat. That is the wolf in him.

Tips to preserve this wild catch:

1. Take him to a nice home.
2. Tenderize him with kisses.
3. Smother him with love.
4. Never let him stew — or get "stewed."
5. He responds well to names like "dearie" and "honey."
6. A brush shackened a bit will hold him if he tends to stray.
7. Watch him in supermarkets. He is liable to panic.

Love will lift the "wild life" he seeks. When you have domesticated your pet, hold him close. Keep him away from other female animals whose ammunition is always ready and weapons drawn to catch him.

We live in a hunting ground, and its always open season. So beware — and good hunting.

BEAR KILL A RECORD

Seventy-four bears were killed in the Tweed District of the Lands and Forests Department, an all-time record for hunting seasons, says Tweed District Forester N. D. Patrick.

The district check stations recorded 2111 hunters bagged 874 deer for a success rate of 28.4 per cent, an increase of roughly nine per cent over last year.

Of the deer examined there were 229 adult bucks, 250 adult does and 383 fawns. The fawn crop of 30 per cent indicates the reproduction of deer has been good.

"The outcome of the deer herd was very close to our earlier predictions," says Mr. Patrick. "For some of the hunters it was tough getting into camp because of high waters, but rather weather settled in and a light snow made it interesting."

The weather, Mr. Patrick said, for the first five days was a hunter's delight. Rain appeared on Saturday morning but by this time most hunters were willing to call it quits and prepared to pull out of camp.

There were areas where deer were scarce, the forester said. And there were gangs who had only themselves to blame and only near misses to report.

But for this most part, deer were fairly plentiful and there were lots of bear fattening on the bountiful supply of oak nuts and beech nuts.

Picton Wallops Napanee

According to the OHA Intermediate hockey schedule, Napanee Penguins were scheduled to play host to Belleville Ski Kings last night.

This morning they are wishing they had.

Napanee took a 12-5 whopping at the hands of the league-leading Picton Merchants.

Picton led 2-1 after one heat and 4-2 after two before running wild for eight goals in the third period.

Syd Faulkner paced the Picton scorers with three goals and an assist while James scored two goals and helped on three. George Jackins contributed two goals and one assist, Moe Hunter one and three, Ron Weese and Roland Berry one goal and two helpers each, Billy Hopkin one and one and Gary Perry the other goal. Pat Asselline drew two helpers, Brian Beatty and playing-coach Sam Mallholland beaver.

Napanee goals were spaced among Willie Menard, Bob Davey, Jack Brady, Hopkins and VanAltine.

Habs Hit Skids Without Beliveau!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Big Jean Beliveau's value to Montreal increases each time the National Hockey League club appears in public.

Le Gros Bill hasn't played in the Canadiens last seven games, not since he was sidelined with a twisted knee following an altercation with Philadelphia centre Forbes Kennedy in a 4-1 Flyer victory Nov. 4.

Until then the Canadiens were in the thick of the Eastern Division race with five victories, three losses and a tie.

With their 36-year-old captain missing from the lineup, the Montrealers have seen their status qua plummet to the divisional depths until they now are just one point ahead of cellar-dwelling but fast-climbing Chicago Black Hawks.

What makes matters worse, during that seven-game span they've won just one (against Chicago) and tied two while playing four of those outings against supposedly weaker Western Division clubs.

Little Yvan Cournoyer, getting his first chance this year as a regular after being relegated in previous seasons to a power play specialist, is the only Canadien listed among the league's top 25 scorers with 18 points.

Beliveau, though he's missed nearly half the srcedule to date, is second among the Habs offensive players with 12 points followed by Gilles Tremblay with eight.

Montreal fans hope to see Big Jean back in the lineup Saturday when the Canadiens entertain Boston Bruins, currently tied for second place in the East with Toronto Maple Leafs, a point behind Detroit Red Wings.

However, Montreal has two games on the road before then, meeting the Western Division Blues in St. Louis Wednesday and the Black Hawks at Chicago Thursday.

JEAN BELIVEAU

Coach Toe Blake has publicly despaired of his team's inability to score goals and has said anybody, except goalies Gump Worsley and Rogatien Vachon, can be expected to play on the forward line if he can scores.

But what the team apparently misses is Beliveau's leadership.

Beliveau, who played his first full season with Montreal in the 1953-54 season, now has scored 408 goals and 530 assists in 874 league games.

His lifetime goals total ranks him behind only Gordie Howe of Detroit and Maurice Richard, now retired from Montreal, as a 11-41 on leaders while only Howe and Andy Bathgate of Pittsburgh Penguins lead him in lifetime assists.

Toronto Maple Leafs also have a couple veterans out of action.

Allan Stanley, Leafs' 41-year-old defenceman who was cut for 25 stitches in the eye Nov. 11 in a road game against Minnesota North Stars, is expected to be ready for Saturday's game against Detroit in Toronto.

Left-winger Frank Mahovlich, sidelined since Nov. 2 after suffering a nervous breakdown, has been skating regularly during the last couple of weeks and Monday worked out behind closed Maple Leaf Garden doors.

Dr. Hugh Smythe, club physician, said the Big M may be ready in play next week.

For only the second time since the season opened, all 12 teams will be in action Wednesday. In addition to Montreal and St. Louis, Minnesota is at Toronto, Chicago at New York Rangers, Boston at Pittsburgh Penguins, Detroit at Philadelphia and Oakland Seals at Los Angeles Kings.

Montreal visits Chicago and New York is at Boston Thursday with Pittsburgh in Los Angeles Friday.

Rough Play Cancels Hockey Game

"It is most unfortunate that we are not able to get competent referreeing in Juvenile hockey," said V. Allen, convener of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's juvenile division.

"Those lads are no longer children and need someone with authority," he added.

The statement followed the cancellation of a game before its completion last night because of rough play.

Acre were leading Melrose 1-0 at the time. The game will be replayed at the end of the schedule. C. Crossen had scored the game's only goal. The Melrose team had been assessed three ten minute penalties and three of five minors, according to the scoresheet.

In the other division game, Ontario School for the Deaf and the Tigers tied 3-3.

M. Gagne, M. Perry and T. Mankiolow were O.S.D. marksmen with R. Lang and T. Turbin getting assists. Tigers, Ford, D. Hunter and G. Sero scored for the Tigers with Bill Royce and Ford getting hepers.

Nationals Europe Bound

OTTAWA (CP) — The eastern division of Canada's national hockey team left Monday for Sweden and the start of a 21-day exhibition tour of Europe.

The games in Sweden, East Germany and Moscow will be the first outside of North America for most of the young squad.

Goalie Ken Broderick, one of three players with international experience, said it could be a tough adjustment for some of the boys.

Broderick, regular goalie with the western division of the team at Winnipeg, will be with the team for the entire tour that starts later this week with two games in Sweden. The team then goes to East Germany for two games and on to Moscow for a six-team tournament which starts Dec. 1.

NHL Scoring

Pack Closing In Behind Hull!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks talented left winger, held a five-point lead Monday in the National Hockey League's individual scoring derby.

However, statistics released by the NHL show a general tightening up in the positions directly behind the Hawks' scoring ace.

Hull, who won the Art Ross Trophy as the league's top scorer in 1960, 1962 and 1965, slipped behind his goal-a-game pace last week, but his three points gave him a total of 15 goals and nine assists in 17 games.

One week ago he held a three-point lead over Detroit Red Wings Gordie Howe, but Howe was held to one goal last week and now shares the second spot with centre Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers. Both have 11 points with Howe having scored 11 goals and Ratelle counting five goals and assisting in 11 others.

Behind Howe and Ratelle are three players with 18-point totals. They are Andy Bathgate of Pittsburgh Penguins, Montreal Canadiens' Yvan Cournoyer and Fred Stanfield of Boston Bruins.

Bathgate is the only member of an expansion club to figure in the top 10. He formerly played for New York Rangers, Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings.

Tied behind the Bathgate, Cournoyer and Stanfield threesome are another trio with 17 points each. New York's Vic Hadfield, Boston's John McKenzie and Alex Delvecchio, Detroit Red Wings veteran captain and centre, make up this group. Delvecchio's 13 assists to go with his two goals, is tops for the league in that department.

Lowell MacDonald, a native of Thorburn, N.S. and right winger for Los Angeles Kings of the expanded division, picked up four goals and one assist last week including three against Canadiens Sunday—to surpass his goal and point total for all his previous NHL career.

MacDonald, who now has 16 points on six goals and 10 assists, played 46 games with Detroit over a three-year period. During that time he could manage only five goals and six assists for 11 points.

Defenceman Noel Picard of St. Louis Blues took over as individual penalty leader with a 15-minute total.

Big "M" Returns To Gardens

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Mahovlich returned to Maple Leaf Gardens Monday for the first time since he was admitted to hospital Nov. 2 and Dr. Hugh Smythe said the right winger may be skating again with Toronto Maple Leafs next week.

The National Hockey League star was in hospital with what doctors termed acute depression and tension, but for the last week or so has been skating in secret at a private club.

His noon-hour session Monday was barred from reporters or photographers as he worked with defenceman Allan Stanley, recovering from an eye injury suffered Nov. 11 in Minnesota against the North Stars.

Winter Time No Time For Football

OTTAWA (CP) — Late November or December is no time to play football in Canada, says Mayor Don Reid.

"Football should be over by mid-November," he said in an interview. "It isn't fair to spectators to hold games in mid-winter conditions."

He suggested starting the season two weeks earlier or holding two playoff games a week—at the end of the season.

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Gordon, Privy Council president, said Monday he expects to enter hospital "within a day or two" for minor surgery on a neck disc. In an interview, Mr. Gordon described the operation as "not very serious."

Rough Riders Seek Chink In Defensive Armor Of Tiger-Cats

FRANK CLAIR

OTTAWA (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats' eight-point lead in the total-point Eastern Football Conference finals may seem small by comparison with games in other seasons. But Sunday's game was the lowest-scoring EFC playoff since 1957.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who dropped an 11-3 decision to the Ticats, in the opener of the two-game series, also figured in the 1957 game, again in a losing cause. The Riders came out on the short end of a 3-0 game against Toronto Argonauts in the opener of the Big Four finals.

The Argos blanked Ottawa again that year, winning the second game 21-0, and went on to win the Grey Cup with a narrow 19-0 decision over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Since 1957, every EFC final two-game series has produced at least 50 points.

The Ticats are a tough team to beat at any time, but are even tougher at home. While the Hamilton offence has been spotty this year, a rugged defence has helped the team win games with a minimum of points.

The Ticats could have had an even bigger margin for Saturday's game had the offence taken advantage of plays produced by the defence. Three times Hamilton intercepted Ottawa passes but the offence was unable to produce a single point from any of them.

Hamilton's only touchdown was set up by the defence recovering an Ottawa fumble and the defence scored two points with a fourth-quarter safety touch.

Ottawa's defence also played a solid game but the Riders will have to get their attack untracked in Hamilton if they want to keep alive their hopes of a Grey Cup appearance at home Dec. 2.

The Riders were unable to run or pass effectively against the Ticats Sunday, a big change from last year when they romped in a million in both games, opening with a 30-1 victory in Hamilton and winning the second game 43-16.

Coach Frank Clair and assistants Kelly Mote and Al Bruno will have a busy week searching game films for a chink in the Hamilton armor but they also have some patching to do on their own lineup.

Defensive halfback Don Sutherin came out of Sunday's game with two broken ribs and probably will miss Saturday's return engagement, although he says he hopes to be back in action.

Offensive halfback Don Gilbert played most of the game with a bad ankle and is also a doubtful starter.

If either Sutherin or Gilbert is unable to play, lineman Tom Schuette, the team's extra importer, could take part in a line rearrangement to improve the blocking on offense.

While Schuette is normally an offensive guard, he has seen action at defensive end and could relieve either Billy Joe Booth or Bob Brown for offensive duty.

Rick Black, a power-running fullback-halfback, has been off the injured list for a week and could be back in the lineup Saturday to strengthen the Riders' running game.

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Ralph Sazio plans no changes in his Tiger-Cat defensive unit for the second game of the total-point Eastern Football Conference final against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Hamilton defence handled the Riders easily with a solid performance in Ticats 11-3 win at Ottawa last Sunday in the first of the two-game final.

But while the Hamilton defence was standing pat for Saturday's second game, Ottawa coach Frank Clair said in a radio interview he plans a few offensive adjustments that he feels will enable his team to score more points.

The usually potent Rider offence was throttled on Lansdowne's muddy field as Ticats continually pressured quarterback Russ Jackson and bounded his two top receivers—Hal Tucker and Margene Adkins.

Even fullback Bo Scott found the footing tough, especially when he did manage to penetrate Hamilton's front line. He then was faced with the problem of outlegging waiting Ticat linebackers.

One of Clair's adjustments may be utilizing his power-running backs on screen passes behind a horde of Ottawa blockers — one play that was conspicuously missing from Jackson's arsenal in Sunday's game at Ottawa.

The short, screen or delay passes would serve several purposes. It would force the defence to hesitate before committing itself to either deep or short pass coverage or stopping a fullback or halfback draw.

In Ron Stewart and Jay Roberts, Jackson has two of the best short, receivers in the business and to Stewart one of the best broken-field runners in the Canadian Football League.

In the interview, Clair gave full credit to the Hamilton defence in the opening game of the series that leads to the Dec. 2 Grey Cup final back in Ottawa.

Saturday's game—in Hamilton's Civic Stadium, starting at 2 p.m. EST, will be televised nationally by CTV.

Sazio Monday said, in an interview, that his club would enter the game Saturday as though it was a single game for the playoff championship.

"We just have to disregard those eight points.

"The biggest mistake we could make would be to think we're home free and try to coast on the lead we've built.

"That last game means little at all. We're going to play to win Saturday. The eight points will be considered only if they have a bearing on the final outcome of the series."

Rocky Stops Maxie!

MIAMI BEACH (Reuters) — Rocky Marciano slugged through to the semi-finals of a computerized boxing tournament Monday night when he rendered Max Baer totally defenceless in a savage battle that was stopped in the 13th round.

Marciano is scheduled to fight the winner of a bout between Cassius Clay and Doug Jeffries next week in the tournament's semi-final.

The tournament has been arranged by a Miami radio program-producing company to find out who was the greatest heavyweight of all time.

Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey are matched in the first semi-final clash in two weeks time.

The computer made 4,000,000 calculations in each round from tens of thousands of pieces of information on each boxer to give a description of the Monday night fight.

Ride In Tonight

Marlies In Mo-Hawk Country!

Toronto Marlboros, with veteran "Moe" Galand playing the part of the tough man in the saddle" ride into Mo-Hawk country again tonight.

The Mo-Hawks, still working hard to put together a consistent offence and defence, play host to the Marlboros in an 8.30 fixture at Memorial Arena.

Toronto stole a win from Belleville on Galand's two third period tallies last Tuesday but the hoosteners are determined not to let it happen again. Galand has suffered four more goals in weekend wins.

Coach Floyd Crawford said this morning that he is worried on a play to counter Toronto's style last night". He added that there was a good turnout for the 10.00 p.m. practice with only those working mot able to make it.

Included among those present was defenceman Bernie Gould, "He looked pretty good considering he had just driven all the way here from Des Moins and we will have an other look at him in Wednesday's practice.

Coach Crawford continued, "he has made it clear that he is interested in playing here only if he can locate a steady job. He seems to be a very serious-minded fellow and is well educated in the sales administration field so unless he can find employment here, it won't matter how good a hockey player he turns out to be, we won't have him."

The Mo-Hawks expect to go with their lineup of the last two games tonight but Crawford made it clear that "everyone will pull their load going both ways or ride the bench."

A victory would boost the Mo-Hawks from the OHA Senior "A" loop's ninth spot into a seventh - place tie with Barrie, just three points back of Oakville and Toronto.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Apprentice jockey Robin Platts had a day rode Dan McGrew to victory in the fifth race at Greenwood racetrack, before 7,001 fans.

The win, Platts' 17th of the meeting, paid $3.80, $2.10 and $2.50.

Combining with Swiss Movement, the fifth-race exactor paid $52.50.

Lineups were virtually set for the four-school and most established bowls.

The other bowls—there are 18 in all, running from Saturday, Dec. 2, through New Year's Day and beyond—also began scrambling for talent.

Here are the major pairings:

Wyoming, playing Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl, is the nation's only major unbeaten - untied team, finishing with a 10-0 record for the Western Athletic Conference crown. The Cowboys rallied for a 21-19 triumph over Texas El Paso last Saturday.

The Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., picked Mississippi (4-3-1) to play an unnamed opponent Dec. 30. The Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., Saturday, Dec. 16, is reported interested in Missouri (7-3), Georgia (6-3), Auburn (6-3) and Nebraska (6-3), among others.

Bullrush Reed Power Main Key To Offence Of Roughriders!

GEORGE REED

CALGARY (CP) — Fullback George Reed and middle linebacker Wayne Harris could well hold the key to Wednesday's second game in the Western Football Conference best-of-three final.

General manager Rogers Lebeu of Calgary Stampeders says Reed's crushing power is the key to the offence of Saskatchewan Roughriders. And, of Harris's performance Saturday after Calgary took the first game 15-11 at home, he said:

"When he's good, they're good; when he's great, they're great . . . he was great today."

Harris was in on seven tackles against Reed Saturday as the Calgary defence held the CFL's top rusher to just 87 yards on 21 carries.

Reed paced the Canadian League during the regular season with 1,471 yards on 332 carries for a 4.4 yard average in 12 games. In 1965 he was named the outstanding player in the CFL and in 1966 was an all-Canadian selection.

But stopping Reed isn't all Calgary has to do as it tries to make the Grey Cup national championship in Ottawa, Dec. 2 for the first time since 1948.

"Injuries from Saturday's game are bothering the Calgary coaching staff, although probably not as much as they bother Saskatchewan mentor Eagle Keys.

The Stampe feel they can replace a halfback easier than the Riders can replace a defensive end.

End Garner Ekstran, 27, of Saskatchewan is out for the year with a pulled hamstring and another defensive end, Don Gerhardt, suffered a knee injury and was listed Monday as a doubtful starter.

The Stampeders expected to know today if halfback Ben Woodson or defensive end Dick Suderman will play. Woodson pulled a groin muscle and Suderman aggravated a charley horse.

Bob Paremore could replace Woodson. The two have traded positions in the lineup before, with Woodson used primarily as a running back and Paremore as a receiver.

Keys said guard Ken Reed likely will move to Ekstran's end slot and Don Bahnuik to Reed's slot. Loss of Ekstran could hurt. He's been with the Riders six years and was named to the all-Canadian team in 1963.

The game, scheduled to start at 6 p.m. CST, will be shown on the CBC national TV network. The third game, if necessary, will be at 2 p.m. MST in Calgary Sunday.

In final and semi-final games between the clubs, the Roughriders since 1936 have lost four in Regina, won two and tied one. While visiting Calgary, they've lost six and won two.

Temperature at Taylor Field Wednesday night should be in the 20-degree range. The field was reported in good condition Monday but snow was expected.

World Scotch Golf

Putting Tells Story, Wins The Loot!

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Putting told the story of the $115,000 Haig Scotch Invitational golf tournament.

Dave Stockton and Laurie Hammer, who shared the $22,600 first prize Monday, took the fewest putts—124.

Second-place money of $13,200 was grabbed by Richard Martinez and Bob Lunn, who also took the second fewest putts—131.

And in third place in both the tournament and money were four veterans Ray Floyd and Dick Mayer-DeWitt, Ken Still, They putted 122 times. Weaver.

Fittingly, the Hammer and Stockton victory was achieved with a 18-foot putt on the last hole. Stockton had hit a wedge shot 10 feet from the cup on the par-five, 539-yard hole. The tall, blonde Hammer rimmed the ball to at a spike mark two inches right of the cup. The ball broke into the center of the cup.

Canada's team entry of George Knudsen and Al Balding of Toronto finished with a 71 for a 72-hole total of 282 and a tie with George Archer-Rick Jetter and Dick Mayer-DeWitt-Ken Still. They putted 123 times.

Fifth place was a tie shared by Howie Johnson of Palm Springs, Calif., and Leo Trevino of Horizon City, Tex., and Jack McGowan of Key Largo, Fla., and Richard Crawford of Bella Vista, Ark.

Billy Casper and Don Colleti finished with 71 for a 283 total and ninth place, dropped out of contention on the eighth hole where their caddie raked the sand while Casper's ball was still in the bunker—a two-shot penalty.

Hammer, from Sarasota, Fla., and Stockton, from San Bernardino, Calif., scored a three-under-par 33-36—69 in the final round. Their total of 273, 9-under par, also included rounds of 69-67-67.

Still, of Tacoma, Wash., and Floyd, of St. Andrews, Ill., finished with 71 for a final round of 70 and won $8,250. In the fourth after a 71 were Jerry Steelsmith of Santa Barbara, Calif., and Dick Lytle of Chula Vista, Calif., at 276.

Sues Seals, Seeks $105,000

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rudy Pilous is suing Oakland Seals for $105,000 charging breach of his contract as coach and general manager after the hockey club moved from the Western to the National League.

Pilous, in his suit, says his four-year contract, dated May 18, 1966, was terminated 13 months later, on June 16, 1967. He said it provided for $25,000 a year as coach, $10,000 additional as manager, and $10,000 bonus if the Seals finished above three other teams. He had the Seals in WHL playoffs three years.

His $105,000 figure included $15,000 for "lack of endorsements," not defined, and $5,000 for "damaged feelings."

Pilous had been slated to remain with the Seals as coach after they were accepted into the NHL to begin this season. Bert Olmstead, brought here as general manager, was made coach also upon Pilous' departure.

It was the second win in six Windsor outings for the gelding, owned by Pete Estona and R. L. Shipman.

Northco Scotty, from the Northco Stables of Florence, Ont., and McCreary Pride, owned by Robert Stamm of Streetsville, Ont., combined for a $135.50 daily double. The quinella yielded $21.70, while the exactor paid $37.60.

The race was marred by an accident when Bethel Mar Mic, driven by 34-year-old Norm Pelletier of St. Hyacinthe, Que., fell in the track past the half-mile pole. Pelletier was catapulted into the centrefield and the trotter ended up draped over the infield rail. Neither horse nor driver was injured.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Midwesterner came along the outside to beat Canadian-owned The Inquirer by 1¾ lengths Monday in the featured $2,200 conditioned pace at Batavia Downs. Yankee John was third.

Midwesterner paid $21.80 for the victory. Hugh Maser drove the 2:07 effort.

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) —Lotta Bomb exploded for her fourth consecutive victory in the seventh race at Mohawk Raceway Monday night, driver Keith Waples his 232nd season's victory.

It was the second triumph of the night for the 44-year-old Victoria Harbour, Ont., native, who equalled the Canadian dash-winning record of 2:00 set by Peagan last year with his latest tally. He won the first race with Armbro Echo.

Not Yet 19, Worth $50,000

"Thar's Gold In Them Thar Heels!"

The 18-year-old apprentice jockey will probably make more than $50,000 before his 19th birthday and, if overweight doesn't besmirch a problem, Grubb could become one of the world's best jockeys.

And he plans to do it in the U.S. after winding up a sensational apprenticeship in Canada later this year.

He had ridden more than 190 winners by the end of October—his second season as an apprentice—although he has been suspended a total of 50 days during the Ontario racing season.

"I guess it's because I'm too aggressive," Grubb says.

"I ride as many as eight horses a day, although I average about six. It just takes one horse out of 40 to make a wrong move at the wrong time and you're in trouble."

Grubb weighs 108 pounds and stands taller than most jockeys at five-foot-five.

"I have to watch what I eat, but overweight hasn't been a serious problem yet. When I get older maybe I'll have more trouble."

He stays in shape by galloping six or seven race horses every morning in addition to his paying mounts.

The experts say he rides like Aveline Gomez and Willie Shoemaker, becoming part of the horse when it moves.

"I can feel the horse and the horse can feel me. If I relax, the horse knows it and won't put out. Of course, it takes a great deal of thinking too. You have to know how to rate each mount.

"If you ride him right and run him in the right spot, you can usually count on a good finish."

Richard Grubb's success story began in Ridgeway, Ont., a few miles from Fort Erie, three years ago when he was 16 years old and had just completed Grade 9.

"I always loved horses and used to ride ponies when I was younger. I got a job as a stable boy with Frank and Long during the summer vacation. My job was mostly walking horses."

Grubb went back to school in September, 1965, but left his Grade 10 classmates the next April when the Fort Erie track opened.

"I guess my parents were a little upset at the time, but now they're happy as I am and come to see me ride a lot."

Grubb rode his first winner May 24, 1966, and finished the 1966 Ontario thoroughbred racing season with 37 winners out of 181 mounts.

The average—better than 20 per cent—was excellent, but the few outside the hardened racing fans really heard the name until May 18, 1967.

Grubb lost the first race on an eight-race program that day and then booted home seven consecutive winners for a North American record.

Since that time, the shy, soft-mannered youth has made headlines practically every day.

Is the rider of more than 200 winners, he can count on a minimum of $50,000 this season. He isn't a big spender and doesn't worry about the money he's making.

"I want to be a good jockey. I bank my money and I live with friends."

Grubb becomes a full-fledged jockey Dec. 8—one year after he rode his fifth winner.

He'll probably be in New York by then, following the footsteps of such greats as Johnny Longden, George Woolf and Ray Turcotte, who all learned to ride in Canada.

"I won't come back to Canada unless I have to. The racing season is longer down there and you can get better mounts and bigger races."

Turbine Debuts In 1968

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An experimental turbine engine, similar but smaller than Parnelli Jones-driven turbine which ran away from the field for 197 of the 200 laps at Indianapolis, will make its debut in sports car racing in 1968.

The prototype will make its initial start in a 24-hour race at Daytona Beach in February. It will run later in the 12-hours of Sebring and the 24-hour of Le Mans.

Drivers will be Dick Thompson and Ed Lowther, both experienced in American open circuit racing and with Daytona's combination infield-high banked 3.2-mile course.

No details of the design have been announced, but sources close to racing say it is different, but not radically so, from the turbine that has been banned from the Indianapolis 500 for next season.

National League

Mets' Seaver Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — The last-place New York Mets have a first today in pitcher Tom Seaver, the National League's Rookie of the Year for 1967, and they have the luck of the draw to thank for it.

They can thank, too, the 11 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America, who voted for Seaver, the cool, confident 23-year-old winner of 16 games last season.

Two other right-handed pitchers were mentioned in the voting announced Monday, Dick Hughes of the champion St. Louis Cardinals drew six votes and Gary Nolan of Cincinnati Reds collected three.

Hughes posted a 16-6 record while Nolan had a 14-8 mark.

"I am thrilled to win the award because there were other fine young pitchers in our league besides Hughes and Nolan; like Don Wilson of Houston (Astros) and Bill Singer of Los Angeles (Dodgers)," said Seaver in Manhattan Beach, Calif. "I felt that Hughes would win it because he won 16 games for a pennant winner."

Seaver was obtained by Atlanta Braves in the college draft and signed to reported $40,000 contract in February, 1966. However, baseball commissioner William D. Eckert nullified the contract because the signing violated the college rule.

Two months later, the Mets obtained the rights to the young pitcher in a special drawing in which Cleveland Indians and Philadelphia Phillies also were involved.

Seaver is the first Mets' player ever to capture an official post-season award and the first member of a last-place team to win the rookie award in the National League.

Outfielders Albie Pearson and Bob Allison were named the leading American League "rookies while with last-place Washington Senators, Pearson in 1958 and Allison in 1959. The award in each league was originated in 1948.

McCann Leads Central Score Race

DETROIT (CP) — Centre Rick McCann of Fort Worth Rings continues to hold first place in the Central Professional Hockey League with 22 points after five weeks of action.

A native of Stratford, McCann has scored five goals and drawn 17 assists for 20 points.

With 12 goals, 21-year-old Marsh is the top goal scorer and McCann's 17 assists make him the leading playmaker.

Now with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, goalie Roy Edwards tops the nonstanding department. In nine games, he posted a 1.33 goals against average, including four shutouts.

Women's Guild Bazaar Draws Large Crowd

NAPANEE — The Bazaar of St. Mary Magdalene's Church Women's Guild was a real success. Even the weatherman cooperated with bright sunshine. The attendance was large, with many people from out of town coming to enjoy the day and take advantage of the opportunity to buy many things to lay away for Christmas.

The Christmas theme was followed in the decorations, with red and white predominating and Christmas ornaments and lights used extensively. Tiny trees were in the windows, and a small lighted one was on the piano. To Mrs. D. P. Robin as Women's Guild was a real success. Even the weatherman cooperated with bright sunshine. The attendance was large, with many people from out of town coming to enjoy the day and take advantage of the opportunity to buy many things to lay away for Christmas.

For the afternoon tea, guests were received by Mrs. W. L. Simmons, wife of the rector, and Mrs. Harold Tafft, Guild president. Mrs. E. G. Johnston and Mrs. William Roffey were at the door. Convener was Mrs. G. G. Wynn, with Mrs. E. R. Paul and Mrs. James Allenbrack acting as hostesses for the enjoyable occasion.

The tea table echoed the Christmas theme, with its red cloth color partly concealed by one of white net, with red tassels. The centre featured poinsettias and ornaments, and red tapers in tall white candlesticks burned over it at either end. The small table was covered with either red or white cloths, and each was centred by a red candle, encircled by red or a white candle to contrast with the cover.

Pouring tea from the silver tea services were: Mrs. Ralph Paul, Mrs. W. S. Phippen, Mrs. W. E. Hornby, Mrs. Malcolm Ivester, Miss Kay McFarland, Mrs. Ivan Simmons, Mrs. Harold Johnston, and Mrs. R. L. Armstrong.

Arranged around the walls were sale tables, practically all of them emptied by the close of the event. As always, the food tables were the first attraction. Mrs. M. S. Madden and Mrs. Ralph Paul convened the cooked food table, where the charges were kept equally busy at the candy table.

Knitted articles, especially for children, predominated on the needlework table, convened by Mrs. L. H. Douglas. Aprons of every sort were sold by Mrs. H. L. Armstrong with cheery assisting. The treasure table had all sorts of glamorous articles. The toy table featured beautifully stuffed toys, doll cradles, of which the ladies can never create enough, and popular clown dolls.

The children's Christmas tree offered doll clothes to appeal to the very little, stuffed animal boys for the boys, and mystery packages for both. Mrs. Frank Woodley and Miss Beth Woodley looked after their wants.

A collection of Pakistani embroideries was on display and sold by the Women's Auxiliary of the church. In charge were Mrs. Jack Greene of Sidney, Diocesan secretary Mrs. Ralph Dale and Mrs. R. A. McGee.

Farmer Destroys Rabid Fox

NAPANEE — A rabid fox was killed early last week about one mile west of Napanee. J. M. Caldwell of RR 3, Hillgrove p.m. saw the fox and dogs barking near the river, and was surprised to see them running toward the house with a fox in pursuit. The animal bared its teeth and snarled at Mr. Caldwell. Although he had not shot off a gun in 30 years, Mr. Caldwell could hardly miss at this time, as the animal was only a few feet away, still in the yard near the house.

He called Dr. H. M. Smith, who advised that he inform Dr. A. W. Allen, Health of Animals Branch, Department of Agriculture, Kingston, who took the animal away. On Friday a report was received confirming the suspicion that the fox was rabid.

The two family dogs were inoculated and will be quarantined for three months. Two cats which were outside were destroyed.

Hiatal Hernia Resembles Ulcers

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: Twenty years ago I was doctored for ulcers. They apparently healed, then returned about six years ago. My present doctor ordered X-rays and said I have a hiatal hernia but no sign that I ever had an ulcer.

Does hiatal hernia cause periodic hoarseness and hurting of the throat, burning of the upper stomach, choking, coughing spasms when I first lie down? My doctor says yes. The throat concerns me. I am 62 and 15 pounds overweight. — Mrs. A. L.

Dear Doctor: I have no dietary distress, but have other symptoms in the neck and throat area. Food gets caught, and I have a burning sensation in my throat. The doctor told me I had a hiatal hernia. Is all the trouble supposed to be in the abdominal area? — R. J. C.

First, Mrs. A.L.: Twenty years ago hiatal hernia (or hiatus-hernia, or esophageal hernia, or "upside-down stomach"), all being the same thing) was not a common diagnosis.

Improved X-ray techniques now identify it clearly. Hence hiatal hernia is a much more frequent diagnosis.

From other symptoms, it often is difficult to distinguish from duodenal ulcers. It was fortunate for people years ago that the treatment for hiatal hernia in many ways was much the same as that for ulcers. (There are some differences, too, however.)

All I can say is that you may really have had hiatal hernia 20 years ago, or you may have had an ulcer which healed completely. You will probably never know for certain.

Now for Mrs. L. and R. J.: Discomfort from hiatal hernia is not ordinarily in the abdominal area, but higher, the pit of the stomach, or under or just below the breast bone.

The root of the trouble is at the point at which the esophagus or gullet passes through an aperture in the diaphragm and joins the stomach. If this aperture is larger than it should be, part of the stomach can force its way into the gap.

A reading of my booklet Hiatal Hernia and Right Ways in Combat It, will help you understand what happens. If you wish a copy, send 25 cents in coin, unstamped envelope to Dr. Molner in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 135, Dundee, Ill.

Due to reflex action, acid stomach contents can be forced into the lower gullet, causing coughing, or burning, which may seem to be in the throat but usually is actually a bit lower than the throat. This can be especially annoying when one is lying down. Raising the head of the bed a few inches, or using extra pillows to raise the head and shoulders often eases this.

There can also be a feeling of difficulty in swallowing, or a food "sticking in the throat." It is not uncommon. I recall a doctor's wife who, when swallowing, put her hand on her upper chest as if trying to push the food down.

It turned out that she had a very large hiatal hernia. When it was reapired surgically, the gesture with her hand ceased entirely.

In many cases hiatal hernia can be controlled without surgery but in severe cases, surgical repair is the best answer.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a mole on my chin and one behind my left ear. When hairs grow out of these moles, I pull them out with tweezers. Is this harmful? — C. D.

It is better to clip them off short with scissors. Pulling them involves some risk of infection and irritation of the mole.

Dow Official Barricaded In U of T Building

TORONTO (CP) — An official of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd. was barricaded in a University of Toronto building for more than two hours today by students and professors who claim the firm is the chief manufacturer of napalm used by the United States in Vietnam.

More than 150 persons who want Dow to stop recruiting employees from the university campus blocked doors to the building where Wesley White was interviewing students for the company.

About 45 minutes later, Robin Ross, the university's vice-president and registrar, made the first of several attempts to persuade the demonstrators to withdraw.

He said the university has a duty to see that students have an opportunity to seek any employment they want and that the purpose of the placement service is being studied by a committee, including the president of the students' council.

Mr. Ross asked the students to allow Mr. White to pass but was met by shouts of:

"I want to be a rapist, get me an interview," "I want to join the SS, what about me?"

Finally, ringed by police, Mr. White hurried to a waiting car as the demonstrators shouted: "Dow shall not kill."

At least two chemical engineering students who claimed to be among 18 scheduled for interviews with Mr. White returned back forthly. Three of four others made it into the building.

After several attempts by the demonstrators to force entry, three were allowed into the building to discuss the issue with Mr. White.

One of them, David Hembler, a doctoral student who lectures in English at the university, announced later that Mr. White had decided not to return for a second day of interviews because of the protest.

However, he asked students to remain at their posts because Mr. Ross had not assured that all Dow recruiting on the campus would stop.

A spokesman for the company in Sarnia said earlier that the Canadian firm does not make napalm or any of the napalm ingredients. He said the work is done at a U.S. Dow plant in Torrance, Calif.

The demonstrators carried placards reading "Dow shall not kill" and "Napalm burns babies."

Dow representatives are conducting interviews at the university as part of the company's annual recruiting program.

Once Banned as Theme in Films, Homosexuality Now Popular Subject

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Once banned as a theme for American films, homosexuality lately has become a popular subject for movie makers.

Several films concerning homosexuality are in production, and they are being made largely for exploitation film companies. Many are topflight films, as evidenced by the current Warner Brothers—Seven Arts release, Reflections in a Golden Eye.

The John Huston film, derived from an early novel of Carson McCullers, depicts Marlon Brando as an army officer who is a latent homosexual. He is married to Elizabeth Taylor but is more interested in a private who enjoys cavorting nude in the forest.

Such a situation would have been banned under the self-censorship code of film czars Will Hays and Eric Johnston. The code declared:

"Pictures shall not infer that low forms of sex relationship are the accepted or common thing. Sex perversion or any hint of perverse of it is forbidden." Also banned were such words as "fairy," "sanre" and "pansy."

Such specifics were swept away with the new production code, promoted by Jack Valenti as one of the first acts in his post as president of the Motion Picture Association. The provision now states:

"Illicit sex relationships shall not be justified. Restraint and care shall be exercised in presentations dealing with sex aberrations."

It was under the new code that such a film as Reflections in a Golden Eye would achieve a seal of acceptability with the proviso "recommended for mature audiences."

Several film makers have been unrestrained by production codes, and they have long dealt with homosexuality in such films as La Dolce Vita, A Taste of Honey and two features about Oscar Wilde. The underground movie makers have poured forth a flood of homosexual films.

"Such influences, plus the liberalized morality of these times, have prompted Hollywood film makers to seek frankr treatment of homosexuality. The Fox promises to be one of the most outspoken of the new films. The

Poodles Popular

OTTAWA (CP)—You may think a poodle looks a bit demented, wearing both a hair bow and a mountache, but you could afford a few idiosyncracies too if you were the prilleged dog folks love the most.

There are 9,000 poodles registered with the Canadian Kennel Club, an agriculture department bulletin says. The department administers the Livestock Pedigree Act under which the Kennel Club is incorporated.

Warner Brothers-Seven Arts release features Sandy Dennis as a girl in love with Anne Heywood. One scene features a kiss between the pair.

Robert Aldrich is preparing The Killing of Sister George, which was a hit on the London stage. The plot centers on a BBC radio actress who lives with a young, simple-minded woman.

Twentieth Century-Fox is now filming The Detective, which concerns the murder of a homosexual. The film stars Frank Sinatra.

Warners-Seven Arts has announced the future production of The Well of Loneliness, the 1928 novel of lesbianism by Radclyffe Hall. It will be produced by William Dozier, late of Batman. The same company is shooting The Sergeant, concerning the homosexual relationship of two American soldiers stationed in Europe. It stars Rod Steiger and John Philip Law.

Lesage Not Appreciated Kierans Tells Audience

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Lesage Liberal government in Quebec yanked that province into the 20th century but failed in the political task of preparing the people for the change, Eric Kierans, president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said Monday.

"The Lesage government was new and brought about a complete revolution in ways of doing at things," Mr. Kierans said in an address to 642 persons at the founding Liberal convention of the federal riding of Vancouver Centre.

Mr. Kierans said when the traditional ways of living are stripped away, a vacuum is created.

Mr. Kierans said Quebec's education budget went from $134,000,000 in 1960 to $425,000,000. The health budget in the same period increased from $74,000,000 to $267,000,000.

"We took education from the church and health from religious communities with hardly a thank you for 200 years of service," he said.

Mr. Kierans, former finance minister in the Lesage cabinet, said the Liberal government used the profits of the province and, although its debt increased, Quebec's assets didn't go down because the talents of the people were being developed.

He said English Canadians should not counter separatist sentiment with the argument Quebec cannot afford to leave Confederation. This is logically inconsistent with Canada's obvious desire to remain separate from the U.S., though economic union would bring greater material benefits."

Halifax Paper Reports DOSCO Will Be Bought by Province

HALIFAX (CP) — Representatives of the Nova Scotia government and Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., are still talking about the fate of the company's steel mill in Sydney, due to be closed next spring.

Premier G. I. Smith said after talks Monday that it would be premature to make any announcement. He said the discussions would resume today.

Dosco announced Oct. 13 that it would close the mill by next April 30, a move that would put 3,200 persons out of work.

The Halifax Chronicle-Herald says today the Nova Scotia government and the company have completed a deal whereby the province will buy the mill for less than $20,000,000.

The newspaper says the premier will make the announcement tonight.

It says the agreement calls for the payment of another $10,000,000-$15,000,000 for inventory at the plant such as stockpiles of ore, scrap metal and coal.

The newspaper says a special one-day session of the legislature will be called to endorse the sale, but no date is given for the session.

The newspaper says Hawker Siddeley, Dosco's parent company, is also on the verge of selling its rolling mills near Montreal to the Quebec government.

It says it expects that Sydney will be used to supply the rolling mills at Contrecoeur, near Montreal, should the Quebec government purchase the Quebec installations.

Meanwhile, Rt. Rev. M. A. MacLellan, president of St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S., has received ackn wledgment of a letter to Prime Minister Pearson regarding the steel crisis.

Dr. MacLellan wrote the prime minister earlier this month expressing concern for the industrial future of Cape Breton if the steel mill is closed down and asking that the federal government do all possible to avert any shutdown.

In answer, the prime minister said the action the federal government had already taken, in co-operation with the Nova Scotia government "clearly establishes our resolve to find a satisfactory solution in this serious situation."

After 4 Frustrating Years LBJ Is Creating New Image

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson will have been in the White House four years as of Wednesday. If he had to leave right now he probably would feel terribly frustrated, disappointed and ineffectual.

Much he could have done or tried to do about problems at home he couldn't do because of the Vietnam ese war which has engulfed his time, thought and energy. If his problems had stayed home, he now might have one of the greatest records.

But now suddenly, instead of succumbing to gloom or despair, he is trying to be a new Johnson by creating a fresh image of himself in the public eye.

He has been on the defensive these last two years because of said-war criticism. Yet, if any president ever ceased to be approved, it was Johnson. It showed repeatedly in his tone, words, face and gestures.

Still, he will not bend to the critics. The result: He is a man in a straightjacket.

He has refused to abandon or tone down the war; he make concessions without reciprocal concessions from North Vietnam; or impudently it an much that China might feel compelled to get in, which might mean world war.

Since he wants as much to be a successful president, and a popular one, why hasn't he yielded to his critics? He has given an answer which probably satisfies none of them: He will fulfill his obligations as he sees them.

It seems certain Johnson will try for re-election. It also seems certain he has recalled his defensiveness is changing him towards disaster. And it seems certain he has decided to change his ways and become aggressive.

That's his natural condition anyway. He's out of place playing meek and mild. In the usual sense he is a poor speaker, especially when reading from prepared speeches or glues to the presidential mystique at news conferences. He has certain ad lib...

He get himself wired for sound with a microphone around his neck, enabling him to roam free of the rostrum, and at last week's news conference put on his most impressive performance, talking off the cuff and gesturing earnestly instead of mechanically.

French-Canadians Seen As Tenants of English

MONTREAL (CP) — The McGill Daily columnist who stirred up a two-week storm over a constitutional article is taking McGill University to court.

Lawyers representing John Fekete Monday filed motion for a summons against McGill and its senate committee on student discipline.

Fekete and Daily editors Peter Allnutt and Pierre Fournier have been charged with "participating in the publication on campus of an article which contravenes standards of decency acceptable by and in this university." A senate committee hearing of the charges is to resume today.

The article in question, a reprint from the magazine, The Realist, recounts fictitious events occurring after the assassination of President Kennedy.

Allnutt and Fournier were heard last week and Fekete is due to appear before the committee today.

The writ calls on the university to "immediately cease and desist from any further proceedings or prosecutions against your petitioner."

PARIS (Reuters) — Quebec separatist leader Pierre Bourgault said Monday night French Canadians in Quebec are living like paying tenants in a province owned by English-Canadian interests.

Bourgault, leader of le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale told a private discussion group:

"When you, the French, come to Montreal and see all those tall skyscrapers and big cars, you may wonder why we in Quebec are making such a fuss.

"But inside those skyscrapers, the French - Canadians are working on elevator boys. Nothing belongs to us. We are paying tenants in our own country."

Although 82 per cent of the Quebec population is French Canadian, they own only 13 per cent of the economy, Bourgault said.

For 400 years, the French in Canada had never known independence or self - determination.

"We have always been second class citizens," he said. "We have never had any choice except to follow."

Indian Hunting Rights Before Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) — A startled justice department lawyer was told Monday that his interpretation of a 1929 amendment to the British North America Act made it appear as "a hoax on the Indians."

The comment was made by Chief Justice J. R. Cartwright as the Supreme Court of Canada was asked to decide whether the Migratory Birds Convention applies to Indians in the Prairie provinces.

The court reserved its judgment.

D. H. Christie, head of the justice department's criminal law section, was telling the court why he believes the convention must be obeyed by the Indians when the chief justice made his comment.

Momentz later Mr. Justice Wishart Spence said Mr. Christie was making the federal government look like "an Indian giver."

The same appeal, involving Paul Daniels of the Chemahawin Indian reserve near The Pas in Manitoba was heard by five justices earlier this year.

Chief Justice Cartwright said the appeal was being heard again so that all nine justices of the court could hear the important constitutional point involved.

Daniels was convicted by a magistrate in December, 1964, of possession of two migratory birds out of season and was fined $50.

County Court Judge J. W. Thompson ordered a new trial, but his decision was wiped out by the Manitoba gourt of appeal.

Queen then appealed this decision to the Supreme Court of Canada.

William R. Martin of The Pas, Man., appearing for Daniels, said the 1929 amendment to the BNA Act, under which Canada gave the Prairie provinces the right to their own natural resources, also confirmed traditional hunting and fishing rights of the Indians there. .

Mr. Christie said the amendment only required Manitoba not to pass laws infringing ancient hunting rights of Indians. It did not require Canada to do the same.

He also said the reference to laws "in force in the province from time to time" referred only to provincial laws.

Mr. Justice Spence said the amendment declared that Indians "shall have the right" to hunt and fish. It didn't say what the previous rights were to do.

In previous decisions, the court has ruled that Indians in Ontario and the Northwest Territories must obey the Migratory Birds Convention.

Conservatives Seek Censure

Labor MPs Rally Around Wilson in Crisis

LONDON (AP) — The Conservative Opposition prepared a House of Commons campaign today to censure the government, but dissident factions of Prime Minister Wilson's Labor majority closed ranks behind the new $2.40 pound to ensure that the government will remain in office.

Conservative party Leader Edward Heath set the tone for the two-day attack on the government's economic policy when he told a television audience Monday night: "We have reached the depth of disappointment and frustration. Last Saturday night (when devaluation was announced) was failure. It was an admission of defeat."

In attacking the 14.3-per-cent drop in the pound's ratio to the U.S. dollar, Heath reminded viewers that Wilson had pledged 20 times in his 37 months in office not to devalue the pound.

However, left-wing Laborites who have fought government deflationary policies for months rallied around James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, in the Commons Monday as he told jeering Conservatives: "You left us in this state."

Callaghan said the devaluation from $2.80 to $2.40 U.S.—in Canadian funds it dropped from $3 to approximately $2.57—would give British exports an edge in world markets but only if wage and price increases were checked at home. This means more belt tightening for the British working man and more unpopularity for the Labor party.

Increased earnings overseas for British manufactures, Callaghan argued, should put the balance of payments in the black in about 18 months.

Michael Foot, the Labor left's most articulate spokesman, told him: "Many MPs now rejoice that we have got this albatross off our necks."

Sixteen Labor MPs representing all sections of the party issued a statement Monday night backing devaluation. They also disclosed they had appealed to Wilson to devalue at the height of Britain's monetary crisis last week.

In Brussels, foreign ministers of Common Market nations authorized making contact with the British for a report on how devaluation would affect the membership applications of Britain, the Republic of Ireland, Denmark and Norway. It was the first breakthrough for direct contact with the British. The French have adamantly opposed anything that would smack of negotiations for British entry.

Jean Rey, the market's executive chairman, is to have the report ready early in December and the ministers will talk it over at a meeting Dec. 18-19.

Profit Picture for Auto Subsidiaries Still Clouded

DETROIT (AP) — Britain's devaluation of the pound has further clouded the already hazy profit picture for the British subsidiaries of American automakers.

With tighter consumer credit in Britain already threatening auto sales there, automakers now will have to increase their export sales of British-made cars to make up for the money that will be lost in converting the devalued pound to the American dollar, an industry source said.

"The over-all outlook isn't that rosy," the source said.

All the Big Three firms have subsidiaries in Britain and other countries. General Motors makes Vauxhalls in Britain. Ford of Britain makes Anglias, Cortinas, Zephyrs and Zephyr Zodiacs. Chrysler owns 77 per cent of Rootes Motor Co. in England.

The immediate effect of the pound devaluation, making it worth $2.40 rather than $2.80, is to cut the price of all British export goods by about 14 per cent.

This will give the Big Three's British subsidiaries an edge in competing on the world market. A source indicated the cut could put British subsidiaries in a better position against Germany's Volkswagen, the No. 1 foreign seller in the United States.

He said the four-door Ford Cortina, a "middle-of-the-line English car," sold for $1,963 in New York before the currency cut. The car now will sell for about $1,656 in New York—"cheaper than the Volkswagen."

The problem is how many more cars can the British firms sell now that they are cheaper than non-British competitors on the world market.

Can they sell enough to make up for the loss they will take in transferring pounds to U.S. dollars and for the sales they may lose in Britain?

The source said decreasing sales in Britain could rub out any gains made by increased export sales.

He said that tighter consumer credit and restrictions on buying cars on instalment plans would force down domestic sales within Britain.

ANAF News

It has been reported that plans are well under way for an event eagerly awaited by children. This is the annual visit of that jolly old man, Santa Claus with his sleigh load of goodies and presents to the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201's clubroom. Forms will be sent to the members and it is requested that all comrades concerned see that they are immediately filled and either brought to the club or mailed in as time is getting short. Don't disappoint the kids by delaying as presents are based on the forms received before the deadline, Thursday, Nov. 30th. Two duties to remember in connection with the party are the turkey rolls which will be held on Friday, Dec. 1st and Friday, Dec. 15th. The party is Saturday, Dec. 16th.

The last Friday evening social and the regular Saturday dance were both well attended. All proceeds from these events go towards giving the children as good a time as possible so be sure to come on in. On Thursday, Nov. 23rd is the big initiation night and a real good sing party after the ceremonies are over. Don't miss this as it promises to be something out of the ordinary. President George Christopher had the pleasure of presenting Cdr. Art Brown with his twenty-five year pin last week. Art is one of the oldtimers and does not get down to the club too often or he would have had his pin some time ago.

It is now definite that the Unit's project, the bandshell cannot be completed this next spring. It is a disappointment but the weather proved to be too much for the contractors to cope with.

The following comrades are at present in the Belleville Hospital, Bert Herrington, room 215, R. C. Wood, room 117 and J. A. Johnson, room 244. Cdr. Bill Hurd is still in hospital at Sunnybrook.

The results of the first Mr. and Mrs. Darts Tournament are Peg and Alex Bunsky, runners up, Marion Dracup and Pete Bonesso, Women's high three darts, Audrey Ackerman, Men's high three, Ira Wagar. The Saturday afternoon doubles are being well attended and plenty of prizes are being won. Why not you? The next Mr. and Mrs. will be on the second Saturday in December, pick out your partner and give it a go. Even if you don't win there is always lots of fun.

Canadians in Cyprus Face Threat of War

Taxes Go Up Nov. 30

OTAWA (CP) — One of Finance Minister Sharp's objectives in raising taxes at the end of this month is to shore up government revenues and make it unnecessary for him to borrow so much in the months ahead.

He will tell the House of Commons Nov. 30 what tax or taxes he will raise, and by how much.

He is taking a larger amount of personal incomes, corporation profits, and other kinds of income this year than the government has since the Liberals came to power in 1963, and the tota: has grown faster than the country's total output.

In the fiscal year that began on April 1, 1963—just 32 days before the transfer of power from the Progressive Conservative government of former prime minister John Diefenbaker—total government revenues were $5,878,700,000. That amounted to $317.97 for every man, woman and child in the country at that time.

This year, Mr. Sharp estimates his total revenues to run to $9,094,000,000 before the year-end mini-budget tax changes, an increase of $4.7 per cent. The population has grown 8.8 per cent in the meantime, and federal government tax and non-tax revenues have grown to $445.78 per capita—an increase of 40.3 per cent.

Mr. Sharp wants to tackle inflation from a new angle, without creating slack and unemployment in the economy.

Since 1962, Canada's gross national product has risen 51.6 per cent to an estimated $81,- 816,000,000 this year from $40,- 875,000,000.

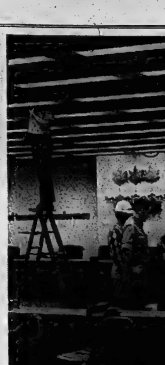
Included in this is a 56.2-per-cent increase in wages, salaries, supplementary labor income, and military pay and allowances, now running to $32,- 930,000,000 a year. Over the same comparison, personal income taxes have risen 61.5 per cent to $2,815,000,000 this fiscal year.

Also since 1962, corporation profits before taxes have risen 28.6 per cent to $4,912,000,000. This year's estimate is down from $5,187,000,000 last year and $5,190,000,000 a year earlier because of the narrowing of profit margins.

But contrasted with the 28.6-percent gain in corporation profits in five years, federal government revenues from corporation profits taxes have risen 22.8 per cent, to $1,570,000,000.

Part of this spread may be explained by the fact that incomes and profits from investments, non-incorporated businesses, and net farming operations, have risen 26.1 per cent since 1962, to $9,220,000,000. These are taxed both as personal incomes and in other forms of taxes.

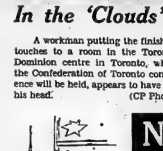
Personal income taxes now contribute 31.4 per cent to federal government revenues, apart from the payments that are made to the old age security fund and the Canada Pension Plan. The old age security fund also collects from corporations and part of the sales tax.



Premiers Agree To Hold Parley On Rights Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The provincial premiers have agreed with Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion for a conference on enshrining in the constitution a bill of rights for Canadians.

Letters from nine of the premiers agreeing to the talks early next year were tabled in the Commons Tuesday by John R. Matheson, Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary.



A spokesman in the prime minister's office said Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia has agreed to the conference but asked that his letter not be tabled because he regards it as confidential.

Mr. Pearson discussed such a conference with the premiers when they were in Ottawa in July to be sworn in as members of the Privy Council. .

PM Sees Wilson As Fears Mount

LONDON (CP) — The threat of new fighting in Cyprus was reported to be a major item in talks today between Prime Ministers Pearson and Wilson.

They met for an hour and sources said Cyprus, where renewed fighting broke out last week between Turkish and Greek elements was discussed.

Pearson is anxious to work towards a permanent political solution for the island, where Canadian troops have formed part of the United Nations force since 1964 to keep an uneasy peace.

He feels that some breakout must be made from the military situation which has tied up more than 800 Canadian servicemen.

One possible step along this line could require an increased commitment by the UN at the start. This would provide for a stronger UN force with wider powers and a reduction in the number of Turkish and Greek troops on the island.

But this would only be a preliminary step towards a complete political solution for Cyprus that would end the necessity for a UN presence there.

The meeting of the Canadian and British leaders came while Cyprus remained in a powder-keg situation. Pearson is in England on a six-day visit.

In an incident Monday, three Canadian soldiers were reported held captive by Turkish soldiers when they tried to make their way to a UN position. Some British UN troopers were disarmed last week by members of the Greek national guard in a similar incident.

Canada Makes Its Own Plans For Its Troops

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department is considering "alternative plans" to ensure the safety of Canadian troops in the United Nations force on Cyprus should there be outright war between Greeks and Turks on the Mediterranean island.

Defence Minister Cadieux gave this information to the Commons Tuesday and said that Canada is making the plans itself, rather than in consultation with UN authorities.

There are about 900 Canadian troops serving in the UN Cyprus force established in the spring of 1964 to stabilize peace between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Ankara Hears Invasion Near

ANKARA (AP) — A sudden blackout of weather reports heightened speculation today that Turkey was poised for a military invasion of Cyprus.

Rumors grew that only bad weather was holding up the sea or airborne movement of Turkish troops onto the island to match Greek forces already there.

Ankara lay under a heavy overcast with snow flurries. The weather also was bad on the southern coast just 40 miles from Cyprus.

Without explanation the government weather bureau suddenly ceased giving weather reports and forecasts, even to newspapers.

As speculation of armed intervention grew, the Turkish national—radio, in a unusual mid-day commentary, declared that the time for peace over the Cyprus issue "is running out."

The broadcast reflected the views of Turkish officials who said earlier the time had come for action on Turkish demands that troops from mainland Greece be pulled out of Cyprus.

War Seen Close

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnson administration experts say Turkey and Greece are closer to war than anytime since 1964 when President Johnson moved to prevent a Turkish invasion of the island republic.

In addition to the 950 Greek soldiers allowed there legally, The Turks are allowed 650 soldiers.

Americans Finally Take Hill 875 Near Dak To

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. reinforcements poured onto Hill 875 near Dak To today as American paratroops, artillery and planes fought doggedly to root out the last entrenched North Vietnamese.

At least 249 Americans were killed, 872 wounded and an estimated 1,200 North Vietnamese killed in the 20-day-old campaign around Dak To.

At noon today, after 72 hours of fighting, two U.S. battalions appeared to be in nearly full control of Hill 875.

Since noon Sunday the most brutal fighting of the Vietnam war has ebbed and flowed across Hill 875. The 2nd Battalion of the 173rd Airborne Brigade went up 875 first. It nearly died.

Of the 16 officers who led the men across the ridgeline Sunday, eight were killed and the other eight wounded. Eleven of the 13 medics died.

All weekend, as the paratroops moved along the jungle hills, North Vietnamese base camps were uncovered. The biggest was on 875 and D Company lost several men in the first encounter with the bunkers.

As D Company was regrouping late in the afternoon for another crack at the bunker system, one of the American planes bombing the Northerners dropped a bomb too soon. It killed about 30 paratroops.

A relief battalion made it into the D Company's tiny perimeter on 875 Monday night. In the moonlight bodies of the dead lay spread-eagled across the ground. The wounded whimpered.

The survivors, hungry and thirsty, hurried to get food and water, only to learn that the relief battalion had brought enough supplies for one day only and had already consumed them.

Tuesday the North Vietnamese struck with renewed fury.

The arrival of the helicopters with food, water and ammunition seemed to put new life into the paratroops.

Wilson Certain To Win

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson faced a House of Commons censure vote tonight assured of his hold on the British government, but anxiety still dogged the dock and pound.

Backed by unified Labor party votes, Wilson was a certain winner against the Conservative drive to topple his government because it cut the value of Britain's currency 14.3 per cent.

But despite the new pound's quick advance Tuesday to the official ceiling of $2.42 U.S. on the world money market, financial commentators were cautious about its future and the investment's critics predicted trouble.

Quebec Patriots Urged to Form Guerilla Bands

MONTREAL (CP) — A 10-page pamphlet describing methods of making crude bombs and urging Quebecers to form forest guerrilla bands has been sent through the mail to some Montreal-area residents.

Calling itself the "official organ" of the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois, the pamphlet is entitled Victoire and addresses itself to "all true Quebec patriots."

It says Quebec forests offer great possibilities for hiding small combat units of six to 10 men, whose purpose would be to harass and disperse federalist forces.

The pamphlet does not say when the fighting is expected to take place but urges French-Canadians to prepare and train for future action.

Mimeographed and then stapled together, Victoire is labelled Vol. 1 of a series and promises further orders in future editions.

It is the first publication purporting to be from FLQ sources to come to public attention since police arrested several self-described Front members following bombings in which a woman and 16-year-old boy were killed.

Besides the written text and a front-page theoretical article which argues that the only way to fight the "violence of colonialism" is by violence, it also contains instructions on how to assemble Molotov cocktails and a drawing of a crude dynamite and battery bomb.

Levesque Promises 'Rights'

MONTREAL (CP) — Rights but not privilege—that's what English-speaking Canadians could expect in a sovereign Quebec, politician Rene Levesque said Tuesday night.

Robert Cliche, Quebec New Democratic party leader who appeared at short notice, said English-speaking Quebecers will be in "boiling water" if the province "separates."

Mr. Cliche stressed, however, that he is no separatist and he urged English-speaking Quebecers to "become allies of what Quebec is doing" and interpret the province to the rest of Canada.

Mr. Cliche cited experience in the Eastern Townships, where the French-speaking population had gradually overhauled and then passed the one-time more numerous English-speaking citizens.

"As soon as we had the majority in a town or village, the English people began leaving for Montreal or places outside Quebec. But those who stayed, remaining as good English-speaking Quebecers—there was no problem for those English-speakers."

UN Near Mid East Accord

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The UN Security Council today finally appeared on the verge of finding a way to take action toward bringing peace to the Middle East, with approval predicted for a British compromise resolution that asks concessions from both Israel and the Arabs.

"Watch the Birdie!"

Little Grace Ralph had good cause for surprise last night. Just as a photographer was taking her picture with UNICEF cards at her home on Humewood Drive, the family budgie landed on her head. Grace is three, the budgie only a year younger. However, with her five brothers and sisters she has interest in children of all ages being aided by UNICEF project. (For details see Page 2)

Income Tax Officials Testify at Manjuris Trial

An income tax assessor admitted duplications on income tax returns occurred "periodically" when he testified in the case of a former tax officer charged with falsifying his personal tax returns in Belleville court yesterday.

Alexander Manjuris, 38, of Belleville pleaded "not guilty" on Monday to a charge of uttering forged documents as deductable medical receipts on tax returns in 1966 and 1967.

The amount of error in the two returns filed by the former tax officer was about $35 a witness testified Monday.

Income tax assessor Reginald Frotz, under cross examination by Manjuris' lawyer, Robert Temple, said yesterday the errors in tax returns occurred periodically.

Belleville's income tax department staff director, Harold E. Garland said Monday under cross examination that errors on two other staff members' tax returns amounted to between $20 and $30.

Manjuris was suspended from his position with the department of national revenue in March and has since been dismissed.

The crown contends Manjuris forged signatures on medical receipts giving him double the deductable amount on his personal tax returns.

Dr. R. F. Hetherington of Kingston, Manjuris' doctor, testified yesterday that he rarely provides receipts for his patients. "When an account is paid, my secretary signs her name in the right hand corner of the bill with her initials underneath," he said.

Mrs. Irene Davis, Dr. Hetherington's secretary, was shown exhibits of the documents in question by crown attorney Glenn Delline.

Mr. Delline asked the secretary if she had signed one of the medical receipts.

"No, because I hadn't been paid," she said.

"Can you positively say it is not your handwriting?"

"I write in a freer style than that. It resembles my writing."

Under cross examination by Mr. Temple, Mrs. Davis was asked if the male reason she didn't think it was her writing was the omission of a date on the bill.

"It is my custom to place the date there," she said.

Following further questioning she admitted the missing date was the main reason she didn't think she had signed the receipt.

"Would you say your handwriting was the same while writing the first receipt as it is on the 13th or 20th receipt?" Temple asked.

"I would say it is," she replied.

The case, before Judge J. C. Anderson, entered its third day this morning.

Postmen Issued Protection Against 'Man Eating' Dogs

TRENTON — "Once bitten, twice shy," says the Canada Post Office, in the process of destroying forever the image of a dog lunging viciously at the seat of a frantic mailman's trousers.

As of Dec. 1, letter carriers have the option of carrying a recently developed aerosol "dog repellent" on their routes.

"Dog bite injuries to delivery personnel still account for 25 per cent of all injuries to such employees," a postal brochure states.

To date, post offices have reserved the right to discontinue mail delivery to homes which present dog hazards.

Belleville postal officer Douglas Burns estimates "about 20 bites" in the past year to his letter carrying staff.

"They're not always real bad, sometimes just a pant and a nip," Mr. Burns.

The "anti-chien," as the repellent is called in French, would be sprayed directly at the head of an attacking canine.

"Without a whimper, the dog will put his tail between his legs and retreat," the brochure promises. "Within 10 to 15 minutes, the effect of the repellent wears off, leaving only a yellow spot on the dog's hair."

"This is removable by washing."

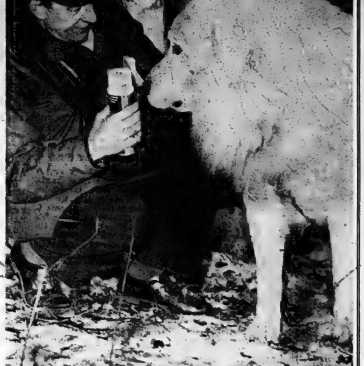
Trenton's 12 mailmen are also dog-dodgers, says assistant postmaster Donald Dishart, estimating about 10 biting incidents during 1967.

"To add insult to injury, one of our carriers was bitten twice in the same morning by two different dogs."

The repellent's "active ingredient" is extract of pepper, mixed with mineral oil, and contained in an aerosol spray can.

Postal authorities say the mustard-yellow chemical has undergone extensive testing by the United States Postal Administration, and, more recently, for a six-month period at Metropolitan Vancouver.

Humane Society officials were consulted during the tests. A local society spokesman, Mrs. Harold Crowe, agrees postmen need protection, so long as there is no chance of permanent injury to the dogs.



Adoption of the safeguard is as much for the protection of dog owners as dog victims, say postal authorities.

Owners of dogs biting postmen may be liable for medical costs incurred, sick pay, and damages to clothing, equipment, or mail.

An accidental dosage in a human eye will produce "temporary discomfort," but no damage or harmful effects.

"When tested, it gives a sensation similar to that ex-perienced when one shakes too much pepper on his food."

The spray resembles in principle a chemical being used by U.S. police agencies in riot control operations.

"A Spray in Time..."

Effective Dec. 1, Canadian postmen may carry spray cans of chemical repellent to ward off canine attackers. Belleville supervisory letter carrier Herb Baragar explained the move to Zar, an interested, but amiable, Great Pyrenees.

Changes Slated for 401

Access to the Macdonald-Cartier freeway will be decided, but traffic dodging over Highway 401 by north and south bound cars on the Leeming-Rupert sideroad in Thurlow township will be a thing of the past some time next summer.

This week, Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. for Hastings, said the Ontario Department of Highways will soon be calling for tenders for the construction of an underpass at 401 highway at the intersection, east of the city.

The tender call will be for structure, grading, drainage, granular base and paving. The structure will be pre-stressed beams.

Since the 401 highway opened more than 18 years ago, there have been local requests for a cloverleaf at the sideroad, but traffic counts indicated the additional expenditures was not warranted.

However, sufficient property has been purchased by the highways department to allow for the addition of a semi-cloverleaf if at some time in the future this is deemed warranted.

354 Families Now Registered

Belleville has shown a heartwarming response to the Christmas Exchange.

The central clearing house, set up to match the needs for Christmas help with the generosity of local donors, swung into high gear this week.

Director Mrs. Melva Bochnek says 354 families needing an extra holiday season boost have been registered so far with the exchange. Offers of help from donor groups who want to coordinate Christmas food baskets have also been encouraging.

"Best of all," says Mrs. Bochnek, "has been the cooperation of church groups in registering the families they are helping.

Council Attitude 'Wait and See'

The Belleville city council special committee on television reconsidered its stand until channel re-allocation in the Toronto area is decided before making up its mind which of several applications for a Quinte area station it should favor.

However, in adopting the "wait and see" attitude, the committee is recommending an endorsation of a dual private network — public network application when the television channel changes are completed.

At present channel 6 is reserved for the Belleville area.

Alderman Douglas Boyle, chairman of the special television committee appointed some months ago, told council this week there were three different systems which could be set up to serve the Belleville-Quinte area.

One is a repeater type station offering no local programming; another is a private station with 25 mile radius offering local programming but with no national network affiliation.

A third type would be a studio-backed station with live broadcasts originating from that city but augmented by a national network.

It is this type of station which the committee recommends for the Belleville area.

The committee is prepared to recommend support to any local application which will include provision for a dual-private network and public network facility for the area, although it was stated there are formidable economic factors involved in an application for a local station.

Up to the present two private stations, CJOH Ottawa and CFTO Toronto, have indicated they are interested in setting up repeater stations in the Quinte area.

Also Quinte Broadcasting Co. Ltd. of Belleville has indicated it might consider an application to the BBG for a local TV licence. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is said to be contemplating an application to establish a station in the Belleville-Kingston area.

If the CBC established its station in the area this would result in CKWS-TV Kingston, which presently has limited affiliation with the CBC becoming independent and possibly applying for affiliation with the CTV network.

This would not give the city local studio facilities, but would provide a combination of a full programming CBC network station along with a privately-owned station (Kingston) backed by a CTV network.

The committee considers this proposal to be the best for the Belleville area but advocates a "wait and see" attitude until the whole situation regarding channel allocation is resolved.

Another matter which the committee feels must be considered is the advent of educational television.

It has been indicated that the province of Ontario will establish about 30 ETV stations in the province and it is possible that Channel 6 in the Belleville area might be reserved for educational purposes on a ultra high frequency basis.

Local Citizens Should Participate

Mayor Proposes 'BUILD' Program

The formation of a city-owned limited company to give local citizens the opportunity of investing in the future industrial growth of Belleville, has been proposed by Mayor J. R. Ellis.

Speaking at this week's meeting of the Belleville Kinsmen Club Mayor Ellis said the next logical step in the development of the Belleville industrial commission would be the formation of a limited company with the sale of shares to provide funds to purchase and service industrial land and to construct

The name suggested by Mayor Ellis for the proposed buildings for lease to industry, company is "Belleville Industrial limited Industrial Lands Development" or the initials "BUILD".

Shares would be placed on the market for as little as $25. each with certain basic rules.

Mayor Ellis said that industrial land development corporations had been successful in other centres such as Barrie and Cornwall.

Mayor Ellis said "BUILD" would give the opportunity for chronic complainers of inaction on the part of the industrial Commission to put their dollars to work for the benefit of the city.

"Let's put these experts to work", he said. Let them put their money where their mouth is".

Mayor Ellis said he intended to submit to the Industrial Commission the basis for a complete and detailed study of the proposal. He hoped that by the beginning of next year a start could be made.

"But we need your help" he told the Kinsmen.

"Will you help us to build a better Belleville, he asked.

"Let's stop deriding the few people (members of the Industrial Commission) who have given freely of time and their talents to bring Belleville new industry. Let us build with "BUILD" for a better Belleville".

IN MEMORIAM

COONEY, Ray — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, who passed away November 22, 1965.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
The fond heart that beat so true,
The fair eyes for sight or speech,
But the hand that for them to touch.
Sweet to remember him who once was here.
And when the night closest, is past and gone,
Always remembered by Dad and Marie Cooney and family.

And while the stamp a peaceful memory,
Our memory we shall always keep.

Major Deloro Stellite Expansion Doubles Size of Plant

A Busy Background

Deloro general manager J. C. (Pat) Houston has a busy prospect from his office these days. Through his window he can see big addition being linked to present plant. Project, costing a million dollars, is on schedule, says Mr. Houston.

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Deloro Stellite's big new extension in Belleville not only reflects boom times for the company.

In its own way it also is an image of the price Canadians must pay for continued prosperity: the cost spiral.

The new addition to the company complex on East Dundas Street, now nearing completion, covers 20,000 square feet and is costing around one million dollars, says general manager J. C. (Pat) Houston.

"It's costing the same price as the original plant, covering twice the area, that we built in 1955," he notes.

There are stiffer demands in other areas also.

The company's furnaces — which produces the precious alloy stellite — were among the most advanced when installed 12 years ago.

They are noteworthy for the absence of burnt waste pumping into the atmosphere, which marks most furnace operations.

Government regulations today wouldn't even accept the standards of our original furnaces," comments the general manager.

The project presently underway will provide Deloro with a new foundry area of 14,000 square feet, a machine shop covering 15,000 square feet and a new office wing.

The extension also produced these statistics: 7,000 yards of excavation and 8,000 yards of fill; 1,700 yards of concrete; 250 tons of structural steel; 25,000 concrete blocks and 14,000 bricks.

The construction work will be finished by the year's end, Mr. Houston estimates. The balance of the schedule will be consumed by installation of services.

Its temperature-controlled air conditioning will be carried through duct work weighing 23 tons, while eight miles of electrical conduit will help provide "a brighter interior than is found in most modern stores and offices."

In the machine shop the lighting will be gauged to the keen eyes of machinists who must estimate measurements of stellite to the nearest 100,000th of an inch. Fresh air will filter through the premises at a rate matching that of an office building.

In both foundry and machine shop overhead cranes the air, run the length of the building and deposit it within will carry a load of 20 feet in three minutes.

The 20-foot high extension also is constructed to allow for even more expansion in the future.

The project also has meant a boost to local economy. While the concract was let to Pigott Construction, nearly all the supplies come from Belleville firms.

"It was our policy right from the start," says Mr. Houston, "and we've adhered to it religiously"

Speaker Wants Closer Ties with U. S.

It would be a little difficult for the vice-president of the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada not to bring up politics but Ed Goodman, speaker last night at the Belleville Sales and Ad Club meeting, made it through the difficulty but politics did come up once or twice.

However, Mr. Goodman, a prominent Canadian lawyer, centred his speech around the international aspect of Canadian policy rather than the national side of Canadian politics.

Calling for a closer association of Canada with the United States the speaker asked for more Canadian support for the U.S. He suggested that we (Canada) "not join those who cast doubts on U.S. policy."

"If we feel that Canada has international responsibility we must be prepared to make sacrifices in order to be heard,"" explained the campaign chairman of the 1965 general elections.

Although the speaker was not necessarily calling for physical support (in terms of men and equipment) for various U.S. involvements he did suggest that we take a more active responsibility in terms of moral support and continental defence.

"Until there is international security there must be continental security—we have to take the initiative for this."

Specifically referring to the United States involvement in the far east and especially Viet Nam, he stated bluntly—"unless we are just to relinquish them (the far east countries) to China we should realine the economy of U.S. involvement there."

Continuing on the controversial subject, Mr. Goodman stated that the U.S. has time and time again met peace feelers, and failed response in the bombing and asked for conference.

"The United States has taken the initiative for peace — what else is there to do except protect that part of the world from domination".

Mr. Goodman later clarified his feelings by stating that he was definitely for self-determination and that "if the Vietnamese want a communist government they should have it but right now I don't think they are ready or would be allowed to decide this for themselves".

"Until the United States gets peace the necessity of their involvement should be accepted in this country and sympathized with", ended the speakers comments on the subject.

Continuing his subtle criticisms of Canada's foreign policy Mr. Goodman rejected emphatically "the suggestion that Canada could make a more effective contribution towards world peace by a disassociation with the U.S.".

Finishing his address the club members Mr. Goodman said "that the time has come in Canada that our association with Britain is no different from our association with the United States. We must establish with the U.S. a system of defence that will protect, not only this country, but all countries of the world".

When asked later if he felt that a more co-operative Canada-U.S. defence and international effort was incompatible with putting extensive stops and restrictions on American investment in Canada Mr. Goodman said that he did.

Returning the question with another Mr. Goodman asked "where would we be without American investment".

"Unless we are willing to change our standard of living we need American money and investments". The speaker's feelings on the matter were not cut and dry though as he also maintained that control should be kept in Canadian hands, especially in banking and related fields.

Ed. Goodman, vice-president of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada and, a prominent Canadian lawyer spoke last night on Canada's foreign relations at the Belleville Sales and Ad Club.

UNICEF Cards Bring Joy To Thousands of Children

Christmas is a time for children — as Mrs. Joyce Ralph is well aware.

The Belleville housewife not only is the mother of six, she also is seeking donations for children everywhere this Yuletide.

Mrs. Ralph this year hopes to sell $650 in Christmas cards before Dec. 25 for UNICEF — the familiar initials of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

The project sees her not only providing for a family ranging in years from three to 14, but also hoping to help the lot of countless less-fortunate youngsters.

However, she receives a big assist from UNICEF.

Its Christmas cards are probably among the most attractive published, painted by a gallery of famed international artists.

The scenes are as diverse as the nationalities of the contributors, ranging from Canada's Henri Masson to Salvador Dali.

The cards sell for $1.25 for a box of ten and the proceeds go to easing the burdens of parents in the world's chronic poverty areas.

It helps them provide food for their offspring — not only at Christmas, but all year round.

Working from her home at 11 Humewood Drive, Mrs. Ralph already has found the basic nature of the project is working for her.

Already she has sold cards valued at about $200. Sales begin to mount as Christmas week approaches, she says.

New Chaplain Inducted

— All Saints Church joined with Christ Church Sunday morning, when Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of Ontario, inducted Rev. F. F. Downing, the new chaplain. He afterwards celebrated Holy Communion, making use of the treasured Queen Anne communion silver, which is reserved for special occasions.

Mr. Downing took up his duties on the Reserve October 1, coming from Stirling. He began his active work in the ministry among the Ojibways in Western Canada, serving 19 years in all, and hopes to end his active work among the Mohawks.

Bishop Evans was entertained at the rectory, and conducted the evening service in St. Mary Magdalene's Church in Napanee.

There was a large congregation Sunday morning, with many people from nearby communities.

A Centre for Youth

It was only a few weeks ago when the city was alarmed by an RCMP raid on a teenage club. The object of the search was drugs.

It precipitated a youth march on city hall and protestations from these young people that it was unwarranted interference in their lives.

Upshot of the matter eventually was a city-wide agreement that recreational facilities for the youth of Belleville do not match the desires of our young citizens.

With the purchase Monday of the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle street, the city now has in its power the opportunity to test these young people's desires.

Already there has been mentioned that the citadel would make a good youth centre.

Even though the Salvation Army citadel won't be vacated until next year, it would be a good project for the incoming city council to investigate these possibilities.

If there is merit in the suggestion, it will not be too soon to set up the mechanics of operating such a centre. It might even start in temporary quarters.

Obviously the participation of the youth is essential. But it should be more than just a passive use. The community will gain little if the facilities are made available but the involvement of the young is neglected.

It would make an ideal test of the community's willingness to face up to the problem of weekend recreation and at the same time determine if the youth of the city is willing to share in the responsibilities.

We say let's try it.

Still Time to Run

Nomination time is tonight for Belleville's city council public school board and separate school board.

Up until today only a mayoralty contest was ensured with incumbent Jack Ellis being challenged by sitting alderman J. Russell Scott.

For aldermen, five of the present 10 have agreed to let their names stand again, two have declined to run and two are undecided. Three newcomers have expressed a willingness to allow their names to go before the voters.

On the public school board only three candidates are assured at this moment for the eight seats.

It is hoped that additional citizens will come forward tonight when nominations open at city hall at 7.30. The problems in the educational and municipal fields will certainly not be any less over the next two years.

Some faction of the electorate has expressed concern over the actions of elected members over the past years. It would be unusual if this hadn't been the case.

The right to criticize is inherent in our way of life. But this tenet is weakened if those who would criticize do not provide alternatives for the voters.

A spirited contest for every elected office would give Belleville a much better chance to make a spirited municipal showing over the next two years.

Whither Away Medicare?

Where do we stand on medicare?

It's doubtful if more than a handful of people in the city of Belleville could produce an effective appraisal of the Federal-Provincial medicare stand-off.

It is a sad commentary on a fact of life which is to so vitally affect everyone not only in Belleville but in Canada.

The national health scheme is supposed to be initiated next year but has run into a stumbling block with Finance Minister Sharp saying the billion dollar price tag is too high.

Mr. Sharp has been a real bogeyman in this case. He has attempted to frighten the people of Canada by attaching a figure to medicare which is beyond the comprehension of almost everyone but the financial wizard.

At the same time he seeks to get his Liberal conference off the election hook by asking the provinces to practise restraint by enjoining the federal government to impose a delay in the start of this program.

It would be interesting to know just what Mr. Sharp's billion dollars mean.

Ontario families enrolled in the provincial OMSIP plan pay approximately $150 a year. Some of these families also pay a premium for supplementary services.

If the taxpayer is going to foot the expense for medicare why can't Mr. Sharp's billion dollars be broken down into an estimate Ontario residents can understand.

We shouldn't be taxpayers but we aren't any different from anyone else. We like to think we belong to the "in group" too.

LBJ-JFK Comparison

Only Four Years But Kennedy Death Like Another Age

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sun was shining, the crowds were cheering, and President John F. Kennedy was the most popular figure in America when he was shot to death four years ago today in Dallas.

Now he is a beloved and almost legendary figure. But so much has happened since that day it is as if Kennedy had died in another age.

Nothing shows this better than the change in the national mood since Nov. 22, 1963, and in the difference between the attitude toward Kennedy then and the attitude now toward his successor, President Johnson.

Kennedy won election by a thread in 1960 and in three years had become a national idol. Johnson overwhelmingly won election on his own in 1964 but this week a public opinion poll reported confidence in him at an all-time low.

There is irony in this. While Johnson lacked Kennedy's grace and eloquence, he won the presidency by 16,000,000 votes, reflecting the people's great confidence and hope in him, while in 1960 Kennedy won by only 113,500 votes.

What went wrong? Above all things, the war in Vietnam. At the time Kennedy died the United States was only dipping its toes in the war with 15,500 men. Under Johnson it got in up to its neck. It has 475,000 men there now.

Ironically, Kennedy said shortly before his death the same things about U.S. determination to help South Vietnam stop Communist aggression as Johnson is saying now.

But while crowds cheered as Kennedy, when the country had no major dilemma like Vietnam, anti-war mobs deride Johnson.

Anti-war demonstrations starting out peacefully end in violence, oaths from their draft cards in defiance of the government. Crime increases and Negro riots in the city multiply in size and destruction.

The witless assassination of Kennedy may have set off some of the explosive contempt for law and order that followed in the years since 1963.

But Johnson has been on the receiving end of it all. If Kennedy had lived and been reelected, and if there was no war by now he might have set up a stunning record in the presidency.

He didn't do it while he was president. In the main problem of his time, which was getting major legislation through Congress, he wasn't in the same league with Johnson. But that has to be qualified a bit.

Johnson's legislative record in the first year after his election was unmatched by all that Kennedy did in three years. After that Johnson, distracted by the war, lost his grip on Congress.

When does all the assassination of Kennedy? There are some likely reasons: A sentimental one, a regret for a life ended. Some was shot out of his so early; the growing flow that builds up around a folk-hero, making him look taller; gratitude for the splendid grace Kennedy gave to the presidency.

But future historians, aided by the cool detachment of time, are not apt to conclude that Kennedy's actual achievements were more than ordinary.

The fact that we are all broke — in fact, hopelessly in debt — will come as no surprise to any one. But the extent of our indebtedness, on the average $1,020 for every working Canadian, might cause a few eyebrows to raise.

But how can we help but owe money? The banks, the finance stores with their buy down-payment plans, the appliance stores with their nothing - to - pay - until - after - Christmas offers and the airlines with their go-now pay-later schemes are all pulling each other to hold our money. To refuse their offers would only depress the economy.

Now—Women As Generals

Christian Science Monitor

Joan of Arc would not have been surprised at the fact; but she would surely have been surprised at the length of time it took. The fact referred to is congressional passage and presidential signature on a bill authorizing the military services to promote women in the ranks of general and admiral.

Of course, other than for the Maid of Orleans, there are few precedents. Leaving aside the mythological Hippolyta, queen of the Amazons, and the fantastic Deborah, who was more a national leader than a general, it is hard to think of any other leader other than the Britons' Boadicea. As for female admirals, they are even rarer. Certainly the handful of harridans who commanded pirate ships in the Caribbean as little deserved the term of admiral as they did that of admirable.

We do not anticipate that, at an early date, some female general officer will emulate Joan and command troops in battle. But it is not unlikely that she may head some department in the Pentagon. Certainly, if present reports are true, that vast five-sider is badly in need of a woman's housecleaning.

Doubtless, Mary in leathery old campaigner or seadog will shake his head at the news. But he had better get used to it. Madame Admiral may soon be barking orders in the next office.

Value of Translation Is the Need It Fills

Montreal Gazette

The words and phrases of the Bible, regarded by the all-important message they convey, come to have a sacred value of their own, aside from their meaning. Any change in them is likely to upset the faithful as a form of sacrilege.

It is forgotten that the phrases in English which we hold in such veneration have by only a vague, second-hand significance for others who have read the same chapters in other languages, that the words so dear to us form only one of many translations.

A reminder that this process is still going on comes from Sydney, Australia, where a group of Protestant missionaries, working in co-operation with the British and Foreign Bible Society, is completing a new translation from the original Greek into Pidgin English.

The new Bible is to be used by a million natives of Australia's New Guinea.

Pidgin English is not a formal language at all. It is a combination of English and native words developed by sailors and soldiers around the Pacific in the years when the Western nations were opening up the area to trade.

This fact does not deter the missionaries at all. The important thing is that the New Guinea peoples understand it. By its use, they will be able to receive the message which has already been received and treasured by so many nations in so many languages around the

Scientists Confirm Grim Thought

Grim Thought

Last month the United Nations issued a report on nuclear weapons in warning that the present nuclear arsenals of the super-powers could eliminate mankind, China included.

The report was endorsed by 12 scientists from as many countries, including Dr. Vasily Emelyanov, a former chairman of the Soviet Atomic Energy Commission. Its clear purpose was to answer the theory held by some Chinese Communist leaders that after a nuclear war there would be enough Chinese survivors to dominate the world. What the report says is that there would be no survivors and no world to speak of.

Recent Russian experiments aimed at developing techniques for the assembly of space platforms that could serve as launching pads for nuclear missiles, and the even more recent report that the Soviet Union appears to have developed an orbital bomb capable of hurling down nuclear warheads from outer space on any part of the globe should be food for thought for anti-march-loving (or is it love - marching?) pacifists and amateur professors.

But before our protestors start marching on the Canadian Embassy in Ottawa (darn those Russians, they don't maintain a body comparable to Trenton the way the Americans do!) let's not forget that the Soviet Union signed a treaty banning nuclear weapons from outer space. Hence, we really have nothing to worry about. After all, a treaty is a treaty, It isn't as if a treaty was just a piece of paper.

World Money Crisis Ahead If Pound Fails to Stand Up

NEW YORK (AP) — The "all is well" statements of U.S. financial and government officials following the devaluation of the British pound are necessary but strictly for show. The trouble is serious; more crises may be ahead.

Immediately following the 14.3-per-cent devaluation, in fact, the suspicions began to develop that this was not enough and that six to nine months from now a larger devaluation may be needed.

If such a second crisis does develop it will not be substantially as easily as the first. The British knew that a minor devaluation was acceptable to much of the world; a larger one would cause other nations to devalue in self-defence.

This frightening picture is not extreme. It could well occur if Britain is not successful in proving to the world that the pound will buy just as much as 2.4 dollars or 12 French francs or 8.6 German marks.

If the pound fails again, the pressure on the U.S. dollar to prove its relative value would be extreme. The U.S. now guarantees that value by permitting foreign governments to redeem their dollars in gold.

However, these foreign governments now have claims on more gold than the U.S. possesses. The U.S., too, has been running up big bills overseas, piling dollars in the hands of those who can test the U.S. conviction that its money is worth its weight in gold.

That is why analysts now insist that foreign bills must be paid, that the United States must stop the outflow of gold and dollars, and that it must bring dollars home by correcting its trade imbalance.

Critics of fiscal policy insist the domestic economy must be put in order. If inflation is permitted to run away, then U.S. goods could be priced out of world markets.

To correct such problems is easy in theory, but with large foreign aid commitments and a costly war in Vietnam, the dollar flow persists. At home, inflation also persists in the absence of taxes and less government spending.

If the world loses confidence in the U.S. dollar, as well as in the pound, then the entire value relationship of currencies would be disputed. Confidence would evaporate. Chaos would reign. Trade would slow depressingly.

In the meantime, some optimistic signs are appearing in the U.S. economy. As a result of an imperfect fiscal policy and because of Britain's problems, American interest rates are soaring to the highest levels this century.

High rates in the United States might entice investments from Britain in the country; but high rates, maintained for a long period of time, can slow business expansion also.

This is serious. Parts of the American economy, such as housing, are just now recovering from a severe shortage of investment funds.

High returns also might draw money from the stock market. Instead of being invested in shares of industry, this money would be lent at perhaps a greater return than stocks could offer.

For these and other reasons the present crisis in the British alone. It is a dangerous situation for the U.S. also, and in fact for the entire world.

Suez Closing Hurts Britain

Higher World Interest Rates Bring Pressure on Pound, Dollar

LONDON (Reuters) — The econ ic troubles which led Britain into devaluation and its highest bank rate in more than 50 years were brought about by a multiplicity of events.

There was no one single cause. The world has become so tight-knit that the ripple from a local event, which years ago would have had no impact outside its immediate territory, now radies around the earth, affecting many nations.

Because the pound and the dollar are the world's key trading currencies, they suffer most.

For years, the pound has been under almost continuous pressure—an offshoot of higher interest rates elsewhere in the world's money markets. There were determined bid never completely successful attempts to build up Britain's overseas earnings through trade, a field in which the competition was vigorous. Britain also had to carry balances of payments on loan after loan—$2,000,000,000 worth since 1964.

By imposing stringent deflationary measures in July, 1966, the Labor government threw over many of its traditional Socialist policies in a bid to cure sterling's malaise from the inside.

Then came the bitter blow to trade of the Arab-Israeli war, with the closing of the Suez Canal, Britain's trade lifeline to the East.

It gave Britain's exports a pounding and, more serious, temporarily cut off supplies of reasonably - priced Middle East oil

Then came Britain's formal application to join the European Common Market, a prospect which seemed to inject new life into industry.

Things looked brighter again —only to be dimmed by nearly two months of wildcat strikes by longshoremen in the big export ports of Liverpool and London.

Exporters who had been scouring the world for orders had to stand by helplessly while undelivered orders piled up in the docks.

The overseas trading balance sheet was hit again, building up to a record deficit of £107,000,000 ($321,000,000 by the old rate of $3 to the Canadian dollar) at the end of last month.

Overseas holders of the pound were not satisfied when the Wilson government blamed it all on the longshoremen. They—and particularly the French—thought the government had lost control. That's when the real run on the pound began.

The Bank of England had to dip daily into its dwindling dollar reserves to prop up the currency, and negotiations were started for yet another international loan.

While this was taking place, the dollar was having its own problems.

The mounting cost of the Vietnam war was beginning to strike at the United States' internal economy. A one-year trade deficit of $2,000,000,000 was feared and President Johnson was being trounced by Congress to approve new taxation to dampen inflation.

It all added up to the fact that the pound and dollar bricks in the world monetary foundation needed reinforcing.

In the last stages of the crisis, confidence in the pound was not helped by the government's silence. Last Friday the Bank of England had to back the currency with an estimated £180,000,000 ($500,000,000 at the old rate).

The government's silence now has been explained by the time lag between when it started its devaluation machinery and the point—Saturday night—when it was freed from secret talks to be able to announce its decision.

In fact it now is claimed that devaluation was decided on two weeks ago.

With the pound's devaluation of $2.40 U.S.—$2.57 Canadian—a start has been made in strengthening the West's currency wall.

Trenton Lacks Accommodation: Fraser

TRENTON — It's fine to attract a new industry, but its employees must have a place to live.

D. R. Fraser told a meeting of Trenton's Real Estate Board Thursday that their community faced a problem common to other centres — lack of the proper type of accommodation. This was particularly acute in the face of expected industrial expansion in the near future.

"It doesn't make sense anymore to buy individual homes to rent people," said Mr. Fraser.

Mr. Fraser said communities should give more attention to what may have become outdated zoning bylaws in this day of multi-unit housing requirements.

This was only one field which local authorities would do well to emphasize.

"Trenton is the 'natural' landlord for the Canadian Forces Base Basilius. The fact we are losing hundreds of potential town residents to other surrounding communities indicates a lack in precisely the type of housing we need."

Mr. Fraser, who has declared his intention to run for mayor in the Dec. 4 municipal elections, told fellow realtors they could play an important part in the future development of their community by discarding their "house salesman" image.

Particularly in the area of urban renewal programs, Trenton realtors could be of great assistance to such municipal bodies as the planning board, Mr. Fraser said.

Urban renewal represents an opportunity for realtors to co-operate in the development of their community, as well as to promote their own capital investments, he said.

"Every realtor in Trenton should make it his business to beg, borrow, or steal a copy of our town's urban renewal study."

Children Can't Face Failure in School: Pile

"A child should never taste failure until he is sufficiently mature to cope with it — and that is never in public school." said Fred Pile in addressing the final meeting of the "Youth in the Modern World" series sponsored by the Canadian Mental Health Association. Mr. Pile is principal of Owen Boulevard public school in North York, an ungraded school which has introduced the continuous progress pattern of learning geared to the needs of the individual child.

Mr. Pile saw real merit in the proposed plan of having education organized on a county basis. He regarded this as a method of providing equal educational opportunity throughout the province. He emphasized however, that education in that context referred to business management only. It was the job of the school board to make broad policy and raise the necessary money. Education itself — the actual program and content of teaching — must remain at the school level, the joint responsibility of teachers and parents. Mr. Pile commented that no wise school board would take a niggardly approach to provision of funds for schools, especially since there were such excellent incentives from provincial government in the grant structure.

In summarizing the series, Mr. Pile kept returning to the theme that the good parent is the one who is permissive in relation to the level of maturity shown by the child. Limits must be set by the parents in accordance with the maturity of the youth, but within these limits there should be a permissive atmosphere with considerable freedom of choice and decision.

The 1968 Ford: the newest expression of the Fords that showed themselves astoundingly strong, wonderfully quiet—test after test, drive after drive. Back in 1965, Ford showed itself even quieter than a Rolls Royce . . . in 1966, Ford showed its quiet strength against the finest European luxury cars . . . in 1967, Ford showed its rugged durability conquering the steep steps of the Los Angeles Coliseum. Now in 1968, the new generation Ford is, more than ever, a great road car.

Every one's a beauty too: the formal, elegant 2-and 4-door LTD'S. The racy convertibles. Luxurious wagons. A spirited new fastback that seats six. And behind the good looks, better ideas: power disc brakes, rear window defogger, 7 position tilt steering wheel, "no headlight" headlights (neatest disappearing trick of the year), AM Radio-StereoSonic tape system and lots more. So many features, in fact that your '68 Ford is almost custom outfitted for you.

Ford's new improved SelectShift transmission (works both manually and automatically) puts three speeds into action, for greater flexibility and livelier performance with Ford's new V-8 engines. V-8's from a brand new 302 CID powerplant . . . all the way up to the rugged 428. For snappy performance plus six-cylinder thrift, there's the 240 cu. in. Big Six.

Try the 1968 Fords. Quieter because they're stronger. Stronger because they're better built. And beautiful. Great road cars.

Refresher Course Conducted By Registered Nurses' Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) — A six-week refresher course, designed to return 600 nonworking nurses to their profession, is being conducted in Toronto by the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Margaret Peart, director of the courses and former director of nursing at Doctors' Hospital, said in an interview that 27 women—mostly in their 30s and 40s—are taking the first of a series of courses.

This is the first time the association has given refresher courses for nurses.

More than 1,300 registered nurses replied to 19,000 letters sent out to find out who was interested in taking the course. Many applicants stated their greatest problem in returning to work was getting baby care facilities and the fact that such expenses could not be deducted from their income tax.

A second course starts Jan. 9 and additional lectures, films and on-the-job-training will be offered on weekends and at nights.

The nurses pay $25 each, the balance being paid by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Municipal Candidates Speak to PC Women

The Belleville Progressive Conservative Women's Association held their monthly meeting Monday evening at the Kiwanis Centre with Mrs. Stuart Howell presiding.

A letter was read from Dr. R. T. Potter thanking the women for their support in the recent Provincial election. Les Grills, MP, sent a letter of congratulations to the association on their major roll in Dr. Potter's election.

A cheque for $100 has been sent to the MacDonald-Cartier Library fund, the centennial project of the Progressive Conservative Women of Canada.

The members were reminded of the annual Christmas party on December 18, at which time they are requested to bring a toy for an underprivileged child. The Association has been instrumental in purchasing 96 dressed dolls.

Some of the candidates who are offering themselves for election on December 4 spoke briefly.

Mayor Ellis was introduced and he assured the group that he was standing for re-election. The mayor went on to state and explain his interest in promoting a better Belleville through an expanded Industrial program. "B.U.I.L.D." (Building Unlimited Industrial Land Development). The corporation would buy land, construct buildings for industry and shares would be sold for as little as $25 so that all who wish to participate may do so.

Dr. Scott was introduced and stressed that as a candidate for mayor he would press for a friendly city. He would also encourage the university and that would be accessable to people on foot and urge changes in the planning board structure. He said that the best way to get industry is to deserve it.

Alderman Boyle was introduced and reviewed his past record in council. He spoke of his interest in the Senior Citizens' Home; family housing; Children's Aid Society and his work on the administration of justice.

A lively question period followed. Mayor Ellis answered questions with reference to the Dundas Street bridge project, explaining that this was essential to the progress of the city.

A question was asked concerning the sewers for Foster Ward. Mayor Ellis explained in detail the problem involved and expressed his opinion that the sewer project would be completed by July 1, 1968.

Alderman Boyle complimented the women on their organization and type of questions asked by them.

Representatives from the School Board, in the persons of Mrs. Miriam Graham, G. Brennan and G. Joyce, were presented and spoke briefly asking for support in the coming election.

The women of Ward 1 served refreshments.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Show grandmother how you can say 'Jack and Jill . . .' Come on now, 'Jack and Jill . . .' Oh, dear, she recited the whole nursery rhyme this morning."

Child: "Jack and Jill went up the hill . . ."

Mother: "It's fun to say nursery rhymes, isn't it?"

Children's pleasure in learning is its own reward. Don't force them to show off.

Outsize Meat Loaf Serves Ten

By MARY MOORE

Courting your favor — that is what I am up to. My Outsize Meat Loaf with Shiny Red Glaze will serve 10 people generously. If your family is of average size make up the whole recipe. Serve it hot for current meal then refrigerate it and slice it cold for a future meal. Daily lunch packers could use it for sandwiches. If you do not fancy it cold reheat it over a pan of boiling water, covered.

A Christmas divide and conquer? Since this loaf has a shiny red topping it would be eye-catching on a buffet table during your Christmas entertaining. If you use it for a buffet it must be lifted from the loaf pan right side up, so first line pan with double fold of heavy wax paper, lengthwise, to facilitate removal. When transferred to platter peeling off paper will be comparatively easy.

OUTSIZE MEAT LOAF with SHINY RED GLAZE
(Serves 10)

2½ lbs. ground beef
1 cup milk
2 cups soft breadcrumbs
2 tsps. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
⅓ cup grated raw carrot
⅓ cup finely chopped onion (OR ¼ cup bottled onion or chives)
2 eggs
½ cup catsup
3 tbsps. brown sugar
2 tbsps. prepared mustard

In a very large bowl pour milk over breadcrumbs to soak. Add beef, salt, pepper, carrot, onion and eggs. Mix thoroughly — by hand if you wish — to break up meat and blend ingredients well. Turn into large 9 x 5 x 3" buttered loaf pan. (I used Corning ware.) Mix together well the catsup, brown sugar and mustard and spread evenly over top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hrs.

Popular Outsize Meat Loaf is dressed up with a gleaming red glaze. Mary Moore advises you to make it up for a double purpose. Serve it once hot, later sliced cold. Served sunny side up it would be an eye-stopper on Christmas buffet.

Reader Asks Ann for Frankness in Column

Dear Doris: I have often wondered why you say you are sending suggested information for reading when I thought I'd like the answer too. We read on the letters page the frank story and a lot is incite the youth to go see all about sex at the shows. Why not be just as frank about life in your column? You do it so tastefully and tactfully.

—I've often wondered why you've never reminded girls (teenagers) that tight slims and low-necked blouses are encouraging boys to a different approach to girls. It is possible to be pretty and wholesome and still not wear skintight revealing clothes. — All For Frankness

Dear All: We avoid giving names of products or books in the column. These belong in advertisements.

Some felt think me unusually frank; thanks for the kind words about tact and taste. And you have put the bit about the peek-a-boo necklines and bulging hips into words — so I don't need to.

Dear Doris: Having been elected president of a group, I am expected to conduct meetings in the correct manner.

Most of the ladies are of a kindly nature and graciously overlook the odd mistake. At the last meeting I forgot to ask whether all were in favor after a motion had been made and seconded, and I didn't realize this till one of the ladies whispered it to me.

Would you have a guide for me? — Prexie

Dear Prexie: All is not lost. There are times when even the best of chairmen has been caught forgetting to put some simple motion to a vote. I'm sending you the name of a dandy little booklet about conducting meetings.

Dear Doris: We are two secretaries, one in her twenties, and the other in her thirties. Our problem is that we have absolutely no work to do some days and very little on other days.

We both like our jobs and the people we work with and therefore dislike the idea of obtaining another job. That's the hardest thing for us to do to to look busy when there's nothing at all to do. We have cleaned up every cupboard and filing cabinet a couple of times. It is considered a bad policy to read a book at work.

Have you any suggestions as to how our problem can be remedied? — Content but Bored.

Dear Content: Can't think of anything more demoralizing. Keep at it long enough and you'll lose all zest for work—and for life. A job with no work attached is a blight.

What you have to do things — creative things which we feel are worth doing. In this era of the continuous flavor is a better challenge/waiting for you. Look for it before you characterize into a couple of clock-watchers.

Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!

Brooding Over Past Mistakes Is Useless

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the girl who described her boyfriend as a "first-class freeloader" became he offered to pay for her abortion (which she later discovered she didn't need) moved me to write my first letter to a newspaper.

ANN LANDERS

This letter will probably sound like a grade B movie or a rotten make-up story; and I only wish it were. But unfortunately it's true — every word of it.

My mother died when I was 16 and I started sleeping with an older fellow. I told myself I was doing it because I missed my mother, I know now I did it because I was too dumb and too weak to say no.

When I became pregnant my boyfriend took me to an abortionist who botched the job and I almost died. As a result of that abortion I will never be able to have children. My "great love" dropped me promptly and I took up with another bum who dragged me down into the gutter where I stayed for three miserable years.

One day I woke up sick to death of myself and decided to get a respectable job. I am now 29 years old, and I look 45. I avoid my school friends because I have such a mess of my life I don't know what to say when we meet.

I am tortured by the past and terrified of the future. I wrecked my life because of a foolish mistake. If just one girl learns something from this letter perhaps my messed-up life will have served some purpose. Please print it. — MY NAME IS MUD.

DEAR FRIEND: You did not ask for advice but I feel obliged to give it. Your inability to forgive yourself has set you on a course of self-destruction. Brooding and agonizing over past mistakes takes energy — energy that could be used to build a decent future. Professional help might be the answer if you are unable to do it alone.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week I had dinner at the home of a friend. I have eaten there before and he or a member of his family always said grace. This time his mother asked me to say it. I declined, explaining I was under the impression that grace should be said by a member of the host family.

The woman called me ill-mannered and ignorant (those words) and shouted angrily, "if you don't say grace we won't eat." I was too choked up to speak so I just sat there. They did eat after a few minutes and grace was not said. I didn't touch a bite of food and excused myself immediately after dinner.

My boyfriend walked me home and he was terribly upset. Was I wrong? Should I apologize? If I am invited to his home for dinner again, should I accept? — PERPLEXED.

DEAR PERPLEXED: Guests are sometimes asked to say grace and when asked, they should do so. A guest who defers to a member of the host family, however, should not be pressed or made to feel uncomfortable.

The boy's mother sounds like she could go bear hunting with a switch. If you care for the young man, accept future invitations and make no reference to this ugly incident. Say grace, if asked, and carry on as if nothing happened.

Another World's First for Russia?

Dr. Murray Vows to Continue Work on 'Impossible' Operation

TORONTO (CP) — A renowned surgeon was criticized in public before his peers Tuesday for "premature" disclosure of a new operating technique that promised hope and a new life for the world's paraplegics. Undaunted, he vowed to continue his work until he received vindication.

Tight-lipped, at times quivering with suppressed anger, Dr. Gordon Murray told a startled news conference, almost unprecedented in the medical profession, he is convinced that his method is sound and eventually will bring relief—if not complete recovery—to thousands of persons now hopelessly paralyzed.

If the news conference was unprecedented, so were the circumstances that led to it.

Eight days ago Dr. Murray, 72, famed for his open heart surgery and kidney transplants, inventor of a mechanical kidney and holder of many "firsts" in daring surgical procedure, took the unorthodox step of producing at an open dinner meeting a paralyzed patient he said he had enabled to stand erect and move his arms through surgery that never before had been performed.

Dr. Murray said his operation consisted of severing the spinal cord, removing three-quarters of an inch where it was damaged and rejoining the undamaged ends. The bone around this area was removed to permit the shortened cord to be rejoined. He said this operation took place at the level of the sixth neck vertebra.

The Toronto General Hospital, where the operation took place last May and of which Dr. Murray is senior surgeon, called Tuesday's news conference because, said Dr. William J. Drucker, the hospital's surgeon-in-chief, it feared that worldwide enthusiastic response to Dr. Murray's announcement had raised false hopes among patients confined to a hopeless existence by spinal injuries.

Dr. Drucker said years of research lay ahead, before it could be proved that Dr. Murray's technique was sound.

"I have the greatest respect for this brilliant man but I don't believe him on this particular [illegible] because I can't get the data that says this patient really improved.

"From the knowledge that I have, this patient may have improved from just darned good physiotherapy. On the other hand I have much great faith in Dr. Murray I believe he might have improved because of his regeneration of the cord. I can't say yes or no—all I want is more evidence and I think this is the only fair thing to say."

The patient was 24-year-old Bertram Proulx, a Quebec truck driver, paralysed from the neck down since an automobile accident three years ago.

Safety Body Gets Smarter

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The U. S. National Safety Council is getting smarter; it is beginning to use sense instead of slogans in its attack on our mounting auto fatality rate. Slogans too soon lose their power to motivate behavior.

In the October issue of "Traffic Safety," the magazine put out by the Council, the lead article, "A Realistic Approach to Drinking and Driving," suggests that the familiar slogan, "If You Drink Don't Drive," may be outmoded, because people don't believe it or pay attention to it.

I have long maintained that this was the case. All drinking drivers are not alike, because all drinkers are not alike, and all drivers are not alike. Putting them all in the same category, and exhorting them all from drinking if they are going to drive, or driving if they have been drinking, is unrealistic and unpsychological.

"Don't drink more than you should" is a much more reasonable injunction to drivers — and this "Should" varies with the individual. For instance, I happen to have a low tolerance for alcohol; one drink affects me the way three drinks affect most persons — so that one drink is my maximum if I am going to drive. I know it, and respect it.

There are different kinds of drinkers, and different kinds of drivers — and a campaign to get all of them to a h a n drinking entirely if they are going to drive is bound to be futile and pointless. Not the drinking driver, but the driver who drinks too much, is the menace.

There is an excellent parallel here in the question of "speed" in auto accidents. The slogan "Speed Kills" is, like the drinking slogan, unrealistic and unpsychological. Every driver knows that speed — per se does not kill — it is going too fast for conditions that kills.

At 80 miles an hour on a clear, dry, 6-lane expressway, I am travelling much more safely than I am at 40 miles an hour on a two-lane highway in the rain at dusk. It is the total context, the conditions, that determine what "speed" really means; for speed is not an absolute, but a relative matter. The great majority of fatal accidents, indeed, occur at speeds considerably under 40 miles an hour.

Drivers don't need moralistic slogans, but more accurate scientific appraisals of how much alcohol they can safely absorb into the bloodstream, and how fast is "too fast" for specific road and climatic conditions. Turning such relatives into absolutes merely gives motorists psychic deafness; they tune out the whole wavehand of safety injunctions, when they should be turning to the wave-length meant for them alone.

Commons Sniffs Election as Liberals Win Confidence Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — A whiff of election shot through the Commons Tuesday night as Liberals turned out in force to defeat a Conservative non-confidence motion — 119 to 105.

Almost every Liberal MP in Canada was called in for a vote that all but sealed the opposition after two days of bitter attack on government economic policies.

An impending income tax increase and the future of the medical care insurance program, coupled with federal spending, were the main topics.

The non - confidence vote climaxed a two-day supply debate and was based on a charge by Opposition Leader Stanfield of "economic mismanagement."

An accompanying vote, on a New Democrat motion calling for investment and monetary controls, a floating exchange rate, and a guarantee that the medical care insurance program will be launched next July 1, was defeated 205 to 18.

Mr. Stanfield said later he considered the turnout for the votes excel`nt, considering that a dozen MPs are away in Brussels for a NATO meeting.

He appealed during a 45-minute maiden speech Monday for full support in driving the Liberals out of office.

Fifteen New Democrats, five Creditistes, one Social Credit member and one independent MP joined 88 PCs in support of the Conservative motion.

The 117 Liberals who opposed it were joined only by Howard Johnston (SC—Okanagan - Revelstoke) and J. A. Mongrain (Ind—Trois - Rivieres).

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette earlier described the Conservative motion as "stupid" but apparently decided to support it anyway at the last minute.

Mr. Caouette, NDP members and Liberal spokesmen in the debate had criticized Mr. Stanfield for failing to present alternative policies with his criticism of the government.

Acting Prime Minister Martin said later he had no fear of defeat in the vote. Nevertheless, 120 of the 132 Liberal MPs, including Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who can only vote in a tie, were present.

Two Liberals abstained because of agreements with absent opposition MPs.

Mr. Stanfield himself had to abstain because of a similar pairing agreement with Prime Minister Pearson, in London on business this week.

State Secretary LaMarsh flew back from Winnipeg because she couldn't arrange to have her absence offset by the abstention of an opposition MP.

Mr. Stanfield, though leaving to his agreement with Mr. Pearson, earlier said he planned to crack down on the practice of pairing.

The supply bill—last of the present session—was passed automatically after the votes and the Commons returns today to the debate on capital punishment.

A round of barbed speeches featured the Supply debate.

Mr. Stanfield led off with an assault on the "credibility" of the government's handling of fiscal and economic affairs.

Mr. Sharp dismissed the Stanfield speech as "a stirring call for caution."

Christmas Lighting Endorsed

TRENTON — The first glimmer of an overall downtown Christmas lighting program was revealed at Monday night's regular council session.

Representing the Retail Merchants Association, Chamber of Commerce Manager Jack Wilson asked council's permission to place lighting around the former post office building, as long as it stands. (Council committees are currently debating the fate of the 80-year-old landmark.)

Mr. Wilson told council the association had agreed to spend as much as $800 on the Christmas lighting scheme, some of which will have to be canvassed for.

An estimated $200 to $400 will be expended on flood-lighting the exterior of the old federal building this Christmas, the Chamber of Commerce manager said. The lighting will be operated for a two-week period.

Council endorsed the program and also granted permission for the erection of a "Santa Claus Shop" adjacent to the old post office.

Local children will be able to visit Saint Nick in the quarters from the Dec. 16 Santa Claus Parade until Christmas.

A large Christmas tree will be placed at a strategic downtown location, Mr. Wilson said.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Town council will not act on a proposal to set up a Quinte area animal shelter until after the new year.

In response to a letter from Belleville city council, Trenton councillors Monday night decided further discussion on the matter could be postponed until January, when a meeting of representatives from the communities involved has been scheduled.

A Public Works Committee float will once again represent the town's official contribution to the annual Chamber of Commerce Santa Claus Parade.

Council last night authorized "between $50. and $75. for construction of the float, to be entered in the Dec. 16 pageant.

In response to a Board of Education request for additional lighting on Store St. near North Trenton Public School, council will ask the Public Utilities to erect two additional standards in the area.

The lights, with double four-foot fluorescent bulbs, will be erected at a cost of about $200 each by the PUC out of excess funds from its 1966 capital budget.

The establishment of the period of Dec. 1 to Dec. 7 as "Safe Driving Week" by the Canadian Highway Safety Council was endorsed by Trenton councillors last night.

Six Reforms on Bilingualism Will Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Possible additions of the French and English languages to all public institutions and services in Canada will be one of six reforms on Bilingualism to be discussed at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference opening Monday.

A list of convention topics is contained in background papers the Ontario government has sent to the other nine provinces.

An editor's note says nothing in the papers should be considered as necessarily representing Ontario government policy.

The section dealing with extension of the two languages to all institutions and services acknowledged some progress toward, this goal at the federal level and said Quebec and New Brunswick are the two provinces closest to a bilingual administration.

In Ontario, where French-speaking persons live in concentrated areas, the paper suggested a system of bilingual districts where all provincial and municipal government services would be offered in both French and English.

Other suggestions for discussion of languages include:

1. Provincial legislation ensuring where practicable that French and English-speaking communities have access to schools with instruction in their own language supported by provincial funds.

2. A bill of rights that would embody a reference to official and equal status for French and English languages across Canada or at least in jurisdiction with an adequate number of persons speaking the language.

3. The right to justice in either French or English, perhaps through teams or a central pool of judges, court clerks and lawyers.

4. Improvement of broadcasting facilities for French speaking persons outside Quebec, including possible extension of CBC French radio and television networks across the country.

5. Changing Ottawa into a model bilingual centre by making it an IIIb province, a capital district under federal control or by changing its nature through

Champagne Injunction Is Studied by Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Claude Prevost of Quebec Superior Court Tuesday took under advisement a case in which French champagne manufacturers are seeking an injunction to restrain Canadian wine manufacturers from using the term champagne to describe their products.

The action was brought by an institute representing 15 champagne manufacturers in France.

The institute has asked for $25,000 damages for itself and $5,000 for each of the 15 manufacturers from Chateau Gai Wines Ltd., a Canadian company that is alleged to have sold its products under the name champagne.

The French manufacturers based their case on a 1933 commercial agreement between France and Canada in which both countries agreed to protect each others products from unfair competition and to ensure protection, on their respective territories, of place or origin appellations.

Demonstrative

DEMORESTVILLE — Mrs. Roy Covert has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Frank Herdman, Toronto. Mrs. Hardman accompanied her sister and will be a guest at her home.

Mrs. John Boss spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sallaos have moved to their new home in Belleville.

The Centennial Cookerettes met Wednesday evening at the home of the leader, Mrs. Hollett Gorsline.

Have Soccer Team

MONCTON (CP)—Homesick West Indian and African Students at the New Brunswick Institute of Technology here have organized a soccer team. The students are also instructing Canadians at the institute in the finer points of the game. Institute coach Vaughan Blaney has organized a soccer league and hopes next season the institute will enter the inter-collegiate circuit.

Jamboree Marks Anniversary

Trent Valley Country Jamboree marked its first anniversary and 208th performance Nov. 11.

Producers Jack McCaughen, Stirling, and Ken Snapley, Belleville, turned away 100 people Saturday night from the packed theatre.

The Jamboree has played to capacity audiences since its founding, with an average of 600 people attending each show. Twice comes from the surrounding towns and anyone who plays or sings country style is welcome to take part.

Two Honored For Service To City

Two long term city hall employees were honored Monday for devoted service to the municipality.

At Monday's council meeting, Mayor J. R. Ellis presented plaques to Mrs. Mary White and to Harry Twiddy, both of whom this year retired from their city hall positions.

Mrs. White had served since 1949 in the city tax department, while Mr. Twiddy had worked in the engineer's department and as city market clerk since 1956.

"Council and the city hall staff wish you a long and happy retirement," said Mayor Ellis in presenting the plaques.

Trudeau Won't Attend But Hopes NDP Does

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau says he will not attend the Confederation of Tomorrow conference at Toronto next week because the federal government has not been invited to take part.

Replying to a Commons question Tuesday by Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood), the justice minister said he hopes there will be NDP representatives at the meeting called by Ontario Premier Robarts to explain the party's views on special status for Quebec.

Mr. Brewin said Mr. Trudeau should be at the meeting to expand his view that a bill of rights should be included in any new Canadian constitution.

Prime Minister Pearson already has announced there will be federal observers at the conference.

Premier Robarts has said that the conference will provide a forum where all provinces can play a role in the dialogue on Canada's future.

Smoke Damages Church

MARMORA — Zion United Church in Marmora Township narrowly escaped destruction by fire Sunday morning. A chimney block occurred in the stack from the oil stove, causing extensive smoke damage to the interior. Township firemen stood by in case of explosion.

a co-operative effort by Ontario, Quebec and Ottawa.

The suggestion for full bilingualism in all courts says it may be possible and practical to ensure the use of French and English at all levels of the judicial process in New Brunswick and Ontario.

Other general areas covered by the papers are the goal of Canadians; ways in which the federal system could be improved; and the machinery and structure of federal-provincial relations in Canada.

City Youngsters Learning to Learn In West End School Experiment

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Squeezing water out of a plastic bottle doesn't look much like studying at first glance but the basic laws of physics, chemistry and mathematics result from the experiment.

A new teaching method tentatively being used in many areas of the country is well advanced at Sir John A. Macdonald elementary school.

Revolving around two purposes: to learn by doing and investigating without a set pattern and to find the best possible means to allow for individual differences, the new method is liked by the students.

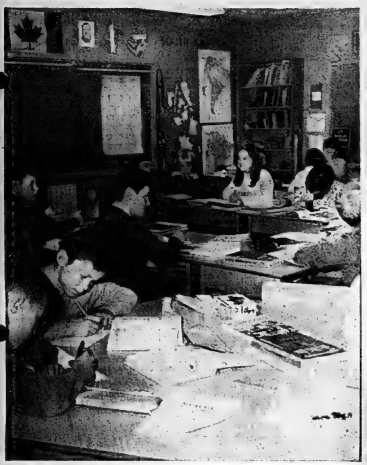
The program, being tried in grades one through six, is not to be confused with "open area" teaching where students can rotate within their own grade level depending on which subjects are most deserving of their study.

Here, the children all learn in one room although it is an unconventional class room structure. Sir John A. Macdonald school is different in that it is the only school using special furnishings to compliment the new system of learning.

Classic school desks have been replaced by pentagonal "five-man" desks and U-shaped seminar desks that allow the children to work together. "What can the child do to discover something" is another feature of the program. Using experiments with plastic bottles and water the pupil not only enjoys himself, but discovers the laws of displacement. When he graphs his results he learns an aspect of mathematics.

Through the use of a television viewer that the child has made himself, he explains to the class the evolvement of transportation and shows them pictures at the same time.

The entire process allows the student to practise art, writing, spelling, vocabulary and speaking — more important he loves every moment of it.



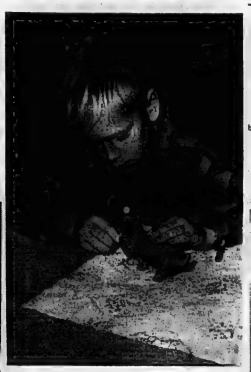
The library is the focal point of the program as it allows the child to read and study from the texts (on the assigned subject) that he prefers. Every author has a different way of saying something and every child has a preference to how he likes it said.

Plasticene and art allow the pupil to relate his own experiences in a more interesting manner, both for himself and his class-mates. If animals are being studied having a cat in the room does make the discussion more interesting, and in many cases, often creates a little excitement to boot.

The unusual furniture is moved around the room to suit the purpose of the learning session and the children take an active part in the organization.

A comparison of the new system to the old method of teaching cannot be done at the time. However, it looks as if two Grade six children, one from each method school, would have acquired the same facts — with the "new method" child having the benefit of learning how to learn.

Acquired skills rather than memorized facts without understanding is the goal. Local observers feel the program is paying results.



Pentagons and "U's" for Desks

An overall view of a Sir John A. Macdonald class room shows the unconventional structure of the desks and the room organization. Some of the children are doing experiments while others are writing up the results and studying.

Co-operative Junior Chemistry

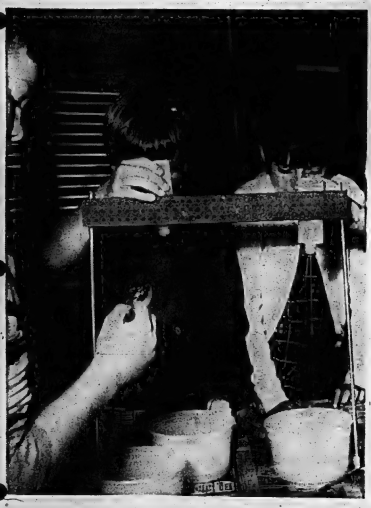
Plasticene Pet

To materially express and illustrate their own experiences children often work with plasticene, clay and other art materials. This young fellow devotes all his skill to a rhinoceros.

Business Relocations Change Front Street

Belleville's sixteenth finance company is officially open for business.



The establishment of Pacific Finance — which now gives the city a finance company for about every 2,000 citizens — also points up the changing face of Front Street, Belleville's main thoroughfare.

Scheduled for Front Street openings this week are two other businesses.

Adams Furniture has moved from Bridge Street East to 333 Front Street while tomorrow Reward Shoes also open new premises further south on the city's main artery.

For Adams, the move means more pleasant shopping provided by greater floor space, says manager R. Cretney. There will be a corresponding increase in the quantity and variety of furniture and appliances displayed.

New spacious premises also have been found by Reward at 229 Front Street, just north of the Four Corners.

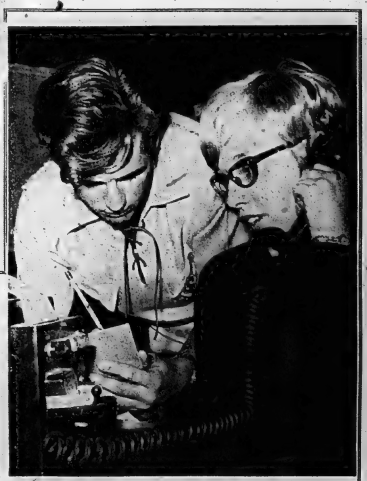
Water Bottle Chemistry

Sir John A. Macdonald students enjoy learning their chemistry and arithmetic in this manner. They don't even get side-tracked into using the water on each other. By squeezing the water out of the bottle and then graphing the result they learn about displacement and mathematical graphs.

Emergency Met

Practice Run Test for EMO

The Quinte district geared for an emergency last night — and coped with it successfully.



But the threat was non-existent, its situations confined to a practice run by the region's Emergency Measures Organization.

However, nearly 100 EMO personnel took the mock emergency seriously and manned radio and rescue teams for two hours.

The practice was organized out of Belleville with EMO director Angus Duffy supervising teams of radio operators and first aid workers from Bancroft to Milford at the extreme south end of the district.

Amateur radio operators linked up with the owners of citizens' band mobile communication equipment to form a network of instant contact across the area.

Later, most of the mobile teams trekked into Belleville for lectures on procedures and a critique of the night's operations.

Emergency Call!

Wayne Purrinder, 18, and student nurse Rose Pogoda take a radio call at Emergency Measures Organization in Belleville during simulated distress exercise last night. Close to 100 radio operators and emergency workers throughout Quinte took part in the operation.

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss;

So you and your Ottawa Rough Riders are eight points behind the Lions and you've spilled enough beers in your skin-doctor to refloat Ewick's Inland.

Let those Tiger-Cat yahoos yelp in their beer'y contents. Let them shout to their beloved Tabbies "Zegar is Sweet — and So are You." Let 'em linger in their jungle, hair swinging by their tails and mouthing defiance at the Rough Rider Tarzans.

Your day is coming, boss. I feel it in my bones. Eight points? Phiaaay — pardon — baloney. A real touchdown and a field goal will do the trick. Providing, of course, the Bytown mountain climbers can surmount the four peaks of the Tiger-Cat Rocky Rockies.

Football - when they hoose like Mont Blanc and three-sister blance to the opposing offensive. And to add gall to your mental wornwood, boss, this fat defensive battalion hasn't yielded a touchdown in the last four outings.

But don't let that get you down, boss. The Tiger Cat quarterback Zegar may have given your Clarizens their bumps last time out but the stuffed shirts in front of him would never be mistaken for even a mediocre basketball squad, score-wise.

Eight points, boss. Shucks and only as a day when the Rough Riders were desperately concentrating on their income tax returns instead of playing football.

And as a field is slippery it would have made the traditional soldiers slithering through the barrel of oil look like it was standing still.

Unfortunately, boss, practically everyone down here in the Clam-and-Gil settlement are Tiger-Cat boys and gals...A few used to be Rough Rider fans but these in the main were also pseudonyms. They got new st Ottawa on account of that five-cent-a-day raise in the monthly cheques. Not enough, they claim, to pay for an extra flagon of clam juice.

Even our family cat, a tiger by nature, picked out her spots. She gave birth to nine young tabbies the other day and her maternity ward was the cab of a parked truck. On the windshield was a sign "No Riders Allowed.

The closing act of this eastern football drama takes place this weekend, boss, and it should be a thriller-diller battle from the opening kickoff. The Tiger-Cat wounds are such they can be licked clean by game time but it would be different with Ottawa. Don Sutherin will be out with a pair of fractured ribs, Margene Adkins of whom one writer quipped "Margene Looked Like Brand X" may be among the missing.

But cheer up, boss. The Riders have been noted for staging more comebacks than my mother-in-law at Christmas. And they've been mostly hack-to-back. So the weekend misfit tee them with their backs to the wall Friday the Tiger Cats flying squad is do its best then counter-attacking with Jackson bombs to put the enemy to rout.

And our Oriental chef "Wu Flung Dung" cheers up with a Confucianism. "Football player who see mother-in-law drowning should put call signals on third down."

So there it is, boss. Eight points is not much, but if the Yabbies score the first T.D., remember, the Riders are 15 points down.

Off the football beat, boss, I see by the papers Belleville is going to build a reasonable facsimile, economy-size arena. I also see by the papers that this city is the only one of its size in Ontario that has but one horse in its animal population.

That figures.

Marlies Grease Skids

Mo-Hawks; Non-Stop Cellar Flight

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Even an early 3-0 lead failed to save Belleville's listless wonders from another

WAYNE BROWN

OHA Senior "A" defeat here last night.

Toronto Marlboros played their usual dull, defensive brand of hockey to protect a 4-3 victory built in the second period.

The loss left the slump-ridden Mo-Hawks with a record of one win and one tie to their last nine outings, a single notch from the league basement — and with questions of an early spring unless they come to life.

They make their next start in Collingwood Friday night.

For a while last evening it appeared Hawks' boys were ahead when Wayne "Wiener" Brown took a powerplay pass on the fly and slapped a shifter past Marlie goalie Gerry McNamara. Greg Marchen and Mickey Chervenyy were on the front end of the play, at 11:07.

Dave Jones made it 2-0 four minutes later on a play with Brown and Bob McAlpine. Jones used Brown as a decoy on a two-on-one rush and banged his own rebound home as he skated into the corner of the net.

The Marlboros got one back at 12:08. Joe Jenkin stopped Don Fuller's original shot and the same Marlie was beaten for the dice at the side of the net. Carl Symons outplayed a Mo-Hawk behind the net however and got it out front for Fuller to drive home.

Gary Milroy tied it after five minutes of the third with a quick, high shot over Jenkin's glove-side shoulder.

Belleville again pulled ahead at 7:36, when Minnie Menard, who along with "Shaker" Baker had been bested by McNamara seconds earlier, shot it in off a Toronto player's leg.

The first of only two Mo-Hawk penalties set up the equalizer against a weak penalty-killing effort by Menard. Wayne Wallaz passed to Earl Balfour to the right of Jenkin. He slid it across and Moe Gaetz had no problem shoving it home, unchecked.

Jenkin, slipping along with his mates, went down too early three minutes later and Earl Balfour shoved the winner under him on a three-man rush with linemates Milroy and Galand.

The Marlboros played uninteresting hockey, fea-wise, all night but it was worse in the third when they were content to ice the puck or just shoot it in from the red line — and the Mo-Hawks were helpless to do anything about it. They tried five forwards at 19:20 and six, with Jenkin on the bench, at 19:42 and McNamara's only saves were against the hard-trying Hec Lalonde, Earlier, Ed Marineau was beaten by McNamara twice.

Belleville outshot the visitors 30-25 overall but only five of the shots came in the final 20 minutes.

Aces Stop Orillia!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took a game misconduct to stop Bob Olajos Tuesday night.

The Kingston Aces winger fired two goals before being banished in the third period as the Aces skated to a 6-3 win over Orillia in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior game at Orillia.

Olajos, who opened the scoring at 3:45 of the first period and added his second of the night at 1:34 of the second, was sent to the dressing room with a major, misconduct and game misconduct after a scuffle at 5:34 of the third period.

The game at Orillia was marred by 36 penalties—13 to each club. There were two majors and two misconducts in addition to the ones received by Olajos.

Bob Rawson also shot two goals for Kingston. Rod Graham and Syl Apps Jr. got the others. Muni Hoffman and Bobby Forham scored for Orillia.

Wanted; Antidote For Inertia!

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

An epidemic of inept play is spreading like wild fire throughout the Mo-Hawk roster.

And a frustrated coach Floyd Crawford is at his wind to know what to do about it.

"How can so many good hockey players continue to play so badly?" he pondered after last night's defeat. "Surely to — they have some pride."

"Weiner" (Brown) played well and Lalonde tried hard but he just hasn't got the legs yet. Outside of them we were lousy.

"I have talked myself blue in the face. They sit there and listen, then go out on the ice and forget it all," Crawford said.

"How long has it been since we hit anybody or got in a fight? The only effective check we've seen all night was when Greg hit Galand," he added, in some of the early games of The Mo - Hawks outlooked their current nine-game slump have shown no signs of fight or desire of late and with Ralph Klaus sitting out a kidney injury, there is not a forward on the club throwing bodychecks. Marchen is the only rearguard doing any hitting and his checks too are coming few and far between.

Many of the players who have been going well slumped with the rest last night. Said Crawford: "It has been a long time since Hotty has played so badly and he had lots of company."

Centres Mickey Chervenyy and George Godeau are slipping badly; Bob McAlpine was no severanmen on defence that he overskated the puck all night; Menard and Jones have been hot and cold effectively and bad defensively; Baker has been in a terrible scoring slump and has started giving the puck away; Wayne McConnell is neither skating nor shooting enough and goalie Joe Junkin has begun allowing a couple of soft goals per game. Others alternate a good shift with a bad one.

And it is showing at the gate in home games. Attendance last night was 820 after 1,724 and 1,627 last Tuesday and Friday.

"Something has got to change — and fast", concluded Crawford.

Cobourg, Flyers Win Cage Tilts

Cobourg shaded Belleville Teachers in a 63-62 cliff-hanger while RCAF Flyers trounced the winless Belleville Aces 94-47 in a pair of Quinte Basketball League games last night.

In Cobourg, Dennis Clarke clinched the see-saw affair in the dying seconds with the last of his 19 points. The game was tied in the game's final minute.

Cobourg's other big scorer was Doug Daye with 18 points.

Bruce Faulds came up with the league's highest individual effort of the season in a losing effort for the Teachers. He bagged 34 points. Wally Uhryniuk was next with nine.

The Flyers broke into an early lead on their home court and held a 44-15 margin at the half against the Aces.

Paul Hargreaves spearheaded the victory march with 28 points. Don Brennan and Joe Therriault each hit for 16 and Luker added 12.

Clair Leahy was the only Aces player to score well. He had 19 points with Jim Vickery, Brian Langabeer and Bob Smith next, each with five.

Minor Hockey

Bears defeated the D.C.A. Transfers, formerly the Canadiens, 3-2, Hornets and Rangers tied 2-2 and Leafs blanked the Dukes 4-0 in last night's BMHA novice division games.

Two players scored all the Bears' goals. Semor Jianopoulous fired the first three and Ray Skelly added the other pair. Sprague and Kells had two assists each, Skelly and Allore honers. Brian Sullivan potted both D.C.A. goals with Maloney helping on two and Morgan on one.

Goalie Paul Baker kept the Leafs' net clear while teammate Male scored three goals against the Dukes Frendall also scored with Bourdeau and Spurgeon getting assists.

In the tie game, Mike Ferris and Edward Grills had Hornets' goals and Mattles assisted on one while Glen Woodley and Paul Hayman scored for Rangers, with Larouche and Brian Kerr getting helpers.

$18 Million Court Fight

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The United States' two soccer leagues have until Monday noon to merge. After that, there'll be an $18,000,000 court fight, commissioner Ken L. Macker of the National Professional Soccer League told sports writers Tuesday.

Macker said: "A merger appears to be close; but I've told you that before and when I left there was no merger. However, the owners are optimistic and I am pleased with the progress."

Unless there's an agreement between the NPSL and the United Soccer Association, the NPSL's $18,000,000 damage suit against the USA is scheduled for a show-cause hearing Monday afternoon in a New York federal court.

Macker said a merger would end the suit; merge some teams; move others to eliminate two-team rivalry in Los Angeles, Oakland-San Francisco, New York, Chicago, Boston and Toronto; result in a league of 18 to 20 teams in two divisions, with a president of each.

It would also mean automatic approval for all teams by FIFA, the international governing body of soccer. FIFA recognizes the USA; labels NPSL an outlaw.

Lunsford Bomber Boss!

WINNIPEG (CP) — Earl (The Earthquake) Lunsford has signed as general manager of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the Western Football Conference club announced Tuesday.

The 34-year-old native of Oklahoma, who as a Calgary Stampeder fullback was the first man to rush a mile in a Canadian Football League season, fills the position left by Bud Grant's departure.

Grant became head coach of Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League prior to the 1967 season.

Bombers won just four of 16 games in 1967, which doesn't bother Lunsford. "I don't want to go into a cut and dried situation," he said.

He will go to work in his new capacity Dec. 2, whenhe attends the Grey Cup game in Ottawa with other club officials.

Range Boss Clair Shuffles Rough Riders For Big Round-Up

OTTAWA (CP) — There will be some changes made Saturday when Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats finish their Eastern Football Conference playoff. And coach Frank Clair hopes the changes will help overcome Hamilton's eight-point lead in the total-point series.

Clair has promised that his players will have a different mental attitude for the game and there probably will be a few players seeing extensive service for the first time in several games.

Clair is not talking about his player switches, except to confirm that defensive halfback Don Sutherin will be sidelined by his two broken ribs. His place will be taken by Larry DeGraw, who has been confined to the bench for most of the last three seasons.

But he makes no secret he was not satisfied with the attitude of his players in Sunday's 11-3 loss to the Ticats in the opener of the two-game series.

"There's no question about it," says Clair who is in his 12th year directing the Riders. "When you drop the ball as often as we did, it means a lack of concentration as well as a sign that a team is not in the proper mental frame of mind."

Last year, the Riders did not have to worry about mental preparation. The players were shocked by the sudden death of defensive coach Bill Smyth just before the EFC playoffs and drubbed Hamilton twice in the finals—30-1 and 42-14.

A couple of switches may have to be made because of injuries.

Halfback Don Gilbert has an ankle injury and may see only limited action. Rick Black, who came off the injured list last week, could see action in his place and rookie linebacker Wayne Giardino also could move into the offensive backfield.

If Giardino moves to offence, Jim Conroy will fill the linebacking vacancy, regaining the job at which he won all-star recognition last year before losing his starting berth to Giardino, a native of Peterborough, Ont.

GARNEY HENLEY

MARGENE ADKINS

With Sutherin out of the lineup, rookie guard Tom Schmelz is expected to dress as the import replacement and could play on either the offensive or defensive line, giving Clair a chance to find a stronger combination for his offensive lines.

Clair also will be making some adjustments to find weaknesses in the zone defence Hamilton used here last Sunday.

Meanwhile, the ground crew at Lansdowne park is back at work on the football field. Despite the use of a plastic tarpaulin, the field was muddy Sunday, due in part to snowfalls last week.

They have almost two weeks to get the field in shape for the Dec. 3 Grey Cup game.

The Big Test

Liske; Snow, Frost, Roughriders

REGINA (CP) — The old maxim about the weather not keeping postmen from their appointed rounds may apply to Calgary quarterback Peter Liske, and he will have a chance to prove it today.

Snow spread a three-inch blanket over Taylor Field here Tuesday and it was expected to be a factor in the second game tonight of the best-of-three Western Football Conference final series between the Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Liske has proved he can carry his spectacular passing attack through wind and rain. Tonight he'll face snow underfoot, temperatures ranging from freezing down to 20 degrees above zero, and possibly a new fall of snow.

Game time is 8 p.m. CST. The game will be televised on the CBC national network.

Calgary coach Jerry Williams said Tuesday night he will probably outfit his team with running shoes to cope with the frozen ground.

In addition to the weather, another big factor tonight is injuries.

Saskatchewan lost defensive ends Garner Ekstran and Don Gerhardt within three plays of each other in the playoff opener last Saturday, won by the Stampeders 15-11; Ekstran with a pulled hamstring, Gerhardt a kneecap injury.

The injuries have presumably ensured shuffles in the Saskatchewan front line, but coach Eagle Keys isn't saying what or how extensive they will be.

Ben Wooddon of Calgary was sidelined with an injury similar to Ekstran's but Stampeders have an extra import, Hank Paremore, to fill Woodson's halfback slot.

Rogers Lehew, Calgary general manager, said the key to a Stampeder victory is a concerted effort to contain the powerful Roughrider ground attack—particularly fullback George Reed who was held to 81 yards in 21 carries in the playoff opener.

Stampeder coach Jerry Williams, whose club is favored to represent the West in the Canadian final at Ottawa Dec. 2, said "I haven't even permitted myself to think about Grey Cup until we have proven ourselves the best in the West.

"I was proud of the way the boys played Saturday. We will simply try and so as well again."

American League

Carew Named Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP)—Rod Carew, the fleet Panamanian who made the American League all-star team halfway through his initial big league season, became the first second baseman ever to win the circuits Rookie-of-the-Year award today. He missed by a single vote of being a unanimous choice.

Carew received 19 votes in the balloting by 20 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Outfielder Reggie Smith of the pennant-wining Boston Red Sox was named on one ballot.

Carew, a 22 year-old native of Gatun, Panama, batted .292 for the Twins. He had 22 doubles, seven triples, eight homers and 51 runs batted in. His average was the sixth highest in the circuit.

Smith, who started slowly, wound up with a .246 average, 15 homers, 61 RBI and 17 steals.

Carew is the second Minnesota player to win the rookie award. Outfielder Tony Oliva took it in 1964.

Gil McDougald of New York Yankees, the 1951 rookie award winner, played 55 games at second base that year. However, most of his defensive work was done at third base, where he played 82 games.

Pitcher Tom Seaver of New York Mets was named the National League's outstanding rookie for 1967 earlier this week.

Raiders Lose Run Ace!

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oakland Raiders limp into Kansas City Thursday for a key American Football League game with the Chiefs. And limp is the perfect word for the Raiders' condition.

Oakland, hanging on to a tenuous one-half game lead in the AFL's Western Division, will have to go the rest of the way without ace running back Clem Daniels, who broke his ankle in last Sunday's 31-17 victory over Miami Dolphins.

Daniels, who became the AFL's first 2,000-yard career rusher earlier this season, is the league's fourth leading ground gainer with 375 yards.

His was the most serious of three ankle injuries the Raiders suffered against the Dolphins. Linebacker Bill Laskey and running back Estes Banks were also hurt and are considered doubtful for the game against the Chiefs.

In other professional football action on the U.S. Thanksgiving Day, Denver Broncos play at San Diego in the American League while Los Angeles Rams are at Detroit Lions and St. Louis Cardinals at Dallas Cowboys in the National League.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — An 18 year-old apprentice, Richard Grubb, won his 221st race of the year Tuesday as he rode Eve Darby to victory at Greenwood race track.

Grubb rode the two-year-old filly to victory in the first race in 1:27 4-5 for seven furlongs.

The filly paid $5.20, $3.20 and $2.10.

The win was Grubb's 47th win in 23 days of fall racing at Greenwood.

The daily double of Eve Darby and Fabulin paid $18.

Young Goalies Tops!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two young goalies who were instrumental in winning the Memorial Cup for the Canadian junior hockey champion Niagara Falls Flyers in 1965 now are making things tough on opposing National Hockey League forwards.

Doug Favell and Bernie Parent, together again in the expanded Western Division of the NHL with Philadelphia Flyers, lead all goaltenders with a combined 2.25 goals against average.

After a slow start offensively, the Flyers now trail division leading Los Angeles by one point, 30 to 31, but have a game in hand on the Kings.

The Flyers are in Detroit tonight in one of six NHL games.

There they face the hottest goalie in pro hockey, Roy Edwards, the Red Wings 30-year-old rookie who is unbeaten in 14 games this year.

Edwards came to the Wings five games ago from Detroit's Fort Worth farm club in the Central Pro League where he'd gone nine games without a loss.

He has yet to be defeated in the NHL although he came close Sunday with only a late-game goal enabling the Wings to earn a 2-2 tie with Chicago Black Hawks.

In other games tonight Montreal Canadiens are in St. Louis against the Blues, Minnesota North Stars visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago plays the Rangers in New York, Boston Bruins are at Pittsburgh Penguins and Los Angeles Kings entertain Oakland Seals.

Edwards, since his promotion, has allowed just six goals and is the NHL's individual leader in goalie statistics with a 1.25 average for the division leading Red Wings.

Favell and Parent, who both turned pro the same year after leading Niagara Falls to the Memorial Cup, perform the same function for Philadelphia with similar results.

College Football

Marauder Top Player!

HAMILTON (CP) — Fullback John Watson of the McMaster Marauders has been named by the Central Canada Intercollegiate Football Conference as its candidate for the outstanding college football player award in Canada for 1967.

Watson, 22, scored 11 touchdowns and averaged more than 100 yards a game rushing to help Marauders to the CCIFC championship with seven consecutive wins.

He sat on the sidelines last Saturday at Halifax as Marauders won a berth in Saturday's College Bowl classic in Toronto against University of Alberta Golden Bears by defeating St. Francis Xavier University.

It was believed that he had a cracked bone in his right ankle, but further diagnosis Monday revealed that the bone is not cracked.

A native of Toronto, he joined McMaster after graduating from Waterloo Lutheran University in the spring. He appeared in last year's college bowl with Waterloo Lutheran Golden Hawks.

The Handguns

Kulesar scored 257 and Don Parks was second with 246.

Other scores were: Joe Heimbach 224, Ray Reed 220 and Dick Charlton 208.

Jackson, Coffey, Barrow Top Choices Eastern All-Star Squad

OTTAWA (CP) — Football buffs in the East were more than a little disgruntled last week when all three top individual awards announced by the Canadian Football League went to the Western Conference nominees.

But the Eastern players who missed out on the CFL awards were redeemed Tuesday when Russ Jackson, Tommy Joe Coffey and John Barrow were overwhelming choices to the Eastern Football Conference 1967 all-star team.

Hamilton and Ottawa dominated the selection of the 34 top Eastern players, selected in a poll of sports writers and broadcasters in conference cities.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats placed four men on offence and three on defence while Ottawa Rough Riders had five offensive and four defensive players named. Of the remainder, Toronto Argonauts were named to three spots on offence and two on defence with Montreal Alouette players getting three defensive positions.

Jackson, quarterback with Ottawa, and Coffey, Hamilton end who led the conference in scoring with 102 points, were unanimous selections while Barrow another Tiger, picked up 20 votes as defensive tackle and one as middle linebacker of the 22 votes possible.

TOMMY JOE COFFEY

RUSS JACKSON

Barrow, as all-star in each of his 11 years with Hamilton, was nominated as outstanding lineman in Canada, Coffey as outstanding player and Jackson, as outstanding Canadian.

Last year Jackson was both outstanding player and outstanding Canadian as well as a unanimous all-star selection.

Hamilton defensive halfback Garney Henley also was a unanimous selection while Whit Tucker of Ottawa was picked at flanker by 21 selectors and offensive end by one.

The teams:

Offence—Quarterback: Jack Jacobs, Montreal; halfback: Bo Scott, Ottawa; halfbacks: Willie Methea, Hamilton, Jim Dillard, Toronto; flanker: Tucker; ends: Coffey, Margene Adkins, Ottawa; centre: Gene Ceppetelli, Hamilton; guards: Frank Danychuk, Hamilton, Roger Perdrix, Ottawa; tackles: Bill Frank and Danny Nykoluk, Toronto.

Defence—Ends: John Baker, Montreal, Bob Brown, Ottawa; tackles: Barrow, Bob Minihane, Montreal; middle linebacker: Ken Lehmann, Ottawa; inside linebackers: Bob Krouse, Hamilton, Mike Blum, Ottawa; halfbacks: Henley, Phil Brady, Montreal, Marv Luster and Jim Rountree, Toronto, Gene Gaines, Ottawa.

The closest vote was for the defensive tackle position opposite Barrow with Minihane getting the nod over Marshall Shirk of Ottawa by a 9-8 count.

The offensive end position with Coffey was almost unanimous, with Adkins getting 19 votes, Mel Profit of Toronto getting two and Tucker one. Profit was the only tight end considered by the selectors.

Lehmann, with 18 votes as middle linebacker, and Brady with 19 as defensive half, similarly were near unanimous selections.

Of the other defensive halfbacks—there were six in the running—Luster got 15 votes, Rountree and Gaines 14 each and Bob O'Billovich of Ottawa 12.

A strange situation developed in voting for offensive backs with Dillard, Scott and Bethea all getting votes as both fullbacks and halfbacks.

The three players selected each are halfbacks who were converted to fullbacks this season.

Scott and Dillard were tied with nine votes each as fullbacks, while Bethea got four. At halfback, Bethea led the way with 15 votes to 11 for Scott and 10 for Dillard.

Also considered were Ron Stewart of Ottawa, with seven votes, and Bill Symons of Toronto, with one.

There were only nine players back from last year's team—Jackson, Tucker, Scott and Frank on offence; Henley, Ray Locklin for the middle linebacker spot he lost last season, Barrow on defence—with Baker, Lehmann, like Barrow, is almost a defensive fixture, having been his linebacking spot for the third successive year.

There were also nine players selected who were not on the all-star squad last year. They are Bethea, Dillard, Adkins, Danychuk, Perdrix, Ceppetelli, Nykoluk, Brown and Minihane.

Generals Snap String

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Generals were the best junior team in Eastern Canada two years ago, but victories come hard these days.

The Generals, who reached the Memorial Cup final in 1965 led by Bobby Orr, broke a four-game losing streak Tuesday night in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action. They edged St. Catharines Black Hawks 3-2 before a crowd of 1,049 at the Oshawa Arena.

It was only their fourth win of the season against seven defeats and a tie. Leaving them in ninth place in the 10-team circuit.

In other action, Kitchener Rangers trounced London Nationals 9-3 while first-place Niagara Falls Flyers clipped Montreal Junior Canadiens 5-2.

Mailing Deadlines Fixed

The Canadian Armed Forces are going to avoid the Christmas mail rush that inevitably causes a week before Christmas. They are establishing deadlines for mail being sent to bases out of the country.

Letters, parcels and newspapers to Britain, Europe and Cyprus can be mailed no later than Nov. 23. Airmail letters and parcels can be mailed as late as Dec. 9 to Britain and Dec. 7 and Dec. 6 to Europe and Cyprus respectively.

As for our bases in Ghana, Indo China and Tanzania it is already too late to send anything via regular mail. The airmail deadlines for all three places are Dec. 8 for letters and Dec. 6 for parcels. The deadlines for regular mail were back in October.

Diefenbaker Shifts View, Backs NORAD

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister Diefenbaker, in an apparent shift of view, Tuesday night called for renewal of the North American Air Defence agreement with the United States

In a speech to the University of Saskatchewan Alumni Association here, Mr. Diefenbaker spoke of indications that the Soviet Union is "interested in escalating the arms race to new heights," and added:

"We must keep up the NATO alliance. We must remember that our vigilance is the safeguard of our freedom. NORAD must be renewed for a further period—on a year-to-year basis."

In a speech last Feb. 17 at Oxford, Ohio, Mr. Diefenbaker indicated that he felt the 20-year air defence pact with the United States could be allowed to lapse. He said then:

"I believe—unless the Canadian government has information that is not available to me—that on termination of the NORAD agreement in May, 1968, there will be little or no reason for its renewal."

Mr. Diefenbaker, who was ousted as Conservative leader in September, said it is popular in some circles to assume that the Soviet Union has abandoned its earlier dreams of world domination.

"Such an assumption could not be farther from the truth," he said. "Some have chosen to ignore the fact that the Soviets are pursuing their expansionist policies; perhaps to our eventual peril."

He cited two developments which he said indicated the Soviet Union is stepping up the arms race.

"One is the modernization of its air defence net-work. The second is the commencement that it intended to deploy an anti-ballistic missile system around major cities.

"A second and more serious development was the news that the Soviet Union had deployed, or was about to deploy, a system of orbiting nuclear bombs.

Ambulances Deliver Dead People to Hospital

TORONTO (CP) — Ambulance drivers in Metropolitan Toronto are delivering dead persons to hospital instead of the morgue because of a ruling last month forbidding coroners to sign death certificates.

The Globe and Mail says Metro ambulance drivers are putting oxygen masks on dead persons before delivering them to hospitals.

It quoted eight drivers, all unidentified, as saying coroners won't come to scenes of death since a ruling by Fred Cruickshank, acting chief Metro coroner.

In making the ruling, Dr. Cruickshank said it is often difficult to determine whether life remains and the facilities of a hospital should be used.

New Reason for Tax Boost

WASHINGTON (CP) — Front line of the International monetary stem, "in almost unique role," and the longsought tax increase of 10 cents more on every income tax dollar will help bolster confidence, The U.S. dollar now is in the Fowler told a press conference.

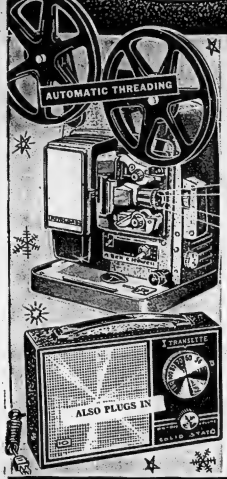
Denis Called Rivard Great Friend of Party

OTTAWA (CP) — "He told me that he had a confidential message to pass on to me, that I was being offered $20,000 to stop opposing bail for Rivard."

In those words, Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne told a 12-man jury of a talk with Raymond Denis, then executive assistant to the federal immigration minister, in the minister's office July 14, 1964.

Mr. Lamontagne, 32, was testifying at Denis' trial on a charge of attempting to obstruct justice by trying to dissuade Mr. Lamontagne from opposing bail for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.



At the time, Mr. Lamontagne was lawyer for the United States government, which was seeking to extradite Rivard in legal proceedings in Montreal for trial in Texas.

Rivard, now 52, is serving a 30-year sentence in Atlanta, Ga.

Of the July 14, 1964, talk with Denis, Mr. Lamontagne said: "He told me also '. . . that Rivard was a great friend and supporter of the party,' that he had helped the party in the past, that there was a danger of elections coming fairly soon and that his help might be needed again soon and it would help the party if he was let out on bail."

WINDSOR (CP) — Joe C won no first race at Windsor Raceway Tuesday night, paying $5 through combining with Marshall Hall for a $17.60 daily double. Joe C. is owned by Reta and Mac Moffatt of Buxford, and trained by Bill Salmi, who paid $5.60 to win. Driven by Mrs. Mary Johnson of St. Thomas.

In the ninth, Final Shot and Maggie McBeth finished one-two for an exactor return of $8.80.

CAMPBELLVILLE (CP) — A $2.80 upset scored by Sammy Key in the first race at Mohawk Raceway Tuesday night provided the first half of a $431.10 daily double.

Roger Road caught the fans by surprise and paid $27.80 in the second to complete the combination.

Ron Feagan increased his season's victories to 289 with two wins during the evening. In the sixth race, he rode Parker K. to a win over Little Cherry and the two paid an $11.80 BOC.

Baseball Club Bankrupt

TORONTO (CP) — Operators of the now-defunct Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team of the International League were forced into bankruptcy proceedings Tuesday.

Toronto (Community) Baseball Ltd. had a petition filed against it by an electrical firm that claimed the club owes it $3,081.

A list of creditors indicates the club owes $134,000 to 86 Canadian companies and individuals, and $20,000 in American funds to 44 U.S. firms and individuals.

A hearing was set for Dec. 1.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP) — Dashing Hanover, owned by Theodore J. Zornow of Pittsford, N.Y., won her third in a row at Batavia Downs Tuesday by capturing the $1,600 condition trot.

Dashing Hanover, a four-year-old daughter of Hoot Mon, beat Shuma by three-quarters of a length with Jamie Marie third. She paid $10.40 to win.

Reinsman Establishes Purse Record

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Haughton, New York reinsman who'll be 64 March 31, has been another record with his fine stable of trotters and pacers.

Figures released Tuesday by the United States Trotting Association show horses driven by Haughton had won $1,240,811 this year going into Monday's races. The figures erased the old mark of $1,215,402 held by Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, N.J., last year.

Horses driven by Dancer have won $1,104,151 this year to send the defending champion over the $1,000,000 mark in earnings for the third time in his career.

Cornwall Shares Loop Lead

Special Programs on Three Networks During Same Time

NEW YORK (AP) — There was an unfortunate pile up of special programs involving the three major networks Tuesday night.

NBC, it appears, was in the cat-bird's seat since it came along an hour earlier than the other two with a "world premiere" feature that consisted of two hours jammed with action.

By the time CBS's Gauguin in Tahiti and ABC's One Night Stands started, the hero and assorted hooks of The Outsider on NBC were so snarled in murder, flights and paychedelic drugs that it required herculean strength of character to slip that dial.

The Outsider obviously followed the lead of last season's Ironside. Made as a one-shot TV feature, it also served to demonstrate its potential as a future series.

What it actually demonstrated is that an old fashioned tough, cool private eye may be on his way back to the little screens.

Women's high scores — L. Willerton 565 (249).

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Dramatic Best-Seller "Up The Down Staircase" starring Academy Award Winner Sandy Dennis. Daily at 1.00, 3.00, 5.00, 7.00 and 9.10. Features 2.15, 7.15 and 9.25.

AT THE PARK — "The Sound of Music" Color by DeLuxe. Starring Julie Andrews and Christopher Plummer. Mon.-Wed. Matinee 1.30 p.m.

Starting against the comparatively quiet competition—The Outsider accidentally will be a series next season.

Gauguin in Tahiti was a handsome, leisurely production highlighted by photography of the French painter's work. Much of the show was filmed on the Pacific island to which he escaped to work.

One Night Stands followed a small circus, a band and a singer onto the road, showing its rigors and its rewards.

Recommended Insight: Music Hall, NBC, 9-10 EST, variety show built around the famous "Nashville sound," with Dinah Shore, Eddy Arnold, Ray Charles and Johnny Mercer.

Trade Winds Blow!

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians of the American League opened the inter-league baseball trading season Tuesday by sending first baseman Fred Whitfield and pitcher George Culver to Cincinnati Reds of the National League for outfielder Tommy Harper in a straight player trade.

The trade was announced 10 hours after the start of the period in which inter-league trades are permitted. The deadline is Dec. 15.

Cincinnati also will get outfielder Bob Raudman, whose assignment from Chicago Cubs to Cincinnati was arranged by the Indians.

Harper, 27, last season played in only 103 games because of a broken wrist. He batted .252.

Whitfield, 29, batted .218 with nine home runs for the Indians last season in 129 games.

Culver, a 30-year-old righthander, had a 7-3 record last season, his first full year in the majors.

World Handball

TORONTO (CP) — Canada and the United States were tied for first place after competition Tuesday night in the world handball tournament.

Defending champion Ireland was third and Mexico fourth.

Don't Feed Baby Solids Too Soon

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: It seems I read hundreds of articles on child feeding, but they never mention things that seem important to me.

1. I think more emphasis should be placed on taking it easy in early solid-food feedings of babies. Personally I prefer to start solids at three months. What shocks me is seeing mothers start at one month with such huge amounts — a couple of tablespoons.

2. If juvenile obesity is such a problem why do so many pediatricians condone such early feedings? Don't they realize that these mothers are more likely to "stuff" baby and child when they start so early?

3. 4 with someone would tell my neighbors (one in particular) that children do not need sugar. We are waging a constant battle because she is always giving my children candy, cookies and soft drinks. The only two sweet meal treats I approve are fruits; she thinks I am being heartless, yet she is always complaining that her son has no appetite at all.—Mrs. R.C.

Mrs. C's letter is very sensible, and worth reading.

1. Solid food can be introduced to a baby at any age the infant is willing to accept it, but I agree that some mothers try to start too soon and then exert too much pressure. I don't say categorically that one month is necessarily too soon — but if the baby is pressured with your spoon and doesn't want to, then it is too soon for that baby. Best rule is to start with very small amounts, as Mrs. C. suggests; a teaspoonful or so of pureed or strained food is enough, just to introduce the taste and consistency gradually. Further thinning of the solid food with milk can make it still easier for the baby to get used to it.

2. Juvenile obesity isn't necessarily a result of being given solid food while very young. However, forcing babies to "eat a little more" is one way to distort their natural appetites, and train them into a habit of over-eating. The child who gets fat eats more than he needs and isn't active enough to use up excess calories.

3. Babies and small children don't need sweet stuff. In fact, they are better off not to have any, because there are natural sugars and starches in cereal, fruit, toast, milk and vegetables.

A good many people automatically (and thoughtlessly) think candy and cookies are nice treats for small children. But sugar does interfere with normal appetite, and why it is so hard for some folks to recognize this, I just don't know.

I have no objection to sweets as an occasional, special treat for a child but am aghast at the amount of sweets some people push at the youngsters. The results are poor eating habits, sometimes obesity, many times dental troubles.

It seems to me that Mrs. C's neighbor is not only being very foolish but also isn't being very neighborly by handing out sweets people don't want. I've been told that Mrs. C's youngsters are being brought up to avoid them. Wonder how the neighbor would feel if Mrs. C. tried to make her accept her feeding rules for her own?

The neighborly thing, it seems to me, is to respect the rules a mother lays down for her own children.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told that a cataract operation causes some people to lose their minds. Is this true?
— Mrs. E. S.

Distinctly not true at all.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is the leaf of rhubarb poisonous? What food or medicinal properties have the cooked stems? — G. R.

Yes, there is a poisonous amount of oxalic acid in the leaves. The stems, however, are simply a pleasant, tart fruit. Powdered rhubarb has been used as a laxative.

Deseronto to Have Own Police Dept.

DESERONTO — Deseronto is to have its own police department instead of leaving the work of policing the town in the hands of the Ontario Provincial Police, with the town paying for a part-time man to enforce town by-laws and night watch duties.

At Monday's meeting the question was fully discussed, with citizens present invited to express their opinion. The motion to advertise for a chief of police was passed unanimously. Once a good chief has been hired, the town will act on his suggestions regarding increasing the number of men in the Police Department. The general feeling seemed to be that the town did suffer with its part-time police force, and that an officer on hand at all times was a deterrent to petty crimes, and break-ins the previous night may have had some influence on the decision.

The meeting was begun early, with members of the Public School Board re-pay for invitation. They heard Mrs. Joy Wonnacott describe the advantages provided by the Loyalist College of Technology and Applied Arts. The regular meeting followed.

Honorariums for the year were approved. Councillors will receive $13 per meeting for 1967, the same as last year. For out-of-pocket expenses Mayor Gerald Lott will receive $150 and Reeve Donald Armitage $75. A Christmas bonus of $10 was voted to each town employee. The Deseronto Firemen's Association will receive $75 to aid in its project of providing a Christmas treat for every child in town of public school age or lower.

Nominations for mayor, reeve, three councillors, one member of the Public Utilities Commission and three school board members will take place November 23, with election day December 4.

COAL IN RESERVE

Illinois has enough coal in reserve to supply the entire world for a century.

Delegation To Meet OWRC Commission

DESERONTO — Disturbed by the fact that the press has evidently been receiving information regarding the board awaited installation of sewers and a sewage disposal plant in Deseronto before the town itself had been informed, a delegation of town officials is meeting in Toronto Wednesday with the Ontario Water Resources Commission. There they will find out for themselves the truth of the matter, and at the same time may be able to speed up the beginning of the project.

Mayor Gerald Lott, Reeve Donald Armitage, clerk-treasurer Joseph Reynolds, and councillors William Higgins, James Sharpe and Robert Huffman make up the strong delegation.

After nearly eight years of wailing, the patients of Deseronto has grown thin. This summer is particular tempers have been rising, as the town was led to believe that work would start in the spring. Council has delayed civic projects until definite word came from the OWRC.

Dosco Announcement Expected

HALIFAX (CP)—Negotiations between the Nova Scotia government and Hawker Siddeley (Canada) Ltd. are expected to end here today with an announcement on the future of the steel plant at Sydney.

The plant, a key Nova Scotia industry, is scheduled to be closed April 30 by Dominion Steel and Coal Corp., a Hawker Siddeley subsidiary. Government-company talks in the last six weeks have been centred on provincial takeover of the mill to keep it in operation beyond that date.

Details of the government's plans are expected to be announced today by Premier G. I. Smith.

The meetings enter their final stages amid reports that the province will buy the 57-year-old mill for about $23,000,000 and pour "several million" dollars into a modernization program.

A Sydney newspaper, The Cape Breton Post, says the provincial takeover will become effective next Jan. 1 following ratification of the government's plan by a special session of the Nova Scotia legislature in December.

Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: We are holidaying in Florida next month and would like a list of cottages and motels near Fort Lauderdale. Could you tell me of these, or where I can get literature which will tell me where to find these places?

ANSWER: If you write to Fort Lauderdale Tourist Association, it would be happy to send you information and brochures on places to stay in the Fort Lauderdale area. Also write to the Chamber of Commerce.

QUESTION: What is the average temperature in Daytona Beach, Fla. in December and January?

ANSWER: December: Average maximum temperature 70; average minimum temperature 50. January average temperature 70, average minimum temperature 48. These figures are taken from the records of the U.S. Weather Bureau.

QUESTION: We are going to Florida this winter and we are taking our dog. What are the regulations for taking him across the border, also a cat?

ANSWER: In the case of a cat you must be able to prove that it had a rabies shot 30 days before you try to cross the U.S. border. The dog must also have had the rabies shot within the past year. You should have a health certificate from a veterinarian stating that the dog is in good condition. The same rule applies to cats.

If you are travelling with pets there is a book called "Travelling with Rover" which can be obtained by sending 25 cents to the Gaines Dog Research Centre, Box 6815, Terminal A, Toronto. Along with travelling tips for pets it has a list of Motels which accept them.

The first fruits of a May conference of transport ministers in Quebec City have appeared in Ontario. In keeping with the spirit of uniformity expressed at that conference, Ontario now officially recognizes the licenses of new residents from other provinces as full evidence of driving ability.

No new test is required to get an Ontario license. A person need only provide an Ontario address, hand in a valid driver's license issued by another province, and pay the fee for an original driver's license.

It is straight forward, and a good step toward uniformity of driving procedures right across the country. The Ontario license issued will be in equivalent class to those surrendered. Exceptions are school bus licenses, which may not be obtained without an Ontario test (although they may be replaced by Ontario chauffeurs' licenses) and licenses which indicate certain restrictions imposed by other provinces.

While all provinces are heading in a similar direction regarding drivers' licenses, the matter of vehicle registration may be diverging. British Columbia for one, has dropped the limit for outside registered vehicles from six months to 30 days. B.C. licence plates must be obtained when the limit is reached.

Pearson, Wilson, Johnson, Thant Try to Avert War Over Cyprus

ANKARA (CP) — Crucial diplomatic activity was under way in world capitals today as fears of a Turkish-Greek war over Cyprus increased.

In London, Prime Minister Lester Pearson got solid British support for a Canadian plan aiming at a political solution for Cyprus.

The plan is based mainly on increasing the powers of the United Nations mandate without necessarily increasing the size of the UN force.

The UN at present has about 4,500 men on the island which now stands on the brink of war. Of the total, Canada has contributed an infantry battalion, a reconnaissance squadron equipped with scout cars, and supporting troops.

While the visiting Canadian leader took a personal hand in the negotiations to bring peace to the much-troubled Mediterranean island, President Johnson and UN Secretary-General U Thant hurried special envoys to Turkey.

Turkey announced early today it was turning down a Greek proposal for further talks. The Turkish government reaffirmed its determination to ensure the security of the Turkish-Cypriot minority on the island 46 miles off the Turkish coast, increasing speculation that the Turks were on the verge of landing troops on Cyprus.

In Athens, Greek government sources today warned that landing by Turkish forces on Cyprus would endanger the safety of the Turkish - Cypriot minority on the island.

Greek sources said if Turkey landed forces on Cyprus nobody would be able to stop Greek-Cypriots from taking "disastrous retaliatory measures" against the Turks there.

Turkish Air Force jets flew over Cyprus early today for the third consecutive day.

Canada is determined to do everything possible to prevent any recurrence of the ignominious withdrawal of the UN force from the Middle East last summer, wrote Dave McIntosh, Canadian Press staff writer in Ottawa. McIntosh, a veteran reporter of Middle East conflicts, visited Cyprus during the last summer's Arab-Israeli war.

However, contingency plans for possible evacuation of the UN force in case of war were reviewed by the Canadian defence department.

About 800 Canadians are serving in the force. The main units are the 700-man 1st Battalion, Black Watch of Camp Gagetown, N.B., and the 100-man armored Reconnaissance Squadron of the Fort Gerry Horse, Winnipeg.

Four Nominated

Vote Is Certain For Mayoralty

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A December 4 election for the office of mayor, for city council, and also for the eight-member separate school board was assured today as a result of last night's nomination meeting at Belleville city hall.

There will be no contest for public utilities commission with the two open seats being filled by acclamation. There is also a possibility of there being no election for the public school board.

Four candidates were nominated for the office of mayor, 18 for city council, eleven for public school board and 12 for the separate school board.

Although there were four men nominated for the mayoralty a straight two-way fight is expected between incumbent Jack R. Ellis and sitting alderman Dr. J. Russell Scott, both of whom announced their candidacy some weeks ago.

Two other nominees for mayor were ex-mayor Frank S. Folwell, who headed council for three terms about 25 years ago, and former alderman Donald J. Whalen.

Mr. Whalen is not expected to run, but ex-mayor Folwell said he would make his decision some time today.

"I'm stunned at the high tax structure in the city and feel that the new council should consider carefully all new projects and the priority with which they are carried out," he said.

Mayor Ellis and Alderman Scott have already qualified.

Mayor Ellis was nominated by Bryson Leslie and Richard E. Barrett; Dr. Scott by Dr. G. S. Cronk and Donald Whalen.

Incumbent Lyle Langabeer and Alderman John W. Deacon were elected by acclamation to the Public Utilities Commission. One other nominee, Norman Hickson, withdrew.

Seven of the sitting aldermen were again nominated for council and of those four qualified last night six newcomers had also qualified as aldermanic candidates.

Included among those already qualified is Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, the lone woman nominee at last night's meeting.

Other newcomers in the aldermanic field include: E. Arnold Orr, former high school superintendent; public school principal William Lott; local realtor Gerald Joyce, labor organizer Ian E. Reilly, hotel owner Norman Hickson, and local printer Richard Ellis.

The names of former aldermen George C. Brown, Donald J. Whalen and Bruce H. Smith,

Mini-skirted Mourners Push Priest Into Grave

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (Reuters) — A mass of mini-skirted mourners swept a priest shouting prayers into an open grave in fantastic scenes at a burial service here.

Police and mounted troops were called out Tuesday to control thousands of tens-agers at the funeral of 17-year-old Joan Forrester, killed in a road crash during the weekend.

Mourners at the funeral parlor quaffed iced beer and passed bottles of rum and whisky from hand to hand as they milled around the corpse, laid out in a fashionable minidress.

American priest Jerry Demetri had his pocket picked of a wallet containing $12 cash and a $100 cheque.

Father Demetri tried desperately to conduct a service but had to give up as the struggling, seething cortege drifted out, leaving behind two wrecked doors and several broken windows.

Chaos reached its peak in a new riot at the graveyard.

Father Demetri, jostled from side to side of the yawning grave, had only time to about a nine-word prayer — "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes, bury the dead" — before he was swept over the edge by a human avalanche.

Darcy McKeough Municipal Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts today reduced his cabinet by one member in a minor shuffle that saw Darcy McKeough, a 34-year-old minister without portfolio, take on the major role of municipal affairs minister.

Mr. McKeough replaces Wilfrid Spooner, one of two Progressive Conservative ministers personally defeated in the Oct. 17 provincial election.

The mines portfolio held by the other defeated minister, George Wardrope, was given to the lands and forests minister, Rene Brunelle, giving him responsibility for most of the province's natural resources.

Closing of DOSCO Mill Delayed at Least Year

HALIFAX (CP) — A Nova Scotia government takeover will keep the Sydney steel mill of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. going until at least April 30, 1968, but the move may mean the province will have to cut spending in other fields, Premier G. I. Smith said Wednesday night.

The company had planned to close the mill by April 30, 1968.

Mr. Smith said at a news conference that, subject to approval by the legislature at a special session next month and by Dosco shareholders, an agreement had been reached to keep the mill operating until long-term arrangements could be explored and assessed.

Premier Smith withheld financial terms of the agreement Wednesday, pending the special session of the legislature Dec. 1.

He said Nova Scotia will acquire the chief assets of the Sydney works at a price to be determined by boards of auditors and valuers.

Cost of Hill Kept Secret

SAIGON (Reuters) — American troops today captured Hill 875 in the central highlands after it was abandoned by North Vietnamese forces who earlier decimated a battalion of the U.S. 173rd Airborne Brigade.

The U.S. command in Saigon said there were no immediate details of casualties among American forces who swarmed to the top of the strategic hill today — U.S. Thanksgiving Day — after nearly five days of some of the bloodiest fighting in the Vietnam war.

No official casualty figures were given for the battle since it was announced late Sunday that 71 troopers of the 173rd Airborne were killed by units of a North Vietnamese regiment on the hill.

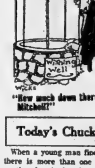
But a Reuters correspondent who visited the American positions 300 yards from the crest of the hill Wednesday reported that 126 American dead were taken out by helicopter and more than 140 wounded evacuated by nightfall.

Earlier American reports said a total of 246 Americans were killed and 860 wounded in the fighting which raged around Oak To since Nov. 1.

Wilson Defeats Censure Motion

LONDON (AP) — The Labor government rode out a censure vote Wednesday night on its devaluation of the pound as expected, but political commentators continued to predict that Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan — the man who takes responsibility for the move — will be moved to another job.

Amid the hue and cry after the pound was cut to $2.40 from $2.80 U.S., it seemed at first that he might succeed Foreign Secretary George Brown. But Callaghan's defensive handling of critics of devaluation in the House of Commons won him new respect.



Wilson's government easily beat back a Conservative censure motion in Commons. The vote, along straight party lines, was 335 to 258. Only one Laborite broke ranks and abstained.

TORONTO (CP) — J. Melvin Whalen, 61, chief of the forest protection branch of the Ontario department of lands and forest, died Wednesday night as 125 friends and colleagues honored him on his retirement. He suffered a heart attack while ending an address of thanks for a painting.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant is expected to follow up the UN Security Council's unanimous approval of a British peace formula for the Middle East by sending trouble shooter Gunnar Jarring to the area to try to get negotiations started.

also appeared in the nomination slate.

What seemed like more than the customary interest was shown in last night's nomination, with the council chambers already being well filled when city clerk Adam Stalker opened the meeting at 7.30.

Immediately there was a flurry of nominations with the names of newcomers Ian Reilly, E. A. Orr, George C. Brown and Gerald Joyce quickly appearing on the board.

Within a very few minutes there were at least half a dozen nominations for separate school board — a marked change from many previous years when there seemed to be difficulty in finding sufficient nominees to make up the board.

Many of the nominees filed qualification papers at the time of nomination.

Nominees for aldermen were Ian E. Reilly, E. Arnold Orr, George C. Brown, Gerald Joyce, T. A. Carruthers, D. G. Williams, Norman Hickson, Paul D. Rossell, H. Jack Aylin, Enos David, William Lott, Richard Ellis, Arthur Keegan, Kenneth Soden, Douglas Boyle, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, Donald J. Whalen and Bruce H. Smith.

Tax Collection Higher

Belleville residents owed $146,255 more this year in property taxes as of October 31 than they did a year ago — but the percentage of tax collection is still slightly better than in 1966.

This is indicated in a special report given city council this week by city manager J. R. Reynolds.

The report showed that as of Oct. 30 there was a total of $853,-303 in property taxes receivable as compared with $707,108 on the same date a year ago. The amount of the current year's taxes unpaid on Oct. 30 was $540,534.

The city manager reported that of the total 1967 tax levy of $4,326,333, approximately 88 per cent or $3,779,800 has been collected by the end of October. The percentage collection is slightly better than last year, and the over-all percentage of tax collection is expected to exceed 90.3 per cent. .

Business tax collections since January 1 of this year have totalled $21,703 with an amount of $68,386 for 1967 and prior years still outstanding. The current year's business tax arrears amounts to $28,178.

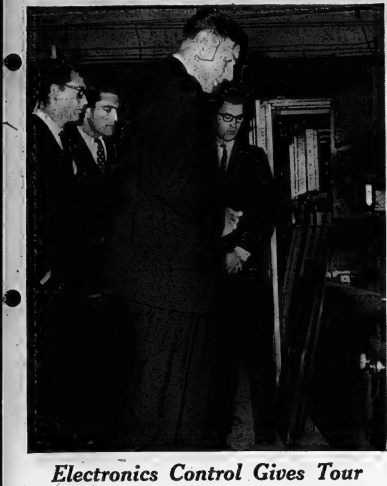
Trade Commissioners on Tour

A co-operative effort yesterday made by the Industrial Commission and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce enabled 14 assistant trade commissioners in tour Belleville's industries involved in exportation. It is Canada's policy under Minister of Trade and Commerce, Robert H. Winters, to increase exports as much as possible thus raising productivity and amplifying our interests abroad.

Since Canada's economic development is influenced by external affairs the department each year recruits a number of young men who, after a period of training, are posted to trade offices abroad to enhance the facilities offered to Canadian exporters.

To provide the assistant trade commissioners with a broad knowledge of Canadian export products and to familiarize them with our industries in general the group are taken on two six week tours of Canada.

On the last week of their first tour (the second will be in the spring) they were accompanied through Belleville by Ray Brown, Industrial Commissioner and Brad Bradley of the Chamber of Commerce.



The full itinerary enabled them to go through Black Diamond Cheese Ltd., Electronic Controls Ltd., Americas Optical Co. (Canada) Ltd., Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Co. of Canada Ltd., Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd. and Dekoro Shelite.

The only time that the commissioners in training had a chance to relax was during the luncheon at the Hotel Quinte. They met at lunch with representatives of the companies they visited to discuss products, export problems and requirements.

Richard Talbot, chairman of the group, said that they began their tour in Newfoundland and have been working west. In April the group will be going to the west coast and prairie provinces to tour which will just about complete one year of training. Mr. Talbot felt that it would be next September before anybody was posted.

Belleville's Industrial Commissioner said that the tour was designed as "a total immersion course into our industrial family composite" delving into manufacturing logistics as well as how the products are made.

After the tour the group moved on to Kingston.

Chief J. R. Brant of Mohawks Retiring From Public Office

Chief John R. Brant, who has headed the Mohawk Indians of the Tyendinaga reserve for the past four years, is retiring from public office.

The chief said last night he would not participate in this year's elections on the reserve.

The Mohawks elect a chief and council every two years to administer their affairs and act as liaison with senior governments.

Chief Brant first took an active role in reserve politics when he was elected to the council eight years ago.

After serving two terms he became chief.

His chieftainship was marked with an increased emphasis on Indian government with the chief a prominent booster of Mohawk culture.

In public affairs, a high point in his administration came earlier this year when the Mohawks journeyed to Kingston to meet Queen Elizabeth and present her with a scroll of loyalty.

Confirming his decision to retire from council affairs, the chief noted the support he had received during his administration which, he said, had always emphasized the economy of the reserve.

"Have done everything I could to raise the economy on our reserve, and I sincerely hope the next council will make that their objective."

Nominations for the Tyendinaga council are set for Dec. 9, with the election Dec. 16.

Sandburg

Play Rates High With Students

By HARRY HULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville Theatre Guild tonight launches another season with its presentation of the World of Carl Sandburg.

The production goes before its patrons with the sounds of success already ringing about it: The applause of hundreds of secondary school students in Belleville and Trenton.

The response augurs well for this season's opener, since, if anything, youth displays criticism or acceptance with much more ease than their seniors.

Yesterday the World of Carl Sandburg went on the boards before a crowded auditorium at Belleville Collegiate, where the appreciation already shown in Trenton was repeated.

Tonight, it opens in different surroundings — if anything, much more suited to its style of presentation.

For its production here, the Theatre Guild has remodelled the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte, turning the banquet room into an intimate theatre.

The keyword is intimate — as yesterday's presentation in the big collegiate auditorium emphasized.

The world of Carl Sandburg is a dramatic presentation — based on the life work of the American poet, author and social commentator.

The personal warmth of Sandburg, a man always in contact with his times, pervades his work. This warmth is beautifully conveyed in the style with which The World was assembled.

In choosing a more intimate atmosphere for public presentation, director Jim Alexander has gone to the heart of the matter even before the lights go up on his interpretation of the drama.

The style is simplicity itself — offering to the audience a painstakingly-selected group of Sandburg's songs, prose and poetry.

It is left to three characters to carry the entire range of the entertainment's dramatic modulations.

But, as in all things theatrical, the most difficult thing is grasp — and carry across the footlights — is simplicity.

In short, it requires much hard work.

Yesterday's BCI curtain-raiser shows just how hard Mr. Alexander has worked his cast and technicians to achieve the necessary easy style.

Sandburg's personality, fittingly, pervades the entire production.

Once before the audience, it all depends on its trio of actors.

The Guild production leaves that responsibility to Gerry Putman and Peter Drummer, two newcomers and a veteran actress familiar to Guild audiences — Jo Van-over.

All three present contrasting styles in voice and action to keep the production flowing smoothly. To Mr. Putman goes the added task as guitarist of being the minstrel of the evening.

The action flows smoothly in and out of light areas with such ease that it belies the difficulties which beset the production's technicians.

Another new departure is the scenic affects. The usual backdrops have been replaced with a series of artistic conceptions by Trenton artist Tony Lassing which are projected on a screen behind the cast.

It all blends beautifully in a quiet, common triumph of style.

Set in its surroundings of chosen intimacy, The World of Carl Sandburg seems guaranteed to provide a warming experience for Bellevillians for the next three nights.

Jaycees Unload Trash Cans

The combination of two sets of minds thinking alike and the action of a quick thinking salesman has resulted in the local Junior Chamber of Commerce almost getting "stuck" with a dozen to a dozen fancy street trash cans.

Last summer the city purchased a number of the blue and white streamlined trash receptacles now seen spotted up and down Front street.

But what wasn't known was that the same salesman had sold the local Jaycees who purchased 11 of the cans for presentation to the city as a club project.

And no one was more surprised than the Jaycees when the works department started putting out the city purchased receptacles.

"I suppose we can't fault the salesman but we got stuck with the cans and now they are screaming for their money," moaned Jaycees president William Preston.

But, as the old saying goes, "all's well that ends well".

Rather than see the Jaycees continue to be stuck with the cans, council this week voted to take them off their hands at cost price.

Reginald E. Tucker Named New Director of Welfare

A man who has several times been to Belleville in a supervisory capacity — first back in 1963 and again this year — is to be city's new Welfare Director.

He is Reginald E. Tucker, aged 47, currently working as field supervisor with the Ontario Department of Welfare.

Mr. Tucker was one of about 15 applicants for the position declared vacant last summer with the resignation of welfare director Daniel Aitken.

A native of England, Mr. Tucker served with the British Army during World War II and following the war became involved with the welfare department in that country.

Mr. Tucker worked temporarily in Belleville back in 1963 prior to the appointment of Mr. Aitken.

Again in May of this year Mr. Tucker was sent to Belleville at the request of city council to do a review of the welfare department following widespread complaints of its operation under Mr. Aitken's administration.

Mr. Tucker's report identified few administrational difficulties but stated that over the past three and a half years the welfare department's public image had "suffered a severe blow" and that public relations were at a low ebb.

Th report led to Mr. Aitken's resignation as director of welfare.

CALVERT OF CANADA LTD., MONTREAL ● TORONTO ● VANCOUVER

How Calvert found a new way to make rye incredibly smooth.

The name of the rye is Grand Prix. We made it incredibly smooth by making it dry.

And we made it dry by discovering a new way to make rye without any clogging sweetness.

This makes Grand Prix a full-bodied rye so smooth you can actually sip it straight. And like it.

Nobody ever made a rye as smooth as Grand Prix before because nobody ever knew how. It took Calvert ten years to do it, and naturally our Master Blender is pretty proud of it.

But try it yourself. In ten seconds you'll know why he's so proud.

Calvert Grand Prix. The world's first dry rye.

Signatures Not Same Witnesses Tell Court

Witnesses for the crown yesterday claimed signatures on receipts were not the same as specimen signatures as the trial of Alexander Manjuris ended in third day.

In winding up prosecution's case Crown Attorney Glenn Hagan and Staff Sergeant John H. Hodgins, document examiner with the RCMP examine exhibits and identified documents brought to him at the crime detection laboratory in Ottawa.

In a lengthy testimony he demonstrated what, "in his opinion," were examples of overwriting, tracing and copying. "There is no evidence to suggest that the signatures on the receipts are the same as specimen signatures" he said.

Another witness, Theodore Vasilopolis, a member of the Greek Community in Belleville stated, after examining a signature on a charitable donation receipt, that it was not his.

Manjuris, a former employee of the Belleville Income Tax office, is charged with uttering forged medical receipts and a charitable donation in increase his tax deductions in 1965 and 1966.

The trial is expected to finish today.

The Die Is Cast

Residents of Belleville are assured of contests in at least the mayoralty and aldermanic races after last night's nominations in City Hall.

The mayoralty race should prove to be interesting. It is not likely Donald Whalen and Frank Polwell will elect by acclaim, even though they were nominated. It would reduce it to a campaign between challenger J. Russell Scott and incumbent Jack Ellis.

It is in the aldermanic race that the voters will be given an opportunity to show their support. Ald. Kenneth Soden was nominated, although earlier indicating he was not going to run. If he sticks with this decision he can't be blamed — he has more than fulfilled his civic responsibility over the past years.

However, a decision on his part to again contest a seat would be the next thing to putting the community plan to a vote of the public. He has been adamant in his support. If the voters return him with a near-top-of-the-poll answer, his argument will gain considerable strength.

In any case the day of decision is just two weeks away. It is hoped all candidates will use this time to explain their platforms to the general public. This newspaper will make every effort to relay their comments to the reader.

The CBC and Canada

On page 5 is a detailed excerpt from Hansard, the official record of the House of Commons, John Matheson, MP for Leeds and parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson outlines his argument as to why the parliamentary bill on broadcasting is desirable.

His comments are recommended reading.

It's Quebec's Problem

As any unemployment insura — pardon us, Manpower Centre — will tell you, you cannot hope to succeed without an education.

That message appears to have got through to the FLQ, the terrorist branch of the Quebec separatist movement.

With admirable initiative, it has issued a pamphlet describing how to make Molotov cocktails and dynamite-and-battery bombs and, we gather, how to hide in a forest. The instructions on how to discover exactly where you have hidden yourself, and on the art of co-existence with black flies, will, we presume, be given in later numbers of Victoire.

The objective of this venture into the literature of revolution is to equip French-Canadians to expertly dish out that brand of violence without which, according to FLQ theoreticians, "the violence of colonialism" cannot be overcome.

This phrase, "the violence of colonialism," may bring a smirk to the lips of some English Canadians, who will have noted that earlier brave exploits by FLQ, such as dropping bombs in Her Majesty's mail-boxes, are believed to have been master-minded by "colons" ousted from Algeria, when the Algerians' terrorism proved more efficient than that of the OAS.

Now it is possible, of course, that the right-wing Algerians may have gone out of the separatism business, since there have been later reports that the Algerian Socialists have been busy teaching the Quebecois the art of revolution. The question of the political philosophy of the instructors in terror tactics may be of little concern for some separatists, many of whom already have suddenly recognized that there have been some changes in political thinking since the days of the French revolution.

But that is a problem for them, and for their fellow citizens of Quebec. We do not propose to endeavor to solve all the difficulties of our French-speaking fellow-Canadians and in this instance we shall concern ourselves solely with what should be the attitude of English-speaking Canadians, outside of Quebec, if the FLQ does manage to prove the validity of the Manpower Centres' attitude towards education.

Here, we think, there is only one realistic attitude. The FLQ thinks that small combat units of six to 10 men could "harass and disperse federalist forces" in Quebec's forests. That plan is mad, for, by making sure that there are no federalist forces to disperse, or at least no forces of the federal power, which may not be quite the same thing.

In other words, much as we should like to see what was done, the dominion continue to stretch from sea to sea, we think Canadians would be paying too high for this unity if they permitted it to be bought at the price of racial strife. If Quebecois do not fancy having their future determined by a weird mixture of OAS fascists, Latin-American communists and habitant converts to the doctrine of terrorism, let them handle the matter.

Ottawa Offbeat

Strange Circumstances Beef Up Liberal Position

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Well yes, Robert Stanfield and his brightly buoyant Conservatives are "up" and riding high on the public popularity polls.

And yes, Lester Pearson and his darkly dispirited Liberals are "down" and swinging low on the unpopularity side of these same polls.

But an upset in Parliament is even more unlikely now than it has been since the accident-prone minority government staggered uncertainly back to power two years ago, and stumbled on from one disaster to another.

There have been times when the Opposition, Conservative, New Democratic, plus the "splinter" groups, could have combined and toppled the always so-near-to-tottering administration.

Of course, the Opposition, for various reasons, never put together the winning majority vote combination.

And now it can't, at least on the strict basis of the mathematics of the vote, for Government and Opposition are at an arithmetical stand-off, each with 132 MPs — there is one vacancy — in the 265-seat Commons.

Now, although the mathematics remain the same, they won't work out.

For incredibly, the Conservatives have managed to subtract two vital votes from their arithmetical strength of 88.

(The other opposition groups, NDP with 22, Creditistes with eight, four Socreds and three any-which-way Independents, make it a 132 vote stand - off with the Liberals.)

Perhaps because of their sudden resurgence and their abundant conviction that victory is guaranteed in the next election, they have been too impatiently eager-beaver.

Two of their 85 MPs — and if they don't slow down, it could become four — have been put in the uncomfortable position of voting themselves, not just out of Parliament, but of public life, if they should vote with the Opposition in any division defeating the government.

And while defeat mathematically is impossible, it could happen if the Liberals, careless about their attendance in the Commons, get caught short with their MPs down.

Those two Tory MPs are a pair without a constituency.

Happened this way . . .

In the redistribution of constituencies for the next election, Jack Horner's Acadian riding was combined with Lawrence Kindt's Macleod seat in Alberta.

And in Saskatchewan, Drummond Clancy's Yorkton was merged with Jamie Ormiston's Melville.

So what did the new-in-each-a-hurry Conservatives do? Call of nominating conventions.

One is traveled, the new constituency comprising Kindt's Macleod and Horner's Acadia.

The other in Yorkton-Melville, telescoped from Clancy's Yorkton and Ormiston's Melville.

And all four MPs tried for the two nominations.

Horner won in Crowfoot — and there was Kindt with no constituency.

Ormiston took it in Yorkton-Melville, making Clancy a constituency orphan.

So are Clancy and Kindt going to vote the government out of power and themselves out of public life?

Well, hardly, when so humanly, far better things to do with their unselfish public service in Parliament than to be instrumental in thrusting another yet unwanted election on the long-suffering taxpayer.

So here are the Tories with four MPs in two ridings, and "new math" or not, four just won't go into two.

Plus, politically this Kindt-Horner situation, for it would have been a real loss, too, if the two had been left out. Both are established "characters" in the Commons, a couple of Diet's old "warhorses."

Kindt has the loudest voice this side of Diefenbaker's boundary gun, and has shaken Parliament's walls — and Prime Minister Pearson — with it on many an ear-splitting occasion.

Horner is the ball-for-leather rancher - farmer who loosed George Hees and roped him up like a bellowing steer in the quietly dignified main lobby of Ottawa's posh Chateau Laurier.

These blithe spirits are scarce enough without having them knock each other off.

Letter to the Editor

Combined Effort Fixed Road

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to make some comments in regard to a letter signed by an Avondale district resident. The heading was "problem was solved before it existed." I don't want to take anything away from Mayor Ellis regarding this matter because it was the combined effort of a great many people.

There existed for some time a deplorable condition at the north-end of Wright Avenue and Glen Ord, on the township boundary which the children used as a short cut to Sir John A. Macdonald School. This area is swampy and after any rainstorm is deplorable. Some children in the area have come home plastered with mud and dirt.

Many residents in this area complained to me about this condition so I personally investigated and I asked Ald. Scott to investigate also, which he did. These residents complained to city hall I am told but received no action.

So I and Ald. Scott were asked if this condition could be remedied. We said provisure would have to be used. So we contacted the city manager as you can see by the enclosed letter. This all started about Nov. 1.

I want to congratulate The Intelligencer for the picture which showed the condition.

My comment at this time is that it was the combined efforts of the neighbours, Ald. Scott, myself, the city manager, the mayor and many people that really caused this condition to be cleaned up for the children.

It is true we have an agreement now, we dealed with the township for the extension of Hardee Drive to Avondale Rd. which will be built in 1968. In the meantime the condition of a separate walkway for the children was not in the agreement, so some agreement had to be made with the township for this temporary walkway.

Dear Alderman Keegan:
Re: Norberth and of Wright Ave. With reference to your telephone call of a few days ago regarding the muddy condition at the top of Wright Avenue, I have been advised by the city engineer that this area is in the township of Sidney and beyond our jurisdiction.

In view of this, I will drop a note to the clerk of the Township of Sidney and request that they look into the matter.

City Manager.

The property was recently purchased from the Tickell Estate through Ed. Tickell by the Modern Cleaners and Dyers of this city of which Thomas Hutchings is the head. At a meeting on the discovery E.F. Interpreting The News

Voting Pattern to Switch But UN to Reject Red China

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—As the annual ritual of the China debate approaches, there is speculation here that although there might be some interesting switches in voting patterns the world organization will once again decide to keep Communist China out of the UN.

Canada, which made a major intervention in the debate last year in an effort to promote some new approach to the issue, has expressed disappointment at the response to these attempts and is not expected to pursue them this time.

Canada also switched from its traditional "no" vote on the question of seating the Peking government and instead abstained as she is expected to do again this year.

The interest now centres on the African states, with many observers predicting they will switch to a position of support for Communist China as a rebuke to the United States for allegedly supporting Israel in the Arab-Israeli war in June. The U.S. has always spearheaded the campaign to exclude the Peking government.

Saudi Arabia, Jordan and Libya—and possibly also Kuwait, Lebanon and Morocco—have been mentioned as countries likely to use this opportunity to take a swipe at the U.S.

But on the other side of the coin, Indonesia and Ghana, both of whose governments are pro-Communist regimes, might abstain this year instead of voting for Peking as in 1966.

None of these shifts alone would substantially change the balance, since Communist China was defeated last year by a vote of 57 to 46, with 17 abstentions.

Two roles in the tradition of the annual China performances have already been acted out.

Albania, considered to be Peking's spokesman in the UN, has again put in a resolution calling for the seating of Peking and the expulsion of the Nationalist Chinese who now hold the seat. And the U.S., with 13 others, has a draft resolution reaffirming their stand that the China question is a "major issue" and thus requires a two-thirds vote for adoption instead of a simple majority.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, in outlining Canada's position last year, said that he was in "full accord" with the Albanian resolution's proposal to oust Communist China's government since the "significant proportion of the world's population" it governs "must be represented here."

But the stipulation that this must be done by expelling Nationalist China was unacceptable to Canada. Thus she could not vote for the resolution and instead abstained.

Canada also was involved in initiating a proposal to establish a committee to study the situation as China's membership needs make recommendations to the next General Assembly. However, the resolution, as it finally emerged, was so watered down that it represented "very little forward movement over a similar proposal which Canada initiated at the fifth assembly session in 1950," Martin said.

Martin said that both the governments of Peking and Nationalist China should be seated as members representing the territories over which they have "effective jurisdiction." Also, Communist China should take the permanent S e c u r i t y Council seat now held by Nationalist China.

This scheme was immediately dubbed Canada's "two China" policy," a term that annoyed the Canadians.

Both governments, M a r t i n said, "Firmly adhere to the concept of one China and it is not for the United Nations to propound concepts which are at variance with those hopes and aspirations of the people of a member state."

UK Economic War Just Starting

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The devalued British pound has passed its initial test. The new rate has been warmly accepted in world markets and foreign money is again flowing into Britain.

But the economic war is far from over. It may have just begun.

For the time being, pressure has been lifted from the British pound. But the speculators are active, ready to pounce on any currency that appears to be vulnerable. This will be a trying time for those currencies which have not been cut but whose values are tied closely to international trade.

The strength of a currency is based largely on world confidence and the ability of a country to ensure that the exchange rate can be maintained through its reserves of gold or other currencies acceptable in world trade.

Currently, the most popular and perhaps the strongest currency is not the United States dollar but the French franc. It is backed by large reserves of gold, which continue to grow larger as France turns more of its stocks of surplus foreign currencies into this metal.

In many ways France is a superior economic power, although its physical resources and manpower are only a fraction of those available in the U.S. The World is well aware that the French currency is strongly supported; it exudes confidence and durability.

The problem in the U.S., as is Britain, is that it has been paying out more to other countries than it has received in return. To a large extent the American problem is a product of the Vietnam war. To some extent Vietnam also is responsible for the situation in Britain that forced devaluation.

The cost of waging the Vietnam war has opened the doors to inflation in the United States. Congress so far has failed to increase taxes to cover higher costs and the government has been forced to borrow, increasing the national debt and the amount of money in circulation.

The U.S. government has imposed higher interest charges to restrict the flow of credit and take some of the heat out of inflation.

Money tends to go where it can get the most profit consistent with risk. One country has to compete against another in what has become a war of interest rates. Britain, along with devaluation, pushed its interest rates to a 53-year high.

Both Canada and the U.S. since have boosted their own rates, mainly to keep money at home. Whether their actions are sufficient, will depend on how the investors size up prospects among the various countries.

As long as Britain can contain inflation, the experts suggest, a lot more money may flow her way. But inflation tends to factor itself on debased currency and, for months, has been the bugaboo of the pound.

Britain still faces a critical internal struggle that could continue, for months, to be burdened by perhaps for a period of years.

Restore Rights

Ottawa Citizen

Canada's laws and courts, like just about everything else we have inherited on our Indian people, compound the sense of defeatism that envelops them.

At the Canadian Corrections Association pointed out last week, we can lighten their burden by restoring various rights, exercises in the legal system under which they live.

The association has called on the federal government to restore all Indian treaty rights. The Indians themselves may or may not know what these rights are, but they do know that the white man has taken them away. And they have developed a deep distrust of white society because of this.

Excerpt From Hansard

Censorship by Exclusion Hurting Canadian Unity: Matheson

Mr. John R. Matheson (Parliamentary Secretary to Prime Minister): Mr. Speaker, there are stark and convincing reasons why this bill on Canadian broadcasting and the CBC in particular, should be both clear and unequivocal, and why the new heads of the CBC must understand fully the intent of parliament in passing the bill.

Sir, on invitation and speaking initially on my own behalf, I addressed the Canadian Club in Winnipeg on Dec. 8, 1966. I said at that time:

The problem which I wish to place before you today, after a long period of developing concern and heart searching, I believe to be of the greatest possible importance to Canada.

I expressed the conviction that the communications media is the nervous system of nationhood, that any defect or illness in this nervous system can be just as crippling to a country as to a human body.

That was the one point that I developed, that Canadians were now being subjected to propaganda and, even more serious, to censorship by exclusion.

My address was made to a large audience full of news but later there were thousands of requests for the address and I became more excited at the fact that this was one of the primary concerns to Canadians at large.

I believe that this great Canadian creation, the CBC, is in very truth the nervous system of nationhood. It has stirred us with tremendous contributions during the last three decades. I can think of the compelling reporting of the war years, our recent constitutional triumphs, the poignancy of the Vanier funeral, the excellence of its sports coverage, the ever-all technical brilliance — these have all contributed to our becoming a nation. In these areas the CBC is the finest national system in the world and I visited a number of national systems in Europe and Asia.

Pockets Of Danger

This past year has proved on many occasions just how good Canadian broadcasting can be at its best. But at the same time within the CBC we have become aware of pockets of positive danger in important sectors of programming.

I refer to the language used by the Secretary of State when he said:

"Perhaps the most important feature of the CBC's mandate in the new bill is the obligation to contribute to the development of national unity."

Then he said:

"... the CBC has an overriding responsibility to be objective and balanced in its presentation of news and commentaries, particularly affairs."

Later she referred to Adlai Stevenson's comment that freedom demands infinitely more care and attention than any other system.

This bill, I think, is an attempt to make broadcast in a more truly the servant of the Canadian people, the perfect instrument of truth and culture.

In the 25 odd years of television we have had four vehicles on which to address ourselves to the problem, the Aird commission, the Massey commission, the Fowler commission, the Glasco commission, in addition to parliamentary committees all averaging one every two years, at today there is a widespread concern about the state of broadcasting in Canada.

May I touch on what is one of the most grievous aspects of the general problem, the problem of national unity. When I came to the House of Commons as an opposition member in 1958 I was deeply concerned to discover that there were harrowing misunderstandings and tensions between English and French Canadians.

Family Tangle

Having been brought up in Quebec and having many friends in that province, I found it difficult to understand the people who live together and I found myself as much on the people of Canada as the province involved in such a family tangle. I determined to examine the reasons for it.

One thing which shocked me was that there seemed to be rather unacknowledged, Dr. Chaput, the separatist, had been doing a most important network than the then leader of the government, the Right Hon. John G. Diefenbaker. I could not comprehend this.

Then I found that for a period of months after my maiden speech Prime Minister the same thing obtained. Marcel Chaput, who apparently represented virtually nobody, was more important in the media than either the former prime minister or the new prime minister. He stimulated a series of programs which seemed calculated to rake the French-English issue.

I received a letter from Quebec city dated May 30, 1966, written by one of the most progressive public figures in French leaders in French Canadian university life today. He said:

"For those who have interest in seeing these grievances settled, they — the is referring to the broadcasters in Montreal — are using every means possible to create friction between English and French Canadians. They are attempting to show a false image of the English Canadians as being the source of distorting all that comes from Ottawa and the more amusing there is between the two ethnic groups, the more the success of their course is assured—this is understood that Ross can escalen's taxes is a far cry from contributing to national unity—certain prospects put before the parliamentary committee are purely anarchist when one reads between the lines.

He added this warning:

"Chaos can only increase — and the only ones to gain from the situation are those who wish the destruction of democracy and the confederation."

Some time ago the then prime minister of Quebec, the Hon. John Lesage, planned to make a trip to western Canada. That, I believe, was a little embarrassing to some federal politicians when there was a federal election brewing at that time and reactions to such a visit could cause difficulty in many constituencies.

I took the trouble to read very fully what the Hon. Jean Lesage in fact said wherever he was in the west. I read this carefully in the western press. I was amazed at the difference between what appeared on national television and the reports which appeared in the daily press. They were not the same reports at all. This bothered me. Actually, my press reports Mr. Lesage got an excellent reception everywhere he spoke.

I should like to go back a short period in order to show that these reports are not matters in this regard. A feature article by J. B. Lamb appeared in the Toronto Star of April 3, 1966. Mr. Lamb said:

"There is a very real need for more information on Quebec, and which would bring the viewpoint of Canada's national broadcasting system closer to that of the people it purports to serve and represent — all kinds of programming is in effect unconsciously slanted in the life."

These are strong words coming from the Toronto Star. The lead article continues:

Unwitting Vehicle

"Perhaps the most eloquent testimonial to the slanting of programming by the CBC was Roger Lemelin's statement to a session that Quebec separatists had been able to infiltrate the CBC and had succeeded in making the term private enterprise almost a dirty word of CBC transmissions." Mr. Lemelin shocked over the success of his friends in using CBC, a federal instrument, as an "unwitting vehicle for separatist sentiment."

I should like to remind honmembers that the date of that article is April 3. The Week, coming up to date, I have a letter which I received from the head of the French language communication arts of Loyola college dated Oct. 21 last which takes strong exception to Patrick Watson's treatment of the Quebec Liberal convention on the possibility of a split. He said on Sunday, Oct. 15, I suppose you might have reasonably supposed that the CBC's commonsus rejection by Quebec Liberals of the separatist Levesque would have been received with sympathy on a Canadian network.

Policy Be Damned

How did Mr. Watson handle this most important news item? I should like to quote from the letter of Rev. Dr. John E. O'Brien. He said:

"... what emerged finally was a most sympathetic treatment of Rene Levesque, a rebuke to the Quebec Liberal party for supposedly packing the convention, the parliamentary reforms, and several times that with Levesque's departure the party is all probability had lost its dynamism.

Policy Be Damned

"Does not freedom of speech demand that there be no censorship by exclusion? In my opinion the public has been shortchanged considerably for the past few years through the informal censorship exercised by production teams who have been writing their own ticket — and policy be damned."

And then came the reverend gentleman, who incidentally holds his Ph.D in the field of communications.

I should like to refer to an article by Frank Howard entitled "A Very Political Press" which appeared in the Globe magazine in which he discusses the unusual coverage by the Montreal Star of the Quebec separatists. Mr. Howard says that it shows clearly the influence of the Quebec's separatists influence the news media. He said:

"There was a loud half a dozen delegates to the RIN convention in Trois-Rivieres earlier this month, and only two publications in the French language media. Most of these came from Radio Canada (The CBC) but a few daily newspapers were also represented on the convention floor."

I should like to quote from a column in the Montreal Star, headed "Television and Radio" in which Bernard Dube, under the heading "Levesque's Separatism A Thorn for C.B.C.," says:

"Levesque was employed under a 13-program contract as an interviewer — commentator on The Public Eye last season. Public Eye executive producer Richard Nielsen had spoken to him about developing the program this season."

The article continues:

"It is no secret that separatist feelings are held by many employed in French CBC here."

Then we find a last article by Frank Howard in the Globe and Mail of June 10, under the heading "Separatist Element Of Radio-Canada Draws Bitter Attack." He mentions the contribution of a member of the Laurentien-Dunton royal commission and writes that this commissioner said:

"— somebody has to tell Radio-Canada that it has a duty to support Canadian unity."

I think as my argument develops it will be obvious that I believe we have the kind of society which is strong enough to withstand every shade of political, ideological and social opinion. However, I do not want to hear just one side of an argument all the time, and therein lies the problem.

This article then states:

"Mr. Gagnon's suggestion that the French network is being taken over by separatist sympathizers or nonconformists, is an accurate reflection of the things being said about CBC news ..."

The article states that Mr. Gagnon said:

"... the essential vice of radio Canada is that it has escaped public control."

I have an editorial from CKMI-TV in which they speak of the danger of reporting only one group's opinion:

"—Jean-Louis Gagnon stated in a speech . . . at Montmorency House . . . that the French network should be a public agenda machine for clandestine groups."

The editorial continues:

"Mr. Gagnon recalled a director from the network a year that: "the server should not be allowed that the corporation owed allegiance to the cause of Canadian unity." This has all the earmarks of the Goebel era.

A head of one key section of French language CBC told Professor J. E. O'Brien recently that only a very small number of French Canadians agree with separatism. This is precisely what he said:

"Our job is to educate and lead the rest to become separatists."

The Saturday Citizen of Oct. 14, 1967, contained an article by Bruce Phillips which was carried by all Southam newspapers in Canada. The heading is, "Are Programs Being Slanted?" The subheading is "New It's Separatism Inside The C.B.C.".

He has this to say:

"The presence of separatist sympathizers, and in some cases separatist party members, is an acknowledged fact. It is accepted as fact by Marcel Ouimet, vice-president in charge of the French language network, and long been common knowledge inside the province."

Separatist Oriented

Mr. Phillips then writes:

"One current figure is that about 60 per cent of the news department is separatist-oriented."

Mr. Phillips continues:

"—Roland Dugre, newly-elected president of the Quebec chamber of commerce, said in a speech last Saturday that a CBC programs are being slanted toward promotion of separatist and socialist ideas.

"It seems completely illogical that the C.B.C. a public corporation functioning under taxes imposed on all Canadians, should become an instrument for destroying Canada"—

All this is backed up by current copies of newspapers just available.

The Montreal Gazette of Nov. 3, 1967 carried an article by Claude Arpin about this same subject. He writes:

"It's one of the first things you notice on entering Radio Canada's newsroom on the fifth floor of the CBC building on Dorchester Blvd.

—the sign is one of those mimeographs introduced last February by Le rassemblement pour l'independance nationale.

Later in the article he states:

"after sticking around a few hours you learn that the sign is fairly representative of the feeling among the 60-odd French and English speaking writers, editors and newscasters in charge of C.B.C.'s Montreal news operation.

Canada Destroyed

If anyone would like a well-documented story about this he should read the article in the Montreal Gazette of Thursday, November 2 under the heading "Radio-Canada Separatist Charges Make Purge Possible." The article and subsequent incidents which seem to document the fact that the CBC which is paid for by every high school boy all Canadians, is being used surreptitiously and clandestinely to destroy one of the best assets we have support, namely, Canada.

The conclusion reached in this article in the Gazette said:

"—on the French network, in the prime time news, in covering the hockey game, we saw, in order, Francois Aquin, Rene Levesque, and the honorable member for Lapointe—"

Mr. Hershey:

The latter is now trying to enlist sympathizers from outside Canada for the separatist cause this country. The article in the Gazette then carries this statement:

"No one here has forgotten how skilfully Dr. Marcel Chaput used his friends in the CBC service several years ago to win sympathy for the separatist cause in Quebec."

Carl Mydans is one of the great photographers of our time. He is also something of a philosopher. He writes something I picked up in Bangkok.

One of the hackneyed phrases used about photography is that the camera never lies . . . it is far from true. Once a man has been attached to it, the camera immediately loses its point of view. And once it has a point of view, we are all free to question what it says. The moment the photographer selects a position from which to take his picture — the mood he chooses to convey reflects his personal point of view. Indeed, he may utilize one of the most effective methods he knows to express himself. . . he may elect to make no picture at all. To just pass up the photograph which would present what he does not want to present, or which is in contradiction to what he has been presenting.

My criticism of the CBC is summed up in three words—censorship by exclusion.

Let us not overlook the importance of prime time and what can be done with prime time in a nation to nation broadcasting. There have been, we know, in different western countries persistent attempts to subvert our society. Let us never forget that Guy Burgess, a committed spy who delivered his country's most intimate secrets to Russia while serving in the foreign office and later as assistant private secretary to the foreign secretary, Mr. Hector McNeil, started out his career with three years' service in the BBC. The program feature he handled was called This Week In Westminster. It was the inspiration for a later British program called All Was The Week That Was.

Our CBC Seven Days format was largely a follow-up of That Was The Week That Was. I have wondered, and I have heard it said, whether Burgess did more damage to his country by acting as an espionage agent or in broadcaster. Time and Tide of Oct. 3, 1963, called Burgess' program sinister. This article says:

"It is now sinister. To turn Catholics against the Jews is no service to the Jews or to the country. The young men let loose in "That Was The Week That Was" will find it easy to sow in shallow minds distrust of British institutions whether royalty, religion or morality. Does Mr. Carleton Greene realize the power he is letting irresponsible toss? If he does not, someone should tell him."

Unbalanced Treatment

In the earlier part of my remarks I referred to what we have to look at in the major problems in Canada, the Anglo-Irish Problem and its television dimensions. I have only illustrative of many other subjects in respect of which we have been subjected to unbalanced treatment with regard to public affairs, both domestic and international. I have been disturbed when listening to the news from Washington, which is delivered daily by Mr. James V. Mindis. Upon making detailed comparisons afterwards to ascertain the extent to which these reports harmonized with reports in the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, I find that there has been a substantial and disturbing difference. Our influence on many problems, our ability to cope, is influenced by how much we know. It was Chairman Mao in his celebrated speech at the Yenan forum who declared that today the media is the greatest revolutionary weapon in the world.

If we rely on this media to cover public affairs, we must use it fairly and with balance.

Prices were mixed in light to moderate activity Wednesday.

It was the first unventful day since Monday when the market slumped more than 8 points following the devaluation of the British pound. Monday's decline was then offset Tuesday.

Dosco slipped ¼ to 9¾ after touching a high of 10¼ and Hawker Siddeley picked up 5 cents to 2.75. A government announcement about the future of Dosco's Sydney, N.S. steel mill was expected late Wednesday.

Manning Says It Seems PCs Shun Conservatism

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Premier E. C. Manning said Wednesday it appears the national Progressive Conservative Party is not going to accept an invitation to adopt his "social conservative" principles, and lead Canada through a political renaissance.

Speaking to a banquet crowd of 600 persons at the annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League, Mr. Manning said that "if the Conservatives pass up this opportunity—as seems likely—it will be the decision of those who put party and personal interests above national needs."

He said the alternatives remaining will be a reorganization and revitalization of the Social Credit party on a national level, or the emergence of a new political force.

Mr. Manning said again that he has no personal ambition to lead such a Social Conservative party.

Mr. Manning has advocated a polarization of political thought at a national level, seeking a two-party system to provide voters with what he says would be meaningful alternatives. His thoughts were crystallized in a book, Political Realignment, published in August.

In the book he gave his evaluation of the four major federal parties, and arrived at the conclusion that the Conservatives had the best chance of reorganization so that it could subscribe to his Social Conservative principles.

He said Wednesday the problem first "and with the rank and file but with the leaders and the political machine."

"Progressive Conservative leaders are lagging two or three years behind the desires and wishes of the rank and file of the party."

Mr. Manning defines social conservatism as a program leading to the total development of human and physical resources in a society of free and creative individuals, with government helping them to achieve their full potential through the assistance of public programs.

'Temporary' Tax Likely to Remain

OTTAWA (CP) — Two or three interpretations may be put upon Finance Minister Sharp's use of the word "temporary" for the tax increase he will announce in detail next week.

The obvious meaning seems the least likely. By Mr. Sharp's own account, the government needs more and will be 1963 too. It appears improbable that the higher taxes will be levied only for a while, then wiped out.

In fact, the approaching tax changes may be followed in a few months by more. When he gave Canadians a sneak preview of his behind-the-wicket, 16, Mr. Sharp not only promised to announce changes later in the month, but in 1963 as well.

The second round will raise—possibly from a different source—money to pay for medical care insurance, if the federal program goes ahead July 1.

The finance minister has hinted that by "temporary" he may have in mind the approach of structural changes in the tax system.

Although his timetable is taking a battering, Mr. Sharp expects to start his tax reforms sometime in 1963.

If he follows the recommendations of the Carter royal commission on taxation, he would be lifting much of the burden now carried by individuals through personal income taxes.

In this sense, if he increases taxes in this field Nov. 30, they would be temporary.

Most observers expect the changes to come in this area because the government would be defeating its own anti-inflation program by increasing rates of almost any other tax.

Higher corporation, sales or excise taxes would tend to be passed on to consumers in the form of higher prices, economists would argue.

Speculation has settled on the figure of 10 per cent as the likely increase. This would mean roughly $100,000,000 in revenue for the first three months of 1963.

The government is paying dearly for the money it is borrowing in the capital market, and will need more to meet its estimated 1962-63 requirements of $1,600,000,000.

But some observers argue that the government may have in mind a genuine "temporary" income tax increase, perhaps in the form of a surcharge that could be refunded when economic signs are right.

Ontario's treasurer, Charles MacNaughton, warned last week at the federal - provincial finance ministers' meeting that recessionary influences may be hard at work on the economy by next spring.

If Ottawa imposed a refundable tax it could give the economy one stimulating nudge as necessary when it stops collections and another when it starts paying the money back.

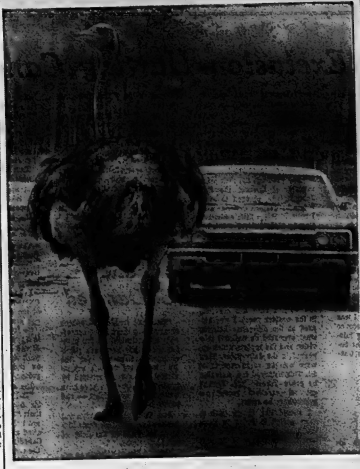
Dow Will Still Seek Employees

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Officials of Dow Chemical Corp. Ltd. said Wednesday they will continue their recruiting program at Canadian universities despite recent student demonstrations.

In an interview, a company spokesman said he was disappointed that university officials allow the demonstrations to interfere with the company's job interviews.

Students last week demonstrated at the University of Toronto against the chemical company, which they said manufactures ingredients for napalm, a jellied gasoline used in warfare.

The Dow spokesman said the company feels anyone has the right to demonstrate, but not at the expense of someone else.



He said the demonstrators show their inconsistency by registering on complaints against oil companies which produce gasoline.

Napalm, is made of gasoline, benzene and polystyrene. Dow in Sarnia produces only polystyrene which is not shipped to companies making napalm in the United States, the official said.

Dr. François Leger was ordered to give details of the illness. Dockers 'Fired' for Poor Work

MONTREAL (CP) — About 1,000 longshoremen in the Port of Montreal were fired Wednesday after the Shipping Federation of Canada charged them with "continued low productivity."

The firings were carried out by the stevedoring companies who employ the men through the federation.

Federation and union spokesmen said that at least 50 of the port's 97 work gangs were fired. Each gang has 17 men.

A spokesman for the federation said the men can—and probably will—be called back for work today and Friday. But they will be dismissed again if they fail to meet the "requirements of their employers."

Spokesmen for the workers, all members of the International Longshoremen's Association, said reports of study sessions and a possible wildcat strike by the workers are completely unfounded.

Montrealer Denies War Criminal Charge

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montrealer named as Kovalev to answer charges of Byelorussian origin said Wednesday night the RCMP promised to investigate his case following Soviet charges that a war criminal lives at his suburban Rosemount address.

Marion Klimko, who has lived in Canada for 17 years, said in an interview he went to see the RCMP Wednesday to demand his name be cleared of any connection with the man wanted in the Soviet Union.

"They are going to try to help us," he said.

Mr. Klimko said he doubts the man named by the Russians as Iliarion Makarevich Kovalev ever existed and he believes the Russian move is just another example of Soviet propaganda.

The Soviet Union delivered a note Tuesday to the Canadian embassy in Moscow asking Canada to extradite the man they Teenage Recreation--Shortage of Facilities or Lack of Interest?

By STEVE BISHOP

What are Belleville teenagers doing for their spare days? Where can they go and what can they do?

The general consensus among the city's youth is that a shortage of recreational facilities exists in Belleville, as the following comments, taken from a general survey, testify.

Gerry Pugh, 17, a grade 12 student at BCI: "They should tear down the boatlab (on Bridge Street near Front) and build a low cost club for teenagers."

Mel Wilson, 16, a grade 12 student at CDSS: "There's not enough diversity in teen entertainment. A few narrow-minded people are ruining things for the kids is needed."

Mark Bishop, 16, a Grade 12 student at MSS: "I think Belleville should have a place for teenagers to go after school like the proposed Owl." (a teenage club)

Although most teenagers feel there are not enough good facilities, a number are of the opinion that the fault lies with the teenagers themselves. Here are some typical comments from that group.

Jeff Hume, 16, a Grade 12 student at MSS: "More support of recreational facilities by the kids is needed."

Mick Chalmers, 17, a Grade 11 student at MSS: "I think Belleville teen scene is pretty good. But the kids disregard what they've got. This is why the Tiki will probably close down eventually."

Let us look at the facilities now available to Belleville teens and the degree to which they are successful in providing entertainment for the city's young people.

The Friday night high school dance, once a regular attraction for students, is largely fading from existence due to an apparent lack of interest on the part of the teenagers.

The exception are at Quinte Secondary School, where one Friday night dance per month is held, and at Holy Name Catholic College where one successful dance was held in October and more may be forthcoming.

BCI, and Moira and Centennial Secondary Schools schedule no evening dances. Aside from the commencement dances at BCI and Moira, only afternoon tea dances have been held at these schools.

The dance situation at the three schools was appraised by leading officials of the various schools in interviews yesterday.

William McKay, principal at BCI, said "We used to schedule school dances every third week. But now dance dates are wide open."

"The various clubs and groups within the school can apply to the students' council for permission to hold dances but since September we've had only commencement and one other dance."

Henry Birkenshaw, vice-principal at MSS, explained the situation at his school: "We used to plan dances regularly, but this year we've only had the graduation dance and one tea dance.

"It's very difficult to compete economically with the big bands teenage clubs bring in, and the students just don't seem to be interested in school dances."

W. J. Musgrove, principal of Centennial, described a similar situation at Belleville's newest high school: "So far this year we've only had one tea dance. With the teenage night clubs, there's no demand for school dances. And the schools lose money on the dances."

It appears the teenage night clubs, the Tiki Club, and Checkerboard Square (now in Trenton) have drawn the students from school dances with big-name, out-of-town bands.

But do the clubs fill the entertainment bill for Belleville's teens? The Tiki Club, now in its second year of operation, is suffering a decline in attendance. Saturday night dances, while dances at both the Friday and John Chalmers, 16, a Grade 12 student at BCI, and perhaps the city's foremost high school basket ball player, expressed the complaints of the city's sportsminded youth. He said, "From personal experience, I've found there's no place to play basketball outside of school."

Officials of the city's high schools explained that the school gyms could not be made available for these purposes due to the fact that most of their time was occupied by school teams and groups, and that problems of supervision arose at those times that the gyms were free.

The city arena provides skating and hockey for Belleville youth, and while the current arena debate cannot be gone into here, many teenagers feel that new facilities should be expanded.

Loyalist

Society Promotes College Activities

By PATRICIA BRIDGE

LOYALIST students feel it is time their college received recognition as an institute of higher learning. The College offers many excellent courses in both technical and business fields.

Both--divisions offer the same courses as Ryerson and other colleges in Ontario. Loyalist fills the gap which has left companies short of skilled workers.

First year students hope to set standards which will establish Loyalist as a school which produces highly trained, skilled students, ready to step into the working world.

SINCE this is the first year, Loyalist does not have many extra-curricular activities as the students would like. Some were started despite the lack of facilities and equipment. Everything fell in place when the Student Society was established.

Groups organized included: the drama, glee, and skiing clubs. Athletic groups included basketball, badminton, volleyball, and hockey teams which are all co-ed.

DONALD SOUTTER, Managing Editor of the Intelligencer, kindly volunteered his services in assisting the staff of the College newspaper.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the first Open House at Loyalist, Friday, November 24, 1967 at 8:30.

Trenton

Graduation Set Saturday

By PAMELA MOUNTENAY

THIS IS TRENTON High School signing in, and first of all, we want to wish "good luck" to the Youth Parade. "The" your sins be scarlet, may your column be read."

We sincerely hope that Belleville's parade went successfully recovering from writing the most recent epidemic of the plague. We are big enough to sympathize with you, even though we missed out.

• • •

THE ANNUAL electorate campaign got off to a staging start here, compliments of THS cheerleaders and the 4 club members in miniskirts.

A tip for Belleville girls: Trenton boys have gorgeous legs!

It is with the greatest of pleasure that we announce the winner of the first student of the week award. We have chosen Archie Duff of 12B for obvious reasons. Future winners' names will appear in each Trenton column.

GRADUATION exercises will be held on November 25. This time-honored occasion has been the cause of much concern in the past few years because of the lack of enthusiasm and organizational problems.

However, attempts are now being made to correct this situation, and we are sure this year will be successful.

• • •

LAST WEEK, David Battle of Toronto, delivered a lecture on the art of TV producing to the senior students. A CBC producer and performer, he was extremely interesting to talk to, however, we were disappointed that some of the more obvious bids for screen tests went unseen. Better luck next time.

• • •

FOR EACH and every student elsewhere, the ringing of the dismissal bell provides a signal for the release of cares and tensions. Not so at THS.

Here, we are at the mercy of our teacher and the class clock-watchers. We have sacrificed our tradition-steeped liberty bell to preserve some semblance of sanity in the halls.

Now that Grade 13 has been segregated from the rest of the school by a different class schedule, everyone is moving out at separate times.

The bell is dead; long live clock-watchers.

THERE'S NOT much left to say, except to wish Mr. Livingstone a long but happy convalescence and, to coin a phrase, we'll see you next week.

Lounge Issue Controversial

By DONNA WHALEN

WITH THE ADVENT OF November exams, naturally gregarious students suddenly became loners as they made a last all-out effort to recall facts and figures pertaining to the various subjects.

THE STUDENT Council is meeting on Monday to discuss the fate of the proposed student lounge. There is still some controversy over what will be done to partition the cafeteria from the north gym. But the council representatives and the members of the student lounge committee are optimistic; they say the lounge should be completed by mid-December.

• • •

THE PROJECT was the main platform of the "green" party (as opposed to the "white" party) when they were running for office. As a result of this ingenious idea, three "green" members now make up the executive of the council. Furnishings for the lounge will be obtained at cost, and the committee members but any donations the students offer would be greatly appreciated.

THE MEMBERS of the art. club are busy sculpting woodcuts in relief to enhance the color and atmosphere of the room.

A new club at Nicholson this year is the bridge club, which has proven to be quite successful. Amateur card enthusiasts and experts alike get together in Mr. Sandy Afternoons to shuffle, cut and deal.

IN CONSIDERATION of the solemnity of Remembrance Day, a memorial service was held in the gymnatorium. Scripture passages were read by several senior students; a period of silence was observed, and a wreath was presented to honor the war-dead.

NICHOLSON FEELS justifiably proud of its basketball teams this year. The junior girls' under Miss Shannon captured the Bay of Quinte Championship. Now the Senior girls are out to do the same.

They have two other teams to contend with and the competition begins on Tuesday, with Nicholson vs Albert at Moira.

BCI Plans Novel Dance

By TOM THRUSH

The Centennial committee of BCI has completed their project of buying books for the Belleville Hospital library. The committee spent a total of about $500 on books for children five to 16.

• • •

THE COMMITTEE is having the cards put in the books while they wait to present them to the hospital administrator next month.

• • •

THE STUDENT Council is planning a computer dance sometime in the next few weeks. They want to pair couples by sending information about each person through a computer. If this proves too costly they may have to select students through drawing numbers.

Moira Secondary

Student Clubs Are Popular

By STEPHEN HUNTER

DARK THREATENING clouds rumbled in the west late Nov. 10 and by Saturday morning the storm front had advanced and was hovering bleakly over Moira Secondary School.

Then, on Monday morning, with a great tumult, the fury was unleashed on the student body. The situation worsened and the thoroughly exhausted students were ready to give up, when, as suddenly as it had all begun, the storm just disappeared and the sun shone once more.

YES, THE FIRST set of exams for the Grades 9 through 12 and it is evident that there is some relief in that. However, the exams are not in yet so don't get too relaxed.

While the tempest was raging for the younger set — the Grade 13's were riding out the storm in the isolation of the relatively new technical wing. They were content to continue their regular classes unaware of all else.

SINCE DEPARTMENTAL exams have been dropped, grade 13 teachers decided to hold two sets of exams — one in December and the finals in June.

Due to a ruling by the department of education, however, the system may be altered but as yet no definite change has been made. A warning though "probs" call for a period of heavy storms from Dec. 15 to 22, so prepare in advance. . .

THE ANNUAL was cancelled all activities last week. To get things moving this week we have the wrap-up games in inter-form soccer. The highlight of this series will be the game between the teachers and 13A.

These games usually get quite rough, so we'll try to make sure the students don't hurt the teachers too much.

THE ADVANCE SALES of our yearbook, the "Moiran-ite," also picked up. So far, 430 copies have been sold but we are shooting for 600 or more. So come on Moira students — make sure of your copy of what promises to be the biggest and best yearbook yet.

This year there appears to be more and more student clubs in Moira and I think it is time for all students to rejoin the different groups and the projects they have planned for this year.

Next week I will interview a member from each club to let you know what happens after the exams at Moira.

OTHER COLUMNS in the future will include Moira's student council, the grade 13 advisory council and Moira's athletic council. So keep watching, this is only the beginning . . .

Keyette Dance Slated

By SUE ELLIS

AS A MEMBER of the newest high school in the city I would like to show our appreciation. We feel that other schools have done more than enough to welcome us to their midst. All have given us leadership in activities and have shown the way in which to better ourselves.

• • •

IN OUR activities we have as many clubs as such schools as QSS, BCIVS, MSS etc. In sports, although at the moment, we don't excel we are making our way up as quickly as can be expected. Our school is run by a coordination of student council, with president Anne McDougall and the staff.

• • •

FROM NOW on we, through this column will advertise activities, write essays, jokes and practically anything as long as it is done by our students. Donations will be accepted and are desperately needed.

• • •

RUMOR has it that on Nov. 29, after the Keyette initiation in the school a tea dance will be held; the Sounds Incorporated will be there . . . will you?

• • •

TWO WEEKS ago the girls' athletics sold 48 dozen donuts, the proceeds we understand, are going toward uniforms. . . Which ones? — past or future?

Fashion Club Formed at Quinte

"BACK TO THE old grind."

QUINTERESCENCE, the school yearbook at Quinte is progressing miraculously with pleas to the student body for baby pictures of students or teachers, and candid shots of the students or teachers at work?? or at play.

• • •

THE EDITOR of the news paper, Quintatiler says the students can expect to see the third edition out either the last week in November or the first week in December. If anyone anywhere has any ideas or submissions please get hold of me before too long. We can also promise a special Christmas issue touching both sides of the Christmas idea.

• • •

STUDENT parliament headed by Henry Kafka, our benevolent prime minister, has secured swimming for Quinte students at Tops pool on Monday Nights. Admission is a Quinte student parliament pass.

QUINTE HAS made another outstanding achievement Wed this time it is not in the sports field. We have our very own fashion club. This is a new club in our school and we think in all of the Quinte area.

Girls get together to discuss various trends and fads, modern and ancient, as well as the art of make-up, its application and removal.

THE NEWSPAPER is in the process of securing a teacher of the year contest. Approval by the office is humbly awaited and should be received by next week.

• • •

WE HAD THE third dance last Friday night, once again starring the talented Sands of Time! Every one went away with music sounding through their brain and rhythm stomping in their feet.

Just for the record the dress for a school dance is shirt and tie and either a sports jacket or a button up cardigan sweater for the boys and a skirt or dress for the girls.

Alouette Club Holds Annual Dinner Meet

A year ago, on the occasion of its annual dinner, the Alouette Club for Belleville and region, was branching out into its first public endeavour in sponsoring jointly with a local firm a centennial year project, the presentation in Belleville, of the Canada's national folk dance company, Les Feux-Follets.

Last Saturday night, at St. Joseph's parish hall, on the occasion of its annual dinner, the Alouette Club members and friends sat down to supper and honored for its contribution to the Belleville Centennial Year program.

There were about 180 present from Belleville, Trenton and Montreal in an appropriately decorated hall, the largest number of participants to attend this annual event since the club was established in 1958. Mr. J.A.C. Berube, president of the club, presided at the head table, with Mrs. Berube and guests of honor, Mayor Jack Ellis and Mrs. Ellis, Msgr. J. A. Carley, pastor of St. Joseph's, Father Gazeley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson and daughter Catherine, Mrs. Azelie Berube, mother of the president, from Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Ludger Briand.

After the official welcome by the vice-president, Berard Gagnier, and Grace by Msgr. J. A. Carley, everyone enjoyed a time of fellowship. The substantial meal was prepared by women of the club under the direction of Mrs. Jacqueline Hultquist.

Mr. Gagnier introduced Mrs. Charles Wilson, on behalf of the Belleville Centennial committee expressed joy to be with the club members again and recalled the high performance of the first event of the Belleville Centennial Year last February, namely the presentation of Les Feux-Follets and the three day sell out record on this occasion.

On behalf of the committee, she presented Mr. J. A. C. Berube, with a centennial plaque, who, on behalf of the club, expressed appreciation.

Mr. Berube also announced that it might be possible to hold the Maple Sugar party in the coming spring, in Belleville this time, depending on whether facilities at Zwick's Island could be made available to the club, on request to City Council.

Mayor Ellis spoke briefly, saying that he enjoyed being with the club again and had been pleased to see it take part in community life on the occasion of this Centennial year. He expressed congratulations to each member of the Club Centennial committee for tasks performed, and handed out scrolls prepared for them as a souvenir of the Centennial Year. These went to: J. A. C. Berube, Donat Clement, Bernard Gagnier, Mr. and Mrs. James Hultquist, Paul Menard, and Gerwasis Pilon. A scroll will be mailed to Michel Thiffault, who is now living in Montreal.

Donat Clement expressed thanks to Mayor Ellis.

Dancing followed with the Herby's Four and James Hultquist directed the plays.

Dance prizes went to Robert Hultquist and Mrs. Theresa Lloyd; Michel Gagne and Louise Hultquist, Andre Serre and Mrs. Chantal Tremblay, Miss Catherine Wilson and A. Sullivan.

Last Centennial gathering for the club will be held December 8.

Couple Marks 25th Anniversary

Upon return home from a trip to Peterborough with Mr. and Mrs. A. Dickens, a pleasant surprise awaited Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Dodd on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. A party was arranged for them by their daughter Leona Dodd who was assisted by three friends from Toronto.

The honored guests were met at the door with a shower of confetti and Mrs. Dodd was presented with a corsage of red roses, while Mr. Dodd received a boutonniere.

Guests were present from Barrie, Oshawa, Toronto, Centreville, Kingston, Amherst Island and Belleville. Among guests from here were Rev. Roy Vessey and Mrs. Vessey.

The sunroom was beautifully decorated for the occasion with blue and white streamers and an attractive tea table centred with an anniversary cake bearing the figure 25. Adding to the decor was an arrangement of silver tinsel with mums. At this time they were presented with a large number of gifts.

During the evening a phone call was received from their son Gilbert who lives in Kapuskasing and was unable to attend the event.

To round out the evening's entertainment the bride of 25 years donned her wedding gown and a silver fox fur which was a gift from her husband on their wedding day.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

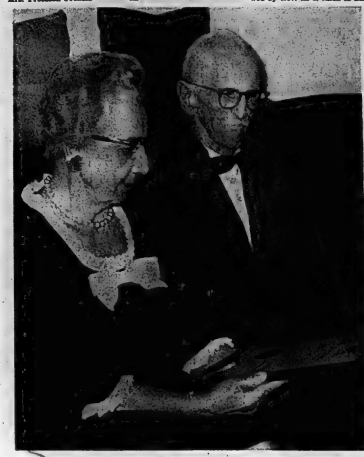
Trenton Couple Will Observe Seventieth Wedding Anniversary

TRENTON — If you're going to do something, do it right, might be the motto of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman French.

The local couple are looking forward to celebrating their 70th wedding anniversary December 25.

"I'd say patience helps," says Amelia Bury family residence.

She can't remember what day of the week the ceremony was performed, but remembering the minister's name is more than many youthful marriedsons can boast of.



Mrs. French, now 87, looks after the housework in the comfortable apartment where she and her husband now live in the Lorne Ave. residence of their daughter, Mrs. William Steenburg.

Mr. French, now 91, worked for many years at the last of of "cooperage" — barrel and boxmaking.

Born in Point Anne, Mr. French doesn't like to admit signs of advancing age. He doffs a hearing aid for photographs, and still takes the odd afternoon jount to a downtown snack bar for a coffee.

His wife is the former Etta Brooks, born in Amelianburg.

There are three children, Mrs. Charles (Kathleen) Kirkpatrick, Buffalo; Mrs. Steenburg, and Buddy French of Belleville; also seven grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Return to Old-time Religion Urged at Presbyterian Rally

IVANHOE — Mrs. R. Cunningham, Roslin, a former missionary in the Congo, was guest speaker at the sectional fall rally of Kingston Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, Thursday.

Mrs. Cunningham was born in Ireland and served as a Congo missionary until evacuated in 1960. She was matron of Belfast Bible College for two years before coming to Canada with her husband and children. Mr. Cunningham is Presbyterian minister serving Roslin, Fuller and Foxboro.

Mrs. Cunningham called upon her listeners to preserve their heritage of faith and vision inherited from the pioneer WMS women. She urged a return to the old-time religion and the restoration of the family altar. During these days of the new morality, crime, drug addiction and delinquency, children have need of restriction and discipline and the realization that only the gospel of Jesus Christ can transform, keep, and save.

Madoc, Tweed, Roslin, Foxboro, Stirling and West Huntingdon societies were represented at the meeting presided over by Mrs. D. C. MacPherson. Mrs. Donald Fargey and Mrs. James Johnston, Stirling, conducted the worship service. Mrs. A. Hassall sang a solo.

The 1968 rally will be held at Roslin.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "There aren't any children near for Teddy to play with, so Jim likes to play with him often. I'll be so glad when he starts to school next year."

Grandmother: "He'll enjoy having friends his own age."

Mother: "Teddy needs to learn to play with other children. Could your boys come over a couple of mornings a week?"

Friend: "They would enjoy it, and Teddy can play here, too. There are several little boys and girls about his age on our street."

An only child may find other children strange, thoughtless and rough if he has learned to play only with more considerate adults. Arrange for him to have some play experience with other children before he starts to school.

Ann Landers

Opposite Opinions Given by Readers

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Although I have a few problems I could write about, I rather write a letter of thanks and ask you to print it on Thanksgiving Day.

I want to thank you, Ann Landers, for the young girl who had a child out of wedlock and can now face life because of the sound counsel and moral support she received from you.

I want to thank you for discussing openly problems involving homosexuality and venereal disease. Your frank, enlightened point of view has given hope and help to thousands of people who are struggling to hold their heads up.

I want to thank you for prevailing heaven knows how many miserable marriages and for keeping together countless other marriages that surely would have fallen apart without your realistic, down-to-earth advice.

I want to thank you for reminding parents that discipline is a special kind of love and that they owe it to their children to insist on high standards and to set a good example.

I want to thank you for the thousands of miles you travel a year to talk to our teen-agers.

I want to thank you for the encouragement you have given the mentally ill and the alcoholic. In many cases you have been the best (or only) friend those people have.

I want to thank you for your beautiful sense of humor and for showing us through your excellent column that our problems are not the only problems in the world. — R.J.R.M.M.

DEAR R.J.R.M.M.: A wise friend once told me that praise, like perfume, should be inhaled not swallowed, so I'm inhaling your letter, which is a nice balance for the one which follows.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Who appointed you God? Some of your answers are so stupid you make me sick.

For example, you are always knocking people who drop in unexpectedly. Your favorite phrase is, "If you are unexpected and uninvited, you are also unwelcome." Who are you to write rules of conduct for the whole human race. It so happens that I love company anytime. I consider it a compliment that friends feel so warmly about me that they just come over on the spur of the moment.

Recently, you were asked how to get guests to go home when they had a few drinks and don't want to leave. You said you just stand up and say, "Good night folks. Tomorrow is here."

I can't imagine anyone being so rude as kicking guests out of the house. I'll bet you haven't got a friend in the world. — NO ADMIRER OF YOURS.

DEAR NO ADMIRER: Thank you for your letter. I appreciate any honest expression whether it's for me or agin' me. Your letter pours heaps me from peeling swell-headed — and we all need a little deflating from time to time. Thank you for writing.

Cinnamon Butterflies Served to Press Club

By MARY MOORE

The Press Club meeting was held at my home. I had to think of something really smashing to serve to them with coffee, but that did not take much time to prepare.

So I chose sweet yeast buns, the like of which I have never tasted before. They call for 1½ cups butter and the method is not the usual yeast dough method. The results knocked four executives right off their reducing diets — including me.

(24 large split pinwheels)

Dough:

1 pkge. granular yeast
2 tsps. sugar
¼ cup lukewarm water
4½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar (second amount)
1½ cups (⅜ lb.) hard butter
3 large eggs

filling:

1½ cups light brown sugar
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup melted butter
½ cup finely chopped walnuts.

In large mixing bowl soak yeast and sugar in lukewarm water 10 minutes then stir. Meanwhile sift and measure flour into large bowl and add salt and sugar. With a pastry blender cut in hard butter until it is the size of small peas. Beat eggs into risen yeast liquid then mix in flour-butter mixture as well as you can but be sure it is thoroughly mixed. Scrape dough down from sides of bowl. Cover and chill 1 or 2 or even 3 hrs. Mix together all filling ingredients. Remove dough from refrigerator. Remove half of it. Return remaining half to refrigerator. On well floured board roll out to 12 x 18" oblong. Cover with half of the filling—thinly at one 12" end. Starting at other 12" end roll up tightly. Cut into 12 even pieces. Slice each piece ¾ way through again. Now separate and spread sideways to look like a butterfly without breaking the "hinge" and place on buttered cookie sheet. Repeat until all 12 butterflies are on cookie sheets. Remove remaining half of dough from refrigerator and repeat the whole operation until you have 24 "butterflies" on pans. I used 3 cookie sheets. Let rise uncovered at room temperature one hour. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 15 min. or until golden top and bottom.

NOTE: These contain so much butter they are soft when time arrives to remove from pans, so let them rest in pans for 5 min. before removing, then lift each from pan with spatula. Serve hot. Provide forks. If served cold, which heaven forbid, they may be eaten from your fingers.

Successful Living

Mother Is Baffled by Teacher's Actions

Dear Doris: My eight-year-old daughter came home from school quite hurt. Her class had a little auction sale where they take comic books and toys to sell for pennies to raise money for the Red Cross.

Well, she took some comic books and 15 pennies but her teacher did not let her buy anything. Why would a teacher do this?

I would like to ask her teacher but I hesitate to do so as they make you feel as if you are a troublemaker.

Last year, while the same daughter's teacher went for a coffee break, she put one of her grade two pupils in charge of the rest of the class, and the pupil went around the class hitting them with a ruler. — Shocked But Helpless.

Dear Shocked: My ESP isn't quite up to deciding what was wrong, but here are my thoughts:

(1) They had run out of the items your little girl wanted.

(2) Your daughter treasured the pennies in her hot little hand, and just never could make a choice.

(3) Little-eight-year-old was timid, and didn't speak up soon enough.

Or it might have been all three. Or some unpredictable fourth.

I can't see holding back from a talk with teacher. Most teachers and principals are glad when they see that the folks at home care enough what happens at school to put in a phone call.

That business of Grade Two rule-by-ruler has me stumped. Are you sure?

Dear Doris: I'm trying to diet. One friend tells me to avoid desserts, another that I can have them if I avoid certain things. Doris, I have a sweet tooth and I always break down after a while. Tell me what to do. — Too Round

Dear Too: I have the very thing. A Canadian food manufacturer has prepared a handsome folder of reducing sweet and recipes, with special attention to delicious desserts. Most of them have ingredients from the dietetic canned food shelves. Apple mousse, peach tarts, strawberry whip, are all on the low-calorie menus. You can reduce and still indulge your sweet tooth.

Charts compare calorie content of these diet foods with that of standard foods. For the help of diabetics, exchange values are given beneath each recipe (thus telling you what you can substitute for what and how much).

I am passing along your name and address to the manufacturer. He will send you the folder free of charge (and to any others who write in to me about it).

Dear Doris: I was interested in your information about contact lenses. Do they solve some vision problems better than conventional spectacles? — Four Eyes

Dear Four: In some cases, yes. When one eye is much more farsighted or shortsighted than the other, contacts may give better vision and comfort. Also, they give better side vision.

A very fine fact sheet on contact lenses has been prepared by the Canadian Association of Optometrists. Ask your local optometrist for a copy.

Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Papers Pay Too Much Attention to Freedom, Not Enough to Responsibility Says O'Leary

OTTAWA (CP) — Newspapers pay too much attention to press freedom and not enough to press responsibility, Senator M. Grattan O'Leary, editor emeritus of The Ottawa Journal, said Wednesday.

The press does not enjoy any rights not given to the humblest citizen, he told members of the National Press Club and their guests at the formal publication of the book, A century of reporting—The Sizzle de Reportage.

The 300-page anthology of the best of Canadian journalism — stories, cartoons and photographs—is the press club's centennial project. The book was published by Clarke Irwin and Co. of Toronto with the assistance of a $2,000 grant from the centennial commission. Christopher Adler of The Ottawa Citizen, was chairman of the editorial board.

Selections run from George Brown on July 1, 1867, to Peter Newman on April 28, 1967. The French selections cover the same period starting with an editorial from L'Ordre and ending with Claude Ryan's "Terre des Hommes."

Senator O'Leary concluded his exhortation to his fellow journalists by presenting a copy of the book to Governor - General Michener on behalf of the club, the publishers and the centennial commission.

Senator O'Leary has two of his own articles in the book, one of them an interview with survivors of the Titanic in 1912, his first year as a reporter.

The book includes a death-cell interview with Louis Riel written by Nicholas Flood Davin, some of the prophetic editorials by John W. Dafoe, a broadcast on the death of King George VI by Leonard Brockington, dramatic wartime stories by Ross Munro and Matthew Halton and the best in political cartoons down the century.

Senator O'Leary said Freedom of the press does not give the right to libel, to blaspheme or to stand up in a crowded theatre and shout "fire".

Freedom of the press in Canada was not in danger from without, but from within, he said. The public has the right to know, but it required reporters with knowledge, "understanding and integrity" to make that right meaningful.

He also said control of publishing must be kept within Canada. "A state must control three things-banking, transportation and communication.

Must Rebuild World Says Cardinal Leger

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger says there are "two worlds" on earth, "the world of abundance . . . and the world of the underdeveloped nations."

The cardinal, speaking at a press conference Tuesday to launch the Year of Faith, said people should cease viewing the world as "one of five continents, four races or communism and capitalism."

"We have to rebuild the world in order to set up an equilibrium. Otherwise, man will judge us as man who is misery, who is hunger, who is deprivation."

Cardinal Leger reiterated his belief that the world of the underdeveloped should bear heavily on the conscience of man.

Turning to his departure for an African leper colony, slated for early December, Cardinal Leger said: "I admit in all simplicity that my desire to leave my diocese is unexplainable.

"What I do know, in fact what I could not have foreseen, was that I would be involved personally in a very special way in this year of faith."

More Foreign Aid Advocated

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Canada and other Western countries must increase their foreign aid immediately or the underdeveloped countries will lose their peaceful prosperity, Archbishop Howard Clark, Anglican Primate of Canada warned Wednesday night.

He told a press conference that Canada's primary job today is to increase its foreign aid program to at least one per cent of the national income, at $500,000,000 a year from the present $316,000,000.

And the rest of the Western nations have to do the same, or within 20 years the have-not nations will do something "desperate."

He told the press conference: "There will be revolutions. There will be more desperate act like an atomic bomb. The undeveloped countries will get more and more desperate and do something."

In a speech later to the congregational dinner of St. Jude's Anglican Church here, Archbishop Clark said:

"We have a half-pound of meat per person per day; the developing nations have only an ounce per person. North America has 46 per cent of the world's income but only 6.1 per cent of its population.

Dr. Clark noted that Canada this year had increased her attendance of foreign aid "but it was not enough."

"The government is still too cautious and the Canadian people still too selfish. They must forget some of their selfish needs."

Equalization Grants Unfair Claims Bennett

VICTORIA (CP) — Continued existence of the four Atlantic provinces after 100 years of Confederation is "almost a national disgrace," Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Wednesday.

The premier, in a taped television interview, criticized the federal government for failure to "encourage" establishment of a single province in the Maritimes.

He said the present situation is the equivalent of the former Crown colonies of Vancouver Island, the British Columbia mainland, and two former territories now included in B.C. being provinces today and "all getting equalization grants."

"British Columbia is keeping these (maritime) provinces," the premier said. "There's no doubt about it."

Mr. Bennett was asked if he means which go to all provinces in Canada except B.C., Alberta and Ontario.

"I don't begrudge them, but I believe they are most unfair," he replied.

The premier said B.C. does not put a dollar value on its membership on Confederation because "we believe in the dream of Canada."

B.C. opposes federal equalization policies because they mean that hundreds of millions of dollars are being wasted by other provincial governments who practise patronage, he said.

Mr. Bennett said a better system of sharing the wealth of Canada would be to ensure a decent standard of living for all Canadians and provide a greater return to the national treasury in the form of federal income tax.

Mr. Bennett deplored the fact of four "have no" provinces with costly duplication of civil and other services.

"Equalization grants encourage these provinces to remain separate," he said.

Mr. Bennett said if the government in Nova Scotia raised its teachers' salaries to levels of the dominion average "I'd find the fault."

The premier has said often that he would like to see only five provincial governments in Canada—the Maritimes including Newfoundland, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairies and British Columbia.

Thompson Questions Martin

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson (SC—Red Deer) said in the Commons Wednesday that the Quebec Liberation Front, a separatist organization, is trying to develop guerrilla warfare.

Pamphlets are being distributed in Quebec that call for the formation of "Cuban-styled" guerrilla bands for raids on populated centres, he said.

He also asked External Affairs Minister Martin to report on his "promised careful investigation" of his charge—denied by Cuba—that short-wave Cuban radio broadcasts have been inciting French-speaking Canadians to revolt.

"I will," Mr. Martin said, but he did not say when.

Mr. Thompson said the Quebec Liberation Front is distributing pamphlets "urging separatists to form Cuban-styled guerrilla bands in the backwoods for armed raids on Quebec cities and towns and giving specific instructions in the handling and acquisition of arms."

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked whether these pamphlets are emanating from the Cuban embassy in Ottawa. His question was unanswered.

Mr. Thompson then asked whether the government has located arms stolen recently from an armory in Winnipeg, or has anything to report on this incident.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled the question out of order on the ground that it had been or could in the Commons several days ago. At that time, the government reported it was still investigating the incident.

Canada's Newest and Largest Town, to Be Formed Jan. 1, Is as Yet Nameless

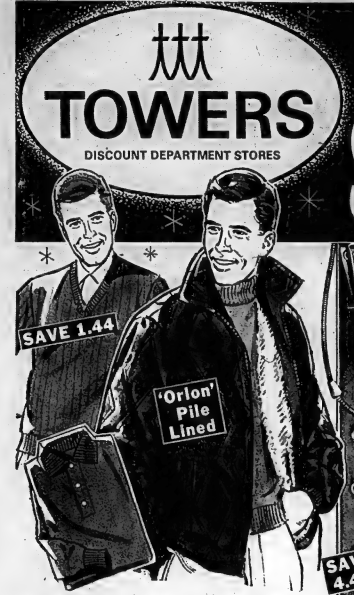
TORONTO (CP) — Canada's newest and largest town—population 150,000—will be formed Jan. 1 even if residents don't know what to call it.

By the time Toronto Township, caught in the surging spread of Toronto's western suburbs, becomes a municipality, residents will have voted to call it Mississauga, an Indian name, or Sheridan, a pioneer community on the township's western fringes.

Mississauga is expected to win in the Dec. 2 vote, a possibility that caused one policeman to remark: "We'll never get all of it on the door of the cruisers."

In a way, the town will symbolize Canada's post-war suburban explosion. It includes such communities as Cooksville, Clarkson, Lakeview and Malton —site of Toronto International Airport. They have become popular suburban locations, but never have been incorporated.

In 1857, the township had seven grist mills and 17 sawmills. Cooksville was named the township seat in 1873 and by 1901 the township's population was 4,800.



In the next 51 years, population increased by only 18,182. But in 1953 the post-war boom brought suburban land developers and the threat of bankruptcy.

In 1953, township taxes doubled and trebled because of the lack of industry. At one point 22,000 residents crowded into a school to demand an explanation.

The Ontario government ordered an inquiry and in the next election only one township council member was re-elected. At the height of the controversy, 9,000 residents of the Lakeview area threatened to secede.

SLICE SPORTS

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

OTTAWA — I do not know where the bones of Colonel Bye, the founder of this village of politicos, peacetowery and football teams rest, but I'm sure they're rattling a strange beat in a city that has gone quietly mad during the past few weeks.

The temperature is high. It's pulse is quickening as the big day approaches. Or should it be the big week?

It has developed a strange malady. Grey Cup fever they call it here.

Across the river the mist-shrouded slopes of the Gatineau seem to shiver with a portent of snow.

Down town business appears to be usual. But one can almost feel the undercurrent of excitement spawned from the knowledge of things to come.

Skald Ottawa has shaken her ordinary primness and is readying for the biggest party since the Ottawa Indians decided to let the palefaces take over and built their wigwams up around Petawawa way and intermediate points.

Yesterday the city huddled under an eight-inch blanket of snow with threats of more to come.

Football and talk of football seemed to be as out of place as an iceberg parked on Miami Beach.

A big photograph of Russ Jackson sailed down at me in a sandwich bar. A pert waitress said me looking at it and quipped as she gave me a glass of milk. "Huh, you could be one of those Tiger Cats. They'll get more than milk come the weekend."

And a wise-cracking taxi jehu told me the paid-chauffeur brigade was readying for the biggest income rainfall in their lives.

"We'll put 'em and take 'em wherever they wanna go," he said, "if necessary we'll bring in skidoos, snowmobiles and if the worst comes to the worst weather-wise we'll use dogs and sleds."

But the weather and its possibilities form one of the only topics of non-in-the-street conversation. At times it appeared to peak the big question of availability of tickets for the Big Classic aside.

In fact some down-to-earth Ottawans are beginning to think somebody goofed when the capital city was selected as the site for the grid-ceremony.

They can scarcely be blamed for Ottawa's setting yesterday was more like that for a winter carnival instead of a football battle that should be fought on lush turf instead of slippery snow-covered ice.

True the game administrators are doing their best to get the field into shape but there's seldom a moment when eyes are not cast skyward or scanning long-range weather probabilities.

Jack Koffman sports editor of the Ottawa says the Canadian Football League made a big mistake in granting this year's cup game to Ottawa.

Koffman says "We could have ten feet of snow in Ottawa on December 2nd. We're in a region where you cannot rely on the weather."

He said it was Ottawa's mayor who was eager to have the game played here, not the Rough Riders' football club.

However the mayor is quoted as saying that Canadian Football League games should be finished by mid-November because it was unfair to fans to stage games in mid-winter.

Hawks Rock Rangers

Goal-A-Game Hull Hits For Three

Habs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

No matter how hard he tries, Bobby Hull can't get Chicago Black Hawks out of the cellar of the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

The defending league champions have languished at the bottom of the old division since the start of the season.

Wednesday night the Chicago ace scored three second-period goals as the Hawks rocked New York Rangers 7-1 to regain his goal-a-game pace. But it wasn't enough as Montreal Canadiens defeated St. Louis Blues 3-1 to maintain a one point hold on fifth place.

It was the 21st time in his 11-year NHL career that Hull has hit for three goals in a game. He brought his goal output this season to 18 in as many games.

Eric Nesterenko had two unassisted Chicago goals and drew an assist on a third.

In other NHL games as all 12 league teams saw action, Toronto Maple Leafs climbed back into the Eastern Division lead by defeating Minnesota North Stars 3-0 on goalie Bruce Gamble's first shutout of the season.

On the West Coast, Los Angeles Kings maintained their Western Division lead by dropping Oakland Seals 3-1 for a one-point edge on Philadelphia Flyers, who downed Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

Pittsburgh Penguins prevented Boston Bruins from tying for the Eastern Division lead with a 4-1 victory. The Bruins are a point behind Detroit and two behind the Leafs.

Hull, 28, has scored almost one-third of the team's 51 goals.

The other Chicago goals went to Pat Stapleton and Stan Mikita while Phil Goyette, scored for New York. Nesterenko's first goal in the first period was the 200th of his NHL career.

Ed Giacomin, in goal for all Ranger games so far, was replaced for the third period by Gilles Villemure, who allowed only Mikita's goal.

The 29-year-old Gambie, giving veteran John Bower a rest, made 33 saves for his sixth

BOBBY HULL

NHL shutout as the Leafs got goals from Mike Walton, Wayne Carleton and Tim Horton.

The goal, and an assist on Carleton's goal, gave Walton seven points in the three games he's been working as a regular since replacing injured Dave Keon.

The Penguins dumped the Bruins before their largest crowd since joining the league —8,701—with Les Binkley shutting out Boston until Skip Krake drove home a short screened pass early in the third period.

Keith McCreary, Ab McDonald, Billy Dea and Nod Price scored for Pittsburgh.

The Flyers handed rookie Roy Edwards his first defeat since stepping in for retired Roger Crozier. Edwards had gone five undefeated games.

Bill Sutherland had two Flyer goals with Garry Peters and Don Blackburn scoring the others.

Floyd Smith and Bruce MacGregor beat Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent.

Montreal Canadiens got goals from Ralph Backstrom, Dick Duff and Gilles Tremblay but may have lost the services of centre Henri Richard.

He was carried off the ice midway through the third period with what was tentatively diagnosed as a wrenched right knee.

Goalie Gump Worsley also lost an argument and picked up a 10-minute misconduct penalty for protesting Wayne Rivers' goal.

Brian Campbell, Bob Wall and Real Lemieux kept Los Angeles in front of the expansion division by beating Oakland goalie Charlie Hodge. Alain Caron gave the Seals a short-lived tie late in the first period. St. Louis played under new coach Scotty Bowman for the first time as Lynn Patrick gave up running the team behind the bench to devote full time to being general manager.

In other NHL action, irrelevant to Montreal's play on the ice, coach Toe Blake and winger Claude Provost have been charged in Los Angeles with assault with a deadly weapon waiting for them.

The charge arises out of a fracas last Sunday when the Kings beat the Canadiens 4-2. Blake became involved with a fan and was rescued by several players.

The charge, lodged by Bernie Weisman of Northridge, Calif., will be heard March 8, the next trip Canadiens make to Los Angeles.

Harvey Scores Winner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fired up by playing coach Doug Harvey's tie-breaking goal in the third period, Kansas City Blues went on to defeat Memphis South Stars 6-2 in a Central Hockey League game Wednesday night.

In the only other league game, Omaha Knights edged Oklahoma City Blazers 2-1.

A crowd of 3,203 in Kansas City saw the Blues push their record to five wins against six losses.

The Blues jumped off to a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Craig Cameron and Gary Sabourin but the South Stars tied it up on tallies by Ted McCaskill and Jack Chipchase.

After Harvey broke the tie in the third, Rejean Richer, George Gulliard and Claude Cardin added markers for Kansas City to put the game out of reach.

At Oklahoma City, John Gravel and Joe Johnston each scored in the third period to give the Knights their win over the Blazers. Rookie Grant Erickson scored 25 seconds before the game ended to avert the shutout.

Blake, Provost Charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Montreal Canadiens' coach Toe Blake and one of his hockey players, Claude Provost, were charged Wednesday with assault with a deadly weapon—a hockey stick.

The complaint charges Blake and Provost with the hockey stick attack of a salesman, Bernie Weisman, 39, of Northridge, Calif., last Sunday during a National Hockey League game with Los Angeles Kings. The Kings won 4-2.

Weisman was reportedly heckling the pair at the Sports Arena prior to the incident.

The complaint filed by the district attorney's office is expected to be served March 3, 1968, when Montreal next comes to Los Angeles.

NHL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull made up for a two-game lapse Wednesday night to regain his goal-a-game scoring pace in the National Hockey League.

The Chicago Black Hawks right-winger scored three goals in the second period as the Hawks battered New York Rangers 7-1.

The goals gave him 18 in 18 games to go with his five assists for 23 points.

Chicago's Eric Nesterenko had almost as big a night, scoring two unassisted goals and assisting on a third for a three-point night, giving him 17 points on five goals and 12 assists.

Andy Bathgate of Pittsburgh got an assist in the Penguins 4-1 victory over Boston Bruins, to move into a tie right behind Hull with Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and Jean Ratelle of New York.

Howe didn't pick up a point for the third straight game as Detroit lost 4-2 to Philadelphia Flyers.

He has 19 points on 11 goals and eight assists compared with eight goals and 11 assists for Bathgate and five goals and 14 assists for Ratelle.

Epidemic Of Violence!

LONDON (Reuters) — British professional soccer is threatened by what could become the worst epidemic of violence in the history of the game.

The violence reached a peak Saturday when police arrested 44 fans after rowdy scenes during a game between the London teams Tottenham and Chelsea.

After the game rampaging fans went on an orgy of destruction, damaging local stores owned by Tottenham stars Dave McKay and Cliff Jones.

Violence is not confined to spectators. The association on Oct. 13 suspended 23 players for periods ranging from 14 to 21 days in a drive to stamp out rough play.

Two weeks later it suspended Manchester United captain Denis Law and Ian Ure of Arsenal for six weeks for brawling on the field. They were the longest suspensions imposed on league players for such an offence in 20 years.

Kings Pad AL Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took at least three goals to rate a big scoring night Hockey League Wednesday night.

Mike Labadie of Buffalo Bisons and rookie winger Don Marcotte of Hershey Bears turned the trick in leading their teams to victories.

In the third game, Bill Inglis scored twice as Springfield Kings piddled their Eastern Division lead with a 6-3 victory over Cleveland Barons.

First Touchdown Could Prove Big One For Clair's Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — During the regular season, Margene Adkins and Whit Tucker combined to catch 98 passes for a total of 2,135 yards and 17 touchdowns. Last Sunday against Hamilton Tiger-Cats, they were held scoreless, catching one for 17 yards.

The sudden disappearance of the biggest long-pass threat in the Eastern Football Conference has coach Frank Clair worried but he hopes to come up with a solution in time for Saturday's windup of the EFC playoffs in Hamilton.

Clair says a fast touchdown will all but eliminate the eight-point lead Hamilton took in the two-game total-point series with an 11-3 win here Sunday and he is counting on the two all-star receivers to play a big role in scoring the touchdown.

Both Tucker, a six-year veteran who has been EFC all-star at flanker for the last two years, and Adkins, a 29-year-old end in his first year with Riders, have great speed and throughout the season pass patterns that enabled one or the other to break free during a game.

But this didn't work against Hamilton. Both were closely watched and Tucker managed only one catch in the game.

Without these two receivers, quarterback Russ Jackson still has other prime targets for his passes but end Jay Roberts, halfback Ronnie Stewart and fullback Bo Scott are utilized primarily on short passes, not the long bombs Jackson uses to break open close games.

Adkins and Tucker accounted for more than 40 per cent of Ottawa's total offensive yardage this year, averaging almost 22 yards for each completed pass.

Aside from the passing attack, Clair also has some lineup juggling to do with two import halfbacks hampered by injuries.

Defensive halfback Don Sutherin, out with two broken ribs, is unlikely to dress Saturday and will be replaced by Larry DeGraw, a five-year veteran who lost his starting job last season.

But a replacement for Don Gilbert on offence will be more complicated if Gilbert's sore ankle does not improve. Clair probably will move rookie Wayne Giardino from his current linebacking post to offensive halfback and use veteran Jim Conroy at linebacker. Another possibility is the return to action of veteran Rick Black, a halfback-halfback on offence who has been sidelined with a shoulder injury since September.

Big Item; Could Be Coffey Boot!

HAMILTON (CP) — Normally, when football coaches go looking for an end, they're after someone about 6-2 and 200 pounds who can run the 100-yards in around 10 seconds.

When Hamilton Tiger-Cat coach Ralph Sazio went shopping last spring he was after an end who admits he isn't fast and is only about 5-10½ and 185 pounds.

But the trade that sent quarterback Frank Cosentino to Edmonton Eskimos in exchange for Tommy Joe Coffey could prove the most important of the season for Sazio as he heads his club into Saturday's final play-off game against Ottawa Rough Riders.

The 2 p.m. EST game, nationally televised by the CTV network, is the second of a two-game, total-point series for the right to enter the Grey Cup final against the western champions in Ottawa Dec. 2.

The Eastern Football Conference champion Ticats dropped Ottawa 11-3 in the opener Sunday in Ottawa.

Coffey started out as a basketball player at West Texas State. But ever since he moved to Canada and first joined Edmonton in 1959, he has developed into one of the Canadian Football League's most prolific scorers. He's a threat as a pass catcher and also as a place kicker.

In fact, the 30-year-old father of four—the East's nomination as the outstanding player in Canada this year and a unanimous EFC all-star—scored most of the Ticat points this season and booted a field goal and convert against Ottawa last week.

Hamilton scored 250 on the regular season, beating Ottawa for first place by a single point, with Coffey scoring 107 on five touchdowns, 29 converts, 18 field goals and three single.

Not tall and not fast, Coffey makes up for these deficiencies by out-thinking the defence and says his main asset is experience.

Minor Hockey

A full schedule of games was played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's tyke and midget divisions last night.

In the tyke games, Kings nipped Rangers in a 2-0 squeaker. B. White triggered the only goal and D. Cook chalked up the shutout.

Bruins also won with a shutout, 4-0 over the Peewgins, with Rivers in the goal. Goals were scored by M. Godier, R. Cousins, D. Arcobe and K. Coon. W. Lynch assisted on two, G. Lamb, M. Gavier and B. McKimmey on one each.

Monkitrick scored his team's final four goals as Mohawks whipped the Canadiens 8-1. Trnipeer, T. Root, Mills and Duffy were credited with earlier tallies. M. Phesor, Mills, Mail and Monkitrick were given assists. Pat McGovern scored in defeat with helpers for D. Jones and J. Murray.

Unassisted goals by R. Doornboon, J. Jianopoulos and A. Polsvert gave Hawks a 3-1 win over the Seals. D. Lyn from R. Lyck and P. Barrett was the Seals' scoring play.

Wings shaded the Barons 3-2. T. Thompson, M. MacDonald and C. Mertchew scored the winners goals with C. Thompson assisting on all three. Ellis on one. P. Muhal and V. Volkenburg were Barons' marksmen and assists went to P. Laidley and D. Wing.

Flyers defeated the Leafs, 3-1 on goals by J. Farrell, B. Bell and R. Suddard. T. Allen and T. Vateary had assists. S. McKeown was the Leafs' goal getter.

In the midget division, Bruins clipped Leafs 5-1 on the sparkling scoring effort of M. Semark. He scored all five Bruin goals. J. Carbert helped on two, G. Bellis, M. Thompson and B. Woodley on one each. P. Robert scored in defeat with G. Dalton helping.

Kilts Hawks topped the Rangers 5-3. D. Mitchell scored a pair, M. Stanley, T. Pope and D. Beecher-Rogers. J. Mackillian assisted on two, J. Drummond, A. Neil and B. Coding on the others. G. Garland notled a pair and G. Watson one for Rangers. M. Geegan and Hayman had helpers.

Wings trounced Canadiens 10-1 in the other midget game but names of point-getters were not available.

Sales Near Record!

TORONTO (CP) — Bradley Song, a yearling full brother to the $100,000-plus winner Danny Song A., was sold for $5,200 to Bruce Smith of Toronto during the first day of the Canadian Standardbred Horse Society mixed auctions Wednesday.

The long consignment from Earl Ash's Deshoro, Ont. farm, Bradley Song brought the second highest price for any individual trotter or parer sold at the annual sales, first held in 1963.

Total amount realized for the 111 head sold was $33,175, an average of $333. But officials expected Thursday's 100 head might bring the over-all average closer to last year's record of $703 for 139 sold.

Allan Waddell, acting on behalf of Gordon Gilbride of Toronto, paid today's second highest price, going to $3,600 to get Rhonda Rambo, a yearling colt out of Fred Robertson Hornby, Ont. group.

One called Edwood Dream, a son of Greentree Adios—Lady Knight, brought a successful bid of $3,000 from Moe Graif of Montreal. John Megens of Woodville, Ont. paid $2,800 for Vernia, a yearling daughter of Capetown-Goodwill Denise.

England Step Closer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The English World Cup soccer champions took a step nearer qualifying for the quarter-finals of the European Nations Cup Wednesday when they beat Northern Ireland 3-0 at Wembley Stadium.

England now needs only a draw with Scotland in February to qualify.

Scotland beat Wales 3-2 in Glasgow in another game Wednesday.

England was magnificent in mid-field and led 1-0 at half-time. But they lacked finishing power. Geoff Hurst scored the first goal after 43 minutes and Bobby Charlton netted the second in the 62nd minute, but the margin of victory should have been larger.

Selkirk Contract Extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Senators extended general manager George Selkirk's contract through 1970 Wednesday.

It was the third extension given Selkirk in his five years with the American League baseball club.

Selkirk pinned the Senators' pennant hopes to youth.

"I came convinced that the only way to be successful is to come along with young players," he said.

The Senators tied for sixth last season, their highest finish in recent years.

Leagues Discuss Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the American and National football leagues, reaffirmed Wednesday that regular season play between the leagues would begin in 1970, but that alignment of the leagues still is up in the air.

The owners of the 16 NFL teams and the 10 AFL clubs, including newly-franchised Cincinnati, meet in New York starting Tuesday in to approve formal agreements implementing the merger of the leagues.

Realignment is not on the agenda, Rozelle said, but he added that the owners are almost certain to talk about it informally.

Roughriders Nip Stampeders On Fourth-Quarter Field Goal

TERRY EVANSHEN

REGINA (CP) — Calgary's passing game riddled opposing defences all year. But Wednesday night quarterback Peter Li ke and his receivers were the i n s p i r e d Saskatchewan R o u g h r i d e r defence and a treacherous field that ate the Stampeders on the deficit side of an 11-9 score.

The Rider victory before 12,456 fans tied the best-of-three Western Football Conference final at a game each with the third game set for Calgary Sunday at 2 p.m. MST.

The Stampeder offence, which has been 70-per-cent pass all season, suffered a severe setback in the third quarter when sp lit end Terry E v a n s h e n stepped on a patch of ice, breaking his left leg just above the ankle.

It was the Lisko-to-Evanshen c o m b i n a t i o n that carried Stampeders to first place in the WFC standings this year and both received their just awards only last week. Lisko was named the outstanding player in Canadian football and Evanshen the outstanding Canadian for their record-breaking performances.

Winner of Sunday's game will go to the Grey Cup the following Saturday at Ottawa.

Jack Abendschan's f o u r t h quarter field goal provided the Riders with their winning margin. Shortly before his injury, Evanshen had put the Stampeders ahead with Calgary's only touchdown after the Riders had c.rried an 8-3 lead over from first half play.

Bill Goodrs, who had connected on a field goal in the first quarter—giving the Stampeders a 3-0 lead, saw his convert attempt blocked.

Al Ford's touchdown along with Abendschan's convert and a single on a missed field goal attempt, gave the Riders their half-time lead and set the stage for the Saskatchewan guard's 18-yard field goal early in the final period.

There was a good deal of concern for Evanshen's condition after he was carried from the field on a stretcher.

"Tell me it's not broken," he pleaded with a doctor in the dressing room. "Please tell me it's not broken."

Fullback George Reed, who led the strong R o u g h r i d e r ground attack, was scheduled to undergo x-rays of the lower rib cage today. Other than Reed, the Roughriders emerged from the game relatively healthy.

Defensive Rider h a l f b a c k Dale Weal had a fine first quarter. He knocked down an end zone pass from Lisko and then grabbed one of his two interceptions on his own three-yard line on the next play.

Later in the quarter, West snuffed out another Calgary push when a 21-yard pass bounced from Evanshen's hands into West's.

The icy surface of Taylor Field, made even more slippery by a day of slow freezing drizzle, was subjected to scurry every type of footwear.

"We couldn't decide on what to wear," said Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys after the game, "so the whole team pretty well went with their own idea of what would do the best job."

Ron A t c h i s o n played the whole game in a pair of light summer street shoes.

"I'll try anything," replied Atchison when asked about the shoes.

The field condition obviously hampered Lisko's deadly passing game. With his receivers slowed by the surface and unable to break fast against the Saskatchewan defence, Lisko completed 16 of 30 passes. But when he did complete one, the receiver was usually well covered.

Lisko's yards passing total was 259.

Ron Lancaster's totals were 228 yards, completing 16 of 25 attempts. Calgary rushed for 57 yards compared with the Riders 133.

Five plays after the Calgary touchdown, Evanshen was injured and Calgary's momentum wavered.

The Riders recovered a fumbled snap from Chuck Kickhoefer on Calgary's 45 and then moved up for the field goal by Abendschan.

Reinsman Sets Record, Wins 224

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Winning is getting to be a habit with Keith Waples of Victoria Harbor, Ont.

Wednesday night, the 45-year-old standardbred driver scored his 224th victory of 1967 to set a Canadian record. The old mark of 223 was set by Ron Feagan of Goderich, Ont., last year.

The big record-breaking victory Wednesday night was with Loyal Briton, a pacer Waples owns jointly with Jim Keeping of Owen Sound, Ont.

Waples, also a trainer, was voted 1962 Canadian Horseman of the Year. He was the Roosevelt International Trot with Tie Silk in 1962 and drove the first two-minute mile (1:59 3-5) with the pacer Mighty Dudley at Montreal's Richelieu Park in 1959.

Rexe Stars In Defeat!

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Sweden defeated the Canadian national hockey team 6-2 in the first round of an international exhibition series Wednesday.

The score was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period. Sweden scored two unanswered goals in the second and added three more to Canada's one in the third.

Hakan Nygren led the Swedes with two goals and Bjoern Palmqvist, Ronald Pettersson, Hans Lindberg and Turd Lundstroem had single scores.

For the Canadians, the marksmen were left winger Bob Berry and centre Denis Picard, both of Montreal.

Berry played junior hockey with Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association and intercollegiate hockey with Sir George Williams University.

Picard won the scoring title while playing junior hockey at Boucherville, Que.

The Canadians meet the Swedes again Friday at Gavle.

After Friday's match, the Canadians head for three games in East Germany and then a five-game tournament in Moscow.

Jack (Red) Bowman of Winnipeg, the Canadian coaching coach, said before the game his team lacked experience, and it showed.

Almost the whole game was played behind the Canadians' red line and 20-year-old goalie Steve Rexe, named most valuable player last year at Belleville in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior series, had a rough night.

However, Rexe was the best player on the ice and without him, the Canadians probably would have been defeated by another four or five goals.

NEW STERILIZATION PAY

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The Indian government, which recently dropped plans to introduce compulsory sterilization for all men with three or more children, now is working on a plan to increase the pay of government employees who are sterilized, Parliament was told Wednesday.

The Cowboys and Cardinals, coming off unsatisfying performances Sunday, dig in against each other in the Cotton Bowl, the Cowboys sniffing the Capital Division crown, the Cardinals with an eye on the Century championship.

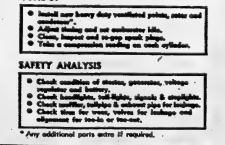
The game was one of four professional football games scheduled for the U.S. Thanksgiving Day.

Los Angeles Rams take on Detroit Lions in another NFL game while Oakland Raiders play at Kansas City Chiefs and Denver Broncos are at San Diego Chargers in American Football League action.

The Cowboys lead the Capital Division by two games despite a 37-0 upset loss in Washington Redskins last Sunday. The situation for the Cardinals is more pressing after a 30-3 defeat by Chicago Bears sent them one-half game behind Cleveland Browns in the Century Division.

The teams will be looking for a return to form by quarterbacks Don Meredith of Dallas and Jim Hart of the Cardinals. Meredith got the Cowboys only one score against Washington before Craig Morton relieved and pitched for two touchdowns. Hart, a sensation earlier in the season, got only a tie against Pittsburgh Steelers two weeks ago and had five passes intercepted by the Bears.

But the offences will be going against two stingy defences.



"Defence should decide the game," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "These guys (the Cardinals) can make an offence look awfully bad. And we're tough on defence, too."

That was the year they put the balance wheel into the watch and started watches ticking. Now the tick tock is obsolete. After 300 years, it's been replaced by the tiny Accutron® tuning fork which keeps time through vibration. The result: a very fast hum and the most precise wrist timepiece ever. Accutron guarantees monthly accuracy within 60 seconds.† We'd say this is the perfect gift of time.

Sherbrooke Beavers May Quit

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League Wednesday night asked for a 24-hour delay before deciding finally whether to drop out of the league or stick with it.

Len O'Donnell, QSHL president, said the delay was granted following a Wednesday night meeting of the club executive and that permission was granted executive members to attend a league meeting tonight in Granby.

O'Donnell said he thought Beavers' heads would "come up with some other explanations" at tonight's meeting as to their position in the league and why they have planned to drop out.

Camille Messara, Beavers' president, officially notified O'Donnell Tuesday the team was pulling out.

Tuesday Drummondville Eagles, defending Allan Cup champions and currently league leaders, decided to withdraw their earlier decision to pull out of the league.

Hiram Walker's Special Old Canadian Whisky is blended first, aged later. That's what makes it Special.

So special, in fact, that no one is allowed to enter our blending room except the handful of people who belong. After all, there's a whisky being born in there.

Because a whisky is born when it's blended. (Most whiskies are blended just before they're bottled. Like maybe last week.)

But Walker's Special Old was blended long ago. The very day that its ingredient whiskies were distilled. They were carefully and painstakingly combined. Preblended. To reach that elusive point of perfection that creates Walker's Special Old. Only then were they sealed in white oak casks. To age and mellow. Together. The result is incomparable bouquet, flavour, and character.

Our people take the longer, more difficult route to make Walker's Special Old. Because how else could we call it Special?

Complaints Renewed About Imbalance In Representation on UN Secretariat

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The current debate on the geographic and linguistic balance among the higher grades of UN secretariat employees has revived long-held complaints by some areas that they are poorly represented.

The fact is that many countries are under-represented—notably the Soviet Union and the newer African countries—but there is wide disagreement as to how the problem should be tackled.

Part of the problem was built in when the UN was organized 22 years ago and most of the secretariat staff was drawn from the original 51 member countries. This gave them a head start which prevails today.

Of the close to 4,000 UN employees, including maintenance people, elevator operators, secretaries and translators and interpreters, the current controversy centres only around the 1,780 top people—including Secretary-General U Thant, undersecretaries, directors and professionals.

The aim has been to divide up the jobs among the 122 member countries on the basis of their financial contributions, their populations and geographic locations. But in practice, a larger proportion of employees has been drawn from the highly-developed countries with a surplus of well-educated candidates.

Even the smallest country, upon gaining membership, is entitled to from one to five jobs in the secretariat. Many do not even fill this minimum allowance.

The case of the Soviet Union is special in that it shuns "career" or long-term contracts for its nationals and usually will permit them to accept only the limited appointments.

The suggested "ranges" for Soviet employees is between 121 and 191 persons but in fact only 102 Russians are on the staff. Britain, with a suggested range of 61-92, has 135 persons on staff.

Canada is just about where she should be, having a range of between 30 and 41 employees and 36 persons actually on staff. However, there are no Canadians among the highest grades of undersecretary or directors; most of them are among the professionals.

The problem of bringing wider linguistic balance to the staff is even greater. English, French and Spanish are the official "working" languages of the General Assembly in which all documents, reports and speeches are published. Verbal translations of speeches in Russian and Chinese also are made in the assembly.

But despite efforts, English is becoming more and more commonly used and many delegates have complained that documents in French and Spanish do not appear until long after the English version is out.

Several countries, notably Italy, have criticized Thant, who speaks only Burmese and English—for lack of progress in bringing about greater linguistic balance but others argue that this cannot be done swiftly without upsetting the efficiency of the secretariat.

Thirty-five countries, including Canada, have proposed the early introduction of an accelerated language instruction program and language bonuses for staff.

Many French- and Spanish-speaking delegates suggest that UN executives in their native languages of the UN they should in place there are official working languages instead of in English, which usually is used.

Fear Is Voiced Bill Will Halt LSD Study

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern over the fate of research into uses of the drug LSD was voiced Wednesday in the Senate banking committee.

Senators considering a government bill to make LSD lysergic acid diethylamide—a controlled drug for use only in clinical and laboratory use also were warned that the proposed law is not enforcable.

Committee Chairman Senator Salter Hayden (L.—Ontario) said there is no intention to curtail research into the drug. The bill created offences for possession, trafficking and promoting of the so-called "mind-expanding drug."

Myron M. Arons, chairman of the department of psychology at Prince of Wales College in Charlottetown, said similar legislation passed in the U.S. failed to stop the distribution of LSD among students but had the unintended effect of curtailing supplies to researchers.

Despite newspaper publicity, he said, there are no known "irreversible psychological or physiological effects from use of the drug."

Under supervised conditions, the drug is relatively harmless, he added.

Alberta Welfare Minister Gives Evidence at Inquiry

EDMONTON (CP) — Welfare Minister A. J. Hooks took the stand for the first time at a judicial inquiry Wednesday and testified that his wife leased building space to the Alberta government in 1960 only at the urging of the late William Aberhart, then premier.

It was the 40th day of hearings into allegations that Mr. Hooks and E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer, used or attempted to use their public offices for personal gain. The allegations were made in the last session of the legislature by Garth Turcott, then New Democratic Party member for Pincher Creek-Crowsnest.

Mr. Hooks told the inquiry the Alberta government in 1940 was about to close its treasury branch in Rocky Mountain House unless suitable quarters could be found for it.

He said the superintendent of treasury branches and the superintendent of buildings told him a building owned by his wife Helena would suit the branch. Mr. Hooks had objected on the grounds that the space already was spoken for and that he was an MLA.

A week or two later, Premier Aberhart asked to see him and said there would be nothing wrong with a lease between the treasury branches and Mrs. Hooks.

Mr. Hooks testified he agreed on condition the rental would be less than the usual rate.

Earlier testimony indicated the branch continued to lease the building from Mrs. Hooks until she sold it in 1947.

Rusk's 'Yellow Peril' Spectre Goads McCarthy Into Revolt

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Eugene Joseph McCarthy's plan to tackle President Johnson for the Democratic party nomination is one symptom of the U.S. political malaise.

McCarthy, 51, is shaping himself as a symbol for the dissent among those disenchanted with President Johnson. Vietnam is a central problem but there are many domestic ones, too.

The tall, handsome and moderate man from Minnesota seems to regard as far-fetched any hope he actually will defeat the president.

"There comes a time when an honorable man simply has to raise the flag," McCarthy has said. Why now?

One reliable report says McCarthy made up his mind to go after the presidential nomination after State Secretary Dean Rusk's press conference last month in which he raised the spectre of a "billion Chinese on the mainland armed with nuclear weapons" in a decade or two.

McCarthy was among those accusing Rusk of raising another cry of "yellow peril."

In 13 years in Congress McCarthy certainly has learned the system and made a mark.

But if he is a kindred mark, utterly non-conventional. It has masked any lofty ambitions McCarthy may have behind wit, erudition, civilized charm, detachment, warm family ties and the production of four books dealing primarily with foreign affairs.

In 1964, when President Johnson sought to inject some sense into his own cut-and-dried nomination, he let it be known that McCarthy was a possible vice-presidential choice.

Then he picked Humphrey as expected. Some, and these might include the president himself, believe McCarthy is spurred now by resentment in what he is doing.

McCarthy is a Roman Catholic, a former school teacher, economics professor at a small Minnesota college, wartime civilian military intelligence worker, a staunch liberal and the father of three girls and a boy, oldest, 19, youngest 12.

Intimates say McCarthy's decision also owes something to the dissent he sees growing daily in the U.S. as interpreted by his own youngsters.

He has been less vocal about the war than such Senate foreign relations committee colleagues as Chairman J. W. Fulbright or Wayne Morse.

He doesn't like the way the president appeals to national unity because more than 475,000 troops are in Vietnam.

Early next month McCarthy is expected to announce plans to go after the presidential nomination in the primaries starting in New Hampshire next March. Wisconsin, Massachusetts and California are other possibilities.

French Language Issue

Trudeau Blasts Manning...or Bennett

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau told the Senate banking committee Wednesday it is incorrect for any provincial premier to say the French language will never be on an equal footing in his province.

It already is in law, the justice minister said.

"If our policies are realized, we will have the French language on an equal basis in his province."

Mr. Trudeau said that Canada is a bilingual country and that the French language can be used to argue cases in federal courts in all provinces.

Mr. Trudeau said outside the committee room he was not necessarily referring to statements made in a letter to Prime Minister Pearson by Alberta's Premier Manning in connection with the January federal - provincial conference.

"I might have been referring to Manning or (B.C. Premier) Bennett," Mr. Trudeau told a reporter.

Mr. Manning's letter said his government feels no attempt should be made to give official status to the French language outside Quebec.

"He's wrong from the word go on that," said Mr. Trudeau in the interview. The French language was an official one in Parliament and in all federal courts and federal laws.

At his request, Mr. Bennett's letter to Mr. Pearson on the conference is being kept confidential.

Mr. Trudeau appeared before the committee as it considered a government measure under which status of Canada would be printed in both French and English and statutes of each session of Parliament would be bound in one volume if practicable and convenient.

Quebec Wants to 'Have A Say' in CBC Operation; Johnson Outlines View

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Wednesday he is sending a letter to Prime Minister Pearson outlining the role Quebec is seeking in operation of the French - language section of the CBC.

The premier held a press conference the letter outlines in detail the Quebec government's objections to the new federal bill on broadcasting.

He said Quebec wants to "have a say" in the operation of the network.

At St. Johns, Que., Mr. Johnson attacked the broadcasting bill last Saturday as bordering on Fascism and said Quebec wants to control the French section of the CBC.

He objected to the part of the bill which says the CBC should contribute to the development of national unity.

At the press conference Wednesday, Mr. Johnson said unity in the past has been made on the back of or at the expense of Quebec."

He said his remarks on the broadcasting bill Saturday had been misinterpreted by some who considered them to show a "lack of patriotism."

He would not have the same objection if the bill had spoken of "solidarity" instead of "national unity."

"What does national unity mean? Who is going to determine the content, and how?" the premier asked.

He criticized the bill's mention of educational broadcasting, saying education is under provincial jurisdiction and when a federal government enters the field "that starts to get serious."

Woman Campaigns for $9,000 For Dr. Murray's Research

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto woman is basking for 18 persons to match $500 she had her husband will give to Dr. Gordon Murray for support of his research into the spinal cord.

Dr. Murray, 73-year-old Toronto surgeon, believes he has developed a surgical technique which will successfully rejoin the spinal cord so patients can regain the use of paralyzed limbs.

He has said he is seeking $10,000 from the Canadian Paraplegic Association to continue his studies.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Most individuals, when bargaining for a parcel of investment real estate, concentrate primary attention on price. Actually, the terms under which the purchase is made are more important.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have always been fascinated by your theory that, "terms are more important than price." I've just completed my first deal using this approach. Let me give you the details.

A commercial property was being offered for $218,000 with $35,000 cash required. I counteroffered the owner $230,000, provided he would take back a $40,000 second mortgage. I then secured a first mortgage of $90,000. Result: I bought the property without cash and the owner received much more than he ever expected. We are both happy! — Mr. G. D.

ANSWER: I've always preached that the objective of real estate investment is to maximize income while minimizing the cash investment.

My second rule, and the above illustrates it, is that if one has to choose between the percentage investment return and the cash down payment, then the latter becomes more important. It leads to the conclusion that any piece of real estate you can buy without cash is a good buy, no matter what the price, provided the income is at least enough to meet operating expenses and mortgage payments. Many who have made fortunes in real estate have followed this truism.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My sidewalk and driveway are sinking so fast that they are about to disappear from view. My builder agrees that something should be done.

However, right now his main interest is building and selling the rest of the homes in the development. He promises that when he is finished he will come back to my problem. At the rate he is now building, this will take more than one year. Do you advise me to wait? — Mr. S. T.

ANSWER: I smell trouble. My instinct tells me that your builder is only putting you off. After he is finished, he will probably be gone so far and thoroughly that you and your neighbors will never find him. I know of many similar situations. My recommendation is for you and your neighbors to band together now and quickly obtain the services of an attorney.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm a teenager with a special problem. My 20-year-old brother opens my mail and broadcasts its contents all over the neighborhood.

I want privacy. My parents are no help for they think his actions are cute. Is there any solution besides having this pre-teen-age delinquent arrested? — M.

ANSWER: The Post Office Department is usually very anxious to give me the necessary information, but they backed off this time. They also evidently think your 10-year-old brother is cute. The best I could get out of them was for you to install your own locked mailbox. They will accommodate you to that extent.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: All my girl friends, when furnishing their homes, chose furniture of Modern design. I chose Colonial. They say I'm out of step. Am I? — M. A.

ANSWER: Early American and Colonial are the most popular styles — they account for about one-third of all furniture sold. They are followed by Modern, Italian, Spanish and French, in that order.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My architectural guidebook says, "For greatest beauty and grace, a house should appear to be growing out of the ground." Now that I have the privilege of supervising my sister's house, this is just what I intend to do.

To achieve this effect I ordered the contractor to bring the wood siding down to the ground so that the house would appear to an extension of the ground. Instead, the carpenters mumbled something under their breaths about stupid women, threw down their tools and left. They haven't been back since.

What did I do that was so terrible, or is the reason because men cannot stand a beautiful house, if it is designed by a woman? — Mrs. F. P.

ANSWER: I'm sure your house, as an extension of the ground, is both graceful and beautiful. This, however, is not what upset the carpenters. Since their apprentice days, it has been drilled into them that wood siding should never be brought closer than 9 inches to the ground. Otherwise, one is inviting termite trouble. Bringing the siding down to the ground almost guarantees that the house will become infected with termites.

Liberal Maverick Ralph Cowan Blocks Vote on Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to limit capital punishment for a five-year trial period failed to come to a vote Wednesday despite predictions that the sixth day of debate on the measure would be the last.

A vote looked possible late in the sitting but Liberal maverick Ralph Cowan (Yorkton-Melville) refused to give the required unanimous consent.

The debate was adjourned last Thursday following a speech by Prime Minister Pearson supporting the bill, which would eliminate capital punishment for murder except in the killing of policemen and prison guards. It resumed Wednesday with several MPs condemning the measure and calling on the government to withdraw it.

Heath Macquarrie PC — Queens) said there was no need for Solicitor-General Favreau to bring the measure before the House because the same Parliament had rejected abolition only 18 months ago. He would not vote for the measure but might abstain.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) and Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton South) both spoke against the bill.

Mr. McCleave said he would favor it only when the government started to show concern for the victims of murderers.

Mr. MacInnis accused the government of obstruction by pressuring the bill when the Commons should be considering more important matters, such as the announced intention of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. to close its steel operations at Sydney, N.S.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette sôjanced the same argument, saying if there were a vote, he would oppose the bill.

Jack Horner (PC—Acadia) said he also opposed the bill, and added that he had doubts the government would follow the law even if the legislation were rejected.

There has not been an execution for murder in Canada since the cabinet began commuting death sentences five years ago. Mr. Horner rejected Mr. Pearson's claim that there would be a vote on Mr. Pennell's bill free of party discipline.

"I didn't believe him then and I don't believe him now," said Mr. Horner, claiming there was pressure on MPs to support the measure.

Crime is becoming more widespread than ever before, Mr. Horner said. The possibility of hanging was needed as a deterrent to murderers "only as long as it is carried out."

Mr. Caouette said that despite the decision of Parliament already on capital punishment, the government had continued to order commutations.

"Any Canadian, whoever he be, has the right to the same protection as policemen and prison guards," he said. That was "plain elementary justice."

During Wednesday's question period, External Affairs Minister Martin and Defence Minister Cadieux faced a barrage of opposition questions on the war threat in Cyprus.

Mr. Martin said Canada has lodged a protest with Turkish leaders in Ottawa on the manhandling of three Canadian soldiers Monday.

Mr. Cadieux said the men had not been seriously hurt and a defence department spokesman said later they are back on duty.

The external affairs minister said Canada and two other countries, which he did not identify, have put forward proposals which now are being discussed by Greece and Turkey. He did not say what the proposals are.

In the Senate, meanwhile, Edgar Fournier PC—(New Brunswick) called for a Senate-Commons investigation of the CBC from "cellar to attic."

He said he believes the CBC has served its original purpose, and that the time has arrived to transfer it to private industries that "which have proven to us that they can do the job as well, if not better, and at very little or no cost to the taxpayers."

Centennial Programs May Remain

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's centennial party will be over next month, but the national centennial commission does not want to blow out all the candles.

At a press conference Wednesday following the commission's last official meeting, Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh and centennial commissioner John Fisher said members feel many of the programs launched during Canada's 100th birthday should be carried on.

Miss LaMarsh said the federal government will be sounded out on how much support it would give toward continuing some of the projects, notably the community improvement and youth travel programs.

She said a new program to be called the Help the Child program will be started soon.

Miss LaMarsh said about 40,000 Canadian youths were involved in the youth travel program this year and she hopes it can be continued on a reduced scale.

She hoped the professional performing arts groups can be continued if financial help can be arranged.

Help for the community improvement program will be sought from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and provincial municipal affairs departments.

Miss LaMarsh said the possibility of continuing the centennial caravan will be explored, but "there doesn't seem to be any disposition to keeping the centennial train going."

Off to Explain Devaluation

Woman Awarded Medal

OTTAWA (CP) — A 63-year-old House of Commons charwoman received informal congratulations today from John Diefenbaker, former opposition leader, when he learned she had been awarded the Centennial Medal.

Mrs. Marie Callahan, a Centre Block employee for 27 years, was one of 39,000 Canadians awarded the medal "in recognition of valuable service to the nation."

A grandmother, Mrs. Callahan said her family and friends were "very excited" about the award which she was astonished to get in the mail today.

The "lovely medal" came as a reward for 27 years' perfect service, she said. She took it to work Monday and wore it all morning after a friend pinned it on her "although I think it's supposed to be for ceremonial occasions."

Mrs. Callahan, who goes to work at 5 a.m. to change towels for the members and their secretaries, began the work after her husband died when her daughter was small. The hours left her free to care for her child most of the day.

She frequently meets MPs on her rounds, but doesn't know all of their names. The ones who learned about the medal have been "really thrilled," however.

Ontario French Leaders Opposed to Separatism

TORONTO (CP) — Leaders of Ontario's 650,000 French-speaking residents say most are opposed to separatism and dedicated to preserving their language and Gallic culture.

In a series of interviews with The Globe and Mail, the leaders say a French-speaking culture can only be preserved by keeping Quebec in Canada. Otherwise, they fear, they may be assimilated in a new English Canada.

"We follow the separatism movement with a certain degree of alarm, but alarm tempered by sympathy," said Conrad Lavigne, president of a French radio station and an English television outlet in Timmins.

Other members of the Franco-Ontario community put high hopes in the Confederation of Tomorrow Conference of provincial premiers which opens here next week. Many leaders say the conference is a major step towards preservation of Confederation.

The Franco-Ontario community makes up a tenth of the province's population and nearly half of the French-Canadian population outside Quebec.

French is the first tongue for nearly 75 per cent of the Ontario community and more than 85 per cent are bilingual. Their leaders see themselves as the new breed of true Canadians—bilingual and unbiased.

Roger Sequin, president of the French Education Association of Ontario (L'Association Canadienne-Francaise d'Education d'Ontario), said:

"Those I have talked to are much in favor of the Confederation conference. I think that Premier Robarts is one of the people in Canada who can save Confederation."

Father Aurien Matte of the bilingual University of Sudbury says the 65,000 Sudbury area residents of French origin—39 per cent of the population—are violently opposed to separatism.

NDP Leader Rejects Proposal

HAMILTON (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, has rejected as "fatuous" a proposal that every province in Canada enjoy a special status in a reworked confederation.

The proposal has been listed as an option for Canada in background papers prepared for the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto Nov. 27-30 by the federal-provincial affairs secretariat of the provincial chief economist.

Green Soap Cures Sour-smelling Hair

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter, 9, has had a problem of "sour" smelling hair grow sour after since she was six or seven. I wash her hair at least twice a week, put the day after a shampoo the hair gets this odor. Even in their odor shampoos. Is there any reason? I am at my wits end. — Mrs. J.S.

The sour smell is probably due to bacterial breakdown of oils in the scalp. Try tincture of green soap as a shampoo, which may solve the problem because alcohol in this soap is both antiseptic (thus destroying bacteria) and effective in removing oils from the hair shafts.

If that doesn't do the trick, consult a dermatologist to make sure that she does not have a scalp infection.

* * * *

Dear Doctor: There seems to be a new idea in shampooing with green soap for a shampoo once a week or so. Isn't this too drastic? One person using it complains, "My hair is so soft I can't do a thing with it."

Also, my daughter gets more and more dandruff in spite of using products supposed to cure it. In my day, we were told to use a gentle scalp and a lemon juice rinse. — E.M.

I may not keep up on all the fashions in how to wash heads but I assure you that the use of tincture of green soap is not new. I've used it myself for years. It is true that it leaves the hair soft and a bit unruly, because it removes oil from the hair shafts, but a bit of one of the hair - tamers makes it stay in place.

Many a mild case of dandruff yields to one of the anti-dandruff shampoos (or to tincture of green soap), but because different bacteria may be at work in different cases, if a fair trial doesn't succeed, my suggestion is to see a dermatologist.

* * * *

For, after all, dandruff is a flaking of dried particles of skin which appear because of some skin disorder or a dry scalp. Some mildly antiseptic shampoo often will stop the trouble, but remember that "dandruff" isn't just one specific disorder. It can result from a number of disorders, which is why I suggest a specialist's guidance if a reasonable trial with shampoos does not bring results.

* * * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you please write a column for teen-agers on acne or pimples. I am 13 and my face is beginning to break out. Do weight and diet play a part? I am overweight but don't eat chips or soft drinks like a lot of my friends. — M.J.

Diet sometimes has some bearing on acne, but not always. Getting that correct skin care is usually more important — but not everybody seems to have that "correct" skin care stress.

I suggest that you write for a copy of my booklet "Acne — the Teen-ags Problem." Send 30 cents in coin and a big, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Molner care of your newspaper for a copy.

* * * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any significance in the presence of blood in a nocturnal seminal emission. I am 19 and this has occurred twice in six months. — B.C.

Ordinarily not, but it warrants a medical checkup of the prostate and urinary tract to make certain that no disease is present; in short, it can happen, but it's best to play safe and have an examination.

* * * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Would like to know the name of the pills you call stool softeners. — Mrs. L.C.

There must be a score of them under various names. Not all in pill form. Your druggist can give you the trade names, but it would be better to ask your doctor to recommend the kind that would be best for your particular needs.

Government to Build Campbellford Offices

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Council gave approval to the Canada Department of Public Works selection of a site on the corner of Dornen and Bridge St. E. for erection of a new post office, Veterans' Land Act office and Unemployment Insurance office.

A government spokesman said work on three two storey buildings on the site will probably begin early in 1968. The site was recently occupied by a farm equipment sales and service business and a small garage.

Jack Sumner, Elmira, has been hired as Community manager and recreation director. The Community Centre Board will pay $4,000 of his salary and Council $3,200 Ics making at the arena will begin immediately and the official opening will be arranged soon.

In order to hold the option on site of the proposed new Islander Lodge, $2,000 derived from the sale of town properties will be used to help install a water main to the site. The Islander Lodge is a proposed new $300,000 hotel and motel on Front Dr..

Ontario Water Resources informed Town Council by letter this week that engineering agreements are now being studied for building of the sewage disposal plant, at an estimated cost of $962,000. Tenders may be called for in late summer 1968.

Theatre Controversy in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A production on grounds that the theatre was not ready.

The performance, scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m. began at 11:20 without the author and director who sat in a downstairs office where they had been escorted by burly ushers.

Earlier in the evening, as crowds began pouring into the foyer to see the controversial play, Mr. Nestor was in the upstairs theatre where he had decided to put his troupe through its dress rehearsal.

Later, in an interview, Mr. Langsland said the troupe had signed on under a touring contract and therefore did not have the right to demand a dress rehearsal prior to the performance.

Asked if the theatre had in fact been readied in time, he replied that he was "satisfied with the situation" at 5 p.m. Wednesday and that the play could have begun by 9 p.m. at the latest.

The theatre is the only completed part of the multi-faceted cultural centre, located in the former home of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Mr. Langsland said he thought Mr. Herbert's "temperamental crisis" was a result of a statement in a Montreal newspaper referring to the planned opening of the centre as a "mini-opening."

"The journalist was not referring to the play but to the press conference we held Tuesday," he added.

Mr. Langsland also said that Mr. Nestor "bit me when I told him not to speak to the actors."

The incident had occurred at 8 p.m., about the time the "dress rehearsal" began.

Mr. Herbert told reporters and workers the whole situation was "indicative of a lack of respect."

He said he is "translating my play into French and it will never be played in Montreal."

Both author and director left the centre while their play went on before a full house of 325 spectators.

The crowd happily spent the three-hour wait prior to the performance in the black and white foyer of the centre where they sipped drinks on the house.

Mr. Herbert's play deals with the problem of homosexuality in penal institutions.

It has had runs from an off-Broadway theatre where it enjoyed a nine-month success.

Sinatra and Mia Farrow Split

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A trial separation has been mutually agreed upon."

The bare announcement signalled a rift in the 18-month marriage of Frank Sinatra, 51, and Mia Farrow, 22, and touched off speculation over reasons for the break.

The news was released Wednesday by James Mahoney, publicity agent for the two stars. He said neither of the Sinatras had comment.

The twice-divorced Sinatra married the young star of television's Peyton Place July 19, 1966, in Las Vegas, Nev. Their jobs often kept them apart, as she made a film in England with Lawrence Harvey and he continued his far-flung activities in the show world.

But the pair appeared to be in accord during the times they were together. A few weeks ago she was much in evidence as the singer taped his latest television special.

Earlier this week, the Sinatras held a small farewell party for Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton who visited here briefly.

Friends indicated problems between Sinatra and his young wife were aggravated by troubles concerning their current films. Miss Farrow has been starring in Rosemary's Baby, and the film, directed by Polish Roman Polanski, lagged behind schedule. She had been due to join her husband in filming New York locations of The Detective.

Sinatra, who likes to make his films rapidly, became irritated because his wife was unable to join him in New York. Angry telephone calls were reported between Sinatra and officials of Paramount Pictures, which is producing Rosemary's Baby.

Bitter Mouth Spoils Makeup

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

It is curious that a woman will spend hundreds of dollars on her make-up, her hair, her clothes, her accessories, and go to some important public function with a bitter and resentful twist to her mouth that utterly negates the whole effect she is so expensively trying to create.

Most families are incapable of training a puppy properly, with the right amount of patience and the correct balance between encouragement and admission; so why is it imagined they can train a child properly?

Cypriots Demand Union with Greece

Cyprus Orders Mobilization

U. S. Evacuates Wives, Children

NICOSIA (AP) — The Cyprus government today began a general mobilization and advised reserve officers of the national guard to prepare for active duty.

The mobilization came as tension reached new heights throughout the island after Turkey rejected Greece's offer to open negotiations on the crisis.

Reserve officers of the 10,000-member national guard were told to report for orders and equipment.

The national guard is led by Greek Army officers.

Meanwhile U.S. presidential envoy, Cyrus R. Vance sought in Athens today to head off a Greek-Turkish war over Cyprus. The two NATO members continued military preparations.

The tense situation caused the U.S. embassy in Nicosia to order the evacuation to Beirut, Lebanon, of 400 American wives and children from Cyprus. The state department advised American travellers to stay away from Cyprus, Greece or Turkey, and the Canadian government issued the same warning to its citizens.

Canada has a major stake in the crisis since its forces form about 30 per cent of the 4,400-man UN peacekeeping group in Cyprus, and the whole idea of peacekeeping was a Canadian one in the first place.

Primarily, the Canadians are said to feel that before any real settlement can be reached, there must be some kind of reduction in the thousands of Greek and Turkish troops that have been sent to Cyprus in recent years — far above the minimal amount allowed under the Zurich agreements of 1959 that granted Cyprus its independence from Britain.

MPs Parasites Like Insurance Sellers - - NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — Selling insurance is among the unproductive activities of life, a member of Parliament said Thursday night.

Bud Germa (NDP-Sudbury) immediately added MPs to the unproductive body during a Commons debate.

"Just six months ago I joined the parasitic side and I sit here tonight feeding on the people down in the mines," Mr. Germa, elected earlier this year, said.

He added that "the main reason I came here was to help those people who are carrying the load."

Mr. Germa, Nordo Martin (NDP-Timmins) and Tom Barnett (NDP - Comox - Alberni) had described insurance companies as parasites and leeches responsible for inflation.

Mr. Germa said that selling insurance isn't dressing wreath boil using it up.

The NDP members blocked second reading of a bill to give federal incorporation to Aetna Casualty Co. of Canada.

Canada Is Active

OTTAWA (CP) —Canada is attempting to clarify the positions of Greece and Turkey to one another so that there will be no misunderstanding which could lead to a catastrophe over Cyprus, Acting Prime Minister Martin said Thursday in the Commons.

He said Canadian consultations in Athens and Ankara have not yet turned up any agreement between Greece and Turkey but the discussions are continuing.

Reports from the two countries are that Turkey wants Greece to remove its troops from Cyprus before any face-to-face negotiations but that Greece regards this condition as a military threat.

Torture Charged

LONDON (Reuters) — A British lawyer recently returned from Greece today accused Greek police of systematically torturing political prisoners to extract confessions from them.

Cedric Thornberry, in a half-page article in The Guardian, said Greek police used beating, mock executions and electric shock treatment on political prisoners.

He said he knew of one woman student who was stripped naked and beaten by police until her arms and legs were black and blue.

Another woman was stripped and all the hairs on her head and body pulled one by one.

'Gigantic' Sales Of Gold Continue

LONDON (CP-AP) — The gold rush on the London bullion market continued today for the third straight day with orders pouring in and dealers reporting a "gigantic turnover."

The price remained unchanged as the United States and its partners in the international gold pool continued to provide the metal to meet the demand. But the run on gold, which developed after Britain devalued the pound by 14.3 per cent, raised threats to the U.S. dollar.

Dealers said the turnover in the first hour of selling today indicated that a record would be set, topping Thursday's record when between 100 and 120 tons, valued at $112,000,000 to $134,-000,000 changed hands.

Gold stocks also were strong on the London Stock Exchange, but industrial shares continued the big decline that set in with wide profit-taking Thursday.

Within half an hour of this opening, The Financial Times index of 30 industrials had plunged below the 400 level for the first time in weeks. At 399.3 it was down 3.8 on Thursday's closing, itself down 17.5 points on Wednesday's close, the biggest slump in five years.

British government bonds were steady however.

Record gold sales were reported Thursday in the London, Paris and Zurich markets.

The French government let the word out it would resume trading dollars for gold, which it stopped in October, 1965, because it was running short of dollars.

The United States is committed to buying or selling gold at $35 an ounce in dealing with foreign national banks.

If a scarcity in the U.S. gold supply forces the price up, the value of the dollar, backed by gold, has declined.

The important bullion dealer commented: "Even the American gold hoard cannot hold out against this sort of demand."

But British experts said the U.S. has several ways to defend the dollar.

The United States so far has had the help of seven other nations in a gold pool now digging into its reserves to satisfy the new demand.

The pool was founded to stabilize the price of gold—and the value of currencies pegged to it —by buying or selling whatever was needed to satisfy the market. At least half the gold going through the pool to the anxious buyers comes from the U.S. repository at Fort Knox, Ky.

The gold rush was expedited by the French announcement Monday that France had quit the pool in June and the obviously calculated leak of word that President de Gaulle was preparing to demand U.S. gold for France's dollar holdings.

The countries that formed the pool were Belgium, France, Italy, The Netherlands, Switzerland, West Germany, Britain and the U.S.

Both Belgium and Italy were reported on the brink of leaving the pool despite denials in both Brussels and Rome.

British government officials and financial experts, already angered by de Gaulle's maneuvering to keep Britain out of the Common Market, made no secret of their belief that the assault on gold was part of a de-

RUN IS THREAT

ZURICH (Reuters) — The five major Swiss banks today agreed to suspend all forward or "short" sales of gold until further notice to avoid speculative speculation, banking sources said here.

Forward sales are made by speculators who do not actually possess gold, but promise to deliver it at an agreed date—say one, two or three months from now.

The ban cuts both ways. Equally important are short purchases by speculators.

Sex Education Linked To VD and Illegitimacy

By HARRY MULHALL

TWEED — Those who bolly clamor for sex education in schools should cool it until they are aware of all the possible social side effects, a high school board chairman warned here last night.

"We should take a real close look at this," cautioned Ted Courneyea, chairman of the Tweed-Hungerford High School area as he reported to the Tweed municipal nominations meeting here.

Mr. Courneyea noted that Sweden, perhaps the most free-thinking nation in the world on the subject of sex, taught every aspect of the topic in its schools.

"With all their modern techniques it hasn't proven out," he warned.

Sweden not only has the highest suicide rate in the world, said Mr. Courneyea, it also has the highest rates of venereal disease and illegitimate births — both concentrated in the mid-teen age group.

"I'm not one to stand in the way of education — but I think it's our responsibility to make certain this type of thing doesn't reach our schools," warned Mr. Courneyea.

Later, Mr. Courneyea said there was a "reasonable point" to which sex education could be taught in schools, probably matters of hygiene.

However, sex should be taught in the home, he argued.

"That's the place it should be done."

Escalation Impossible, Nothing Left to Bomb

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Australian journalist Wilfred Burchett said in a letter made public Thursday night that "all industries and virtually all power stations" in North Vietnam and a third of Hanoi's residential, commercial and industrial sections had been destroyed by U.S. bombing.

Burchett, who often reports for Communist newspapers from Communist countries, wrote the letter from Phnom Penh, Cambodia, Oct. 27, to Richard Hughes, editor of the New York monthly magazine War-Peace Report, who released it to UN correspondents and others.

In a Sept. 15 letter to Burchett on how to get peace in Vietnam, Hughes said Greek police used beating, mock executions and electric shock treatment on political prisoners.

He said he knew of one woman student who was stripped naked and beaten by police until her arms and legs were black and blue.

Another woman was stripped and all the hairs on her head and body pulled one by one.

ing this theory. He asked: "What has Johnson left to bomb between now and after summer when he sharply escalate the war as the election approaches?"

"An invasion of the North? War with China? Would these really be vote-catching moves?"

Burchett added that if more troops were put in than North Vietnam could handle "there is no doubt at all that China would intervene."

"I was assured at the very highest level during my latest visit to Hanoi—from Oct. 9 to 17—that, and I quote exactly from my notes: 'China is ready to intervene at any moment.'"

All Activity Is Halted On Montreal Waterfront

MONTREAL (CP) — There was no evidence of activity today along Montreal's 11-mile waterfront, shut down after two weeks of simmering disagreement between longshoremen and the Shipping Federation of Canada.

A handful of longshoremen turned up at the hiring hall early today but no loading and unloading gangs were at work on wharves piled high with all kinds of merchandise and baggage.

More than 2,500 members of the International Longshoremen's Association were affected by the stoppage. About 30 ships are in the port, unable to clear cargoes.

Passengers from the Cunard liner Carmania had to carry their own luggage ashore Thursday. Large cargo items stayed on the ship to be returned to Southampton if they cannot be taken off.

A group of 18 passengers recruited legal aid in attempts to prevent the liner from sailing back to Southampton today with their automobiles and other heavy baggage.

Most of the passengers are Canadians returning to this country. When they offered Thursday to unload their cargo themselves, they were told by a Cunard official they could not go into the hold.

A group spokesman said they hope to obtain a legal order restraining the Carmania in Montreal.

Meanwhile, J. M. McAvity, president of the Maritime Export Association, called the situation a "national emergency affecting Canada's current and potential export position.

The Quebec Apple Growers' Co-operative Inc. stands to lose $500,000 if about 100,000 bushels of apples currently piled up in packing houses are not shipped out. Most of the apples are destined for Britain.

The federal government has refused to intervene to settle the dispute which came to a head Wednesday with the firing of 1,000 longshoremen.

The dispute between the ILA and the shipping federation centres on interpretation of a royal commission report on waterfront conditions in the ports of Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City.

Recommendations contained in the report recently became binding on both the ILA and the shipping federation.

The ILA Thursday filed application for a Superior Court injunction which would force members of the shipping federation and the Montreal stevedoring companies which directly employ the longshoremen to rehire all workers who have been fired.

It's A Long Wait

Israel Sees Tough Nasser Speech Torpedoing UN Mid East Formula

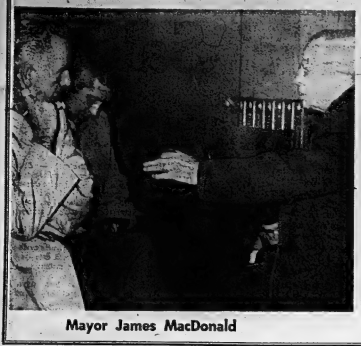
JERUSALEM (AP) — A tough speech by President Nasser warning that Egypt will fight if necessary to get its territories back, today strengthened Israel's determination that a settlement can be reached only through direct negotiations with the Arabs.

An Israeli diplomat said Nasser's speech Thursday "torpedoed" hopes raised by Egypt's acceptance of the UN Security Council resolution on the Middle East.

Nasser ruled out direct negotiations or an armistice with Israel in an address to his National Assembly and said the Israelis must evacuate all areas of Egypt, Jordan and Syria seized in the June war.

Optimists at UN headquarters in New York suggested that Nasser might be talking tough to keep his people quiet, a standard tactic of his. But Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said in New York: "We take it as an authentic expression of Egyptian policy."

Nasser, in his first public statement in four months, said he is not satisfied with the UN peace formula adopted on Wednesday. Israel has said it is willing to co-operate with the proposal.



The plan, sponsored by Britain, calls for appointment of a neutral peacemaker to promote a permanent settlement, Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict," an end to the Arab state of belligerency with Israel and the recognition of all nations in the Middle East "to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries."

Rather than endorse this, Nasser said "time is on our side" and that Egyptian forces should wait until ready.

Trenton Voters Get Choice--MacDonald or Fraser; Eight Nominate for Three Vacant Council Seats

Mayor James MacDonald

TRENTON — Dec. 4 will be election day here.

And local voters will have to choose between Mayor James MacDonald's 14 years of council experience and the highly-respected council talents of D. R. "Nick" Fraser.

Nominations of the two men last night set the stage for a two-way mayoralty contest, predicted as one of the closest in this town's history.

Mayor MacDonald is seeking his fifth consecutive two-year term in office. He served six years on council before attaining office on his second attempt in 1959.

Mr. Fraser's challenge comes after four years on council, the past two as chairman of the important finance committee.

Local residents had been prepared for this contest, but the number of nominees for three vacant council seats came as a surprise.

Besides the re-nominations of Councilmen J. D. Kinney and Claude V. Graham, six other names were put forward:

E. M. "Tod" Parkyn, Frank J. Barry, F. J. "Pete" Ash, Richard Whitley, Ross Burtt, and Gerald Weaver.

No one indicated he would withdraw his nomination.

Mr. Kinney is seeking his second two-year term, while Mr. Graham has served on council, with the exception of two years, since 1946.

Council veteran Ross Burtt made his first appearance as a candidate since being defeated two elections ago. Mr. Burtt, 78, spent 37 years on council, including a stint as mayor.

Mr. Weaver has also had previous council experience.

The third councillor up for election this year was D. R. Fraser, who earlier this month stated his intention to seek the mayoralty.

The nominees have until 9 p.m. tonight to qualify or withdraw.

Trenton operates on the "staggered" election system, with three of its six councillors elected alternate years for two-year terms.

There were eight nominations for five school board vacancies, including those for incumbents W. D. Whitley, Mrs. Jean Hutchinson, George Greer, and T. Stanley Ketchmore.

Others nominated were Harold Clark, Rev. David E. Miner, George B. Lewis, and Lewis G. Palmer.

Four trustees will be elected for two - year terms to the eight - member board. The fifth-highest vote - getter will serve one year of the term vacated by E. M. Parker.

One of Trenton's two Public Utilities Commissioners, Clifford Baker, was acclaimed to his seventh consecutive term.

Mr. Baker has served on the PUC for the past 13 years, and has been reappointed his last four nominations.

PUC Commissioners are elected separately.

Of the entire slate of nominees, only school trustee incumbent Georgia Greer qualified immediately after last night's nominations.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Lazzy said this morning none had formally withdrawn.

Voters in the Dec. 4 municipal elections will also decide the Sunday movies issue.

Five Males Nominated...

...Packed Chamber

Tweed Women Set for Fight--Barbara Allen Acclaimed Reeve

TWEED — Male opposition will tag at the skirts of this village's all-woman council - the first in Canada - at the upcoming municipal election.

That is, if all four female councillors decide to run.

Last night two of them told a nomination meeting here they would wait the full 24 hours required for qualification before deciding to continue in politics.

They were Mrs. Amelia Bosley and Mrs. Christina Sinclair.

Meantime, two villagers - Kenneth Thompson and Lloyd Rowson - both confirmed they will contest the possible return of the women's administration which brought national and international publicity to the village.

Mr. Thompson however, made way for another term of service from Reeve Barbara Allen.

Mrs. Allen was acclaimed to her second term when Mr. Thompson - a car salesman - refused nomination for a reeveship contest.

Instead, he lined up for a council fight.

However, Mrs. Allen left no doubt what kind of council she wanted for next year.

"There are four energetic, dedicated and capable people serving on council with me," she told a council chamber crowded with villagers, after nine names had been nominated for council.

"They happen to be women, but they also happen to be very good councillors. They've done more in this past year than a number of councils have done in years."

The names of other nominees indicated "whether or not they have experience."

The women councillors "do" know what the issues are and they know how to cope with them," said the reeve.

The council had brought the village wide publicity and if the election produced "a male backlash we're going to look very silly.

"Don't think because you've got five women sitting around the council table Tweed is going to go down the drain, because it isn't," she concluded.

One direct result of the unique council situation was immediately evident last night.

More than 60 people packed the pocket-size council chamber for the assembly that lasted more than two hours.

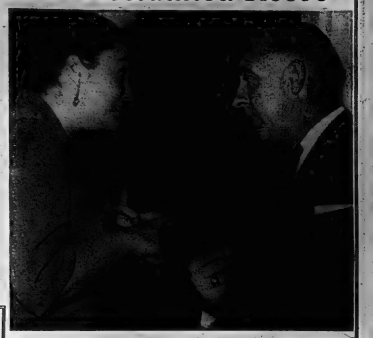
Last year, failure of the villagers to even nominate candidates led to a chain of events that created an all-woman local government.

The predominantly male audience sat and listened as the municipal affairs of the village were reported in detail — by women.

However, there were also thorns implied in the rosy scene.

Mrs. Sinclair, reporting on streets and sidewalks in Tweed, noted a proposal to purchase a municipal truck had brought "unnecessary abuse to me personally."

"My decision to run for office for another year or to terminate my short political career, will be given considerable thought," she warned the voters.



Mrs. Bosley said it already had been reported she would not stay on council and she would have to give another election bid "due consideration."

Those were the nominations:

Council — Kenneth Thompson, Jeannette Whitfield, Donald Hodgins, Amelia Bosley, Charles Cassidy, Dora Courneyea, Christina Sinclair, Lloyd Rowson, Joseph Stumby.

School trustee — Kenneth Little, H. J. Cox (accl).

Public Utilities — Cartha Cassidy (accl).

No Rivals They!

The conversation is friendly, despite serious faces of subjects. At Tweed nominations, Kenneth Thompson had just declined to run for reeve, opening up second-term acclamation for Mrs. Barbara Allen. Mr. Thompson, however, qualified to run for council.

Ron Lee of Canada Cement Co., Robert Cameron of Pyrotenax Ltd., and John Cross of Lake Ontario Cement were among 50 Quinte area industry representatives on last night's tour.

Bulletin

TWEED — Three women councillors and three male opponents had qualified for election here before noon today, Municipal clerk G. D. Morton reported.

The three women were Mrs. Amelia Bosley, Mrs. Jeannette Whitfield and Mrs. Dora Courneyea. The men were Kenneth Thompson, Lloyd Rowson and Donald Hodgins.

The fourth woman councillor — Mrs. Christina Sinclair — had not yet qualified, Mr. Morton said.

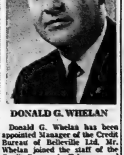
Operation Concludes

TRENTON — Operation New Horizon, a military exercise by Canada's United Nations standby peace - keeper, concluded at Camp Gagetown, New Brunswick.

A massive airlift transported Picton's 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards to CFB Gagetown earlier this month.

The CFB Trenton - based Air Transport Command airlifted the battalion — some 450 troops — and 130 military vehicles and stores to New Brunswick in three days, using a quartet of hefty Hercules C-130 transports.

The return airlift of the Canadian Guards to Trenton is under way, while support units that were involved in New Horizon are motoring home to Camp Petawawa.



Picton's 1st Canadian Guards were designated Canada's U.N. back - up emergency force in 1964.

Regular field exercises such as New Horizon are entailed in their standby role.

50 Safety Experts Tour Plant

TRENTON — Safety-minded representatives of 15 Quinte area industries went hazard-hunting last night.

The occasion was the second in the first series of tours to be conducted by the Belleville-Trenton Section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

Last night's tour was held at Miller Equipment Company near here, which, appropriately enough manufactures safety gear such as seat belts.

The area I.A.P.A. branch hopes to put the program on an annual basis, perhaps conducting them monthly next year, a spokesman said.

Industry representatives jot down safety criticisms and suggestions, passing them along to the management of the plant being toured. Films and discussions are included on the program.

The first of four inspections scheduled was held at Belleville's Northern Electric Oct. 26.

Future plans call for visits to Picton's Proctor-Silex plant (January) and back to Belleville at Stewart-Warner, Ltd. sometime in March.

Virtually all I.A.P.A. tours in the area to date have been handled by the Peterborough-Lindsay section, the spokesman said.

A footnote — one of last night's 50 safety experts touring the Trenton plant picked up something he shouldn't have.

He received minor first aid treatment for a finger cut received from a steel burr on a safety harness buckle.

Kingston Youth Facing Charges After Chase

BRIGHTON — A Kingston youth has been charged with dangerous driving after leading provincial police Constable Robert Creighton on a high-speed Highway 401 chase last evening.

Police say other charges are pending against 17-year-old Harold Reginald Eastabrook.

Const. Creighton said he was attempting to stop the youth and charge him with speeding at 401's eastbound lane when he raced away at speeds as high as 100 miles an hour.

Failure Common Lot

Charity, we have been told, begins at home.

That's a good place, we suggest, for mental health to start.

We would feel happier about the Belleville branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association if its members were not listening to people like Fred Pile, principal of Owen Boulevard Public School in North York.

"A child," he told the final meeting of a series sponsored by the local group, "should never taste failure until he is sufficiently mature to cope with it — and that is never in public school."

One has, one supposes, to be a highly qualified educationist responsible for a progressive school in an affluent suburb of a great metropolis before one can become sufficiently divorced from reality to make a statement like that.

If one is a school-marm in a red brick school on the back concession at Pumpkin Corners, one knows that failure is the common experience of all humanity, from the womb to the tomb. Everyone's final failure is that effort to snatch one more breath — everybody's first comes when the rubber nipple plugs.

Children have a wonderful capacity for accepting failure and trying again. Watch an infant grasping at a sunbeam or chasing a butterfly.

What children need to be guarded against is not failure but teachers — and parents — who know little about their reaction to it as does Mr. Pile — and build their own fanciful structure of theories on their misconceptions.

Welfare Appointment

The appointment of Reginald E. Tucker as director of welfare for the City of Belleville comes somewhat as a pleasant surprise.

It is pleasant because it resolves the interim state of affairs under which the welfare department has been operating since former director Daniel Aitken resigned.

It comes as a surprise because the new director held a responsible job as field supervisor for the Ontario department of welfare. That he would leave this to accept the challenge of re-organizing a municipal operation which has been beset with problems is a commendable decision.

However, in his new job Mr. Tucker will not be starting from scratch. He has twice previously spent some time in Belleville, in 1963 and again early this year when he surveyed the operation of the city welfare department.

Based merely on statistics compiled monthly by the Ontario department of welfare it would appear this municipality is showing a "little welfare care" indicates those who have the misfortune to require this assistance.

Bellevillians take pride in their dealings with outsiders to stand by their slogan of "The Friendly City." It is heartening to feel that this pride is being matched by compassion.

Tidy Street - Tidy Mind

The City of Belleville's bargain basement purchase of street trash cans from the junior chamber of commerce is a welcome one.

There is no denying the trim looking cans now on the city's main thoroughfare are both an attractive and practical addition.

But once you have got into the habit of using them, it is disconcerting to find at times you are a block or two away from the nearest container.

It is to be hoped the additional cans will augment the present Front street lineup. A littered street at any time is depressing but it is double so at this time of the year.

Adoption—1967 Style

A news item the other day revealed that a 29-year-old woman in Indiana became the first single woman in that state to be allowed to adopt a child.

The comment of executive director James J. Mallon is food for thought: "The bureau believes in the right of every child to have a home of his own. If the only alternative is having no parents in his lifetime, then we feel the child will be better off if he or she can be loved and cared for by a single person."

It's a progressive attitude which contrasts sharply with the interminable rhubarbs which seem to surround adoption in Ontario. Surely we must soon be approaching the point of sophistication which would rule out as irrelevant such things as religion, schooling, personality clashes and whatever else contributes to our annual adoption fiascos.

Food Situation Severe

India Has Shown Great Progress But Still Long Way to Go

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

"In India the present government must has provided good government," says Rev. George Shalm, and he should know after spending 18 years in the Asian country.

Mr. Shalm was born and resided in Saskatchewan where he attended Bible Institute in Saskatoon. In 1949 he left for India to participate in church mission work. He lives at present in Kodaikanal, a village in the state of Madras, near the temple city of Madura.

He is the Assistant Superintendent of the United Pentecostal Church. Part of his task is continuous travel especially in the Southern part of India.

In an interview Mr. Shalm told of his observations of the political situation in modern India.

"The present government has done an awful lot even in the period I've been there. Hardly anyone owned a bicycle when I arrived but now the roads are crowded."

He mentioned that almost all the main roads are now paved and there are schools in almost every village. "Canada has financed large hydro-electric plants and an Atomic Energy plant in Bombay."

In speaking of the problems, however, Mr. Shalm explained that production cannot meet demand. "To buy a car," he laughs, "one must wait 18 years after ordering it."

Mr. Shalm spoke of the severe food situation in India. "The food situation is even more severe than is stated in the Indian newspapers."

"Malnutrition is the problem not starvation. Food costs are very high, much higher than the wages."

"I don't think India will ever catch up because of the fast technological advances of the western world."

Mr. Shalm outlined the parties on the political scene in India. "Communism is divided into three groups, the rightists, the marxists and the revolutionary communists."

"The communists are maturing as an Indian party. They're making headway and they'll always be there."

Communists are in control in two states in the country, West Bengal and Kerala. "They were elected."

Mr. Shalm admitted that he was only a casual observer of the political picture in India, but he couldn't help notice a political upheaval there.

"There was an upset in Madras. The state party was elected. This party stands for anti-north domination."

According to Mr. Shalm, there are two right wing parties in India, the Swetantra Party and the Jan Sangh Party. The latter is interested in establishing India as a Hindu religious state.

"At present there is complete freedom of religion in India and the nation is very proud of it."

The majority of Indians are Hindus Mr. Shalm explains, over 350 million. There are 70 million Moslems. Two per cent of the population is Christian."

"Religion affects every aspect of their lives, but the politicians are not concerned."

About the Caste System, Indians class structure, Mr. Shalm says, "It has been outlawed, but it still exists.

On entertainment and environment he states that the Indians are very sports-minded. Cricket is their favorite sport. They like field hockey, ice hockey and tennis as well."

The people of India listen to the radio quite avidely. "They respond more to happenings in the world than the western countries do."

It has been said by some that instead of keeping traffic fatality statistics like Indians keep snake-bite fatality statistics, Mr. Shalm does not agree with this entirely, but he will admit that snakes are a fact of life in India.

"I remember when I asked some snake-charmers to come to my home and look for snakes in my yard. They found 27, most of them poisonous, in a half hour."

"People in India adjust to the hazard as community as one road signs. No Indian would dare enter his bedroom after dark without searching it thoroughly with a flashlight. Snakes often get into the houses.

The hospital situation is also quite different. When a man goes to hospital his relatives cook and take care of him. They all live near the hospital.

Service clubs, the Rotarians, Lions and Kiwanis are to be found in full force, taking care of special projects and medical facilities.

Mr. Shalm spoke during Pentecostal Church services in Belleville last week.

Striking an Expo Balance

The Brantford Expositor

Most Canadians are prepared to count the cost of putting on Expo as money well spent. They regard it as an investment that has already reaped dividends and will continue to bring a return to Canada in many ways. An estimated $100 million deficit can be necessary expenditure on a well worthwhile project.

What if there had been no Expo this year? Mayor Drapeau of Montreal rightly credits Expo with having reduced Canada's balance of payments gap with the U.S. But it is far-fetched for him to claim also that it averted a stock market crash and devaluation of our dollar. If, as he asserts, it saved Montreal from an unemployment crisis, it was a crisis postponed and now reflected personnel for a short-term job. Expo helped to spur the round of inflationary pay demands that originated in the Montreal area. That was one of the risks that had to be taken in imposing on the area's economy a project of such magnitude in a period of general prosperity. And was there anyone who did not realize that its short duration meant an inevitable letdown when it closed?

Attempts to hang a cost accountant's dollar sign on Expo are irrelevant and a misunderstanding of its purpose. As hoped, Expo brought very considerable benefits in its wake, some of them intangible and invisible, but of permanent value to Canada. Set against this plus, the deficit, long foreseeable, is of small importance.

Loyalty Oaths Illusory

New York Times

After seventeen wary years a person in Maryland may once again be hired as a fireman or sanitation worker or school-teacher without solemnly swearing not to overthrow the Government. The state's loyalty oath for public employees has been struck down by the Supreme Court as unconstitutional, as have similar provisions in recent years in New York, Arizona, Washington and Florida.

Under comparable decisions of lower courts and local authorities, half the thirty or so states that took shelter behind such statutes in the fearful forties have now been stripped of them — and left with no defence against subversion of their schools and public offices, except the unsworn loyalty in the hearts of citizens. This heroic-dose omission has panicked the Legislatures of some of these states into drawing up new loyalty oaths with more precise languags than the oaths that have been invalidated by the Supreme Court as too vaguely worded.

Persons applying for positions directly involved with the defence of the United States must of course be required to undergo a security check; but applicants for other forms of public employment ought not be subjected to any "loyalty" test more onerous than the normal oath of office. This principle would seem to be just as applicable to Federal employees, who have all along had to sign affidavits and a fillrop explaining advocacy of sedition or membership in seditious groups.

Loyalty oaths are illusory as a defence since any genuine subversive would think nothing of taking an oath many loyal Americans would find insulting. Loyalty oaths are themselves subversive in the true sense of the word, since they impose a kind of specious though-control on citizens of the United States reminiscent of the totalitarian ways of its Communist adversaries.

Fishing Fleet Holding Own

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

So much publicity has been given in the past few years to the size, modernity and efficiency of the Russian fishing fleet operating all year round in northwest Atlantic waters that it is a relief, for practical rather than patriotic reasons, to learn that Canada is still outfishing the Russians in this area.

Preliminary figures issued by ICNAF, the International Commission for Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, show that 1967 Canadian fishing vessels caught 982,000 metric tons of fish, compared to 881,000 metric tons the previous year. Russia, in second place among the ICNAF investee-nations, caught 711,000 metric tons, which was down considerably from the 1965 total of 833,000. The United States, which traditionally came second to Canada in catches, was in third place, with a tonnage of 305,000, a decrease from the 1965 total of 350,000 tons.

While the Canadian totals are admittedly boosted by the inclusion of inshore catches not available from the Russians, there is no doubt that Canada's steadily increasing catch records are attributed in large measure to its growing fleet of modern vessels and to greater skills and equipment being used.

Catches obtained by all ICNAF fleets have increased by about six per cent annually in recent years. It is encouraging to note that Nova Scotia vessels landed nine per cent more groundfish last year (414,000,000 pounds) than in 1965, and 30 per cent more herring (215,000 pounds) than during the previous year.

Obviously, we are catching, and holding, our own.

Not the CIA's Fault

Montreal Star

The price of Scotch whiskey has been dropping in Yugoslavia and the drop has been widely attributed by the American Central Intelligence Agency. It was an effort, said the rumors, to weaken the Yugoslavs by getting them to drink whiskey instead of slivovic. In view of the CIA's growing record as in many fields the Yugoslav rumors were not at first glance unbelievable. It has now been established that the price drop resulted from old-fashioned capitalist competition and Serbian the influential Belgrade newspaper, absolves the CIA. There is some internal evidence in the agency's favor that might have occurred to some Yugoslavs: If the CIA was trying to weaken, ite the Yugoslav drinking habits it would have worked on the price of bourbon, not Scotch.

Quotas Suggested

West Coast Whalers Suffer Worst Season in Decade

VANCOUVER (CP) — Stiff competition and depletion of the resources is threatening Canada's West Coast whaling industry.

The result has been officials of British Columbia's whaling fleet call for quotas and restrictions in the North Pacific after their worst season in a decade.

Western Canada Whaling Co. Ltd., which operates the province's five-boat fleet, caught 496 whales during this year's six-month season—102 finback, 90 sei and 304 sperm.

"That's just a marginal operation at the best of times when the markets for whale products are good," said company official Dave Connell. "Right now whaling is on a decline."

This year's total was far below the record year of 880 in 1964, 865 in 1965 and 719 last year.

"If the Russians and Japanese do not agree soon to some sort of quota for the North Pacific it will not be long before this area will be in the same position as the Antarctic where the whaling industry has been killed by over-catching," said company president Ken Fraser.

He estimated that without quotas North Pacific whale resources will be depleted within four or five years.

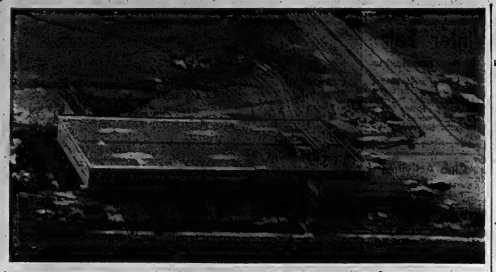
Mr. Fraser said several atlantats have been made to limit the catches through the International Whaling Commission of which Canada, Russia and Japan are members. But the Russians and Japanese have failed to agree on how the restrictions should be implemented.

The Canadian fleet operates out of Coal Harbour, nestled at the end of an inlet on the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Here the company has converted two abandoned RCAF seaplane hangars into plants for processing fresh whale meat, meal and oil.

Sales average $1,500,000 annually and the products are integral parts of other industries. The meat and meal is used to feed livestock and whale meal oil is used in the manufacture of soap and margarine.

The company must operate within a short season as the Vancouver Island base to prevent the catches from spoiling before they are processed.



Modern whaling has become sophisticated. Harpoons are still used, but they are fired from guns and are equipped with grenades that explode when the missile enters its target.

One dead whale was recently found carrying a Soviet-made homing device used to improve recovery operations.

But the big problem for the West Coast fleet is the mobility of the Russian and Japanese fleets.

The fleets of these two countries, particularly the Japanese, cut large swaths into North Pacific whale pods before the mammals migrate south to waters fished by the Canadians.

"The Russians and Japanese had a good catch this year in the Aleutians, particularly sei whales and this hurt us," Mr. Connell said.

Hillcrest Development From the Air

If factories and buildings keep going up out in Hillcrest, eventually Highway 401 will almost be like Front Street. This aerial photograph shows the now completed Superior Electric plant, as well as the construction on the International Cooperage plant that will be opening soon.

Offices Changed at City Hall

The Belleville Industrial Commission office is to be moved "out front" at city hall.

For several years the Industrial Commission office has been scrubbed in a back area accessible only through the city's clerk's department but this fall after the former city manager's office became vacant, it was decided these quarters would be more suitable for receiving industrial prospects.

In fact the move of City Manager J. R. Reynolds to his new second floor office is to result in a whole cycle of changes.

When the grand change is made some time in December, the city industrial commissioner will move to the city manager's former office. The city clerk will move to the industrial commissioner's office, and the city hall staff room will be changed from a committee room adjacent to the city manager's former office to the present city clerk's office.

City Council Buys Entrance To Off-street Parking Lot

City Council at a special meeting yesterday moved to purchase the two vacant lots on the west side of lower Front Street now being leased for use as an entrance to off-street riverside parking.

The purchase proposal, recommended by the city parking authority, was briefly discussed at Monday's regular meeting of council but was tabled for further discussion.

Purchase price of the two properties is $48,950 and includes two fifths of a jointly-owned stairway property.

The city will negotiate with the other owners for the purchase of the remaining three-fifths of the stairway area.

Under the terms of the agreement the Vendors will pay their own legal costs instead of the city bearing this cost, as had been originally requested.

Trenton Blackout Affects Hospital

TRENTON — The possibility of involving Trenton Memorial Hospital in power shutoffs is concerning members of the local Public Utilities Commission.

A two-hour power blackout for practically the entire west side of town this Sunday morning is required to enable workmen to install the roof on a Stanley Street warehouse.

PUC Commissioner Clifford Baker says the 44,000-volt main line supplying west Trenton will be switched off from 8 to 10 a.m. Sunday as a safety measure.

"Large, pre-stressed concrete beams have to be swung in place dangerously near our power lines. Thirty feet of our high tension lines lie directly above the building," Mr. Baker told yesterday's PUC meeting.

The commissioner said hospital board chairman S. G. Graham had indicated the hospital's auxiliary power supply had a limiting factor of about an hour.

"We've got to get this done sometime, let's face it," said Commissioner Charles Hilton. "We might as well get it done when the weather is holding, so as not to delay the job any longer."

Mr. Hilton said the hospital could be faced with a power failure in the event of a car striking the right pole, and that it would just have to be hoped Sunday's shutoff would not be prolonged.

Board chairman Mr. Graham confirmed he had told the PUC the hospital's auxiliary power system would operate for "about an hour."

"But we can increase this somewhat by cutting off in certain sections of the building, like elevators, where it is not vital.

"I just wish they had decided to cut the power in the afternoon, because the morning is our busiest time.

"We'll just have to hope nothing will happen during the two hours."

Mr. Graham said the hospital's emergency power unit is as good as in any hospital of comparable size.

"It takes over automatically within 20 seconds of a power failure," he said.

PUC General superintendent Howard Hallick told yesterday's meeting a number of industries, and all of the downtown restaurants would have to be notified before Sunday of the blackout.

The two hour shut-off will involve all but two blocks of west Trenton.

Industrial Plaza Will Be Built

Construction of a new industrial plaza in the north west area of the city which could eventually grow to as much as 40,000 square feet under roof, is foreseen as the result of the sale of city-owned property to a local development firm.

Yesterday council voted to city industrial land in Pan Properties Ltd., one of the terms of agreement being that an industrial mall structure of at least 10,000 square feet be constructed in a year.

City Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown said today the industrial mall proposal would be an excellent asset to the city's industrial building inventory.

He said that such accommodation was badly needed in the city as currently there is inadequate industrial space.

Mayor J. R. Ellis was also happy with the decision of Pan Properties Ltd. to go ahead with the industrial mall.

"This is the sort of thing which we have been hoping for for a long time," he said. "The Industrial Commissioner is confident that he can fill the space almost immediately on its completion."

Owners of the municipals of Pan Properties Ltd. who will construct the industrial mall are Sidney Spiegel and Abe Tobe, both of Belleville.

Mr. Brown said the first phase construction of the proposed industrial mall would be very flexible with possible variances in area down to as little as 2,500 feet.

The industrial mall, in the northwest quadrant of the intersection of Centre and Adam streets is "ideally situated" in the view of Industrial Commissioner Brown.

Mr. Brown expected that with favorable weather conditions, construction of the first phase of the industrial mall could be commenced early in the New Year.

Gravel Walkway Will Be Laid To Aid Students

Thanks to a move by city council students taking a short cut to Centennial Secondary School through the Gowanbrae Ltd. property south of West Bridge Street are going to have a gravel walkway to keep them out of the mud.

Yesterday at a special meeting, council voted to spend up to $1,000 to provide the 1,500 foot walkway.

The walkway will leave Bridge Street about opposite the curving club and emerge onto Palmer Road opposite the new Centennial Secondary School.

There is no sidewalk on Bridge Street past the Belleville fairgrounds and students have been using the open field owned by Mr. J. Casey both as a shortcut and to avoid surface water which encroached onto the roadway following heavy rains.

Two Receive Commissions As Inspectors

A recently-promoted OPP inspector stationed in Belleville has received his Queen's Commission.

Insp. R. E. Chalmers was among 13 provincial police officers who received the commission from OPP Commissioner Eric Silk.

Also receiving his promotion to the rank of inspector was J. A. Fullerton, stationed at Emergency Measures general headquarters, Toronto. Insp. Fullerton for several years was stationed in Belleville as a constable.

Will Subdivide Park Land

Belleville lost its third chance this year to acquire land for a future park.

Last night Planning Board members decided to recommend approval of an application to subdivide a 104 acre lot in the Avondale area. The lot, between Avondale Rd. and Wright Ave. is marked in the Parks Planning Study as a potential recreation area. It rests in private ownership and Parks Board has no funds in its budget to buy land.

Planning Board members unanimously agreed it could not hold the land for park use by refusing the owner's application for a subdivision.

"I've had personal experience with waiting for the city to make up its mind to buy land for parks, and of having to pay taxes on useless property in the meantime," Mrs. Margaret Orr said. "It would be unfair to prevent this man from using his land as he pleases."

Planning director P.J. Bovis, who prepared the Parks Planning Study, told the board the was the third piece of potential park land the city had lost this year.

"It's about time Planning Board, Parks Board, and Council never say no," he declared. "It is more important to retain some parcels of land in the public interest, for parks and school sites, than to allow them to be developed by private interests."

Approval for private development was subject to provision for an access until way through the area to Centennial and Sir Mackenzie Bowell schools.

Medical Clinic Near Hospital Now Assured

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night heard the final word in the saga of the Dundas St. East medical clinic — it hopes.

Part of Dr. Harold Williamson's three-year fight to operate a clinic opposite the hospital was enacted before the Board and planner P. J. Bovis.

Following a hearing in October, the Ontario Municipal Board granted permission for clinic use of the new building at the east side of the Williamson lot. The attached frame house at the west kept its residential zoning, as a buffer between the clinic and adjacent houses.

However, the re-zoning by-law to implement the decision, drafted by the city solicitor and passed by council, was rejected by the OMB. The by-law re-zoned house and clinic and their lots to a B district and was "contrary to our intention", said the OMB.

The Mayor, city solicitor and city manager visited the OMB offices in Toronto for advice on proper wording. Mayor Ellis reported to Planning Board on Council's adoption of the rewritten bylaw at its Monday meeting. He said it had been forwarded to Toronto a second time for approval and added the comment: "I believe this decision is a complete reversal of the OMB's normal policy".

"With luck, we can consider this one just about finished", sighed Mr. Beavis.

Planning Board Approves Rezoning of Hillcrest Area

The first step to remove restrictions on home improvements in the Hillcrest area was made last night by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

It approved a re-zoning of the area to allow residents to expand and improve their houses without permission from the Committee of Adjustment. The same zoning by-law restricts development of vacant lots until after adoption of an official plan.

The recommendation to city council that the area be re-zoned from industrial to residential was asked by the Hillcrest Ratepayers Association. Its executive met Tuesday night with Planning Board members and staff to outline a long-standing grievance of area residents. Industrial zoning placed on the area in 1960 labelled all existing dwellings "non-conforming."

Owners wanting to expand or improve their houses had to seek permission for an "extension of non-conforming use" from the Committee of Adjustment.

In arguing the case for rezoning, planning director P. J. Beavis said Hillcrest residents had been penalized, through fees and delays, for making improvements automatically permitted in any other residential district in the city.

(Later, Planning Board staff estimated application and council approval fees for Hillcrest owners at a tower $100 and maximum time required to process applications at seven weeks.)

"Although the area is declared industrial on zoning maps, no significant industrial development has taken place," Mr. Beavis said. "While residents have waited for a solution to their problem, recent planning studies have marked the area as a potential redevelopment area. Lack of sewage disposal facilities at present makes high density development of the area undesirable. The city faces a future investment of $800,000 in sewers for Hillcrest."

Single family dwellings and their accessories buildings, such as garages, are permitted by the proposed bylaw. By requiring new buildings to be placed on lots of one acre or more, the bylaw will limit the number of new houses constructed, said the official plan settles the question of Hillcrest's future.

In moving the rezoning application, Mayor Ellis asked the Board to request a public hearing on the issue early in the new year.

"A public hearing will speed adoption of the rezoning by the Ontario Municipal Board," he said.

Inquest Held Into 401 Mishap

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — An inquest into the highway death of a Trenton man Wednesday recommended that guardrails be set up regarding construction warning signs and that the department of highways and Ontario provincial police enforce them.

The jury was investigating the death of Jacob Pereira, 45, who was killed Aug. 8 on the Macdonald-Cartier freeway east of Bowmanville on the site of road paving operations.

Run Is Threat To U.S. Dollar

termined bid by de Gaulle to wrest financial leadership of the world from the United States and Britain.

The British informants said one American line of defence is to halt American investment in Western Europe, particularly France, and dry up the French supply of dollars available for conversion into gold.

Another defence, they said, would be to remove the gold backing for the dollar, thus freeing $10,000,000,000 of the $13,000,000,000 worth of gold in Fort Knox to meet the crisis.

They said the U.S. dollar would be in real trouble only if all holders of the $14,000,000,000 worth of U.S. overseas liabilities got together and demanded gold at one time. Few believed that likely.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL

The meaning of young Canada Book Week was explained to members of the Sir Winston Churchill Home and School Association, at a meeting on Monday evening.

School librarian Mrs. L. Mackum and Miss Jean Williams, librarian from the Corby Public Library told the audience of the important role their respective libraries play in the life of the student.

Miss Williams, with the aid of book covers, showed a selection of books to interest the youngest toddler through the age range to today's scientific minded youth. Canada's history books are modernized and surprisingly interesting, even the age-old classics are dressed up with attractive covers, to compete with all the bright new editions.

At Sir Winston Churchill School, the library consists of non-fiction reference books for the use of the students. Miss Mackum pointed out the advantages for the pupils to belong to the Corby Library.

The Home and School meeting was conducted by the president, Mr. Peter Sewell, who introduced Mrs. M. G. Wilbe, chairman of fund raising and membership. Mrs. Wilbe announced plans had been made for a euchre party along with a candy and bake sale to be held in February. Members have made two color soccer markers which are used to distinguish the team.

Before the meeting parents had the opportunity to visit the classrooms and speak with the teachers.

Ann Landers
Guests Should Know When to Go Home

DEAR ANN LANDERS: To put it bluntly, what can be done about friends who don't know when to go home?

Some people think that just because it is a Friday or Saturday night and they can sleep until noon the next day, everyone in the world can. It so happens that Saturday is my husband's busiest day and Sunday morning we must get up and go to church.

Last Friday two couples sat here until 2:30 a.m. and I was ready to climb the walls. My husband kept signalling me to get rid of them and I did drop several hints — but nobody budged.

Please come up with an answer, Ann. We need your help. — TRAPPED TILL DAWN.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR TRAPPED: I have always operated on the theory that nothing brilliant gets said after midnight, particularly if the room is flowing — and it usually is.

I also notice that the reluctance of guests to go home is in direct relationship to the amount of liquor they have consumed.

Most home parties are dinners which begin about seven o'clock. I figure five hours of food, drink and witty conversation is enough for anybody. At midnight I stand and say, "It's been a wonderful evening and tomorrow is here already, so good night everybody."

For those who are hard of hearing or pretend to be, I add another sentence: "The party is over. Good night one and all." The wives invariably take it from there.

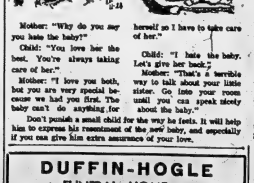
DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every Christmas an organization in our city exercises the fine tradition of buying new shoes for needy children. The group's generosity is duly covered on TV, which I suppose is fair enough from the organization's standpoint. My concern is for the children.

When the TV camera dollies in and catches those tykes close up, most of them cringe in embarrassment. I have the feeling something more is involved than camera shyness. From my own experience back in the depression, I suspect some of those kids are aware of the charity involved and they resent having their pride crushed in public. They also run the risk of humiliating comments from their classmates.

Surely there are ways to protect those kids without inhibiting news coverage. Why couldn't they show the small feet with new shoes and not show the youngsters' faces?

If you print my letter I will consider it my Christmas present to the underprivileged children in our community. I will also donate the price of a pair of new shoes for one of the kids. — PORTLAND, OREGON.



DEAR PORTLAND: Here's your letter and my thanks to you for writing it. Let us hope the TV director follows your suggestion. It's a good one.

Mother: "I love you both, but you are very special because we had you first. The baby can't do anything for me."

Don't provide a small child like the way he feels. It will help him to express his resentment of the new baby, and especially if you can give him extra assurance of your love.

Teen-agers Complain of Friend's Dandruff Problem

Dear Doris: We are two 16-year-old girls who have a great friend. But her long hair is loaded with cakes of dandruff. You can't even get a comb through her hair.

Next time you are all freshening up before a mirror, you could brush off her shoulders for her; no one really wants to look as ill-cared-for. Might just start her talking about it.

There are excellent treatments and shampoos for dandruff treatment. And I could send her our ten-cent leaflet on hair care if you could get her to write in for it.

3. That she will be glad to be helpful to the new executive in any way possible and wishes them well. Also the whole club.

Then she sits down with a private sigh of relief and receives not to butt in or act as if she still owned the chesterfield. One of the hardest things for a good past president to do is to leave the new girls to it.

Exercise More Effective When Performed to Music

By REBA AND BONNIE CHURCHILL

Exercise can be 30 per cent more effective when performed to music! This is the latest report, supplied by a research committee, that compared workouts performed with and without music. Rhythmic accompaniment made exercisers more accurate in their movements, more consistent in their daily program, and less fatigued for their efforts. It also took the boredom out of calisthenics. Universal actress Joan Freeman illustrates a streamliner that is almost dance-like in its grace and co-ordination. Rehearse routine to a waltz. Stand on tiptoe, simultaneously swing arms over head and left foot to the rear. In tempo, alternate sides and repeat 16 times.

Who says you can't do three things at once? Certainly not an island dancer who performs to Hawaiian music. Using the soothing strains of a South Seas melody, begin your own arm hula, which also firms and slims the entire torso. Stand with feet apart, right hand pressed against right thigh. Slowly raise left arm, bending trunk to right side. Now turn hand until you see the palm, then back, then the palm. This twisting action, which is kept slow by the tempo of the music, massages the arm. Repeat seven times; change sides.

Girls seeking a sleek waistline found lilting music and a swinging movement beneficial. Stand with body erect, feet apart, arms at shoulder height. As the record starts, swing arms from side to side. Let the sweep of the melody carry you along. Train eyes to follow fingers as they move gracefully from front to side to back. Keep chin, chest, and arms elevated, and turn from the waist. Action should be completely free and easy. Smile as you perform. It's not only fun, but, when rehearsed 25 times, it's figure flattering. P.S. Now is the time to show off that new figure at all the holiday parties. If you need help in structuring send for our new clock watcher's exercise plan. Recipe for Cranberry Meat Loaf

By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Could you send me your recipe for Cranberry Bread? I lost it. My family is fond of this in their lunch box. — Mrs. D.M.

ANSWER: Since cranberry time is rolling round again and other readers liked it too I will repeat it (from Oct. 66).

CRANBERRY NUT LOAF

(Instructions for using blender included)

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 egg
¾ cup shortening
one 1 x 3" piece orange rind or 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup sugar
¾ cup orange juice
½ cup chopped nuts
1 cup cranberry sauce

If you are using your blender for this, buzz the cranberry sauce for 5 seconds and remove from blender. Without washing blender put in it the egg, shortening, piece of orange rind, sugar and orange juice and buzz finely. Add buzzed cranberry sauce and buzz 2 seconds.

Sift together in large bowl the sifted flour, salt and baking powder and soda. Add nuts. Pour liquefied blender ingredients in and mix barely enough to blend. Do not overstir. Pour into greased medium loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. F. 50 minutes. This was speedily made and delicious.

If you are not using a blender cream together shortening and sugar. Beat in the egg and use the 1 tablespoon grated orange rind and add it. Add nuts and orange juice. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and soda and add, half of it at a time, alternately with the cranberry sauce until both are barely incorporated. (Note: If desired cranberry sauce may be beaten until broken down with rotary beater.) Pour into medium greased loaf pan and bake at 350 deg. F. 50 minutes.

NOTES: 1) This Cranberry Nut Loaf keeps well and if freezer wrapped freezes well and slices beautifully. 2) It is similar to Cranberry Banana loaf of December 64.

Sunday School Lesson

Punishment With Purpose

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

An arrogant youth stood before Judge Obermiller in the county court of Whiting, Indiana. When he was fined, he pulled a roll of dollar bills from his pocket, and with a flourish counted out the amount of his fine while members of his gang who had come to his trial angered in the back of the courtroom.

The UTI-form Sunday School lesson for November 26: "God's Purpose in Discipline," Hosea 2 and 3.

A few days later, three older teenagers stood before the same court accused of drinking and brawling on a Lake Michigan beach. They, too, were accompanied by their "admirers." This time the Judge followed different tactics. He sentenced the boys to a Saturday morning "clean-up" detail. Then he called their parents to the bench. He asked if any of the boys had had a spanking lately. When all the parents answered, "no," the Judge asked for permission to make up for this lack. When the incredulous parents had given their permission, the Judge ordered the boys to bend over a table, and handed a paddle to a police officer, he instructed him to give each boy 25 solid whacks.

This time there was no subdued sniggering in the back of the courtroom. In stunned silence, the boys' friends filed out of the room after having seen their heroes publicly humiliated by receiving an old-fashioned spanking. Later the Judge visited the boys as they were carrying out their sentence and offered to help them find proper training and jobs.

The Judge believes that punishment for disobedience is an important step, but that punishment should have a purpose, and the purpose should be to try to correct the offender.

Punishment is a part of life. The person who is undisciplined ir his eating, for example, becomes a glutton, and nature has ways of punishing those who will not obey her laws.

The parent who does not expect reasonable obedience is not being kind. He is being foolish. He is denying his child the very guidance the child has a right to expect of him. "Don't cross the street" is not said to be mean. It is said for the child's protection. If the child disobeys, he may need some form of punishment to impress on him the seriousness of the order. Punishment, however, must never degenerate into abuse. If a parent abuses his child, he himself deserves punishment.

The writers of Scripture insist that God Himself must sometimes punish people to try to turn them from their evil ways. His punishment, however, is never vindictive. He always seeks the welfare of the one who is being punished.

This truth is reflected in the writings of Hosea, the prophet. He heard God say of Israel, "I will punish her for the feast days of the Baals." (Hosea 2:13 RSV) But in the same breath, he also hears God say, "I will speak tenderly to her . . . as at the time when she came out of the land of Egypt." (Hosea 2:14-15 RSV)

Punishment and rehabilitation should go together. Without punishment, a thief may be encouraged to steal again. Without efforts to reclaim him for society, punishment may deter him from stealing, but will not turn him into a good citizen.

The world today needs to rethink this matter of punishment. Children are encouraged to live undisciplined lives because they are not corrected by over-indulgent parents. Because lawcourts lean over backwards to protect their rights, criminals are often permitted to go unpunished. If it is to function properly, a state must require obedience to its laws. It must have authority to punish those who break them. Otherwise the result would be anarchy in which everyone would get hurt.

Even Christians sometimes want an indulgent God. They want a God who rewards them when they do good, but who overlooks the other way when they do wrong. Discipline is missing from their way of life. They want acceptance without much response, character with out self - denial, discipleship without cost, approval without allegiance.

But to want such an easy-going, self-indulgent kind of faith is to misjudge God, as an ancient writer so clearly put it, if God didn't care what happened to us, He would let us go our own reckless ways. It is because He does care, He burdens our consciences. (Hebrews 12:5-11) It is because He does want people to grow up to be responsible human beings He destroys their peace when they defy Him and plagues them with violence and fear when they sow hate instead of love.

Lamontagne Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Lamontagne was questioned Thursday about his visits to a psychiatrist in the months before and after a meeting three years ago at which he alleged Raymond Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe.

Defence counsel Louis Assaly suggested at Denis' trial on a charge of attempted obstruction of justice that Mr. Lamontagne at that time was "imagining all sorts of things."

Mr. Lamontagne, 32-year-old Montreal lawyer, fired a rapid denial at the defence lawyer, conceding only that at one stage he was imagining things about his state of health.

Mr. Assaly also questioned him at length about whether he felt insulted or recruited such an offer of money from a fellow lawyer and why he waited until Aug. 15—nearly a month later—to make an official report to the police.

Mr. Assaly said surely such an offer was "the highest insult to your integrity."

Mr. Lamontagne reported that to reply fully to that would involve a "one-hour dissertation on the ways of politics . . . about what it does to people" and he did not plan to give such a lecture to the court.

In his view, such an offer was morally wrong. There was no obligation on a citizen to report crimes to the police, nor was there a moral obligation to do so.

Figures Never Lie But---

Canadian Taxes Seldom Lower, ---Comparatively Speaking

OTTAWA (CP)—While everyone complains about paying taxes, and there will be higher taxes announced by Finance Minister Sharp Nov. 30, the finance department can prove you never had it so good.

Well, perhaps, hardly ever since the income tax was introduced as a temporary wartime measure 26 years ago this year.

A finance department analysis for the past 10 years shows:

—Personal income after taxes on a per capital basis has risen faster than the consumer price index each year.

—Last year, the federal government's budgetary revenues were almost at the lowest point as a percentage of gross national product.

The 19,919,000 people in Canada last year, using the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' mid-year population estimate, produced goods and services worth $57,781,000,000.

The mid-year population estimate for 1967 is 20,405,000 and the gross national product at mid-year was estimated as running at $61,518,000,000. This is a population growth of 2.4 per cent, and a GNP gain of nearly 6.5 per cent.

After-tax personal incomes last year totalled $38,780,000,000 or $1,921.68 per capita. The mid-year estimate for 1967 is that per capital incomes after all direct income taxes will run to $2,030.48. This is an increase of 5.1 per cent in the year.

But the consumer price index, which is based on prices inclusive of federal and provincial sales and excise taxes, is running about four per cent higher than last year.

Out of last year's gross national product of $57,781,000,000, the federal government took $8,118,000,000 in budgetary revenues, or 14 per cent. The only time this percentage was lower in the past 10 years was in 1963, when it was 13.9. It was 16.4 per cent in 1957.

This year, Finance Minister Sharp estimates his budgetary revenues will amount to about $9,094,000,000. This is 14.8 per cent of the estimated GNP of $61,518,000,000. Whatever new taxes he announces next Thursday and collects before the end of the year will raise the revenue figure.

The 10-year analysis by the finance department shows that from 1957 to 1966, per capital income after direct taxes rose 59 per cent, while the consumer price index rose 18 per cent.

This is an indication of the increased purchasing power of after-tax income in the average case in Canada, exclusive of the value of increased services such as education, health, transportation, incentives to industry, and the many other services provided by government.

"In general, the consumer is relatively better off today than he was in each of the earlier years," the finance department says.

MPs Question if CBC Need Gather Own News

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC news department took it on the chin from the Commons broadcasting committee Thursday.

Ian Wahn (L-Toronto St. Paul's) asked State Secretary Judy LaMarsh for a serious study of whether the federal government should be in the news business through its public broadcasting agency.

It would be unthinkable for Parliament to subsidize such newspapers as the Toronto Daily Star or the Toronto Globe and Mail, the Toronto lawyer said. Perhaps the same reasoning applied to the CBC.

Ralph B. Cowan (L-York-Humber) questioned CBC's intention to set up its own newsgathering service to make it independent of other sources.

He said this put the government in direct competition to The Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering agency of Canada's daily newspapers.

Mr. Cowan, a former newspaper executive, said CP did a good job covering Canada.

"The CBC buys the CP report but The CP does not buy the CBC report," Mr. Cowan said. And he never heard of the CBC "scooping" The CP.

Howard Johnston (SC-Okanagan-Revelstoke) said the CBC has been guilty of invasion of privacy with some of its news reporting.

Miss LaMarsh said she was surprised at the line of questioning. There have been suggestions that the CBC was at its best in news and public information shows.

She said she was "personally offended" at the way CBC cameramen were set up on the front lawn of former Conservative cabinet minister Pierre Sevigny's home at the time of the Gerda Munsinger inquiry. But what offended her might not offend others.

Mr. Johnson questioned the way the CBC handled the story of Mrs. Arthur Timbrell of Preston, Ont., who refused to give up two foster children to the Children's Aid Society.

He said the CBC's "blanket mandate" to cover the news in any way it sees fit should be changed to ensure it does so in good taste.

Replying to Jack Davis (L-Coast-Capilano), Miss LaMarsh said the new act calls for extension of French-language broadcasting in areas where there is a sufficiently-large French-speaking audience.

Extending such broadcasting was tied in with availability of funds. She said she doubts whether Canada would be rich enough to cover all areas regardless of listenership.

SLICE SPORTS

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

Since he'll be the first to admit it, there's no harm in telling the wide hockey world that a good-luck gremlin is riding the shoulder arms of one Robert Marvin Hull.

Apart from last night Marvo Robert was riding high on the crest of a goal-a-game wave — 18 for 18 — his latest scoring feat being his 21st hat-trick by eleven years association with the hurlies of the National League.

I'm not trying to infer that Hull's sensational record has resulted from sheer luck — far from it. It is just that the gremlin is working for him.

At the present rate Hull reluctantly admits he will have a "pretty good season" if his shooting eye is good, and that little cuss, the gremlin condones it smile on him.

Like any other hockey player, Hull can use all the "luck" that is tossed at him. Good or bad, you have to take it anyway.

However, Hull is getting a tremendous kick out of the manner in which some of the eighteen pucks found their way into the nets.

One of the goals he scored against the St. Louis Blues and former team-mate Glenn Hall is an example.

He happened to be cruising in the general vicinity of the St. Louis goal when Hawk defenceman Pat Stapleton let fly with a forty-foot slasher.

Bobby is quoted as saying: — "The puck hit me on the left arm, just above the wrist and must have changed direction by about 130 degrees. It would have missed the net by several feet. Instead it ducked down and shot between Glenn's pads."

"I'll bet that I've scored more goals on things like that this year than I've totalled in all the seasons I've been here," he says. "It's really kind of freakish. Maybe when I start getting some good shots I'll put a few legitimate ones into the net."

While the Hawks were flapping and flounde ring around the National Hockey League cellar, Hull was practically the only one in the nest to resemble a hockey player. He carried the brunt of whatever offence the Hawks had almost single-handed. However a story out of Chicago says he is getting help now with the return of Doug Mohns to the Scooby Line with Mikita and Kenny Wharram.

Backstrom Blasts 3-Goal Barrage!

Bruins Down Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fired-up Montreal Canadiens team snuffed out Chicago Black Hawks' nine-game National Hockey League winning streak Thursday night in a 7-0 victory paced by Ralph Backstrom's three goals.

With star centres Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard on the injured list, Backstrom, another veteran centre, also assisted on two others.

In the only other game, Boston Bruins downed New York Rangers 4-2.

The results lifted the Bruins into a 22-point first-place tie with idle Toronto Maple Leafs in the circuit's East Division while Canadiens, with 20, took over fourth place from the Rangers, 13. Detroit is third with 21 and Chicago sixth, 17.

Backstrom, who scored one goal Wednesday night when Montreal beat St. Louis Blues 3-1, registered twice in the opening period and once in the second session at Chicago. He now has seven goals for the season.

Bobby Rousseau scored twice. The other Montreal goals went to Claude Larose and Yvan Cournoyer.

At Boston, veteran John Bucyk led the Bruins into the division lead with two goals before Tom Williams and Phil Esposito scored in the third period.

The New York goals went to Larry Jeffrey and Reggie Fleming.

Jeffrey and Ted Green tangled in the first period, both drawing major penalties and Jeffrey taking four stitches to close a cut on the right ear after Green had knocked him cold.

Canadiens controlled the play throughout.

So hard did they check that goalie Gump Worsley was tested only 15 times in recording his second shutout of the season and 36th of his pro career.

In preparing for Saturday's game against Detroit, Toronto coach Punch Imlach has to consider limited services for right-winger Ron Ellis.

Ellis suffered a sprained left wrist and broken little finger on his right hand during Wednesday's 3-0 victory over Minnesota North Stars.

St. Louis is also strengthening, in an attempt to vacate the Western Division cellar, by calling up left winger Claude Cardin and Frank St. Marseille from Kansas City of the Central Pro League in exchange for Norm Beaudin and Roger Picard.

They should be in action Saturday when Philadelphia visits St. Louis.

Other Saturday games have Boston at Montreal, Chicago at Minnesota and Pittsburgh visiting Oakland Seals.

NHL Scoring Leaders

Ralph Backstrom scored three goals and an assist in Montreal Canadiens 7-0 victory Thursday night over Chicago Black Hawks while team-mate Yvan Cournoyer added a goal and an assist.

Backstrom's splurge brought his points total to 13—including seven goals—on the season, still shy of a spot in the league's top 10 scorers.

Cournoyer, meanwhile, jumped ahead of veteran Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings and took second place in the scoring race with nine goals and 11 assists for 20 points, one ahead of Howe and seven behind first place Bobby Hull of Chicago.

Hull has 18 goals and nine assists for 27 points.

Moving into a crowd at 19 points was veteran John Bucyk, whose two goals paced Boston Bruins to a 4-2 victory over New York Rangers and into a first-place tie in the Eastern Division of the league with Toronto Maple Leafs. He now has 11 goals and eight assists.

Tale Of A Pony!

Fifteen hundred or more Quinte district youngsters will be looking for a free pony but the Belleville Junior "B's" are hoping for something else here tonight.

Jim "Snipe" Matthews' junior pocksters are still seeking their first victory of the OHA Eastern Junior "B" schedule.

The high-flying Peterborough Don Byes are in town for this third annual "Pony Night" battle, slated to get under way at 9 o'clock.

Fans have been scarce for the juniors to date but they feel that a win in front of the always-big "Pony Night" crowd would keep many of the young fans coming back for more.

Some lucky youngster will win himself a real live pony — but there's more. Two sparkling new bicycles, one for a boy and one for a girl, plus a number of NHL autographed hockey sticks will also go to lucky winners.

City merchants, who buy blocks of tickets for this special game, have distributed them among the youngsters, assuring a big crowd.

"We are about out and this could be the night," Matthews said yesterday. "The boys should be well rested and raring to go. You know, we haven't played since November 13 and it is time to so scaice that we have only had one practice.

"Look out, Peterborough, here we come," warned the optimistic manager.

Menard Nudges Leader!

John Beechey of Galt Hornets has taken over as scoring leader in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series but nine challengers are in hot pursuit.

Beechey, tied for the lead last week with linemate Pete Brennan, boosted his total points to 21 as Brennan dropped into a second-place tie with Minnie Menard of Belleville Mo-Hawks and Gary Milroy of Toronto Marlboros. They trail the leader by one point.

Norm Delcice of Galt led goaltenders for the fifth consecutive week with a 1.80 average after 10 games. He also leads in shutouts with two.

Petes Trim Nats

Habs Shade Wings!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens pulled into a second-place tie with Hamilton Red Wings in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Thursday night by downing Hamilton 4-3 on the Wings' home ice.

In other action, Peterborough Petes scored three goals in the third period to beat London Nationals 4-2 in Peterborough.

The Petes and London are still in the bottom half of the standings, but Montreal pulled ahead of Kitchener Rangers for a share of second place with 21 points, six behind first-place Niagara Falls Flyers.

The Montreal victory broke a six-game winning streak by Hamilton and marked the Wings' first loss at home in eight games.

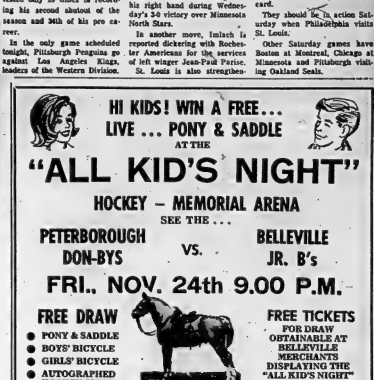
Jean-Guy Gratton, Bernard Gagnon, Rejean Houle and Paul Lessard scored for Montreal.

Mo-Hawks Make Defence Changes

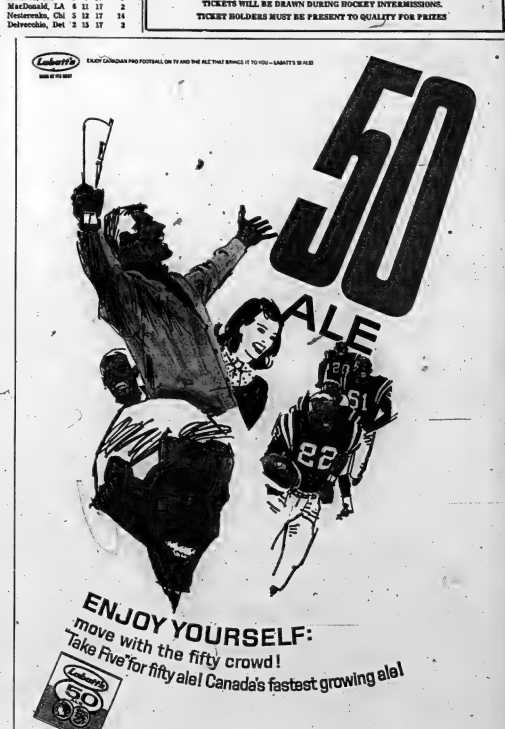
The Mo-Hawks were keeping the telephone lines burning this morning in an effort to secure a branch-to-branch transfer in time for defenceman Bernie Gould to play tonight's game in Collingwood.

Gould, after his second practice with the club Wednesday, is ready to sign and coach Floyd Crawford says he will be in the lineup as soon as possible," which means either tonight or here at home against Guelph on Tuesday.

But there will be another surprise on the Mo-Hawk defence tonight.



Coach Crawford, who has done little serious skating this winter due to a painful right knee, says "I'll dress and give it a try." He took part in Wednesday's scrimmage and said the knee "felt pretty good."



Forward Ralph Plane will sit out his third game in succession tonight. He has been dressed but did not see ice time during the last two. "His kidney injury is too painful to play with but Ralph won't admit it. He's a great competitor but we're not going to take a chance with him tonight."

Floyd Gould's branch-to-branch from the International League came through today, he will play in Bob McAlpine's defence spot tonight.

The Mo-Hawks are also talking with the Belleville Junior "B's" about securing the release of junior-age Harold Townsend.

Townsend has been working out with the seniors and has said he does not wish to play junior this year. Townsend, also a defenceman, could slide into action next week — if the juniors and seniors can get together.

Stamps Need Miracle; Saskys Weather!

CALGARY (CP) — Eagle Keys is looking for cold, windy, miserable weather and Jerry Williams is looking for a miracle as they prepare their teams for Sunday's Western Football Conference playoff final.

Keys, coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, figures the cold won't bother the passing of Calgary quarterback Peter Liske any, but it probably will cause a lot of dropped passes as receivers try to unbend stiffened fingers to catch the ball.

Keys also knows that, as long as his team plays as tough and aggressive a game as they did Wednesday night in Regina in beating the Stamps 11-9; there's little the weather can do to impair their game.

Saskatchewan has a more balanced attack than Calgary, which leans almost entirely on the passing arm of Liske, but uses fullback George Reed as the bread-and-butter man in moving the ball.

Williams, Calgary coach, is looking for some way to overcome the almost disastrous loss of split end Terry Evanshen — who captured about every pass-catching record available during the season—out with a broken left leg suffered in the third quarter Wednesday.

Wilbert Evanshen, Williams still has Herman Harrison, Lovell Coleman, Gerry Shaw, Bob McCarthy, Bob Parsmore and Frank Andruski as receivers. But none of the six is as much a threat as Evanshen—and the C.F.L.'s outstanding Canadian player.

Calgary won the opening game of the best-of-three series 15-11 in Calgary last Saturday and return home for Sunday's rubber match starting at 2 p.m. MST. It will be nationally televised by the CBC.

The winner moves on to the Grey Cup national final in Ottawa's Lansdowne Park Saturday, Dec. 2 against either Hamilton Tiger-Cats or Ottawa Rough Riders, who Saturday close out their Eastern Conference sudden-death final in Hamilton starting at 2 p.m. EST.

Baseball Deals

Angels Sign Canadian!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A young Canadian pitcher was signed with a bonus and some big names in the game changed teams as the baseball world swung into its off-season trading activity.

Gaetan Groleau, 20, leading pitcher in the Montreal Junior league for four years, went to California Angels for a $6,000 bonus.

Inter-league trading was highlighted by the news that Cincinnati Reds dealt outfielder Floyd Robinson and right-handed Ron Tompkins.

Robinson, 31, was acquired by the Reds from Chicago White Sox last year, but was hampered by injuries during the 1967 season and hit .238 as a reserve.

Osteen, 24, finished the year with Buffalo Bisons of the International League and had a 10-5 record.

Tompkins, 23, won 10 and lost nine at Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

Detroit Tigers completed their deal for Eddie Mathews last August by sending right-handed relief hurler Fred Glading to Houston Astros.

Cats' Big Problem A Little One; Riders Call Him Stewart!

HAMILTON (CP) — When coach Ralph Sazio of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is devising his defences for Saturday's Eastern Football Conference final against Ottawa Rough Riders, there is one player who must cause concern.

To stop quarterback Russ Jackson passing, he can throw out a solid rush from his front four and linebackers. To stop Bo Scott running he can trust in tackle John Barrow. To stymie the receiving of Margene Adkins and Whit Tucker he has some of the best backfielders in Canadian football.

But what do you do to handle the versatility of the smallest man in the Canadian league—Ron Stewart?

Not only does the five-foot-eight lawyer wearing No. 11 run and catch passes with outstanding expertise, he also blocks as well as a man who dwarf his stocky, 180-pound figure.

Toronto Argonauts concentrated their defences on Jackson, Adkins and Tucker in the sudden-death semi-final Nov. 12 in Ottawa and Stewart proved their error by catching passes for the Riders' first two touchdowns.

It hasn't been one of the great years for the 31-year-old, 10-year veteran, who holds a CFL record with 287 yards rushing in one game and was named outstanding player in the country in 1960—the same year he was named outstanding player of the Grey Cup game in Vancouver when Ottawa beat Edmonton Eskimos 16-6 for their last national championship.

But it was good enough for him to be Ottawa's second best rusher behind fullback Scott with 638 yards in 64 carries and hold the best rushing average in the conference—7.6 yards.

He also added 318 yards on 25 pass receptions for a 12.6-yard average, well behind the totals produced by Adkins and Tucker.

Saturday's game is the second of a total-point series with Hamilton holding an 11-3 edge following the opener in Ottawa last Sunday.

The 2 p.m. EST game will be televised nationally by the CTV network.

The Ticats have no thoughts of not trying to cover the fleet Queen's University graduate.

In fact, so great is their respect for him that Barrow, Hamilton defensive captain, says:

"He's the guy who makes their offence tick—next to Russ Jackson of course. He's the guy who makes your defence honest.

"You can't overlook someone else and leave him uncovered. Toronto did and he killed them.

"He can beat you running, receiving or blocking."

Something else he can do, although he hasn't had to since helping Queen's to intercollegiate championships in 1955, 1956 and 1957, is play defence.

Winner of the league scoring title for two years in succession, he passed the opportunity to take the all-time Queen's scoring championship by playing safety and fumble linebacker.

But those were the days when the university had to get Stewart's pants from a high school team because none they had were small enough.

His gate his uniform pants tailor made now as he does his boots, which despite their small size will be hard come to fill when he decides to hang them up.

Slush, Mud, Snow Hamper Riders!

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders hope to have half back Don Gilbert ready for Saturday's Eastern Football Conference playoff against Hamilton Tiger-Cats but coach Frank Clair is not sure about fullback Rick Black.

"Black's looking stronger in practice but he's been out a long time," Clair said Thursday. "We'll have to wait until the last minute before making a decision."

Gilbert started against Hamilton in the opener of the two-game, total-point final last Sunday but a sore ankle forced him to the sidelines late in the game.

Black, a Halifax native who started the season at fullback, has been out since the middle of September with a shoulder injury. He was rengged from the injury reserves list but did not dress for Sunday's game which Hamilton won 11-3 to take an eight-point lead in the series.

Defensive halfback Don Sutherin will miss Saturday's game, "although he says he wants to play. He suffered two broken ribs while returning a punt in Sunday's game.

He will be replaced by veteran Larry DeGraw, who has been out of the last two seasons on the bench.

Meanwhile, weather has continued to hamper Ottawa's practice sessions. Last week, it was snow, and earlier this week there was more snow. But a combination of rain and warm weather produced a lot of slush and mud Thursday.

The Riders got permission to use the regular Lansdowne Park field for a workout Wednesday, rolling back a section of the plastic tarp so they could get a decent footing to practice pass patterns.

The Riders worked out on the regular field again Thursday.

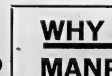
Lansdowne Park still has one more football game scheduled this season—the Dec. 2 Grey Cup final—and workmen still are working to improve the playing surface of the field.

"We need some dry weather and wind to dry out the field," one member of the ground crew said Thursday. "Just a couple of days would make a big difference."

The field was resodded two weeks ago for the EFC semi-final against Toronto Argonauts but rain during the game offset much of the improvement.

Tight Tilts In Gas House Loop

Marysville and the Fire Fighters battled to a thrilling 4-4 deadlock while Mulroney's Sunoco downed the Mustangs 8-3 in Gas House Hockey League action last night.



Mulroney's jumped into a 3-0 lead and stayed out front as Doug Bolte scored twice, W. Waite, Court Brailey and S. Craig once each. T. Gay, Craig Bolte and J. Hill had helpers.

Mustangs did make it a tight 4-3 affair on goals by T. Woodley, D. Holloway and J. Hughes. J. Garvin assisted on two.

Marysville led the Fire Fighters by a goal three times but on each occasion the Redskirts came back and finally went ahead 4-3 before D. Murray potted the last equalizer.

Paul Fleming, H. Pearce and Carm Milligan were the other Marysville marksmen. R. Summers and C. Milligan each drew two assists and Murray one.

Davis scored two, R. Mambert and R. Brooks fewer for the Firemen. P. Soule helped on two, Patterson, B. Lloyd and R. Ellis on one each.

Oil Kings Bow To Flyers 7-4

CFB Flyers fired five consecutive goals over the last two periods to dethrone the Belleville Oil Kings 7-4 in an OHA Intermediate 'B' Hockey League game in Trenton last night.

Trenton opened the game scoring after just 20 seconds but by period's end the Oil Kings were in front 4-2.

Legrand struck quickly for the Flyers, scoring at the 11 second mark, with Cilben at 16:10 and St. Pierre at 17:12 shoving the home club into a 5-4 lead.

Cilben and Toupin sewed up the decision at 12:10 and 19:34 of the final period to complete the comeback. Toupin had fired the game's initial goal as well and Cilben began his three-goal performance with the other first-period Flyer tally.

Gerry Jones, Hylie Bryant, Carl Boonshower and Jimmy Woodcock were the only Belleville players to beat the CFB goalie, despite a 46-43 shot-on-goal margin for the losers in the wide-open affair.

The same two clubs go back at each other, for the fourth consecutive time, in Trenton Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Meanwhile, Campbellford visits Picton for all other Sunday evening meeting.

Belvedere Shades Stinsons 4-3

Belvedere Hotel built a 4-1 lead and hung on to nudge past Stinson's Construction 4-3 in a Quinte Hockey League game last night.

Bill Vesterfiel, Larry Potter, Doug Hallam and Ray Lucas scored for the Hotelmen with E. Manion replying for Stinson's before the losers ripped back to make it close. Pete Mitchell and Don Forsythe scored the other Stinson tallies but that was it.

R. Nolan assisted on two of the winners' goals, D. Olsen and Ken Brooks on one-each. D. Bishop and L. McKibon gained two each, Forsythe and J. McKibbon losers in defeat.

The game was a chippy affair and among 15 penalties were a misconduct and a game misconduct to Stinson's G. Genereaux.

Beavers Change Mind!

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Sherbrooke Beavers reversed their decision to drop out of the Quebec Senior Hockey League in the light of a decision by league heads Thursday to revise the QSHL constitution.

The Beavers, along with Drummondville Eagles, had served notice earlier in the week that they intended to drop out of the league. The Eagles have since returned to the fold.

Len O'Donnell, QSHL president, said following a league meeting that a three-man committee consisting of himself, Beavers president Camille Messara and Michel Poitier, president of St. Hyacinthe Gaulois, had been formed to undertake revision of the constitution.

O'Donnell said four of the major points of consideration in a new constitution would be the matter of reinstated professionals which led to the Eagles' and Beavers' original decision to quit the league.

The present constitution does not allow for reinstated pros to perform for any club until the player has remained out of hockey for one year.

With The Trotters

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Caribbean Song staged a comeback in the sixth race at Mohawk Raceway Thursday night to nip favorite Dr. Jamie at the wire and win the $1,500 feature trot.

Caribbean Song surged ahead in the final quarter of the mile test to pull in front of Dr. Jamie and Billy Hall, who led for most of the race.

The five-year-old stallion paid $23.20 for the win and combined with Dr. Jamie for a $59.70 exacta.

Genesace Ann won the first race and Dale Lind the second for a daily double of $27.70.

Death Penalty Ban Is Approved in Principle

THE PICK OF Punch

"All of a sudden my spelling's busy! Are you trying to tell me something?"

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs who 15 months ago rejected total abolition of the death penalty Thursday gave second reading to a bill to limit capital punishment to slayers of police and prison guards for a five-year trial period.

While the principle of the bill was approved, a number of attempts to amend it began immediately and it had to go to third reading. An NDP amendment aimed at total abolition among those turned down.

The bill will be brought before the Commons again next week for third reading and must also receive Senate passage before it becomes law.

Supported by many as a compromise move towards total abolition, it may in effect re-activate the gallows—unused in Canada since two killers were hanged in Toronto Dec. 11, 1962.

Byrne Mackasey (Scarborough) said the cabinet now will be morally obligated to apply the law to killers of police and prison guards.

"If the death sentence for such a killer does not include a recommendation for mercy, the cabinet will be morally obliged to carry out the sentence," he said.

The abolitionist Liberal cabinet has committed every sentence to come before it since April, 1963, when the government was elected.

This has included the cases of Georges Marcotte, 20-year-old chicken-gunned two St. Laurent, Que., policeman during a bank robbery, and Reginald Colpitts, who stabbed to death a guard at Dorchester Penitentiary.

Justice Minister Trudeau said the cabinet will retain its prerogative to commute in such cases but it will be up to the public to exercise "freely" if Parliament passes the new bill.

This was one reason he favored complete abolition.

Currently 17 men are on death row, none for killing police or prison workers.

Both abolitionists and retentionists have attacked the logic of the bill, although its principle was accepted 114 to 87 in the three readings.

In support were 81 Liberals, 19 NDP members and 15 Conservatives. Voting against were 56 Conservatives, 23 Liberals, four Créditistes, three Social Credit MPs and independent Gilles Gregoire (Lapointe).

Opposition Leader Stanfield and his predecessor, John Diefenbaker, were among the prominent supporters. Prime Minister Pearson, another, was in England Thursday.

The only cabinet member to oppose the bill was State Secretary Judy LaMarsh.

However, a number of doubts about it because almost during clause-by-clause study.

The bill substitutes life in prison for a death sentence in cases of murder but those involving:

—A police officer, police constable, constable, sheriff, deputy sheriff, sheriff's officer or other person employed for the preservation and maintenance of the public peace, acting in the course of his duties, or —A warden, deputy warden, instructor, keeper, jailer, guard or other officer or permanent employee of a prison, acting in the course of his duties."

Anyone counselling or assisting such a murder also would be liable to the death penalty.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto-Greenwood) said the bill is both "illogical and wrong" to retain the gallows to protect one class of citizen.

He moved the amendment for total abolition and it was defeated by a vote of 126 to 87. The supporters were 79 New Democrats, 15 Conservatives and five Liberals.

Also defeated were amendments by Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) to retain the gallows for killers of children, and by Eldon Woolliams (PC—New River) to retain it for killers of women.

Another change proposed by Mr. Woolliams would have extended the death penalty to killers of anyone aiding police on duty. It also was rejected.

'Amateur' Tennis Bald Lie

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The world's title in Hypocrisy has long been held — rightly or wrongly — by the British. For centuries other European nations have considered them the less spotless — sanctimonious knaves.

But the Americans are moving right up there into first place. Last month, the British Lawn Tennis Association recommended that professionals as well as amateurs be allowed to play in all British tennis tournaments, including Wimbledon.

This is the first time a tennis body of national stature has tried to rip off the veil of "shamateurism" in world tennis. Unlike golf or many other sports, tennis is rigidly divided into "professional" and "amateur" classes, which may not compete with one another.

But everybody knows that "amateur" tennis is a bald lie. The so-called amateurs often do better than the pros: Their expenses and undercable money can amount to more than the pros make honestly, and such expense "reimbursements" aren't even taxable.

The U.S. Lawn Tennis Association, however, has been the most adamant enforcer of the world federation in opposing "open" tournaments, and in sustaining the hypocritical fiction of "amateurism" in tennis.

Their open mouths preach "purity," and their closed eyes overlook the heavy subsidization of the amateur field.

As Herman Davis, chairman of the All-England Club, bluntly put it in announcing an "open" Wimbledon for 1968: "Everyone knows that amateurs are earning their livings from the game and, frankly, earning them dishonestly. The only straight people left in lawn tennis are the professionals, who earn their money honestly and openly."

Of all games, tennis purports to be the most chivalrous, honorable and courteous; and if any game is designed to build character in young people, it is tennis. Yet cynicism sets in at an early age, when the aspiring young tennist sees that his amateur standing is under-pinned by lush living, rich perquisites, and undercover payments.

The men who have long controlled the game in America are a pompous and pretentious lot, who like to think of tennis as a closed corporation, operating for the pride and pleasure of "our sort." But "our sort" has ill-treated the game, and hindered its popularity far more than helping it. The false country-club aura with which they have surrounded the game makes it anathema to millions of potential players.

Golf was once a "class" game, but it did not flourish and capture the imagination of the American people until it was democratized. In my view it is not one-tenth as exciting or challenging as tennis, but has a hundred times more players and spectators — and supporters.

Manitoba PCs to Bid Roblin Farewell

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Conservatives bid farewell to Duff Roblin tonight, clearing the stage for the new leader they plan to elect in a one-day convention Saturday.

More than 1,500 of the party faithful, paying $7 each for "dinner with Duff," will attend the testimonial which pays for the party's first leadership race in 13 years. A similar number of delegates and observers are expected for the voting Saturday, causing Conservative President Campbell McLean to predict that it will be the biggest provincial leadership convention in the party's history.

"When Duff Roblin was elected leader, we had trouble filling the hall," he says. "This time, we're having trouble finding a building big enough for the dinner."

There are 474 authorized delegates and 382 alternatives registered for the convention although last-minute adjustments may be made until 11 a.m. Saturday. The list is comprised of five delegates from each of the 57 constituencies, 148 executive officers and other designates, 10 members of Parliament and 31 members of the Manitoba legislature.

Mr. Roblin, a loser in the national Conservative leadership race in September, will make his last official appearance as party leader tonight although he is expected to watch his four cabinet ministers battle for his job.

They are: Attorney-General Sterling Lyon, 46; Highways Minister Walter Weir, 32; Provincial Secretary S. Stewart McLean, 58; and Education Minister George Johnson, 47.

All have been campaigning quietly across the province for the job that automatically carries with it the premiership of the province.

Balloting is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p.m. CST Saturday with three voting machines expected to be used.

To win, the candidate has to have 50 per cent of the vote plus one. The low man is dropped on each vote which could mean that three ballots will be required to declare a winner.

On that basis, the Conservative executive have scheduled a full slate of ballots and expect the new leader—and premier—to be declared by 5 p.m.

Penalty For Slowness

Speed Up Golf Gals!

TORONTO (CP)—You can still blame a woman for taking 47-odd out of the fairway, but you can't criticize her for slow play next season.

The Canadian Ladies' Golf Association Thursday put a time limit on rounds next year —a maximum 3½ hours for twosomes and four hours for threesomes and foursomes.

"We haven't decided what the penalty will be," said Ruth Fawcett, named chairman of the CLGA's administration committee at the group's annual meeting.

She is the wife of Phil Farley, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

The rule book calls for a two-stroke penalty to any player or group of players found guilty of slow play.

The association also adopted the rule of men's golf that players must put out consecutively on reaching the green.

Mrs. H. Lindsey Monsells of Montreal's Kanawaki Golf Club was elected president, succeeding Mrs. J. W. A. Mackenzie of Saskatoon.

Raiders Whip Chiefs

Hayes' Three TD's Crush Cardinals

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanks to Dallas' Bob Hayes and Oakland's stingy defense, the Cowboys and Raiders used the U.S. Thanksgiving Day to move closer to a meeting Christmas and a happy New Year.

Hayes raced to three long-yardage touchdowns that sparked the Cowboys to a 46-21 victory over St. Louis Cardinals Thursday night and semi them nearer the National Football League's Capital Division title and a holiday season shot at the NFL championship and Super Bowl.

And at Kansas City, Oakland intercepted four passes and returned two for touchdowns and clobbered Kansas City Chiefs 44-22, enhancing the Raiders' chances of replacing the Chiefs as champions of the American League's Western Division by Christmas and as AFL champs by New Year's Day.

Oakland, 9-1, still has one major obstacle in the West, San Diego Chargers, 8-1-1, who also have visions of titles after sinking Denver Broncos 34-30 in San Diego.

Los Angeles Rams, another NFL hopeful in the Coastal Division, kept after Baltimore by belting Detroit Lions 21-7 in Detroit in the other Thanksgiving Day game.

Dallas retained at least a two-game lead over Philadelphia and Washington with the Eagles playing at New York Sunday and the Redskins at Cleveland. The Rams sit a half-game behind Baltimore, which invades San Francisco.

US College Football

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Edd Hargett pushed Texas A and M into the Cotton Bowl Thursday with an 80-yard touchdown toss to Bob Long in the last quarter that enabled the Aggies to defeat rival Texas 19-7 in U.S. college football.

While the Aggies wrapped up the Southwest Conference title, Orange Bow-bound Oklahoma won its first Big Eight Football crown outright in five years with a come-from-behind 21-14 triumph over Nebraska.

In the only other major games on a light U.S. Thanksgiving Day college schedule, Virginia Military upset Virginia Tech 12-10 and Toledo, the Mid-American Conference co-champion, trounced visiting Villanova 52-6.

Hargett millimbered his arm from his own 20 and Long caught the pass at the Texas 36 and carried a Longhorn defender over the goal to give the Aggies their first SWC championship in 11 years and send them against Alabama New Year's Day.

Negro Athletes

May Boycott Olympics!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A boycott of the 1968 Olympic Games by leading U.S. college Negro athletes was threatened today, and a young professor said it will be carried out.

"This country is not for us," asserted Harry Edwards of San Jose State College in announcing unanimous approval of his plan at a meeting attended by 200 young Negroes.

Outside the South-Central Los Angeles Church, where the three-day Black Youth Conference was taking place Thursday, violence erupted between a Black Power group and a small leftist band of pickets shouting obscenities and yelling such taunts as, "Bourgeois Negroes."

One man was cut severely on the face, another shot in the wrist.

Edwards said 30 amateur sports figures attended and endorsed the Olympic walkout.

Among them are Lew Alcindor and Mike Warren, basketball stars of the University of California at Los Angeles, and Tommie Smith and Lee Evans of the world-record mile relay team from San Jose State.

Edwards said the group also included Otis Burrell, former Nevada high jumper, UCLA hurdler Ron Copeland and Hal Griffin, UCLA football player. In addition, he said he has communicated with athletes throughout the Western states and they will "go along."

College Bowl Game

Marauders Seek Revenge

TORONTO (CP) — McMaster University Marauders lose defence of the year came in a pre-season exhibition football game with the University of Alberta Golden Bears.

After going through the Central Intercollegiate conference and the Atlantic Bowl last week ended undefeated, the Marauders have their first opportunity to avenge that 11-1 setback Saturday when they meet the Golden Bears at Varsity Stadium in the third annual College Bowl game.

But coach Jack Kennedy is faced with the almost formidable task of operating without fullback John Watson, a key performer in the Marauders' winning season.

The son of pro wrestler Whip-per Watson, he was injured late in the year and missed the final game. McMaster's subsequent seven-game schedule and last week's 7-6 win over St. Francis Xavier at Halifax.

The Marauders also will be without halfback Paul Hendson, who suffered torn knee ligaments in last Saturday's game with St. F.X.

Coach Clare Drake of Alberta has Hi new players on his 32-man club from the team that defeated Mac last year's bid for the game to the University of Manitoba Bisons.

Saturday's game at Varsity Stadium, scheduled for 1 p.m. EST, is expected to attract upwards of 20,000 fans with 10,000 already reported sold for the 21,000-seat stadium.

Horses Sell For Record $100,225

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Standardbred Horse Society completed its annual two-day auctions Thursday with a record gross total of $100,225 realized for the 206 horses sold.

Ali Vigna, a Glencoe, Ont. native recently returned to the Canadian harness race scene after some 25 years on New England racecourses, paid the second day's highest price when he spent $2,500 on Hesadam Pick, three-year-old son of Easy Adios, sire of such noted United States campaigners as Easy Prom and Midnight Fire.

Top price the first day was the $5,200 Bruce Smith of Toronto to spent for a yearling full brother to Smith's successful $100,000-plus winner, Dancing Song A.

Sale for $75 of a 19-year-old farmer-horseman originally bought Blossom Chief at a Kentucky auction for Creighton Mineral Trophy tonight at the Chicago College Bowl's third annual dinner.

To Your Good Health

Innocents May Have Baggy Eyes

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes bags under the eyes? Is there any treatment? I am 23 and in reasonably good condition but take medicines for gout and high blood pressure.

I am seeking civilian employment after 23 years of military service and am beginning to think I am handicapped by the impression people gather from my appearance. One prospective employer actually told me that my appearance was disapproved because the interviewer felt the condition might have been caused by years of entombed dissipation. — K.D.H.

The specific cause of bags under the eyes in the skin is very thin there. The sagginess can occur simply because of the wrinkling and stretching of the skin as we grow older. More usually, however, it is because of fluid accumulating in the tissues (which can come from quite a number of causes) and since the skin is thin, the swelling from the gathering of fluid shows easily.

Let's admit that "enthusiastic dissipation" can cause fluid accumulation and hence bags under the eyes, but there is enough innocent suspicion for the condition that the interviewer was doing a lot of bungling to conclusions when he turned you down for the job.

In women, bags under the eyes can come and go, the area becoming swollen from fluid retention before menstrual periods, then sagging afterwards. But as you can testify, men can have eyebags, too, because there are varied reasons for fluid retention.

My suggestion is to talk this over with your doctor. Your blood pressure may (or may not) have something to say with some underlying condition causing fluid retention. Depending on his findings, perhaps he can do something to help.

You might also discuss with him the advisability of plastic surgery. This has been performed successfully to take up some of the slack skin below the eyes. It is entirely possible that your doctor, instead of trying to decide yes or no, will want you to see a plastic surgeon who, after seeing you, can judge whether such surgery would help you enough to be warranted.

I cannot see why the gout medication should play any part in your problem.

Dear Dr. Molner: Our little grandchild has a place her leg called granuloma annulare. The doctor says it is very rare but will go away on its own.

What causes it? How long will it take for it to go away? It seems to be getting larger. — Mrs. C.L.

This is a rare skin disorder and cause not known. It usually affects children. It is known to disappear after removal of all of the tissue for a biopsy. There is no modern treatment. X-ray or cortisone ointment have many hasten improvement.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter has had a laryngitis and cyst on her throat for quite a while. Now serious is it if it is not operated on? — D.C.

Surgical removal is the only way of correcting this. If it is benign, the cyst can become infected, or may rupture at the skin surface resulting in a chronic draining or discharge.

Estates General Sees Split Between Quebecers and Rest

MONTREAL (CP) — A tide of French-Canadian nationalism swept through discussions Thursday of a private constitutional forum known as the Estates General of French Canada.

More than 1,500 French-speaking Canadians spent the first day of the four-day meeting in several discussion groups considering problems of "la nation canadienne française."

And today approval is expected for a resolution endorsing "the right to self-determination of the French-Canadian nation."

About the only cross-current evident Thursday came from French-speaking Canadians from outside Quebec, whose opinions often clashed with those of French-speaking Quebecers.

Resolutions adopted in preliminary study groups Thursday included:

—A proposal to boot out English as an official language of Quebec and make French the only official language. Radical legislation was urged to impose French as the language of work.

—A proposal to grant the province exclusive jurisdiction over broadcasting and to set up a state broadcasting system to be known as Radio-Quebec.

These resolutions will be studied further in workshops today before consideration in general assembly Saturday and Sunday.

The Estates General, modelled on an ancient constitution-making institution from France, was assembled with Quebec government aid to study the constitution.

Organizers say most of the more-than-2,000 Quebec delegates are members of a great variety of private associations such as the St. Jean Baptiste Society.

The Quebec delegation, for example, includes 109 delegates from credit unies and co-operatives, 98 from labor unions and 12 from religious associations.

Occupations, for example, include 281 laborers, 93 farmers, 83 civil servants, 64 lawyers, 25 doctors and a host of teachers and students.

The 400 delegates from outside Quebec come as representatives of French-Canadian associations in the Maritimes, Ontario and the West.

Prof. Jacques-Yvan Morin, president of the Estates General, says it's natural that the non-Quebecers clash with the Quebecers.

He said in his opening speech Thursday that Quebecers concentrate on greater government power for Quebec while French-Canadians outside Quebec rely more on the federal government.

The clash showed up in a study group on broadcasting Thursday when Quebec and non-Quebec delegates bickered over whether or not Quebec is a state.

Quebecers wanted to begin resolutions by saying "l'état de Quebec," but French-speaking Canadians from outside Quebec wanted to say simply "le Quebec."

Tempers flared during a 35-minute debate. A sample of the discussion:

"When you talk about France you say 'la France.' When you talk about Quebec why don't you say 'le Quebec?'

An answer came shooting back: "Because Quebec isn't a country, but it soon will be."

Rev. Albert Regimbal of Sudbury protested at one point:

"We don't want to be treated like a group of Italians. We are at home here. We are not just another ethnic group."

He was trying without much success to get some information on the effect of the proposed Radio-Quebec on CBC French-language broadcasting when he made the comment.

Rev. Norman Cooke, missionary from Egypt, will speak at the Sunday morning service at the Centennial Free Methodist Church on Avondale Rd. When World War II was over and Norman was released from the Armed Forces, he went to college and earned his B.A., and B.D. degrees. Then he went to Egypt to engage in missionary work. A sister, wife of Rev. Lorne Keamy, and a sister, Mildred, a missionary nurse, were already there. Norman has given his life to the preaching and the training of native preachers in Egypt. He had returned on furlough before the war broke out last June where all missionaries were forced to leave. It has an interesting message.

Quebec Separatists Consider Amalgamation

PARIS (Reuters)—Talks aimed at combining two leading separatist movements in Quebec to capture 25 per cent of the province's votes are currently going on, separatist leader Pierre Bourgault said in a newspaper interview published Thursday.

Bourgault, president of Rassemblement pour l'Independence nationale, told the left-wing newspaper Combat he recently met Rene Levesque to discuss fusion of his party with the Ralliement party.

Levesque, a former Quebec cabinet minister, left the Liberal partyp after proposing sovereignty for Quebec with a Common Market arrangement with the rest of Canada.

Together, the separatist movements would win 25 per cent of the province's votes, Bourgault said. Deadline for the continuing talks was fixed in seven or eight months time.

Outlining his party program, Bourgault said he had no intention of nationalising existing industries.

"There is no cause for fear. I am talking about nationalizing Quebec's economic potential. not what already exists."

But he added "we will take over some areas of the public services, the telephone companies for example."

Fund-raising Campaigns Go 'Over the Top'

TRENTON — Two fund-raising campaigns have been declared unqualified successes by their respective organizers.

Final results for this year's Firemen's Muscular Dystrophy drive show a "best-ever" total of $470.

Fireman Dennis Smith, chairman of the 1967 campaign, said most of the amount was raised in about five hours of street canvassing, with about $70 being collected in canisters placed in downtown stores.

One canister cannot be accounted for, he said.

And the annual Victorian Order of Nurses tea was netted nearly $2,000 — $1,200 door-to-door, and another $755 by mail.

The V.O.N. campaign covers Trenton proper, Middleton Park and Batawa.

Greeks Lose Red Support

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The United Nations Security Council appealed today to Cyprus, Greece and Turkey to refrain from any action that might lead to war in the eastern Mediterranean.

It issued a unanimous request to "all the parties" after the Cyprus Delegate Zenon Rossides told an emergency Security Council session Turkey plans to invade Cyprus this weekend.

Turkey ignored repeated Cypriot appeals to renounce any intention of invading the island, where more than 20 Turkish-Cypriots were killed in bitter communal clashes with Greek-Cypriots last week.

Rossides said the council appeal early today averted "the danger which was threatening my country."

Not all diplomats were convinced the danger was past, but most acknowledged that the council had at least won a breathing spell to permit further efforts by special emissaries to calm the situation.

During the council debate, Russia made a political about-face from the position it took in previous discussions of the Cyprus situation.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko turned bitterly on the Greek government and asserted that Turkey had taken "certain measures" to protect its own interests.

No formal resolution was passed but the council unanimously endorsed a statement read by its president, Mamadu Kante of Mali, which also backed peace efforts by Secretary General U Thant.

Appealing for "utmost restraint," U Thant warned Friday night that "Greece and Turkey are at the brink of war over Cyprus."

He sent one of his undersecretaries, Jose Rolz-Bennett, to the area with messages for the three heads of government.

The council action came after a three-hour recess in the debate during which members explored privately on how to deal with the problem. Rossides asked for a resolution to protect Cyprus and everyone.

The recess was called for 30 minutes, but it was prolonged by difficulties over the formulation of the peace appeal.

Greece, Turkey Both Possess American Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Following is a rundown on comparative military strengths of Greece and Turkey, opponents in the Cyprus crisis:

Turkish Army — Nearly 400,000 men in 14 divisions.

Greek Army — Nearly 120,000 men in 11 infantry divisions.

Artillery — Both armies have American-made 105-millimetre and 155-millimetre howitzers.

Tanks — Both countries have M-47 and M-48 medium tanks.

Turkish Air Force—About 450 combat planes.

Greek Air Force — About 250 warplanes.

Both countries have American-built warplanes, including the F-5 Freedom Fighter.

Both have American-made anti-aircraft missile batteries.

Turkish Navy — Nearly 40,000 men and more than 70 vessels.

Greek Navy — More than 15,000 men and more than 80 vessels.

Both Greece and Turkey are sustained by U.S. military aid.

Sunday Drive Feared

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek-Cypriot government put the country on a war footing today as peacemakers worked to head off a clash between the armies of Greece and Turkey. The island's United Nations delegate said the Turks planned to invade by Sunday.

"It is the knowledge of all governments that this weekend has been fixed for the invasion," Cypriot Ambassador Zenon Rossides told the UN Security Council in New York.

Reserve officers of the 10,000-man Greek-Cypriot national guard were called to duty Friday night amid increasing tension. Bomb blasts rocked Greek communities in three sectors of the island and police called the explosions the work of Turkish saboteurs.

In Ankara, Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel called his war policy board, the National Security Council, into a morning session today, but there was no indication of what would be discussed.

Canada, backed by Britain and the United States, has been pushing a peace plan for Cyprus that would entail wider powers for the UN force on the island and a cut in the numbers of both Greek and Turkish forces there. The proposal has been pushed through diplomatic channels since the Cyprus crisis began.

Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, arrived in Athens after both Greece and Turkey agreed to accept his good offices as NATO allies.

Joao Dias-Bennett, a special UN representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Man Found Dead In Car in Trent

GLEN MILLER — Police and rescue crews worked for nearly three hours last night to free a dead man from an automobile which plunged into the Trent River here minutes after it was involved in a hit-and-run accident.

Killed when the car plunged off Highway 33 was Maurice Chainey Spence, 24, of Batawa, who emigrated only a few weeks ago from Scotland.

Hundreds of spectators lined the highway as provincial police, firemen and skin divers worked to retrieve the automobile with a mobile crane.

The car's fatal plunge was discovered by the crew of an OPP cruiser which was seeking an automobile following a hit-and-run accident.

Minutes before, say police, a car driven by Donald Drury of

Port of Montreal Virtually Paralyzed

MONTREAL (CP) — The port of Montreal lay at virtual paralysis today and no remedy could be found to breathe life back into the normally-bustling waterfront.

The harbor came to a standstill Thursday night after a two-week dispute between the International Longshoremen's Association and the Shipping Federation of Canada over interpretation of a federal inquiry report which enforced new working conditions on St. Lawrence River ports.

Montreal's harbor master reported Friday night that 36 ships were caught in the tieup and none was being loaded or unloaded by the 3,000 longshoremen who ordinarily handle the task.

Cargo handling in two other main St. Lawrence River ports —Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City—was continuing although at a slower-than-normal pace.

The last gang of longshoremen to report for duty was dismissed Friday morning, ending all waterfront work. The dismissals followed charges by the shipping federation that longshoremen were deliberately slowing down cargo handling.

A union move to get a provisional court order to make the ship owners rehire the discharged longshoremen was taken under advisement in Montreal Superior Court Friday.

Mr. Justice G. M. Desaulniers announced after a four-hour session with opposing lawyers that he was taking the case "under advisement," and would render his judgment "with all possible despatch."

The Canard liner Carmania sailed Friday from Montreal, carrying back to Southampton large cargo items, including automobiles, belonging to passengers who disembarked Thursday and Friday.

The liner will not be returning here during the winter months and the stranded cargo will have to be placed aboard another ship bound for Montreal.

J. M. McAvity, president of the Canada Export Association, sent a telegram to Labor Minister Nicholson calling the dispute an "emergency situation," and the Montreal Chamber of Commerce urged federal government intervention to avert "serious consequences."

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association said the shutdown of the port is fast becoming a national emergency.

Gold Orders From All Over World Reach Near Panic Level

LONDON (AP) — London gold dealers report buying orders are "arriving in "near panic" proportions from all over the world, touched off by Britain's devaluation of the pound.

British financial writers cast French President de Gaulle as the villain whipping on speculators in hopes of ruining the U.S. dollar and making gold the No. 1 international currency.

Neither the U.S. treasury nor financial experts elsewhere joined in the finger-pointing. However, in Paris Alain Chalandon, an influential Gaullist deputy in the National Assembly, said the gold run was "not the fault of the French government" but could be traced simply to private buyers who mistrust the present world financial setup.

France did help to spur the bullion flurry, however, by announcing it again would demand U.S. gold for its dollar earnings.

Normal turnover on the London exchange, which handles the bulk of European gold business, is about six tons a day, although the exact figures are kept secret. More than 100 tons of the metal were sold Friday and record sales were chalked up in Paris and Zurich.

Two Reasons for Gold Buying

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

International speculators, scurrying for gold as a bulwark against possible further international currency troubles, are putting what may be unprecedented pressure on both the fixed price of the metal and the United States dollar.

Financial sources say the strong demand for gold comes basically from two potential developments.

First, there is a growing belief that the price of gold will be increased by the U.S. So buying would make holdings more valuable in the future.

Secondly, if the U.S. is forced to devalue its dollar, gold would be the last stable monetary force in a world that would become chaotic while international trading adjusted to the new circumstances.

If the U.S. were to devalue its dollar, almost all non-communist countries would almost certainly follow suit. Otherwise they would face the threat of being overwhelmed " by U.S. trade competition.

Canada's Banks Report Booming Gold Business

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's chartered banks did a booming business in gold Friday as investors jammed telephone lines and lined up at bank counters to buy it as a bulwark against devalued currencies.

Officials at the Toronto - Dominion Bank said they had traded about $1,000,000 worth of gold and had orders for another $1,000,000 which they were going to the open market to fill.

"Our traders were swamped with calls," "In official said.

Toronto - Dominion officials said they had gone to the Bank of Nova Scotia, Canada's large gold-supply bank, to fill some orders Friday, and to the market for others.

The Bank of Nova Scotia said an unusual number of people appeared at its Toronto head office to buy gold because of the run on the metal in Europe.

A bank official said a lineup started at the office's gold counter as the bank opened its doors and remained through the day. Business was so brisk the gold counter took its phone off the hook. This made it impossible for would-be gold buyers in Belleville and elsewhere to get their orders filled. "At the speak there were about 30 or 25 people in the lineup, but it has varied through the day, depending on when they could get in."

Africans Force Mediation on Nigeria

LAGOS (AP) — The head of Nigeria's federal regime, Maj.-Gen. Yakubo Gowon, apparently is going to get some help as doesn't want from the Organization of African Unity toward resolving the civil war in Nigeria.

An OAU delegation of four African heads-of-state, led by Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, has persuaded the Nigerians to accept Lt.-Gen. Joseph A. Ankrah of Ghana as a go-between with the secessionist Biafrans of Nigeria's Eastern region.

"Your mission is not here to mediate," Gowon first told the four leaders.

Now, however, Ankrah is to discuss Gowon's position with Biafran leader C. Odumegwu Ojukwu on a radiotelephone link from Accra, Ghana.

"He is only supposed to relay what was said at the meeting," said one African diplomat Friday, "You can bet he will do more than that."

Thus the prediction Gowon did not want it under way. Ankrah is to talk to the Biafrans by Monday at the latest.

Three Hour Job To Recover Car

Frankford was struck in the rear on Highway 33 and received about $75 damage.

The second car left the scene, heading north. Police said Mr. Drury spotted the cruiser from Brighton OPP detachment parked at the nearby Macdonald-Cartier Freeway overpass and reported the mishap.

The cruiser crew took off in search of the second automobile and minutes later an officer spotted broken guide posts flanking the river bank and tire tracks leading into the Trent.

One of the officers spotted the car on its side about a foot underwater and leapt on top of it in an attempt to open the door.

His attempt was foiled by the Trent's fast-running, cold water.

Provincial police from Belleville and firemen from Frankford, Trenton and Batawa rushed to the scene in response to the cruiser's emergency call.

Two skin divers were lowered into the water to retrieve the car and free the man's body.

A Brighton OPP officer said today police investigations later revealed that the car was the same vehicle involved in the hit-and-run mishap.

Missing Plane 'Perhaps' Stolen

TRENTON — A second search-rescue plane was to leave the Canadian Forces base here today and up an search headquarters at Port Arthur as the hunt goes on for a plane missing in the Northern Ontario wilderness.

The plane — a single-engine Cessna — was done in bush country about 30 miles north of Port Arthur with one man aboard.

A search and rescue unit spokesman said the plane, possibly stolen from the Port Arthur Flying Club, was plotted on radar for about one hour and 15 minutes before "fading off."

A weak radio transmission 25 minutes before the radar screens lost the plane said the pilot was going to try an emergency landing after running into a snow storm.

W.A. Shannon Again Reeve Of Marmora

William A. Shannon, reeve of Marmora village for more than the past decade and this year's Hastings county reeve, was re-elected for another term of office at that village's annual meeting yesterday — by acclamation as usual.

The only other nominee for the position, councillor Douglas Fraser declined to run against his long time reeve.

Hydro commissioner Ralph Neal also received acclamation but three could be as election for both council and for school board.

Nominated for the four council seats were Alex Fraser, William Monck, John Reynolds, and Thomas Smith, all members of this year's council, along with Peter Beare, Jack Godden and William Seagrove ville.

School board nominees (two to be elected) were Leith Stetson, Raymond Smith, Grant Airhart and Albert Gray.

THIS KEYBOARD makes the kind of music the modern businessman appreciates. Demonstrating data-processing machine at Loyalist community college's open house last night was computer operator-student Marilyn Vigodda. Judy Hebden was only one of scores of interested viewers.

Loyalist Opens Doors

Quiote residents got a close-up of the new look in local education last night.

More than 200 turned out at Centennial School as Loyalist community college opened its classroom doors to a curious public.

Decision to hold the open house was prompted by "many inquiries" about the college's function since Loyalist went into operation in early September, college governor Judge J. C. Anderson told the visitors assembled in the school auditorium.

"At time goes on this school is going to be a very important part of this area," he predicted.

Loyalist president Dr. J. K. Bradford, gave a visitors background on the college's organization, and noted the challenges met in fitting the institution into its temporary quarters at Centennial.

"I think you'll be intrigued by the way we have made use of all the available space."

Both students and staff could be proud of "putting the college on the map" so rapidly, said Dr. Bradford.

The visitors viewed a film on the new community college movement in Ontario before fanning through the class rooms to see the idea in operation.

Dr. Russell Scott Offers Self as 'People's' Mayor

Belleville needs a mayor who would represent ALL the people. Dr. Russell Scott as mayor would give the same full attention to the problems of home owners as to those of big business and all taxpayers would receive equal attention whether their difficulties be large or small.

As alderman for the past two years, Dr. Scott has won wide admiration for this policy which he would follow even more effectively as the "people's" mayor.

Dr. Scott is committed to progress . . . but with the taxpayer in mind! With his outstanding record of business and administrative ability he is capable of streamlining city hall to operate more efficiently and at less cost to the taxpayer. Routine city affairs could be speeded up in all departments thereby avoiding costly delays to home owners and others seeking city co-operation.

Dr. Scott is aware of the importance of increasing employment opportunities in the area and would do everything possible to bring new industry to Belleville. You can be sure that all industry, regardless of size or type, would be sought after and given his full support. He would also institute close liaison with federal and Ontario governments to enable the city to achieve needed expansion at a minimum of cost.

Recreation, recreation. Dr. Scott feels that there is a need for the establishment of neighborhood "friendship" parks for the benefit of our older citizens.

Belleville taxpayers should get what they pay for! At present there are maybe the salary of a city manager but are not receiving the full benefits of this man's training and ability. Dr. Scott would return the authority to the city manager — which he is being said to use — permitting in a more efficiently run city at no added expense.

Since the mayor of a city is elected by its citizens, it is the mayor's responsibility to conduct city affairs in their best interests as voted for him, the people. Dr. Scott would follow this policy so that all citizens would receive equal consideration with favoritism towards none.

Association Adopts New Constitution

The organizational meeting of the Bay of Quinte Health and Physical Education Association was held at B.C.I.V.S. on Monday, November 20. A constitution was adopted, officers were elected and committees were set up.

Members of the association are from the public and secondary schools in the area and also people in recreational work. New members are welcome.

New Headquarters Acquired For Greatly Increased Staff

After about 20 years in their present quarters at 63 West Moira Street under increasingly crowded conditions, the Hastings County Children's Aid Society early next year will move to new and larger quarters.

About the middle of January the Society with its 28 member staff will move to 311 Front Street, where it will occupy the second and third floors of the building formerly occupied by the Federal Income Tax Department.

The new quarters with 8,000 square feet will have at least six times the floor area of the present accommodation on Moira Street where the Society moved back in 1947.

At that time the CAS had a staff of eight. Now there is a staff of 18 case workers, four department heads, and five office staff in addition to local director, Bruce Kerr.

And within the past two years Society offices have been opened in Trenton and in Bancroft.

For several years the local CAS has been pressing for more office space and with the decision a year or so ago to go ahead with the proposed regional jail at Napanee it was felt the problem was solved.

The suggestion was for the County of Hastings to rent the present county jail when this building was no longer required and erect a new composite building to house the CAS, the county health unit and certain other county offices.

But the proposed new regional jail got bogged down with cost estimates much greater than was originally estimated and despite the fact that full costs are now to be borne by the province, final plans have still to be approved.

The sad result was that the Children's Aid Society could no longer wait for the county to provide the new accommodation and was forced to go ahead on its own and seek out the badly needed increased office space.

Arrange for Children To Talk to Santa by Phone

Santa Claus is making himself available to talk with Belleville youngsters on the telephone.

Arrangements were completed recently by the city's recreation committee to place the long distance calls to Santa — free of charge.

A three minute station to station call at Santa's home at the North Pole usually costs about $5 but Bell telephone have waived the charges for kiddies who call on Dec. 4, 5, 6, or 7 between six and eight o'clock in the evening.

Recreation committee official, Lloyd Doran, said this morning he had a difficult time setting-up the arrangements.

"I had to visit Santa Claus personally and this meant a trip of several thousand miles to the North Pole," he said.

"Let me tell you that's a difficult trip. I flew to Inuvik in the North West Territories and from there went by dog sled to the pole.

"When I arrived at Santa's workshop he was tied-up with the elves in his workshop but found some time to talk with me. It didn't take long to convince him he should talk with the youngsters."

After a rough trip back to Belleville — he encountered a snow storm in Inuvik — Mr. Doran was able to convince the telephone company that they should place the calls free of charge.

Mr. Doran said today it is imperative youngsters return card handed out in the schools stating the time they want to call Santa. Those without cards should write Santa Claus Telephone Station, North Pole, Belleville Ontario, give the time they want to talk with Santa.

"The cards will not be accepted after Thursday, Nov. 30, so write soon."

Santa will send letters to all the boys and girls who make the telephone call.

He was warden of the county in 1965.

Lapierre Says Talks Worthless

BRIGHTON — Laurier Lapierre, the former co-host of This Hour Has Seven Days received a resounding ovation at the conclusion of his remarks to a capacity crowd of over 500 here last night. Mr. Lapierre delivered the second in a series of centennial lectures scheduled for presentation in the auditorium of the East Northumberland secondary school.

Engaged now as a history professor at McGill University and federal NDP candidate for the riding of Lachine, Quebec, Mr. Lapierre said French and English-speaking Canadians, by forgetting the past and building the future could bring about national unity.

In the process he suggested the constitution be redrafted, certain large industries nationalized and relations (economic, social and cultural) with the United States revised.

He termed the coming provincial premiers' conference in this respect was "meaningless" since those participating in the talks represented less than half the population in the country.

Abolition oft he Death Penalty

Thursday night's free vote in the House of Commons approving in principle limits to capital punishment continue to present some anomalies.

Eighteen months ago the house rejected total abolition of the death penalty. Yet in that time the cabinet refused to accede to the views of Canada's elected leaders of Parliament and continued to commute all death sentences, a policy it has practised since its election in 1963.

On Thursday, despite the vote being declared a free vote — MPs could vote as they wished without concern for party policy — the results suspiciously took on the aspects of the party line. Eighty-one Liberals favored the bill, 33 opposed. Progressive Conservative members voted 56-15 against.

If the bill gets third reading next week one of the peculiarities which will result is that the killer of a citizen who might have come to the aid of a troubled policeman would escape the death sentence — a sentence which would be near automatic if he were to be convicted of murdering the policeman.

One of the sobering thoughts is that trends in the United States have a habit of turning up in Canada a few years later. This is evident in all fields from regional boards of education to television viewing patterns to hippies.

The United States in undergoing a period of rebellion of authority which has switched the civil rights movement to a militant protest, has created unrest at colleges and a major increase in crimes of violence.

New York City alone showed a 13 per cent increase in murders in the first 10 months of 1967 over the previous year. Robberies and felonious assaults jumped more than 30 per cent.

Adherents of abolition claim the death penalty is not a deterrent to murder. It is an argument which has left a considerable number of people unconvinced.

Communist Split Surfaces

There is no doubt that democracy at times can be its own worst enemy when it comes to selling its philosophy. The freedom to say, write, or even think what you wish is often not appreciated by individuals not exposed since birth to our democratic theories.

It is somewhat of a relief, then, to learn that communism may be in line for a few adverse pot shots around the world.

This arises from the decision of Russian leaders to go ahead with plans for an international Communist conference despite opposition from half the world's ruling Communist parties.

On first thought, it is puzzling to understand the Kremlin decision in the face of varying degrees of opposition from its Communist partners.

It would lend one to think that Russia has abandoned hopes of a reconciliation with China and has decided that it was time for a meeting where the Russian party could be shown to be the inspiration of the world Communist movement.

Observers are suggesting now the feeling amongst top level Russian thinkers is that the need for such a display outweighs the disadvantages of highlighting ideological differences with parties which do not follow the Kremlin line.

It could bring to a head a split which has been kept behind the scenes since the 1960 world Communist conference in Moscow.

The feud surfaced in 1962 when Nikita Khrushchev moved to condemn Peking. The confrontation aborted when Khrushchev was replaced by Leonid Brezhnev in 1964.

Since then the split has widened but the world Communist parties have not found it a sufficient area of concern to impair their ideological warfare with the West.

Calling of the world conference might turn out to be the factor needed to reduce pressures on the Western democracies and reduce the harsh criticism levelled at the United States for its foreign policy.

It certainly can't hurt.

Acclamations Not Healthy

Belleville and Trenton, the two major communities in the Quinte area will have contests for the mayoralty and city council seats this year.

But from there on in, throughout the district, acclamations have been far too numerous. Belleville returned its public school board by acclamation. Some townships returned whole slates by acclamation. In at least one municipality a second nomination will have to be held to even get enough people to have an acclamation.

It's not good enough. Quinte area residents have got to take a broader interest in civic affairs. Either that or quit complaining.

Cheeky Choquette Perpetual Threat to Liberals

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Sooner or later, Auguste Choquette, the brash, 35-year-old explosively opinionated Liberal MP from the Quebec constituency of Lotbiniere, is going to get his government into some serious trouble.

Often he has vastly embarrassed it, setting many of the Liberal cabinet to squirming uncomfortably on the government benches, and Prime Minister Pearson to hitching his shoulders and tossing his head in irritation and bursting out with his impatient, "Oh, for goodness sake."

But until the other day, the worst young Choquette had done his own government was to humiliate it — while Conservatives snorted in indignation and snickered in derision — with his campaign in the Commons to "abolish" the Queen.

Then he went one dangerous — to the government — step further.

He brought into the Commons a bill to require that parliamentarians, MPs and Senators, swear allegiance to the government rather than the Queen.

Parliament's oath of allegiance has been a touchy subject since Social Credit MP Robert Thompson charged, then withdrew the accusation, that separatist MP Gilles Gregoire had violated his pledge of loyalty by campaigning in France for funds to finance the cause of Quebec "independence" from Canada.

So when Auguste Choquette came to the Commons with his bill to change the historic oath, there was an angry reaction.

And for the first time in years the MPs — many of them Auguste Choquette's fellow Liberals — refused him consent to have the bill given first reading.

Now first reading, if it is not just about automatic with almost any bill, is established routine.

But this time it was shouted down — but not out.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux, who has been leaning far over backwards in an effort to not make "martyrs" of Parliament's tiny band of separatists-republicans - and - pleaders - for - "special status-status" for Quebec, ruled this first reading of the bill as not debatable, but subject to a vote.

It was a "voice" vote — that is, whichever side, "yea," or "no" comes through the loudest, wins.

There was a thunder of no's. And but two voices — Choquette's and one other — crying "yea."

Quickly the crestfallen Choquette glanced around the House.

Were there enough Quebec separatists, independents a nd republicans to force a stand-up-and-be-counted vote?

It would only take six, just a half dozen on their feet to compel such a rail-call.

But by great good fortune, the little bloc of Quebec liberal "separatists," as they like to call themselves, did not happen to be in the Commons at that critical moment.

It ticked slowly by. Auguste Choquette had lost his chance to again make trouble. With an almost audible sigh of relief, the House hurried on with the other and more important business of the day.

But had the moment not slipped by, if six Quebec "revistas" had stood and forced the vote, the entire government side of the Commons would have had to make a choice.

For some — such as the Quebec members of the cabinet, busy campaigning against Rene Levesque and the separatists in that province — it would have been a tough one.

It might have been almost as difficult for some of the English - speaking Liberal MPs, for if the government loses its great power-base in Quebec, it loses everything.

And to put the Queen ahead of the government in the sweating of loyalty had in it the political hazard of offending some of the more extreme— and may- be not so extreme — elements in Quebec.

The moment of peril, then, ticked by safely — but not the ever present danger that Auguste Choquette, Liberal MP, poses for the Liberals and their government.

For on the Commons order paper he has a resolution to "abolish" the monarchy.

A self-styled "republican" — although he sits in Parliament as a member of the Liberal party — he has two other bills in preparation for presentation to the Commons.

One is to take the "Queen's Printer," the federal government printing bureau.

And the other is to delete "royal" from the RCMP.

He has tried, and failed, to "Canadianize," as he phrases it, the "Royal Mail."

He is determined, inventive, persistently fast on his feet in the Houses, and sooner or later he should succeed in doing the Liberals real and lasting damage.

Nov. 25, 1867 ...

A strong force of British troops reached Fort Dougrace, now Pittsburgh, 208 years ago—in 1758—to find that the French had destroyed supplies and burned the buildings of the frontier post and left for Canada. The abandonment of Pittsburgh gave Britain control of inland portions of what is today the northern United States.

Newfie Port May Get Refinery

Windsor Star

The old question, "What's in a name?" may be raised anew over current happenings in Newfoundland. This time the focus centres on a long obscure port of that province which carries the name "Come-By-Chance." But whatever the element of chance in its founding it appears to be building a future.

A $100 million oil refinery is in the works and although such enterprises are highly automated these days they necessarily depend on manpower for many of the everyday activities connected with them.

So if the Come-By-Chance epterprise puts down roots and expands a substantial community may be expected to rise around it. Sharers in that development will want many of the better things in life and, of course, will be able to afford them.

All this will not materialize in a few months but as a long range prospect the outlook is good.

Car Safety vs Accidents

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Ontario's approval of the use of metal studs in auto tires, first announced last January, has been confirmed with the release of tire specifications.

The studs, tests show, increase car safety in winter driving conditions. They also damage permanent roadways.

What the department has had to weigh is the cost of road resurfacing against the expense of highway accidents. The first consideration involves money. The second concerns both money and people.

The decision to permit studded tires was the only possible answer.

Swahili Really Not Needed

New York Times

The announcement that William Howard Taft, High School in the Bronx plans to offer instruction in Swahili as an elective is a prime example of how not to improve the educational opportunities of the city's Negro youngsters. Despite the current fashionable sentimental and emotional talk about the need to nurture in Negro youths a pride in their ethic past and traditions, the manufacture of artificial linguistic and pseudo-nationalistic rallying points is a demeaning flight from reality. Those who are justly critical of the curriculum for its frequent lack of relevance to the needs of the disadvantaged ought to pause before making instruction even more irrelevant by the addition of Swahili.

Parliamentary Notebook

Minority Position of Liberal Government Not of Prime Concern

OTTAWA (CP)—The last parliamentary non-confidence vote raises new doubts that the opposition can inflict an election-causing defeat on the government in the Commons.

Conservatives gained support from the other four opposition parties for their motion Monday, but it went down 119 to 105.

It was the first non-confidence motion moved by Robert Stanfield since he took over as Conservative leader from John Diefenbaker, who had also failed in master enough votes to unseat the minority government in four years of trying.

The 1963 defeat of the minority Diefenbaker administration was the last time a government was defeated in the House. The Liberals took office in the succeeding election and have won every non-confidence vote since.

After the Monday vote, some opposition members conceded the government has an effective majority in the Commons even though it has a minority of seats.

Excluding the Speaker, the Liberals hold 132 of the 265 Commons seats and the Conservatives 95. The NDP has 22, Creditistes 8, Social Credit 4. There are three independents and one vacancy.

Some opposition MPs suggest there will have to be a very special act of circumstances for the government to lose a non-confidence motion.

Members are mindful that it was only after the minority Diefenbaker administration had fallen apart with resignations that the House administered the coup de grace by voting non-confidence. And the Diefenbaker government was in a far more serious minority position than the present regime.

There's no doubt that non-confidence tests worry the Liberal government to lose a non-confidence motion.

They have to work hard to get a fairly full House to make sure of victory.

There is no indication either of the two principle parties in opposition will give up the practice of proposing non-confidence motions at every opportunity.

It helps put the party's point of view across to the public, discomfits the government and—who knows, maybe the miracle will happen.

But such tests are sometimes called and the ballies become of the virtual certainty of the c

Despite that, the Conservatives as the official Opposition, dare not withdraw from the field out of fear the NDP would take the play away by maintaining the practice. An agreement between the two parties could reduce the number of non-confidence motions, but there is no sign one is in the offing.

Catholic Book Stirs Debate

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's being praised, argued about, banned, boosted and broadly bought. That's the treatment accorded a recently-issued Roman Catholic book, A New Catechism, which puts some old doctrines in new perspective.

It's stirring up assorted reverberations. Some Catholic authorities object to it; others applaud it, and it's being variously handled by church outlets.

A few have barred it from display shelves, amid some complaints of censorship.

Already, it has sold more than 60,000 copies.

The book, designed as an adult exposition of the faith, was prepared under auspices of Dutch bishops by theologians, Roman Catholic Church historians and other scholars, and issued in the United States Oct. 31 by Herder and Herder, a Roman Catholic publishing house.

"The package was not labelled dynamite, but it might well have been," writes Rt. Rev. Msgr. John S. Kennedy in the national Catholic paper, Our Sunday Visitor.

The first comprehensive catechism for laymen growing out of the decisional developments unleashed by the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65, the volume also has aroused questions in Rome and consideration of possible revisions.

But many American Catholic reviewers have widely commended it. "An excellent guide," said Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta. "The book for every Catholic in this year of 1957."

In Los Angeles, however, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre is reported to have ordered the catechism kept out of the archdiocesan bookshop for the time being.

A rule against displaying the book also was set by the Daughters of St. Paul, whose publishing house operates bookstores in a dozen cities. A spokesman said an original ban was modified to allow sales on requests by priests and nuns.

The 322-page catechism departs from the church ban on birth control, saying couples must be free to follow their consciences in methods of regulating births.

It also bypasses some traditional doctrines, such as "transubstantiation." This doctrine asserts that in communion the bread and wine become in substance the body and blood of Christ.

The catechism warns against a liberal material view and also against a purely symbolic view, saying: "It is better to say that the bread is essentially withdrawn from its normal human meaning by definition, and has become the bread which the Father gives us, Jesus Himself."

The catechism skirts the question of the ideological virginity of Jesus' mother, Mary, saying that Jesus' birth was "the gift of God to mankind," and adding: "This the evangelists Matthew and Luke express when they proclaim that Jesus' birth was due to the will of a man. They proclaim that this birth does not depend on what men can do themselves."

Rev. Richard P. McBrien, of Pope John XXIII Seminary, Weston, Mass., says the new catechism "advocates nothing that reputable theologians and canon lawyers have not already proposed in far more specific urgent form."

The Dutch edition of the catechism bore the imprimatur of a Dutch churchman, Bernard Cardinal Alfrink. Vatican officials raised questions about the book and, since then, a German edition has been held up while Dutch bishops negotiate with Rome about possible changes.

However, Herder and Herder went on with the American edition without the imprimatur.

The Vatican daily, L'Osservatore Romano, recently carried a brief item saying Cardinal Alfrink "deplores the publication" of the English-language edition in the U.S. and in Britain.

Bridge Street United Will Mark Anniversary

Bridge Street United Church will observe its 152nd anniversary in Belleville at services on Sunday.

Two special services, at 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m., will mark the anniversary. The visiting preacher for the occasion will be the Rev. W. F. Banister, Professor of Practical Theology and Christian Ethics at Queen's Theological College, Kingston.

Dr. Banister is well - known through his services broadcast from Chalmers United Church, Kingston, where he was the minister for 25 years.

He has held other pastorates at Canton, Newmanville and Toronto. Dr. Banister has been the recipient of two honorary Doctor of Divinity degrees — one from Victoria University in 1953 and one from Queen's University in 1961.

He has served as a member of the executive of the general council, the boards of evangelism and social service, and colleges and secondary schools and as chairman of the committee on Christian faith.

Dr. Banister saw service overseas as Chaplain from 1940-45 and was discharged with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. In 1945 he taught in the chaplain school in England and in the same year received the OBE for distinguished service.

On Sunday morning his sermon subject will be "Window, Open Eastward". In the evening the Venerable Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, Rector of St. Thomas Anglican Church, will assist in the service. Dr. Banister's evening sermon subject will be "Strength for Living."

April's Investment Yields Rich Harvest

SIDNEY, B.C. (CP) — Rev. Howard McDiarmid stood at the door of St. Paul's United Church here last April and handed out $10 bills to his departing congregation.

When he had finished, the 33-year-old minister had doled out $1,000 and a simple biblical message to each of the recipients: Be fruitful and multiply.

He was quoting the parable from Matthew 25, verses 14-30, that tells of a master who entrusted his money to three servants. Two of the servants doubled the money and were well rewarded, while the third showed no talent and made nothing.

Heeding the message, Mr. McDiarmid's congregation set out, like the servants, to see how well they could manage the money.

Thanksgiving Sunday was the day of reckoning—the time to return the $10 bills and whatever interest had been earned. Mr. McDiarmid got back the $1,000 and $3,000 more.

How did the investment-wise congregation do it?

One family operated a four-hour tourist cruise through the Gulf Islands with their boat. That enterprise turned the $10 into $30.

A young girl used her money to paint a portrait which she sold for $100. A lady spent her $10 on cooking ingredients and baked and sold bread. Another marketed home-made meat pies, and still another made and sold costume jewelry to tourists.

Church members went to the bank and paid off a $2,000 loan that started the whole business last spring. With the rest of the money they will pay for a church hall at St. Paul's, make a contribution to the United Church's foreign mission and distribute some of the money to needy organizations.

Said Mr. McDiarmid, in-between jobs with a broken leg: "I think the congregation derived a great deal from it, much more than the financial goal which had been set. And we'd like to see the congregation sign a practical re-enactment of some other parables."

Queen's Alumni Enjoy Tour of Pathology Dept.

On Wednesday evening, Queen's University Alumni and friends gathered together in Education Hall for a buffet supper, attractively prepared by the chef of the Belleville General Hospital, Mr. J. Boughen, and supervised by the dietitian, Mrs. R. Wreno.

The guest speaker of the evening, Dr. G. F. Kipkie, was introduced by Dr. J. S. Laymen, Dr. Kipkie, associate professor of Pathology and director of Laboratories at the Kingston General Hospital, began his talk by defining pathology. The basis done by the pathology department are essential to a proper diagnosis by a physician, in fact, often when the unknown disease present in the patient. Dr. Kipkie told of the need for adequate equipment and personnel in his department. In the future, Dr. Kipkie said, is the possibility that automation will handle part of the work carried out in the laboratory. At present, plans are almost complete for the construction of a new health sciences complex which will benefit the community.

Appreciation of the audience was expressed by Dr. L. J. M. Tremblay, head of the Pathology Department at the Belleville General Hospital.

Herb Hamilton, as secretary of the Alumni Association in Kingston brought news from Queen's University. His witty remarks and discussion of plans for the future added a stimulating note to the evening.

Dr. James E. Nelles, president of the Queen's Alumni of Belleville and district, invited everyone to tour the new laboratory of the hospital. As the guests filed through this interesting department, they were grateful to Dr. Tremblay for enabling this tour to take place. Dr. Tremblay gave an explanation of some of the equipment being used in the laboratory and answered questions.

ST. JAMES' CWL

Members of St. James' CWL met in the recreation rooms for the annual potluck supper.

Rev. J. F. McGarvey continued the series on the Second Vatican Council and spoke on the subject of the individual versus the community. He said an involvement in the community is urgently needed and people must learn to assist their fellow men.

The next meeting will be the Christmas party with gift exchange. Mrs. Stan Meeks was named convener of a committee to provide Christmas treats for the children. The women's card parties have been postponed until early in the new year and members were asked to support the parties sponsored by the men in December.
